Toronto, Sept. 1.—(By The Canadian Press)—Magistrate Margaret Patterson, Toronto, is to be censured for sentencing Walker Brooks of this city, to 10 days in jail because Brooks was unable to pay the fine of $1.50.

E. J. Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney General of Ontario, today reported to Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., Attorney general, on the case and it is understood that he recommended:

"The whole proceedings in this case were taken under the wrong act and I think both the justice who issued the process and the Magistrate who tried the case were guilty of carelessness," Mr. Bayly said.

"I also think the Magistrate who heard this case deserves censure for having made an order of this kind to operate automatically, or where by not having the accused up before the court having the opportunity to ascertain the ability of Brooks to pay and the efforts he had made to comply with the order.

ASTRONOMERS NOW STUDYING DISCOVERIES

Groups Jubilant as Rifts Appear in Clouds

30 SECONDS DARK

Montreal Sees Nothing But Impressive Darkness

(By H. M. Peters)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Astronomers today were preparing to check up on data and develop pictures they secured yesterday, when for a few meeting seconds darkness covered a broad stretch of North America from Hudson Bay to the Atlantic coast in New England.

Most of the world famous scientists, astronomers, engineers, physicists and scientific bodies all over the world, including those in Montreal, they had carefully chosen were engaged yesterday in a great cloud and the eclipse of the sun was inscribed to be the elaborate and expensive equipment and Bailly's Beads, those glowing, gem-like bursts of flame, that are the world like diamonds on a dinner ring.

Eclipse Impressive

The man on the street in the city of totality was also badly disappointed. Only Sorel, Actonvale, Louiseville and one or two other points were fortunate in seeing the clouds roll back and the awe-inspiring eclipse unfold itself in its grandeur.

Montreal saw nothing. They crowded all points of vantage in their thousands. Every roof bore its quota. Yet even if a glimpse of nature's finest spectacle was denied them, they did their part in an impressive in itself. Almost one could imagine he heard the rush of the moon as darkness came swiftly over the city. The air was deathly still and thermometers dropped. Then, with the end of man's littleness expressed as mighty forces took command of the situation, the sun came out with almost ordinary afternoon into dingy twilight. Then darkness began to come. Probably Montreal was too far to the left of the centre of totality to see the moon's shadow, the sun, the horizon glowed a brilliant yellow.

For about 30 seconds night lasted in the city proper. Then it came the moon passed on, the sun was sending its rays with increasing force through the clouds. Rare was the sight that this writer had to see as the clouds permitted even a glimpse of the two mighty forces crowning the sky. Then the clouds closed and the city's million was the 1,000 who crowded the roofs. The afternoon cruise down the St. Lawrence to a point near Quebec City reported it was perfect.

Numerous dozen aeroplanes hovered overhead. High above the low hanging, dense clouds they had a birdseye view of the corona and its coming vividly around the sun.

Many scientific stations seem to have given a better view of the eclipse than in the city. Ottawa, Victoria, Quebec, Halifax and numerous other points reported success in this classification.

Much interest will attach to sketches made by R. P. Gray, Toronto artist, who attempted to record the various tints of color presented in the heavens.

Importer Calls Gloria Swanson's PowderRoomBarRoomUnnecessary

Los Angeles, Sept. 1.—What furnishings in the Beverly Hills home of Gloria Swanson are "necessary" was the delicate question before Superior Judge E. H. Wilson today.

The question arose during a hearing on a suit brought against the actress by a New York importer to attach 18th century lamps and a 17th century map of Africa.

Through her counsel, Miss Swanson, who is in London, said her position is the fifth world necessitated a home that was "tastefully and expensively furnished."

Among the accoutrements called by the importer as "unnecessary" were "powder room", a "bar room", an antique 18th century lamp base, and a 17th century map of Africa.

A few tentative walls rose above the clamour and bustle in the Manufacturer's Building at the Fair Grounds, Wednesday evening. Out of a group of people who had been standing nearby one separated and walked in the direction of the sound. A little three year old girl with golden hair, pretty little frock and a small fat screwed up into an indignant eye surveyed the figure before her.

"What's the matter little girl" asked Mayor Chas. Tice.

"Mummy's losted", came another indignant wail. "And my name's Gwen". Then she stood and wondered what the next move would be.

The Chief Magistrate took Gwen by the hand and led her to the firemen's bench, outside the main building, where Fire Chief William Lynch took charge of such minor trifles as supplying pop and, so forth while "mummy" was being hunted for. Mummy was found later by one of the firemen. But did Gwen want to go with her? Not a bit—as long as the pop and ice cream was handy.

Gwen holds the record for being the first lost child picked up on the grounds out of thousands who have flocked there since the opening.

Important Discovery in Radio Reception is Made During Sun's Eclipse

Sunset Conditions Prevailed According to Observators

COWS GO HOME

Birds Go to Roost And Horses Stop in Fields

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Writer)

Boston Mass., Sept. 1.—One important result of yesterday's eclipse of the sun was a scientific discovery, some queer human experiences summed up today the accomplishments of 1rc total eclipse expeditions.

Clouds completely ruined the work of more than half the largest expeditions, a fate that had grieved astronomers, for extremely refined observations about the moon's edge is the basis of practical calculations used by man, and particularly of the tide charts used by sailors.

The Harvard expedition was among the "perfect weather" groups and its members returned to Boston enthusiastic in the belief they had a new grip on some of the mysteries of what composes the corona. They obtained this information by measuring "polarization" of coronal light in the spectroscope which may prove how much of it is reflection from solid particles streaming off the sun's surface life popping corn.

15 THOUSAND IN TWO DAYS

Third Day of Fair Brings Another Large Crowd

Fair officials are jubilant over the continued success of the Fair, which has so far exceeded their expectations insofar as attendance has been considered. During the first two days of the Belleville Fair nearly fifteen thousand people of all ages have paid admission through the gates to enter the grounds. Of this approximate number 8,238 are reg istered on the turnstiles on foot the first day, and on the second day Wednesday 5,411 entered off by the counters. This number does not include the many persons who have entered the grounds in their cars. Nor does it take into consideration any of the great number who have found other, easy entries to the grounds. Thursday's gate records were also holding up well up to noon today, according to gate keepers, even though a sweltering day and a broiling sun continued to cut down the attendance.

Turnstiles again clicked a merry tune at the Belleville and district turned out en masse to attend the third day of the Belleville Fair. Despite the heat and the blazing sun which beamed down during trade to soft drink booths and ice cream stands, and competitors, alike on the grounds, the attendance up to noon today was quite considerable, and by afternoon it had been on Wednesday, the second day of the Fair.

Today King Horse and other livestock, with heavy horses, predominating, are the main attractions. Races will also be featured in the afternoon, and several fine programmes have been promised.

For the Belleville Fruit, the two Lewis girls, Lena and Ann Gaina stood out head and shoulders over their team mates. TOO HOT FOR NEW ENGLAND MOTORIST

"Phew, it's hot!" gasped Mr. E. E. Dunning, of Bridgport, Connecticut, as he alighted from his car admiring his wife and two boys, in to a parking space in front of the Chamber of Commerce building.

"If they had this heat down in Connecticut," added Mr. Dunning to Mr. J. O. Hertig, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, "they wouldn't know what to do. It's the hottest day I ever saw".

The Dunning family have been vacationing at Paudash Lake for the past week or so and entered back into the city yesterday to find the hottest day so far left of the heat wave which struck the district. They are now on their home trip.

Why Belleville Boys Swim Young, Boatman Tells Scribe

Not a Day But Several Upsets in Local Harbor

MARINE EVENT

Why is it that Belleville youths apparently learn to swim at an earlier age than those from other communities? Circumstances force them to it, and, punts and boats rising in the bay and harbor have a lot to do with it also," adds Jack Hobbits, veteran boatman and harbor front resident.

It's a dull day when Jack, sitting in front of his boat house, doesn't see two or three boats keel over and capsize in the harbor. Then all hands swim for the nearest shore.

How they manage to tip the flat-bottomed home-made punts over, with the small amount of sail some of them carry, is something which Jack hasn't been able to figure out. He's seen them turn bottom up when there wasn't enough wind to "float a feather."

Some of the craft, carefully built and launched with full sail, look fine—until they make a turn. Then she does a tumbling act and throws all hands into the bay like tomatoes out of a basket. Jack sees a lot of queer sights in the harbor some distance from his boat house.

There were three or four of them standing on the side of their boat, Monday afternoon, out in the harbor some distance, when a sudden flish or a turtle. One man, anxious to see it, let go one of the ropes and beat over. A stray gust of wind caught the sail, swung the boom around, tripped them all off deck into the water, and finished up by capturing all the sail overboard on the first puff and in a few minutes were busy ones, with every man for himself, everyone for everyone, no one was drowned and they were able to collect their gear in time. What they said to the man who had been holding the rope has not been recorded.

THOUSANDS SEE ECLIPSE

Smoked or darkened glasses or eclipse-o-scopes were all the rage in Belleville Wednesday and Quinte district folk could rise on the sun's eclipse Wednesday and these unscientific people were more pronounced than apparently the scientists were with their mammoth instruments and carefully prepared months as only two expeditions are believed to have journeyed to observe the total eclipse when it became total. Clouds which hitherto played so great havoc with the plans of the experts did not affect the plans of 99 per cent. partial eclipse as seen at Belleville and environs.

As the light of the sun began to be shut off at two fourteen on Wednesday a greenish hue settled on the heavens out of a clear sky, the effect was startling as the peculiar uncanny hase settled down—shadows became deep, light of Old Sol plastered on the walls turned to a greenish cast and all things looked weird. As the time slowly approached the moment of greatest twilight, the temperature was appreciably lowered at Belleville and a cooling breeze sprang up over the river. Many clouds which had begun to assemble in the northwest slowly but steadily took on depth and by the time the effect of the sun's loss of light was not so marked.

As the minutes of light and the maximum of obscurity drew near, the people appeared to accelerate as a very rapid rate. But it was but a moment before the light began to grow as the north limb of the crescent sun began to swell and the scene was changed.

Nature Not Upset

Herabouts nature did not seem to be upset. A lonely gull flew up and down the Moira River in search of prey, in the period of greatest darkness but it made no captures of fish, these evidently having obeyed the signs of paling light if the scarcely-seen gull in the latter doubtless feeling that sunshine was to recur as it did not have a full stomach and he may have thought it was only bed for a shorter day had been adopted by the sun. He took no chances but became very active in the trolling it as in ordinary daylight.

Herabouts the eclipse was a total ascence, not a cloud in the sky of the sun's light.

Birds about the city did not twitter twilight songs. At the full evidence of the appreciation of the dimming light was missing in the animal and bird world although it is now went down on its knees to rest. None of the chickens in the poultry show went to bed.

Local radio reception at the fair did not have a real test during the greatest obscurity, owing to the sounds at the booths which made delicate and close appreciation difficult.

A. CLEMENT PROSTRATED

Terrific Heat Causes Young Man to Faint

One heat prostration was recorded in the city Wednesday during the hottest day Belleville and district has had this summer.

Mr. Allan Clement, R. R. Kingston, who had been working in the sun at the Fair Grounds, unloading some stock from a truck, was overcome by the 1924 degrees of the high mark just before one o'clock and fainted away. The young man was assisted to the grass near the front entrance to the grounds and later to the office of the secretary of the Board, where he was rendered first aid. Medical attention was not required.

While the mercury mounted to over ninety at the pump house just before two o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, these figures were taken from the shady side of the building. In the open the heat was terrific. It was not until the eclipse of the sun occurred that any relief was brought from the sweltering heat. During the maximum darkening of the sun the temperature dropped almost fourteen degrees, which was somewhat welcomed, however, following the eclipse.

G. WALLBRIDGE DIES, AGED 87

Wellknown Merchant And Educationist is Mourned

With deepest regret, citizens of Belleville on Thursday, learned of the death, early that morning of one of the city's most highly esteemed and respected residents.

One who, born in the city, had lived here all his life, and by his upright fair and honorable dealings had founded a business that grew to be known throughout Ontario. A gentleman of the kindliest of characteristics, thoughtful and conscientious. In the passing of George Wallbridge, Belleville loses one of its outstanding native sons, a man, who had he sought public office, would have been accorded what honour he desired at his fellow citizens hands, yet, the late Mr. Wallbridge may have had what honour he wished at their hands, for throughout this community, he had the heartfelt esteem and affection of all. So sincerely kind and courteous has been his life, so thoughtful his actions toward his fellowmen that scores in Belleville will miss him almost as a friend. This city has been enriched by prominent citizens of the type of Mr. Wallbridge, who in passing, leave a memory that is ever cherished by those that remain, and whose lifetime has left its impression for good in all walks of activity of that city's life.

The late Mr. Wallbridge was born in Belleville, eighty-eight years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wallbridge. At 14 years of age he began earning his own living. In 1867 with the late E. G. Beatty he founded the Ontario Business College of this city, selling his interest in that enterprise in 1871 to take over the grocery business of Mr. Fisher. This he conducted and expanded till he had four linked grocery stores in Belleville and Toronto. He was later joined in the business by his brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph Clarke of this city. This partnership lasted until Mr. Clarke left for the Yukon during the Klondike gold rush. Mr. Wallbridge then continued sole proprietorship of the stores until about two years ago when he retired from active life. Major O. Fred Wallbridge taking over the business at that time.

A year previous to assuming the responsibility of business, Miss Phyllis Clarke, also born in Belleville. Mrs. Wallbridge predeased her husband, Mr. Wallbridge was an Anglican and an attendant at St. Thomas' Church where he was in oldest pew holder. The only public office he ever held, was becoming his wife and two boys, in to a parking space in front of the Chamber of Commerce building.

"If they had this heat down in Connecticut," added Mr. Dunning to Mr. J. O. Hertig, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, "they wouldn't know what to do. It's the hottest day I ever saw".

The Dunning family have been vacationing at Paudash Lake for the past week or so and entered back into the city yesterday to find the hottest day so far left of the heat wave which struck the district. They are now on their home trip.

CO-OPERATIVE STATE MAYBE

Could be Done Without State Socialism Says Miss Macphail

Woodstock, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Agnes Macphail, M.C., South Grey, Canada's only woman member of parliament, was on record today as a supporter of a co-operative state. "It could be done," Miss Macphail declared, told members of the North Oxford Progressive Political Association, "without as much state socialism as most of you people think."

The co-operative state she thought, would be a means of overcoming present economic conditions. The improvement of the agricultural industry could not be accomplished until the question of unemployment had been solved, she maintained, and solved to such a degree there would be a real market for agricultural products at lower interest rates.

The Conservative administration of Premier George S. Henry was attacked by H. C. Nixon, Progressive Leader from Brantford, who strongly condemned the province's dealings with the Abitibi Power System.

$100,000 FIRE LOSS IN LUMBER MILL

Fort Frances, Ont., Sept. 1.—(By The Canadian Press)—Damage of $100,000 was caused by the fire which wiped out the mill and buildings of the Mathieu Lumber Company near here last night.

An exceptionally strong southeast wind balked firefighters in their efforts to check the blaze. The planer, however was not destroyed. Rain comes and the heavy recent rains kept the fire off the lumber piles.

Unemployment faces 100 men who have been working in parts of the plant that are in ruins.

Eclipse Remarkable From Point of Visibility Says Expert Viewing Phenomenon

Shape of Corona is Different From Other Eclipses

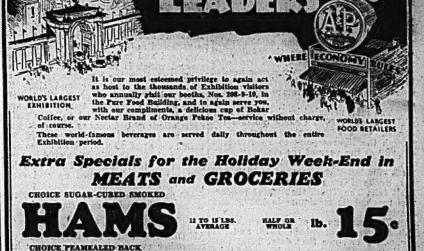
NEAR STILLNESS

French Scientists Obtain Wonderful Results From View

Montreal, Sept. 1.— Yesterday's Eclipse of the sun was the most remarkable from the point of view of visibility, Professor Andrew Thomson, Toronto, Chief of the Physics Division of the Dominion Meteorological Service of the Dominion stated on his return from Louisville where he had a perfect vision of the Eclipse.

"The shape of the corona was different from those seen in other eclipses," he said, "in that they were more polished and not so evenly arranged around the disc of the sun." He had previously seen eclipses in Kansas, in 1918 and in Brazil in 1919.

Professor Thomson said the cooling of the air before and after the totality was not so pronounced as expected nor so pronounced as those of the two other eclipses he had witnessed. The fall in temperature was only about 4 degrees Fahrenheit.



His main study during the passage of the moon in front of the sun was to measure the change in electrical potentialities of the air. This he said, showed a slight decrease.

The eclipse, he said, took place in near-stillness and not with the usual gusts of air which accompany the spectacle. Contrary to the usual thing also, was that the clouds diminished before totality, he said.

Excellent results had been obtained by the French scientists located at Louisville, Professor Thomson stated. They had gone there primarily for the purpose of doing spectroscopic work and for measuring the polarized light coming from the Corona. This apparatus was of high caliber, he said, and he expected that the French had gleaned some exceedingly valuable knowledge.

PEAK OF EMPLOYMENT

"A price system and scientific production," says Howard Scott, "can not exist side by side."

Therefore, as he tells us, "the social system of the future must be adjusted to the energy-producing values which can be regulated by scientific methods." In other words, it must be adjusted to power, whether human or mechanical.

Mr. Scott, a consultant technologist, is directing at Columbia University an "energy survey" tracing the industrial and agricultural development of the United States during the last hundred years in terms of production."

Sponsored jointly by Columbia's Department of Industrial Engineering and the Architects' Emergency Committee of New York, the survey will draft 3,000 charts "representing this history from 1830 to 1930 of the 3,000 leading industrial and agricultural products, ranging from steel to power."

Each chart will reveal "the amount of energy expended annually in production, the number of men employed and their working hours, and the volume produced each year."

As the New York Times quotes Mr. Scott as saying:

The survey explains very clearly what is happening in this country today. Prior to 1910, the charts show very little fluctuation in the production of the major commodities. Since then the oscillations grow tremendous, increasing in frequency and in amplitude. The man-power needed in the production of each commodity slips down, even as the total horse-power increases.

The facts revealed by the charts completed through 1920 clearly indicate the coming of the present depression, although the figures point to 1930 instead of 1929 as the year of the crash.

Though "the maximum of employment in industry was reached in 1918, and has declined ever since that date," Mr. Scott tells The Times that "total production reached its maximum in 1929," and continues:

The maximum of employment in industry was reached in 1918, and has declined ever since that date. Total production, on the other hand, reached its maximum in 1929. This ratio of increased production and the declining employment is to be found in every major industry, as the charts indicate. Employment may be considered, therefore, an inverse factor in the rate of production.

The charts give a picture of our civilization in the only accurate terms in which it can be depicted. It can not be done, as economists do it, by controlling monetary wealth. Economics is merely the pathology of privately owned wealth. Although monetary wealth is the only wealth in our price system of production, to attempt to evaluate modern civilization in dollars is to attempt to build a house with a rubber yardstick.

The United States, these charts show, expends in energy 150,000 calories per capita every day. The figure for the ancient Greeks and the modern Chinese is 1,600 to 2,000 per capita per day.

"Our greatest difficulty is the fact that the tremendous energy expended in this country is not distributed. Under the present industrial system unemployment will continue to increase until a maximum point is reached, which will bring about the collapse of the system."

ILLUSTRATED BOOKS

A new trend ought to appear in books, bringing not only a boom to the book trade but also to artists.

These are days of colored comic supplements, and of even tabloids with colored illustrations, any vicious tendency they have also possess the art of instant appeal to the imagination.

Long novels are out of the question today. The word has not the easy going, easy-stage way of old days and both writer and reader want more instantaneous reactions, they want the dramatic. That is what appeals in the picture.

Will everything we read be illustrated? Printing in colors is a real art today. The chance is for the artist.

A good illustrator makes the message of novelist or poet, or dramatist or story-teller of much greater importance.

Dickens was one of the most blessed of writers. He had a friend named Cruikshank, the greatest of illustrators in his day and age. This man pictured Dickens' world of characters and events. He is always thought of with Dickens.

Surely authors today would not be jealous of such collaboration! Dickens was grateful and the Cruikshank illustrations rewarded him many times over.

HOUSES OF LIFE

By Alice Michaelis

Life is a hovel, sordid and poor,
Where men find varied ills to endure,
All those who enter blindly this place
Soon must know sorrow, pain's fierce embrace.

Doorways of dawning; portals of stars;
Turrets that tower into the sky;
Walls built of splendor: Heaven very nigh!

Hovel or palace; which will be yours?
Each of life's houses opens its doors;
Each bids you enter as you go by;
Ah, why not dwell with Heaven very nigh?

TWO THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED AND SEVEN CHILDREN LOST — such the record of Children's Day this year at Toronto Fair. Of course, the children did not stay lost for the Fair Officials have a fine system for looking after the kiddies. The grounds are well policed and when a crying kiddie is spied who is just lotted and don't know where he is, he or she is gathered in the arms of the blue-coated shepherd and taken to the kiddies' playground which is just a bit of heaven on earth and here the youngsters forget all their troubles and play and sleep the hours away until parents collect them later on. Of course the telephone is kept busy in the haven for lost children giving descriptions of lost ones and all ends well. This Children's Day the last child was called for at 11.45 p.m. Kinda seems as if parents visiting the big fair would be more careful if they did not know that lost children would be picked up and cared for. Seems funny that so many parents could be so careless as to mislay over two thousand children in one afternoon.

AN OLD RESIDENT of Belleville who can remember events clearly for nearly half a century, recalls a trip through North Hastings by horse and buggy many years ago. He saw some children playing beside the road, near a cottage. A woman came out of the cottage and called loudly for "Johnny." The children did not answer which the Belleville man thought rather strange. Stopping his vehicle he asked the children why they did not answer their mother. The biggest chap of the group replied: "We'em not calling awee, us don't belong to she."

PRAYER IS A GREAT POWER, says Roger W. Babson, in one of the most remarkable of his letters ever issued. "The possibilities have not been scratched. I once asked that great electrical engineer, Steinmetz, when visiting in my home, as to what will be the next revolutionary development in science. He replied by saying that, in his judgment, it will be along spiritual lines, and added, the use of spiritual power in today's relative stage where the use of electricity was when Franklin flew his kite nearly two hundred years ago." Then he concluded by explaining that there would be nothing "miraculous" about such spiritual developments. Rather he believed that through prayer we would secure such much greater power, giving us to LIVE RIGHTLY, SERVE USEFULLY and THINK CHEERFULLY. This means,' continues Babson, "that the successful use of prayer in business troubles comes from praying that we may act rightly, usefully and cheerfully, having faith that such a life brings its own rewards. In the case of the normal business man these rewards are wisdom, courage, self-control, joy, and other powerful and spiritual qualities."

ECZEMA NOT INCURABLE IN EXPERT'S VIEW

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

Eczema is often a most stubborn condition, to treat, requiring not only the skill of the physician but also the patience of the patient to effect a complete cure.

Particularly is this true of chronic cases, and as a rule such afflicted individuals make the rounds of many doctors and hospital clinics and try various remedies only to find that the disfiguring eruption persist to greater or lesser degree. Often, however, the cause for the appointment is that the diseases has not been treated constitutionally. That is, only salves and lotions have been employed on the skin, while the internal system as a whole, been wholly or partially neglected.

Yet eczema should never be considered an incurable disease, no matter how obstinate it may appear, for under proper conditions eczema is more amenable to treatment than most chronic skin disorders. But local applications alone cannot accomplish, and in such cases, of a permanent nature.

Eczema is really an inflammation of the skin. Now then, if there is inflammation of the body anywhere the general health is not satisfactory the system must be raised. Remember, then, that the skin is an integral part of the body—a highly important part—and that when it helps out the kidneys—and that it cannot be kept in a healthy state unless its blood supply and nerve supply are normal. So again I repeat that the treatment for eczema cannot possibly be dissociated from treatment of the body as a whole.

Now how can the general health be built up? The answer depends entirely upon the state of the patient in question. In some the diet is faulty. In others intestinal or kidney elimination is not adequate. In certain persons there is a nervous system that requires special attention. There may be a glandular disturbance. Anemia may be a factor. And so it goes!

Acute eczema, unless it is promptly and effectively treated, is likely soon to become chronic.

The cheeks and forehead are frequently affected in eczema, although hands, arms, legs or any other part are not exempt. There are all degrees of severity, from small patches to extensive areas. The eruption may be moist and red, or dry and scaly, or thick and crusted. The patches may be vaguely outlined or readily recognizable. Itching is usually a most annoying symptom and scratching often makes the inflamed areas worse.

These areas should always be kept clean with a bland soap and water, and in new cases the skin usually should be smoothed with an ointment like cold cream. In old cases that show considerable crust formation, lotions and creams of a more stimulating nature must be employed.

Merely giving medicine is of little avail as a rule. Properly-balanced food with plenty of roughage, fresh vegetables and fruits, and sometimes a laxative; exercise in the fresh air; restful sleep; freedom from worry; avoidance of any kind—all these are essential.

Besides the proper application of creams and lotions depending upon the nature of the condition, the use of X-rays and certain kinds of light treatment, and frequently cases often are most helpful when all other methods have failed. The X-rays and therapeutic lamp, however, should only be used by a medical expert.

Patients suffering from repeated or long-continued attacks of eczema should never despair; but correct attention must be given to the system as a whole and the patient treated above all else as an individual case.

HER HAND FELT DEAD

HELPLESS WITH RHEUMATISM

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But "a blessing"—in the form of Kruschen Salts—put her right again.

"I was sure I had a bad state," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework. I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I could not sleep at night, and had to get up and take water to ease my pain and numbness. I took all kinds of medicines and rubbed it and plastered it—but it was still there. I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything nor could I sew a button on. My arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and am so thankful for the blessings I have received in Kruschen that I write all about it—thanks to Kruschen's help and relief."—(Mrs.) J.H.

The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy regular action, assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of all rheumatic suffering. When poisonous uric acid goes with the daily doses of needle-pointed crystals—there's no doubt about those aches and pains going too!

Wrestling Card in Front of Grandstand Attracts Large Crowd With Good Bouts

Rough and Tough Kassaboski Wins Two Falls From Scabo

ONE DRAW

Funny Antics of Cattalino With Laroque Gives Crowd Laugh

Once again the Masked Marvel who is no stranger to these parts, retained his identity at the Belleville Fair grounds last evening, only by a narrow margin, following thirty minutes of hectic work with the alert and aggressive Scotty MacDougall, who almost had the unofficial champ floored for the count on numerous occasions, and approximately eighteen hundred people, who packed the grandstand and grandstand for the bouts, howled themselves hoarse, pleading for either the lighter or the Scotsman to take him to camp—or pill him. It was a fast, clean party with neither side gaining any victories in a steady half hour of close mat work, interlarded with a series of flying tackles and generally entertainment on each other's person.

That Scotty was fit to win from the Marvel was apparent to all who saw the bout, despite what people say, and despite also the fact that he weighed in at seven pounds lighter than the Marvel. It was a close tackle which had nerve and cold nerve on their feet through some of the heavier acts of the art and aside from the apparent antagonistic attitude of the Marvel's manager, Jack Laroque, who, do something about it, it was a clean wrestle of the very highest. The Marvel is not habitually a "dirty wrestler."

Hard Body Slams

Two hard body slams to the boards in the early opening for Scotty had the champ kicking. Legs and head locks were then strain on the Marvel's person. They were followed by a flurry of rough action on the part of the Marvel which had the Scotsman gasping and the crowd clamoring for blood. But it was blood from the Marvel they wanted. Scotty tried and ready fighting they wanted also, and they were almost satisfied when the Marvel took a nose dive through the ropes, on a mighty helped flying tackle, and almost knocked himself out. By the grace of ten count and close work, he was able to continue the bout to hold the lighter Scotsman, and glad to a tie at the end of thirty minutes. LaGrand, who weighed in at 218, spotted eight pounds to the masked mystery man, Mr. Bobby Orr, hook linesman, refereed both major bouts.

But while the main go of the evening was good the high spot for the kiddies and those who like to stay young was the bout between the well known Alex. Cattalino, who is also well acquainted with local citizens that he is hooted and jeered with a friendly vigor on each and every appearance and an unknown lad from Kingston, Messrs. Scabo, with plenty of class but not enough weight and the clutch-as-clutch-can K a s a b o s k i However, in the opening few minutes Mr. Kassboski found out that he had opened a surprise package which threatened to give him a run and a show for his money. Kassboski weighed in at 185, Scabo's alleged weight was 180. But he didn't look it. He tried hard to make up for it by speed but again the rough and tumble antics of the man from Renfrew gave him plenty of trouble. The first fall in 19 minutes and forty-five seconds of the scheduled two hour limit, first fall for Kassboski again emerged the winner, but his all the vagaries of the crowd. How they booed and bawled! And how Kassboski loves it!

The second fall came from a series of slams and tackles and a light-haired Hungarian through the ropes done, on the floor several times and grocery a large part of the rest of time. The crowd's sympathy of the crowd which howled for the hide of Mr. Kassboski failed to prevail. The second fall for Scabo took a second fall in just four minutes and thirty seconds.

In the opening scrap of the evening, another thirty minute affair, the fans fooded and hairy Mr. LaRocque indulged in a series of setting up exercises, flying tackles and kicks to the prostrate chin of the genial shoeless, Mr. Cattalino. It was a good struggle, enlivened now and then by the Mr. Cattalino who would, in an unexpected moment send up and stamp on the toes of Mr. LaRocque, bringing much pain and plenty of grimaces. Every time it looked as if they would have to pause for breath Mr. J. Cattalino would think up some new idea and again they'd go off in a merry whirl of flying legs and arms mixed up with the lack of deep and heavy groans.

Cattalino Original

When they really got going there wasn't enough room in the ring for the two of them so they took turns hanging outside the ropes and making faces at each other. Between times they would gambol and mixing their hands in each other's hair.

Referee Georges Semark was having the time of his life getting out of the mêlée unscathed and he soon found himself in from time to time. Then Cattalino would climb in some close work, George was there with the hook and line and fair play; when they sprang up and commenced bounding around the ring, George was in the way, and had to call time.

Finally Cattalino got down to work and started a series of flying tackles predominated. Both wrestlers were perfectly shading with LaRocque perhaps shading the other man's head with the other man's head. To do something about it, it was a clean wrestle of the very highest. The Marvel is not habitually a "dirty wrestler."

LOCAL OWNED HORSES WIN BOTH CLASSES

W. J. Grattan Romped to Victory in Straight Heats of 2.30

LARGE CROWD

Lou Ganot Had Too Much Foot For Others in 2.14

Local trained horses had a field day at Belleville Fair and "Babe" Rimhirst, teamster, had the honor of piloting both of them to victory. W. J. Grattan owned by Frank Orr of this city won the 2.30 class in straight heats, while Lou Ganot owned by Percy Morgan of Campbellford, but trained in this city, romped home with 2.14 class after four heats. These were the first races held during the fair and the large crowd present in the grandstand certainly showed the interest there is still in the horse world. The track was in splendid condition and the time was exceptionally good and two miles in 2.19 showed the horses up ready to hurl it on and some real racing is in the offing before the horses move on to another fair.

The crowd appreciated the winning of the 2.30 class by a local owned horse. There was never any doubt as to the result. The last William Orr bred this colt and a full sister but did not live to see the result of his handiwork as he died before them to the races. His son, Orrand carried on the new and worthy bout a series of flying tackles predominated. Both wrestlers were perfectly shading with LaRocque perhaps shading the other man's head with the other man's head. To do something about it, it was a clean wrestle of the very highest. The Marvel is not habitually a "dirty wrestler."

Hard Body Slams

Two hard body slams to the boards in the early opening for Scotty had the champ kicking. Legs and head locks were then strain on the Marvel's person. They were followed by a flurry of rough action on the part of the Marvel which had the Scotsman gasping and the crowd clamoring for blood. But it was blood from the Marvel they wanted. Scotty tried and ready fighting they wanted also, and they were almost satisfied when the Marvel took a nose dive through the ropes, on a mighty helped flying tackle, and almost knocked himself out. By the grace of ten count and close work, he was able to continue the bout to hold the lighter Scotsman, and glad to a tie at the end of thirty minutes. LaGrand, who weighed in at 218, spotted eight pounds to the masked mystery man, Mr. Bobby Orr, hook linesman, refereed both major bouts.

But while the main go of the evening was good the high spot for the kiddies and those who like to stay young was the bout between the well known Alex. Cattalino, who is also well acquainted with local citizens that he is hooted and jeered with a friendly vigor on each and every appearance and an unknown lad from Kingston, Messrs. Scabo, with plenty of class but not enough weight and the clutch-as-clutch-can K a s a b o s k i However, in the opening few minutes Mr. Kassboski found out that he had opened a surprise package which threatened to give him a run and a show for his money. Kassboski weighed in at 185, Scabo's alleged weight was 180. But he didn't look it. He tried hard to make up for it by speed but again the rough and tumble antics of the man from Renfrew gave him plenty of trouble. The first fall in 19 minutes and forty-five seconds of the scheduled two hour limit, first fall for Kassboski again emerged the winner, but his all the vagaries of the crowd. How they booed and bawled! And how Kassboski loves it!

The second fall came from a series of slams and tackles and a light-haired Hungarian through the ropes done, on the floor several times and grocery a large part of the rest of time. The crowd's sympathy of the crowd which howled for the hide of Mr. Kassboski failed to prevail. The second fiasko took a second fall in

DOUBT 200 MILLION LOAN TO BE FLOATED

Ottawa, Sept. 1 (CP)— Reports published recently that the Dominion Government would float a loan for $200,000,000 this fall are given no credence in official circles well informed.

No Dominion loan which may be issued this year would be for a modest sum, it is learned. An amount of $3,000,000 is mentioned but there has been no decision on the subject.

George Blagden, of Memphis Winner of Marathon Swim Says "Glad It Is All Over"

WATER WARM

George Young, Favorite, Saved From Drowning Hitting Float

By Jack Hambleton

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 1 (By The Canadian Press)—Fully rested and glad "it's all over," George Blagden, the new King of Swimmers, today received his laurels. In a gruelling 15-mile grind, Blagden yesterday defeated a field of 100 of Canada's best natators to win the Canadian National Exhibition's $500 marathon. And the Memphis, Tenn., law student, who proved somewhat of a surprise, had the greatest assurance of all, Old Lake Ontario.

In second place was Gianni Gansi, the "Italian Windmill," who thrashed his way into that position in a rousing finish. Blagden's time best that time himself, but couldn't do better than finish third.

(When he 200 Yards

Blagden won the swim by more than 200 yards, with Gambi in second place, and Spondor, the first Canadian, third. Then came Johnston, Next came Marvin Nelson, and in fifth place, Miss Young of New York. Then in the final money place was Harry Clancy, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

George Young, Toronto, favorite for the race, was rescued from exhaustion when he crawled into a float shortly after the halfway mark had been passed. Young, who was third on the event, was in fifth position at the time. Only prompt aid from Lifeguard Gilmour, even nearby boats prevented a tragedy, for Young sank immediately after striking the float and was unconscious when taken from the water.

Wreaked Vengeance

Blagden, 22 years, a swimmer since he learned the dog paddle in the Mississippi when a youngster for the past three years, he only has days ago to compete in the grind. "Although I hardly figured I'd have a chance to come home in front I hoped to get in the prize money and qualify for the Olympic team next week," the congenial George confided as he stepped on the finishing float.

George, who tried his bar examinations shortly before he left Toronto is still awaiting the results but he's not worried. He hopes to make use of the $7,500 prize in opening a law practice in his home town.

NO ROMANCE. BECAUSE GIRL RODE IN BOAT

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP)— Scribes presented different versions of interviews today with Gladys Lathbury, beautiful Philadelphia blonde, who was a proud occupant of Geo. Blagden's boat as the Memphis law student won the Canadian National Exhibition Marathon swim yesterday.

To the reporter who first asked the query "What's the latest other romance?" Miss Lathbury was reported as saying "sure, see me later." But to a query later asking confirmation of the romance, she replied, "No. Don't you print anything like that."

Miss Lathbury is herself an accomplished swimmer. She competed in the women's swim at the exhibition for the last two years.

GOLF

The Bay of Quinte Country Club members entertained the Catarqui Golf and Country Club on Wednesday afternoon, it being the annual contest between these clubs and after the scores were checked it was found the county golfers were on the top side with a 31-29 count. The weather was ideal for the game and the greens and fairways were in perfect condition. Many of the players had the advantage of watching the eclipse just before the start of the match, while they were thrilled by an exhibition of flying by three pilots from the Trenton Air Station on their return from thrilling the visiting golfers. Following the links the conclusion of the match, the players were entertained to dinner in the spacious club house and the usual toasts to the visitors and their hosts were drunk. Then the visiting golfers had delightful feature of the dinner was the presence of Knight McGregor, who obligingly entertained the golfers. KNOCKED COLD IN 10TH ROUND

Max Baer Wins Peculiar Decision in Chicago Ring

Chicago, Sept. 1—Max Baer, California's contender for the heavyweight championship of the world, today had a knockout over Ernie Schaaf of Boston—but it will never find its way into the record books.

After one of the most asinine decisions ever seen in any ring, Schaaf the protege of Jack Sharkey, world heavyweight titleholder was stretched out cold in the ketsie pit of the Chicago stadium last night, knocked out just as the bell sounded ending their 10-round contest. From the battle Baer salvaged a mere decision victory over the man, who had been regarded as the better of the younger contenders.

From the second to the ninth round it had not been so much of the fight. then, as the ninth round started Baer, an old-fashioned long distance fighter, piled into Schaaf with a withering assault to the head.

Schaaf had fought his way out of a few similar flurries earlier in the bout, but this time, Baer kept firing, smothering the Boston Blond's efforts to fight free. The 10th was the same only more so.

Two bruising rights landed on Schaaf's unprotected jaw and down he went just as the final bell sounded.

VICS LOSE A CLOSE ONE TO GANANOQUE

Left Handed Hurling Duel Won by Archie Campbell

ERRORS HURT

Return Game Will be Played in This City

Battling on even terms until the dying moments of the game, the Belleville Victorias lost the first game of the intermediate play-offs to the fast Gananoque club by the score of 7 to 3 at the Island Town Wednesday afternoon. The home club scored three runs in the initial frame, while the Vics got their three runners in the second frame. Then the Gananoque nine added another in the seventh and three more in the eighth to make their grand total of seven.

Archie Campbell was Manager Fanning's choice for mound duty and the southpaw from Tweed turned in one of his best games of the season. Campbell literally pitched his head off for the cause of the Victorias but lady luck just could not see her way clear to smile on his efforts.

Dorey, the Gananoque star left hander, was on the hilltop for the home team and pitched winning ball after the Vics hammered him quite proficiently in the first three innings. Besides during a real smart game Dorey added to his laurels by collecting two of his team's eight hits. Both lasted hard of themselves to eight hits during the nine innings played.

The Play Here

Manager Fanning announced Thursday morning that the second game of the series was being played in Belleville instead of Napanee. The game will be played at the local Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon and the Belleville fans will be treated to a feature attraction when they will have the opportunity of seeing Dorey, the Gananoque ace hurler in action.

Coach "Chummy" Gerow feels that his proteges will force the fast Gananoque nine into the return game series after Saturday's game, when Bert Walsh, the Vics star first right hander, or Ralph they will assume the pitching duties.

Except for the last few moments of the game as Gananoque the local Victorias had a slight edge of the home town Gananoque nine. With the home crowd yelling them the Vics should pull through with a win over the Island Town nine in the second game of the second round of the Intermediate series for the O.B.A.A. play-downs.

The lineups:

Belleville—Kerr ss; Ross cf; Flagler 2b; Palmer and Dey rf; Hayward c; Campbell p; Hubbard lf; Darrah 3rd; and Seeney c.

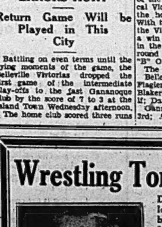
Score by innings:

	R. H. E.
Belleville .... 030 000 000—3	8 3
Gananoque .... 300000 10x—7	8 1

Batteries—Twigg and Walsh of Kingston.

I'M ALONE, 1ST ACROSS LINE



"Teeha" However Wins Punt Series on Point System

In a light south west wind yesterday the punt sailors finished the third and last of the series of races for the silver cup presented for competition by ex-Mayor Chas. H. Hanna. The Punts boat "I'm Alone" for the first time in the second series crossed the line first, to be followed one minute and forty seconds later by the Kelly-way navigated "Teeha" with Skipper Charlie Dolan's "Flora" as starting gate seven minutes and thirty-six seconds after the leader. The winner of the series is the "Teeha" with eleven points, by two wins and one second. The "Flora" and "I'm Alone" are tied for second place, each having eight points. The "Flora" won two seconds and a third and the "I'm Alone" two thirds and first places in Wednesday's race. To become permanent possessor of the trophy a skipper must win two seasons in succession.

On Friday night at the Wharf St. Debating Society's club boom punt sailing Master Kellaway will be presented with the cup. The contestants in the series will try and arrange for another race on Labor Day next, if possible.

The word peculiary is a reminder of the days when the Romans reckoned values in terms of cattle, peculi meaning head of cattle.

Cleaning is not complete in the laundry until Old Dutch is applied to my washing machine, copper boiler and galvanized tubs.

No scratches result from its use. Surfaces are rearranged and polished while the hands are never harmed. Time and energy both saved mean youth and health for housewives."

FANNIE HURST'S "BACK STREET" SCORES AT THE BELLS

As a human drama of human hearts, no motion picture shown on a Belleville screen in several seasons has equaled "Back Street" which opened before a large audience at the Bells last evening and will continue for last evening.

This noteworthy production is the adaptation of Fannie Hurst's widely read story of the same name, and the film version does full justice to the original novel of the noted authoress.

Irene Dunn who plays the leading feminine role, is altogether delightful in the sympathetic part, who finds true love when she least expects it, and by so doing everything else in life to follow the dictates of her heart. That her lover is a married man causes her many tragic hours, which continues over a span of twenty years, because it is vital fundamental, soul-stirring "Back Street" that part is played by John Boles, whose fame as a singer has given away to an established reputation as an actor of unusual depth of feeling. The sincerity of Boles and Dunn in their roles what might have been a tawdry affair, into one of tragic sending tenderness, in which the principals as well as the audience sympathy of the audience.

"GUILTY AS CHARGED"

"Guilty as Charged", a murder story with a comedy twist, will be the screen's next new play, is announced for presentation on the double-feature bill at the Bells Thursday and Monday, and marks the fourth, fifth and sixth times Miss and Victor McLaglen have been co-starred. Their first picture there was their first film together, with "The Cockeyed World" and "Women of all Nations" following. Mitchell Aron and Adrienne Ames are also in this picture.

Tom Mix, and Tony, the Wonder Horse, are appearing in another great action thriller titled "The Rider of Death Valley," which is the second feature offering on the same program.

PARAMOUNT'S GREATEST ENTERTAINMENT SEASON OPENS AT BELLE ON SATURDAY

An indication that prosperity is more than just around the corner—really right at the corner—is to be found in the widespread activities of the Paramount Film Studios, oldest producers of motion pictures in the world, who have increased their production schedule to such an extent that as many as two or three pictures are now being made working at one picture, a decided improvement to conditions prevailing just a short time ago.

The Paramount studios, the first to place well known stage stars in motion pictures, the first to make talkies with their all star casts five stars; the first to secure famous authors to write for the screen have now gone a step further in the new authors, new directors, new faces on the screen, to hand with the older faces, and the results achieved are indeed startling.

Paramount will usher in its new season of outstanding entertainments commencing Saturday, September 3rd, at the Bells Theatre and among the super-entertainment vehicles to be seen soon at the popular uptown playhouse will be The Four Marx Brothers in "Horse Feathers". Clive Brook and Constance Cummings in "Movie Crazy". Jack Oakie, Patricia and Harriet Marshall in Good Time Charley's production, "The Blonde Venus". Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald in "Love Me Tonight". Miriam Hopkins and Clark Gable in a production imitative titled, "Red Dust". "Sky Devils Own," Cecil B. DeMille spectacle "The Sign of the Cross," George M. Cohan's "The Phantom President" in which also features Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, "The Big Broadcast", featuring Bing Crosby, Stuart Erwin and a host of radio personalities, Frank Borzage's "Young Bride," Mae West's Farewell to Arms" co-starring Gary Cooper, Helen Hayes and Adolphe Menjou, Marlene Dietrich, Victor McLaglen, Richard Arlen and Adrienne Ames in "Guilty as Charged", "Madame Butterfly," with Sylvia Sidney and a host of famous screen stars.

"Theatregoers in Belleville and district during the coming season will be given their first insight into the new type of product which the studios of the coast have been busily engaged upon during the past few months.

Paramount plans to make sixty-three feature productions during the coming year, and 136 short subjects and will also release 104 issues of Paramount News.

Manager Forbes is very enthusiastic regarding the new product from the British and American studios for the new season and announces that the screens of the uptown theatre will be graced with the finest productions since the advent of talkies.

FINANCIAL NEWS

TRADE QUIET ON N. Y. MART

Bulls Easily Dominate Situation in New York

New York, Sept. 1.—The stock market plunged down to a quiet professional trading affair today with bulls easily dominating the situation.

Selling quickly dried up after the first hour, and a number of shares rallied to show net advances of 1 to 4 points. Some issues lost 2 to 4 points to new highs for 1932. Rails generally were higher, with Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Pennsylvania up about 2.

The warehouse rose more than 4 points to a new 1932 high.

Oshns of a point or so appeared in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and International Harvester.

Market activity in some of the leaders was spasmodic, caused by gossip over prospects of competition of the four-power tariff conference plan. In some usually well informed railroad circles, however, the view was expressed that some of the gossip was too optimistic.

Cotton

Cotton, class. An exciting climax to the week of fluctuations.

Kimenstagraph Weekly—An entertaining comedy-mystery thriller played by a first-rate stage cast. Refreshing and entertaining British film.

Evening Chronicle—A thrilling film.

SOUND MOVIES AT THE FAIR

For the first time in the history of Belleville Fair, sound motion pictures will be a feature. Professor C. Holmes, live wire manager of the Capitol Theatre, is responsible for this innovation, and moving pictures with sound are being exhibited at intervals at the Capitol Theatre booth at the Belleville Park.

Silm Summerville, Mickey Mouse and Oswald Cartoons and Bobbie Burns have been featured. Each has found an appreciative audience when shown yesterday.

In addition to a delightfully decorated display, visitors to the Capitol Theatre booth can win free passes to the theatre by guessing the number of seeds in the jar displayed in the booth.

If you can't get near the booth take advantage of this guessing contest. Free passes are very appreciable gifts these days.

IN MEMORIAM

YATEMAN—In loving memory of Mary Jane, who passed away Sept. 1, 1931.

As I gaze on your picture that hangs on the wall
Your smiles and your welcome I always recall.
I miss you and mourn you in silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories of days that have been.
Dear is the grave where mother is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers may wither, leaves fade and die;
But sons do forget you, never will I.
Lovingly remembered by her Daughter Emily and Grandson Dalgleish. 1-1p

GHOULS GROWL!

By Bertram D. Brown

Maries smoothed the worn corset on the bloated beast whom Nikoli lay in a feverish stupor, then retired to her little room and by the half-shuttered window.

Bribery! World is never end.

Yes, love, too. Think of their flight from Moscow in had haste. Each wearing suits of the same journey from that tuberculosis city to Yalta. Think how they were virtually paved with golden rubles, as had the camel-trail to Urga. And how, in the Crimea, where Nikoli's illness had detained them these many weeks, it had been Zarstov, chief of the district Cheka—the hated Soviet police—who levied tribute.

Zarstov!

The girl's body stiffened and her blazing eyes beneath their wavy silken lashes glowered like two red lanterns veiled in mist.

Twice now Zarstov had come swaggering across those wind-swept spaces to the door of their cabin retreat, and twice had returned to his filthy lair, laden as with some pack of carrion.

Tonight this official grafter would come again.

That morning she had seen him in the market-place of the town where she had gone to purchase a smoked fowl for Nikoli's broth. Zarstov had been drinking heavily, fairly reeked of vodka, and had looked more than ever like his mangy, sabrahan forebears. At first she had feared that he might fondle her—so personal was his mood. But what had alarmed her most was the strange, smoldering fire which had crept into his sleepy, yellow eyes as he stood swaying drunkenly before her — eyeing her speculatively—merciless cat-like. The beast in the man had been aroused. And gold there had she possessed if would not suffice him now.

All through the remaining hours of that day, Maries had striven to formulate some plan of escape. And yet, she had known in her heart, but as she had known from the very first moment of their dangling in the Soviet-glass, that the only alternative was do... kill!

At first the thought had lapsed into her mind with the fleet action of some burning drug, leaving her for the moment bereft of all feeling, stunned.

She, Maries, Petrovna, premiere danseuse of the great Russian Ballet a... murderess! Mother of God! No! No! Yet it was that or... return to Moscow. And Moscow meant... Lubenka street ... the stone wall... death!

It was then she particularly feared death; there were things much worse. And what mattered one less dancer in the world. No, it was not of herself that she must think, but of Nikoli, her beloved Nikoli must live to carry on. For his safety she must kill the beast who blocked the way to freedom.

Dark eyes, set in a bloodless upturned face, stared at the dazzling vastness of white frozen plain. Except for whirling eddies of snow pellets caught up by angry blasts of the cold, the white expanse was gigantic study in marble.

In the deepening winter twilight she could make out the shadowy, snow-encrusted wall of a temple compound and, in the nearer distance, those rocky, wind-swept spaces that marked the road to the Chinese city... the road down which the man Zarstov would soon come stalking to extort his pound of flesh from the hated bourgeois fugitives.

Silently, she stood there by the window, her face set like metal, her lips partly loosed in a set of teeth some lost soul was howling beyond.

Night lowered at last, sprinkling the black dome of sky with spangles of light. And Maries, who had counted on the end—black, corpse-eating

"They too, were ghouls of the night," she thought, as the shadowy beasts moved across the floor of vision, "but they hunger was less atrocious than that of Zarstov."

She dragged. Minutes seemed like hours....finally, brain-wearied, Maries Petrovna, premiere danseuse of the great Russian Ballet, and affianced of Nekoul Andrewitch counter-revolutionist, extraordinary, snuggled her little brown chin deeper into the fur collar of her coat and drawing the folds of the black coat closer about her slim body, slumped down upon the cold earthen floor.

Then came the sound of booted feet. She waited breathlessly; nearer, ever nearer they came, breaking through the snow crust with each stride.

Zarstov!

She was calm now. She knew just how he would act—every little mannerism as clear as a book in her mind. And she knew, too, just how she would go about the execution of her plan. Zarstov—the doomed!

Presently he would rap sharply on the cabin door with the butt of his heavy service automatic. She would pretend not to have heard the command and would wait until he had rapped the second time; then, with a start, remove the bar from its fastenings and fling open the door. Yes, that was the picture was quite clear.

Then, she had Cheka agent would cross the threshold, stamping the snow from his boots as he came. His thick cossack cap would reveal quite revoltingly his yellow teeth in a smile of greeting. How well she had come to know that smile and the way it would widen as he would seat himself on the warm bricks of the ancient oven in the corner of the room and smile foolishly, for all the world like a bashful schoolboy.

Bashful schoolboy! Queer! What had put that silly notion in her head. Zarstov wasn't a boy; and he wasn't the least bashful, and from what she had seen of him, he had never attended school a day in his life.

Yet, now, there he was, plain enough, seated on the old oven bench, his cossack cap in his booted legs. Queer! It was he all right, for there was the knife scar on his cheek. Yes, she could be positive now that he had been much younger, and was quite good-looking tonight. Yes, and he was clean-shaven for once now and clean, his boots were polished until they glistened like the scars of the agents of some belated reveler whom they might drag down and devour.

She shuddered at the first faint glimpse of a skulking form, nose down, moving across the frozen crust of snow. Holy Urga, mystic Lord of Lamas, she thought and spoons and—black, corpse-eating ghouls.

And so the night passed, and the dance of madness that had brought all Moscow to her feet. She would like that, for as a revolutionist, too, like her beloved Nikoli, Zarstov was to be shot for being one! Funny business.

Whist! There was Nikoli between two Red guards and they were talking earnestly with Zarstov. No! No! They were placing her between two guards and she shouted "Stop Stop! Then with a mighty crash of cymbals, she listened and fell ....the mad dance was over.

Maries Petrovna, premier danseuse of the great Russian Ballet, awoke to an intense consciousness of being alive once again. And some and the cold, gray light pouring in upon her. She had passed through the night and....Zarstov ....!

Slowly, painfully, she managed to drag her benumbed feet to the window and, by grasping the ledge pull herself upright. Something moved by her left hand—a body—then she swayed unsteadily, and her soul turned sick within her.

At the very end of the rocky, wind-swept space which marked the road to the Chinese city, lay a torn astrakhan greatcoat, and near about was splotched with....crimson stains! Ghouls!!

"MARY FAITH"

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

He was like a child, begging to be forgiven. Mary Faith sat quietly on the bank of the seat and buried his face in her shoulder. Mary Faith sat very still.

"You don't care for that fellow," he said in a muffled voice. "I know I couldn't have forgotten all about me in just five weeks. You aren't like that, Mary Faith. And even if he's given you the biggest diamond in Arundel, you know you're still my girl."

"I wore your diamond for a long time, Kim," she reminded him. "And I'd still be wearing it if you hadn't taken it away from me because of that girl."

"Now, let's not talk about her!" he said irritably. "She doesn't mean a thing to me. She's nothing to me. She knows it. I haven't seen her more than three or four times in the Oak Arundel. I haven't seen any body—I've been restless and down in the dumps for a long time, Mary Faith, I didn't know what ailed me until you came walking into the garden tonight with that fellow. Then I knew I'd been missing you all the time."

He lifted his head and looked at her. Under the light from the street lamp shone into his face. He was serious and grave, very unlike his usual debonair self.

"Lord, if you only knew what I've been through the last three hours!" he said shaking his head. "I'd asked Sandy to have dinner with me, and I had to go through with it, so I sat there looking at her and thinking of you and wishing you've got to take me back. You've got to believe I love you."

She did believe him. She could see that he had been suffering for three hours; as she had suffered for three months. And pity and tenderness welled up in her all at once so that it was hard for her to speak.

"Kim, listen to me—I'm not engaged to Sandy Nesbit. That ring we were picking out wasn't a ring for me but a Christmas present for his sister, Judith. I never even thought of marrying anybody but you. I've never cared for anyone else—and if you never had come back to me I'd probably have spent my whole life right here in River Street, waiting for you!"

She gave a shaky little laugh. "You know it too. That's the worst of it, Kim. You're too sure of me."

He shook his head. "No, I'm not sure of you," he said. "And that's why I've made up my mind to marry you tomorrow."

He put his arm around her and pulled her close to him. He rested her head with one of his swift hand and his face came down over hers, blotting out the stars, as he kissed her.

It seemed to Mary Faith then that she was more in heaven than she'd ever been. Kim would come back to her like this.

She thought, "If I hadn't known it I couldn't have gone on the way I have."

"I haven't had any vacation this summer," Kim said presently, "so the firm probably won't kick if I take a couple of weeks now for a honeymoon. I'll drive around here for you at ten tomorrow morning and we'll go downtown for the license. You can have some things packed and be ready to leave then, can't you?"

Mary Faith nodded dreamily, her cheek against his. She wondered if he realized the power he had over her. The power to bend her will to his in small things as well as big important ones. He had had that power the first night she ever saw him across the tables in Mrs. Puckett's dining room when he had made her break an engagement for the next night and dine with him instead.

He had that power now as he sat beside her, planning her life for her. He would always have it.

CHAPTER 14

"I'll telephone Dr. Pomeroy tonight and ask him if he'll meet us in the chapel at eleven o'clock," his voice ran on and on. "I don't want Maidone to come down. We're supposed to have a couple of witnesses aren't we?"

Dr. Pomeroy was the rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, where she and Kim had always planned to be married. But who were the Maidones? She never had heard Kim mention them.

"Who are the Maidones, Kim?" she asked.

He thought for a minute or two.

"Why, I guess you haven't met them," he said at last. "I haven't known them so very long, myself, but they're pals of mine. Jack works down at the plant. He and Claire have been married only two or three months. You'll like Claire, Mary Faith. She's a grand person."

Mary Faith stirred in his arms.

"I'd like to, Jean Bartlett is to be the wedding. She's my best friend and she was beginning to be stopped her.

"No. We're not going to have any of your friend Nesbit's office help around," he said firmly. "You're through with all that crowd, so just get them. I'm not going to tell you my plans about the wedding until it's all over. Now, let me tell you where I thought we'd spend our two weeks."

She settled back to listen.

"You remember that aunt of mine who lives down in Garretsville, Mary Faith?"

"Aunt Ella. Good, you mean?" Mary Faith recalled Aunt Ella vaguely. Good very well. Having once seen Aunt Ella you could never forget her.

She was a plump and pleasant person, who had painted some pictures, library books, armchairs, and coffee and cake between meals.

Mary Faith had always liked her, and she said so now.

"Well, she's always up to town to stay with my mother over the holidays," said Kim, "and I'm going to ask her to lend us her house down in Garretsville for the next two weeks."

"Kim! Do you think she'll let us have it?" Mary Faith's eyes shone in the darkness. "Won't it be lovely to be quiet—I can rest. All the things you like to eat, and get your health repaid in the mornings and run the collar buttons in your shirts—and you can build the first aeroplane for yourself. I've been so that I can get out of the yard when you're flying it."

"I'll drive you there in the car tomorrow," Kim said. "Now you're all cold and wet," Kim said. "I'm going to take dogsone good care of you, too."

"All right, you take care of me then."

"I'm going to," Kim said, and he kissed it gravely as if he were making himself a solemn promise.

Mr. McClintock was playing checkers with Allie Bates in the parlor. Mary Faith went back into the room, shook hands with Allie across the backdoor and he saw her as she started up the stairs.

She turned at the head and smiled at him. And he looked at her, blinking a little, as if he were dazzled at a sunrise.

Before she went to bed that night Mary Faith washed her hair and did her nails. Then she packed her two suitcases with clothes for her honeymoon and laid out her clothes for the next day. A long, plain dress suit trimmed with gray fox; a little green hat; pale gray stockings and slippers and handbag; a gray chiffon blouse.

It was one o'clock in the morning when she went to bed and she was awake again at half past six. It was still dark but the dawn wind blew in through the open windows and there was a line of silver in the sky above the housetops on the other side of River Street.

"My wedding day," she thought, taking a long deep breath of it before she put down her windows. "This is the last time I'll ever get up in this room."

But there was no regret, no sadness, in the thought. She looked forward to her life with Kim with nothing but happiness in her heart.

The old house was like a tomb, as it always was on weekend mornings. Not a door shivered, as she ran down to the bathroom on the second floor. You had to get up at the crack of dawn if you wanted to take a morning bath at Mrs. Puckett's, for the "paying guests" all got up around seven and fairly fought for the bathroom.

When Mary Faith, fresh as a flower, came into the hall a half hour later, Mrs. Puckett's with her bath towel and a cake of pink soap in her hand, was waiting just outside the door.

"I hope you didn't use all the hot water, Mary Faith," she said. "What, you up so early here?"

"I'm going down to the office to get all my things—and I want to get away from it before everybody arrives." Mary Faith answered Mrs. Puckett. "I'm going to marry Kim Farrell this morning."

Mrs. Puckett stared at her from under her wrinkled eyelids for a long moment. Then she shook her head.

"I haven't a word to say, Mary Faith," she announced. "I haven't a word to say!"

But when Mary Faith was halfway up the stairs she said something else.

"I hope you'll be happy," was what she said. "I hope you'll be happy. I pray for it, Mary Faith. . . I certainly do."

The clock in Mark Nesbit's empty office was striking eight when Mary Faith walked into her own little room that morning.

She had brought her hat box—a round leather affair—with her and into it she packed the contents of her desk drawers. An oil-silt bed in which she kept her soap and nailbrush and tooth brush. Two clean linen face towels that belonged to Mrs. Puckett. A library book. A bank book and a check book. A few savings. A pair of rubbers and a folding umbrella. A pasteboard box filled with old letters and receipts. A box of writing paper and correspondence cards.

She had them all in the hatbox and was closing it when she heard the door open behind her. It swung around. Mark Nesbit was standing in the doorway.

He looked first at the open drawers of the desk and then at the hatbox.

"What do you think you're doing, Mary Faith?" His voice was cold as he take her in, point by point. The green hat, the serpentine fur-trimmed suit, the gray slippers with their ostrich-tied buckles.

"I'm leaving," said Mary Faith.

CHAPTER 15

He crossed the room and stood beside her, looking down at her and shaking his head.

"I hope you're not leaving because of last night," he said. "There's no reason why you should leave, Mary Faith. We're still good friends, aren't we? We can go on working together can't we?"

"Now on earth can I tell him I'm going to be married?" she asked herself.

"I can't," she decided. "Not when Maldon hat let him take here ormarried, could I please have my wedding ring?" he asked. "They say it's bad luck to take off your wedding ring, and this is the first time I've had mine off since Jack put it on last October. I'll keep it on now when I wash dishes."

She talked constantly. She talked all the way into the registry where Mary Faith and Kim wrote their names in a book filled with the names of other brides and grooms and all the way out of the shadowy old church into the sunlight.

"Sandy," she said to Kim as they stood in the street beside Kim's shabby little roadster . "We thought you and Mary Faith were dining presents and put it in the back of your car. It's a package of books —all the new novels that looked good to us. We knew there'd be life-savers for you down in that dead little town where you're going."

She had a light, pretty voice that was like a very simple piece of music.

"You don't believe what I'm telling you." It rippled on. "But it's a fact. We'd so you two will be so bored with each other that you'll yawn every three minutes for the next. You'll wish you'd never seen each other. . . Jack and I stopped all the time we were on our honeymoon, didn't we, Jack?"

NERVOUS WOMEN

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Ethel Hall, 1 Lincoln Ave., Bellows Falls, Vt., writes: "I was very nervous and had a pain in my side. I was so weak I could hardly get around. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before and it helped me, so I thought I would try it again. After taking it a short time I felt like a new woman. I can do my housework and sewing and feel fine. I am glad to recommend your medicine to any woman who suffers from nervousness."

Mrs. Hall's letter proves that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps nervous women. Why don't you try it?

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR —No 19

Tarzan's warriors came to the entrance of Opar's treasure chamber just as the earthquake subsided. For two days they labored to tear a way through the debris-jammed passage. When they found the last impossible they were forced to conclude Tarzan lay dead beneath the rock mass. Tearfully they left what they thought was his tomb, taking with them the heavy burden of gold which the ape-man had already brought forth.

This would at least furnish comfort, if not happiness, to their bereaved and beloved mistress. They made their mournful way back across the desolate valley and downward through the forests to the distant bungalow of Tarzan. As they marched a sorry fate was already drawing down upon that peaceful happy home. From the north came Achmet Zek riding to the summons of Werper's letter. With him came his horde of renegade Arabs.

Mugambi, the black Hercules, who had been Tarzan's faithful friend, was the first to note the bold approach of the sinister caravan. He had been left in charge of the warriors who remained to guard Lady Greystoke. Quickly he assembled his men as the raiders halted a hundred yards out upon the plain. From the now barred windows of the bungalow Lady Greystoke surveyed her bodyguard with unmixed pride at affection, having no fear.

"Arabs," Mugambi had explained to her, "they come for no good purpose in the absence of the Great Bwana." Jane saw the white-robed force of mounted Arabs and between them and the bungalow the glistening bodies of her wards. The sun glanced on their metal-shod spears and picked out the gorgeous colors in the feathers of their war bonnets above the glossy skins of their broad shoulders.

"What harm," she thought, "can befall me with such as these to protect me."

Several other Souvenirs were displayed on the table.

Demonstrating Spinning.

The final event of the night to the young folk was the spinning bee. Mrs. Neil and Mrs. Bailey aged 80 years dressed in real old time costume was the demonstrator. One was heard to remark she even had blood boots on. She fixed her wheel in place and her dolls on the beam and started to spin. The young folk had never seen yarn made before and were very much astonished at the process. The rolls were too old and dry to get much out. Mrs. Neil and Mrs. Bailey told how to make yarn and take it off the spindle of wheel to the reel.

The grandmothers were asked by the W. I. president to tell something they could remember of in by-gone days. A good many responded and there were some funny things that happened. YOUNG CYCLIST REACHES SOO

Eddie Quackenbush, Carrying Place Completes Long Trip

Carrying Place—Mr. Eddie Quackenbush, intrepid adventurer and cyclist, who left this community several weeks ago for Sault Ste. Marie via Toronto and Owen Sound with only his trusty bicycle as a companion, reached there some days ago safe and sound according to word reaching his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Quackenbush. Here, starting from Owen Place about midnight, he wheeled steadily for nine and one half hours, stopping briefly twice, and reaching Toronto next forenoon. After spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Jones and family, former residents of this locality, he set out again next morning for Owen Sound. A minor breakdown delayed his journey at this point, but thanks to the kindness of a passing motorist, he was picked up thirty miles outside of the city at about eight in the evening, and taken to his destination. He was forced to remain in this place for two days more to effect repairs to his bicycle, finally cycling on to Tobermory where a ferry took him to Manitoulin Island. From here a brides journey, via the mainland, and without further adventure he reached the Soo after what he declares was a thoroughly enjoyable trip of a week's duration. He will remain in Sault Ste. Marie for several weeks.

Eddie's trip has served to show that high-powered automobiles are not necessary to travel providing that one is possessed of the courage and stamina for such a trip. He carried with him a small canvas "pup tent" which was proof at night and during rain storms which were numerous. Several spells, also clothing, and a few necessities made up the remainder of his cargo.

Having "blazed a trail" for the cyclist, Eddie may be proud of his accomplishment. But others will not be slow to follow if the case of Mr. Clifford Cox also of this place, is any indication, for only a few days later he left by wheel for Hanford, making the trip in about a day and a half.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pitmer and Mrs. Tavener returned recently to the former's home to take up their residence after an extended honeymoon trip through the Muskoka district. Everyone of this community extends a welcome to the new popular young rector.

Carrying Place Ladies' Aid journeyed to Hillcrest on Tuesday last week to be the guests of the Consecon ladies' auxiliary, and returned a splendid time. A delightful program of musical and literary numbers interspersed with numerous readings and contests by Belleville ladies served after the program, and a hearty spirit of good will was made the day long remembered.

Mrs. William Le Tour is visiting with relatives in Toronto.

The ladies' aid held assembled at the home of Mrs. Stan Zimmerman last Wednesday for their regular meeting. Final plans were made for a reception and shower to be held during the latter part month.

Many of the local softball fans are disappointed, although in a way that Redneraville, Victoria and Consecon showed up against the Capitals on Picton Fair, although the Picton Cities Service team unanimously voted the best combination contest, they will never forget the way the boys defeated them they did in their first game of the season, when the latter, in addition to outplaying them all through the game, were six runs to the good in the ninth. Victoria then lost the game does not count in the list of Capitals' glory, for they made more than one wise crack about Consecon's centre open his eyes with surprise. Redneraville is the champion team of Picton easily, but were in turn beaten by Cities Service by 1. Consecon who drew a bye in the first half of the contest, defeated Blondell so by a score that they suspected they had run foul of the Capitals. Victoria they also fell by the wayside, leaving Cities Service and Moose to battle for honours in the Assembly-burgh League is established, not only in the interests of the township, but in the eyes of outside baseball fandom. It was only a rumour which said that there would be local players here who would be a real factor in any league. How the fact has been proved.

The Trenton road is in a much better condition since the recent grading process, but with the season so far advanced a doubt exists in one's mind about the coming of the pavement so long awaited.

Mr. Toronto Mr. Blair, something less than two weeks ago, carried a heavy load of gravel to Consecon and of the Smithfield bridge which was washed out during the heavy rains. In the accompanying article the writer has given his own opinions and were quoted, not only regarding the usefulness of the bridge, but also the probable cost of converting it into service once more.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reid of Thurlow, and the fish are biting in the land mammal. Rev. Mr. Grant and are reported recently, unless one wishes to account a few bass that caught one day last week from the bridge. Several large yachts have anchored near the east place recently, presumably fishing.

Misses Maisie and Daisy Innes are spending some time with friends and relatives in Bancroft.

Mr. Westfall is still in very poor health following his recent heart attack. He is being attended by Dr. Farley of Trenton, and several visits have been necessary recently.

Just A Family Secret

By Louise Jonas

Slowly up the steps to the sleeping room above, went the host unsteadily on his feet. During the early part of the evening, Richard Hawthorn was the life of the party but, as it had often happened in the past, his appetite for strong alcoholic drinks made his retirement necessary.

Throwing himself across the bed, he lay for a few minutes listening to the sound of the revelry in the living-room below. The voices of laughing men and women, the clinking of glasses, the grind of dancing feet to the music of an orchestra brought to them by radio.

"Phyllis would be in the center of the laughing crowd," he thought. "Queer how she was so popular, and never would take a drink".

Slowly the sound of revelry grew faintor, and Richard dropped off to sleep. It was a jumpy slumber—the girl that usually results from imbibing too much liquor. He tossed and stumbled words which no one would have understood. Then he smiled peacefully, as if his thoughts were of pleasant things, and spoke the name of a girl.

In the dream he seemed to be making his way laboriously through

Doubt and danger assailed the house of Ludlow. It had been a peaceful home for many years. Horace Ludlow was a good manager, and his older brother, Jacob, an enemy to dirt, noise, confusion and bugs. And Virginia, daughter of their dead brother, had been such a good girl all through grammar and high school days that never once had she been threatened to interrupt the old family regime of peace. Never once, that is, except the time she announced she was in love with the butcher boy, and intended to marry him the day after high school graduation. The two brothers met that crisis, however.

But now, Horace paced the floor, Jacob sat and chuckled, "I never looked for this," Horace said for the third time as he took a sharp turn where the library table and rocker converged.

"I don't know what more we could have done," brother Jacob for the fourth time vowed from the bottom of his heart.

"I started with that aviation book," figured out Horace. "We took it away from her, but we were afraid, scared to say anything to her. It's almost like we were afraid to talk up to her, Jacob. We should have talked to her, instead of just leaving the book alone. Maybe she got another. Maybe she was already flying."

Jacob was thinking hard, too. Suddenly he thought of something. "Maybe she'll be afraid now since this accident. Maybe she won't ever fly any more. Maybe we won't have to talk to her."

Horace pondered. "I wonder what she does think about. Jacob we've got to find out what she does think. You know, sometimes she looks at us just like our brother used to."

Then Jacob, who should have known better, speculated the worst possibility. "Do you suppose it's in the blood. Do you suppose she done to—"

After Horace had gone to the office that evening, Jacob went up to Virginia's room. "Hello," the girl greeted him. "I almost had a notion to call you—wanted to see and talk to you."

Her uncle sat down beside her. "You hadn't better do any such thing. You've got that shoulder out of joint once more, and it looks to be almost as bad as if you took to flying again. An old man looked so crabby at us that he'd have thought he was right on the track of the information he wanted. He'd see what the intentions of the girl were. But in another moment the crabbiness left his face, and he was a frustrated, woebegone man and continued:

"Has my father got anything to do with you? Has he ordered you to fly?" asked the girl, the question coming right out of her father's eyes. "Tell me about my father, Uncle Jacob. I want to know and it isn't as if you could keep it from me. I can't know, is it?"

Jacob faltered and wished Horace were around. "No, it isn't as if he had done anything to you. But see his life was sad.....it ended unhappily and—and he didn't want anything like it to happen to you. We didn't talk to you of him, so you wouldn't want to maybe take after him. You see, your father never gave our mother any rest because he was always running away as a boy and as a man, and for a while, she didn't even know what part of the world he was in. Then he married your mother and—and—well, we thought he would settle down. But before you were very old, he left you with us, and, taking your mother with him, went off again. This time to Africa. We've never heard since. The savages....."

Jacob went on. "Your mother took it hard and when she died we promised to take good care of you and never let you go off. And here we've caught you flying around and walking the floor the whole night through when we thought—"

"I see," said Virginia, quietly and slowly. Then she asked quite suddenly, "Are you going to ask me to give it up?"

It was then Jacob realized why the girl's eyes had bothered him for a really long time. He understood him promptly. "Of course, I'll mean a lot for you to get to that silent first. Certainly I'll take you. We can fly it in three hours."

When Virginia landed at the field she had the best day, after taking Horace to the middle west metropolis, she found Jacob awaiting her. He had an eager grin on his face. "All right, but for a ten minute spin, then," Virginia promised.

When they landed, Jacob confided to the girl. "Archie Zimmerman was telling me he thought he saw Horace take off this morning. But—I explained how Horace wouldn't even talk about airplanes. Ha! Ha!"

Two days later when Virginia was zooming over the field, about to land with Horace on his return trip, the latter confided, "The other day while I was waiting for you to get the motor warmed, Guy Franks was telling me he wouldn't be surprised to see Jacob and the kick one of these days. But I told him flying was for two timid souls than brother and that you never could get Jacob on the ground of a step-ladder all these years. Ha! Ha!"

Virginia only smiled as she opened the cockpit door.

Mayor Walker, New York Resigns, but Then He Will Seek Re-election

Criticizes Heaving of Ouster Charges by Roosevelt

PEOPLE TO JUDGE

Courts Will Have to Decide Whether he Can Run

New York, Sept.2—Mayor James J. Walker, Thursday night, announced he was resigning his office immediately.

In a formal statement accompanying his letter of resignation the Mayor said he was submitting his case to the people of New York.

"I have not been given an opportunity to prove my record of service to the city and its people for two terms. . . . To that forum, the people of the City of New York, I leave my case, in the spirit of true democracy, conscious of the rectitude of my official acts and with a high faith in the judgment of my fellow-citizens," he said.

"The Mayor made no specific reference to possible reports that he would run for re-election.

Objects to Procedure

He criticized the conduct of the hearing which is being carried on by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, on charges on which his removal was asked.

"The hearing was to have been resumed this afternoon.

Walker said the question had become that:

"Shall a permit myself to be lynched to satisfy personal political ambition?"

Resigning, he ask the voters for vindication. Walker stepped out of an office he had occupied since 1926.

The question of whether he can run for re-election thus now must wait until the regular election of 1933, has not been definitely decided, and may be given to the courts to determine.

Mayor's Letter is Brief

"City of New York

"Office of the Mayor, Sept. 1, 1932.

Hon. Michael J. Cruise, City Clerk of the City of New York, Municipal Building:

"Dear Sir:::: I hereby resign as Mayor of the City of New York. The same resignation to take effect immediately. Very truly yours,

"(Signed) James J. Walker, Mayor"

Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee assumed the duties of Mayor, but his tenure of office, like the resignation of Mayor Walker, may run for re-election is not certain. He also is a Democrat.

McKee is a former Judge, former Creek and Indian Commissioner and the holder of the degrees of A.B., A.M., LL.B., and LL.D.

Albany, Sept. 2.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt said he had "neither sat down nor rested" informed last night of the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

At the executive mansion, where earlier in the evening he had been going over his plans for resuming the Walker hearings, it was learned the Governor learned through the resignation of Walker's letter of withdrawal from office.

His heart with interest Walker's assertion that he had failed, at the hearing before Mr. Roosevelt to receive "even the elementary rights guaranteed to any defendant in a court of law," and that he would submit his case to the voters of New York City at running for re-election next fall.

Walker's plan meant the end of the spectacular hearing in the New York State "Hall of Governors," where the Governor has been presiding defending himself against the fifteen "Counclusions" of Samuel Seabury.

New Fee System For School Books

When the public schools of Belleville reopen, Tuesday, Sept. 6th, the innovation whereby the Board of Education supplies students with books and materials at small cost will go into effect. This matter is of importance to the parents of children to note. An advertisement in regard to this matter appears on page two of this issue over names of officials of the board. The board is asking the cooperation of parents to insure success and wishes to have as many pupils as possible paid in advance on account of book-keeping and the initial cost of the system.

The fees are payable on the first of each month for classes as follows—primer 5 cents per month; first, 10 cents per month; second 15 cents per month; third, 20 cents; fourth, fifth and sixth, 25 cents. These figures are based on ten months year. A rebate to each scholar possessing the books required for use, these may be used, and only the actual cost of material required will be assessed.

High, Public and Separate schools open on Tuesday, Sept. 6th, the population will probably be larger than ever, the climb in attendance having been marked yearly.

TWO SUCCUMB TO GAS FUMES

Fumigating Mushroom Shed When Fatality Occurs

Beaverton, Ont., Sept. 3 (CP).—Calcium cyanide powder used for fumigating, is responsible yesterday for the death of two Toronto men, W. J. Murray, 62, and Archibald Anderson, 30, succumbing to the fumes while sprinkling the powder in a shed where they grow mushrooms, on Murray's farm at Woodville, 12 miles east of here.

The men's bodies were discovered by Murray's daughter, who in attempting to rescue them was almost overcome herself. Mrs. Anderson, wife of one victim, was in the farmhouse and responded to Miss Murray's calls for help but was too far beyond aid when brought into the open.

Anderson, junior partner in the mushrooms, were the direct cause of the tragedy. The fumigating was being done to exterminate them.

INJUNCTION REFUSED TO RATIONALIST GROUP

Toronto, Sept. 3 (CP).—The Rationalist Society of Canada, Inc., was refused the first move in an effort to restrain Toronto police commissioners from dealing with their open air meetings.

Lionel Cross, counsel for the society, sought an interim injunction restraining the Toronto Board of Police Commissioners, Chief Constable J. C. Draper and Inspector Theodore Attridge from preventing or interfering with public meetings and forbidding the plaintiffs from "declaiming, lecturing or address ing public or open air meetings."

Mr. Justice Wright refused, however he could not grant the injunction on the material presented to him.

FAIR BOARD ELATED AT LARGE CROWDS

Nothing Mars Success of 1932 Agricultural Show

COOLER WEATHER

Ticket Sales on Fourth Day Still Above Average

Despite the clammy and oppressive humidity which matched the soaring temperatures on the grounds Thursday afternoon, driving all thoughts of open air activities from the minds of many, attendance at the Belleville Fair during the day showed no appreciable decline. Number of paid admissions through the turnstiles averaged very favorably with the two preceding days of the fair, Thursday's attendance through the two main gates was chalked up as 5,446. That was 1,000 shy of the 6,232, while the peak day of all, Wednesday, showed 5,611 admissions of cars are to be added. All in all over twenty thousand people will have visited the Belleville Fair during the first three days.

The last day was another day set aside for horses and horse lovers. Programs of events have been run during the past few days were duplicated and new marks and records were being tried to be set up by the trotters. On Thursday all track records for the fair meet was expected that this would again be shattered on the last day. Added attractions were weight for age and other tests of strength by matched teams.

Cooling breezes which replaced the enervating heat and stickiness of the past two days once again brought the people of the Belleville district to visit the grounds. At two o'clock the fair officials reported ticket sales "a little better than average."

Confident that the success of the Belleville Fair would exceed anticipations the management and all executives connected with it, Thursday, E. M. Mitchell, president of the Belleville Fair Board, today expressed his complete satisfaction over the results so far obtained.

A number of contributory factors were said by Mr. Mitchell to be responsible for the success of the fair, the Fine weather, keen interest displayed by local and rural residents in all exhibits, good races, good prizes and splendid cooperation by the Belleville and district council with the fair has been mainly responsible for the success, he declared. Neighbor Mitchell.

Director H. E. Fairfield is also pleased with the 1932 Exhibition and the signs of cooperation, and says he appreciated the help of the Press.

WANT ECONOMIC WAR WITH ENGLAND ENDED

Dublin, Sept. 2.—Ratepayers and farmers of the counties of Dublin, Meath and Kildare, meeting in the Mansion House yesterday, adopted a resolution calling upon the Dail Eireann to end immediately economic war against the United Kingdom.

The resolution included a request that every county in the Irish Free State should hold meetings to precede the national meeting to be held in Dublin Sept. 15 with a view to the adoption of effective measures.

Search for Disappearing Frontier Two Youths are Held for Questioning

In search of the disappearing old frontier, where men are men and redskins still bite the dust now and then, or possibly enlisted by the R.C.M.P. in the best traditions of Canadian peace of Algoma and Shawanaga Indian reserve, Willard Allan Hollenback of Brinsville, New York and Vincent Horn, Yonkers, New York, set out from their home towns some weeks ago for the western trail in a light panel truck, fitted out for sleeping purposes, with little money, lots of guns and ammunition. Unfortunately their unsympathetic custom organization men appropriated their guns at the border, leaving them however their cartridge belts filled with ammunition, bowie knives and a set of other articles, including daunted they continued their trip. They were going far and fast, but far from dreams. Two more imaginative police, Constables F. Izard and William Fine found them on the road at the eastern city limits late Thursday evening and brought the boys and their truck to the station for questioning. Their stories didn't seem to jibe, so police became further suspicious. Now locked in the cells they have their truck which bears Maine License plates impounded by customs authorities. Meanwhile the boys are held while things are being cleared up.

Only Perfect Record of Eclipse is Made by Royal Astronomical Society

71 SECONDS

Three Telescopes Used By Hamilton Men at Acton Vale

Hamilton, Sept. 2.—(By the Canadian Press)—"Astonishingly successful" results were reached by a band of scientists who studied the eclipse at Acton Vale, Que., Wednesday, it was announced here today. After working unceasingly for many hours on the combined record pulations of thirty totality eclipse data, it was announced the results were far beyond expectations.

The nucleus of the expedition was composed of members of the Royal Astronomical Society, Hamilton branch. For three days the observers had gloomily faced the prospect of a cloudy eclipse. When the clouds parted 10 minutes before the scheduled time and perfect visibility resulted.

Equally sensational and of possible scientific portent was the chromatic phenomenon of totality duration at 90 seconds. 12 seconds less than Sedillot, astronomer of Ottawa, astronomers had predicted for the band, and fourteen and one second later than astronomical experience dictated. This, astronomers contend, might mean moon motions not yet accounted for.

Observation of the Corona stereotype on the off-set of a distinct curvature of its arms, possibly a discovery of importance. The scientists are hopeful the plates will prove their belief, but they admit there is a possibility the effect was produced by wisps of clouds.

There was no magnetic disturbance during totality, but the temperature dropped the first part of it during the eclipse, believed to be a greater drop than computations or earlier eclipses record.

Red Lights Recorded

Three blood red prominences were observed at the up side of the sun during the latter part of totality and then just before totality ran a broad band of red light appeared vividly on the right hand side all the way down, described as 100 miles off into space. This band was observed earlier than expected.

While astronomers at other observation bases prayed for a clear view of totality, the Hamilton party completed their photographic programme in 71 seconds and had 19 seconds for naked eye observations. The photographic plates obtained probably be offered to one of the major observatories for analysis and study.

Acton Vale Chosen

Acton Vale was chosen as the mostly likely locality to be free from cloud and other conditions. The instruments were mounted on a rocky ridge above an abandoned , copper mine.

The party took five telescopes, photographic plates, a 16 foot length of adopters and cameras designed by Rev. Marcus Hay obtained focal lengths of 22 1-2 feet, 14 feet and 10 feet, with their small telescope. The party's equipment cost only $12,000.

BREAK RHYTHM OF SLUMPS

Each Succeeding One is More Severe Says J. W. Dafoe

TORONTO, Sept. 2.— "There is no sense in trying to minimize the present depression if in five or six years we are to be deep in mire again." This was the warning given at a director's luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition today by John W. Dafoe, veteran editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

In his 50 years of Journalism, said Mr. Dafoe he had seen seven depressions and each was each period of prosperity and hard times which preceded it. "Always before," "we must find some way to break this rhythm. We are and reckless intervention with International trade by John Bull, picture speculation said Mr. Dafoe, has regarded the present wreckage of depression as greater than that of war. By "passing the buck" to political authorities in Canada were creating a great problem for the country, he said, instead of wandering hoboes who develop into Communists.

Mr. Dafoe described the panacea of issuing fiat money as "lunacy." This was the true depression in Canadian history, he pointed out, in which Mackenzie King's first term the National Treasury as though the country were at war. This was necessary because more than half of the population were not city dwellers.

England's Leading Banker Refuses to State Mission

Reaches Boat Without Giving an Interview on His Trip

Montreal, Sept. 2. — Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, sailed home today on the Duchess of Bedford. In his usual secretive fashion Mr. Norman chose an unexpected way to board the vessel. Going down before sailing time he emerged at the dock from an automobile which Mrs. Norman and hurried up the third class gangway into the vessel.

The famous banker and his wife were followed by Mrs. John Markos at Bar Harbor, Maine, whether he came to Montreal by train or by automobile could not be learned.

Not one reporter who managed to intercept Mr. Norman was given an interview. As soon as the banker found himself being approached by newspapermen he took off at a smart trot up a ladder to the upper deck.

"I'd like to know about this rumored debt settlement between British and the United States," the reporter cried.

"I have nothing to say," Mr. Norman flung over his shoulder as he reached another stairway leading down a flight.

"Can't you tell me anything about your business here?" was the next question.

"Nothing," was the retort, as the banker dashed down another stairway, leading to the

"Why do you do this sort of thing—this fashion of sneaking out of travelling under false names?" the reporter was then told.

Banker said, and escaped.

While in United States the man who probably more than any other public figure hates publicity, Norman travelled under the name of Professor Clarence Skinner." Neither the name nor that of "Montagu Norman" appears on the list of the ship's passengers. The Canadian Pacific liner is due to reach Liverpool September 10.

GIRL RESCUED FROM CHANNEL

Thelma Argent Stumbles Through Floor of R. R. Bridge

When seven-year-old Thelma Argent, daughter of William Argent, fell through the railway bridge over the mouth of the Holden River between the ties and the girders, fifteen or twenty feet to the water in the river channel, Reta Dingman, aged eleven, who was standing on the end of the bridge, plunged in fully clad to the clothing girl who had been stunned by striking the frame of the bridge as she fell, to rescue her. A passing motorist took the girl her rescuer and the father of the baby fell in to the surgery of Dr. Stobie and then to the hospital to have three stitches put in the wound in the head of the little victim. This morning the little girl was feeling fairly well despite her mishap.

Mr. Argent, his daughter and Reta Dingman who lives with the Argent family were crossing the bridge about five fifteen Thursday afternoon. The little girl was one hundred to two hundred feet ahead of her father and then turned back, running over the ties. She stumbled and fell about twenty-five feet from the end when she stubbed her toe, lost her balance and fell through the bridge. Little Reta who had been about ten feet behind the little girl when she started ran to the end of the bridge and plunged in from the approach in time to save the girl in the water beyond her depth.

The little girl's father is himself a good swimmer but he was so far away from the end of the bridge that it would have taken some time to get in in order to be of any help to the girl in the water.

Speaking of the incident today Mr. Argent praised the unselfish efforts of Reta Dingman and also had kind words to voice his thanks to the driver of the motorcar whom he forgot to ask his name in the excitement of the occasion.

SOFT DRINK STANDS ARE WELL PATRONIZED

How hot was it on the Fair Grounds Wednesday and Thursday? Ice cream and soft drink manufacturers in the city, and booby proprietors on the fair grounds know the answer.

The proprietor of one small booth stated that thirsty customers Thursday afternoon had accounted for the sale of two hundred bottles of soft drinks and dozens of gallons of ice cream. Further down the Midway another concessionaire had handed out thirty-five gallons of ice cream in cones alone.

But, inside the Main Building at one of the larger booths, all records were broken. A local man, who had taken up one concession at the end of the place had sold 1,000 bottles by noon Thursday, just one thousand bottles of pop and had also sold over forty gallons of ice-cream in cones along with it.

Constable Evans Forces Car to Curb And Makes Arrest

A single handed arrest after he had forced the car to a curb on East Dundas street by another car he had commandeered, when he observed the former car turning south at the corner of Front St. and Bridge, led to the apprehension late Thursday night by Constable William Evans of Marshall Lauder, 11 James Street, Ottawa, whose description had been sent out by Toronto police, with a request to hold the man on a charge of theft until he could be returned to that city. He was reported to have in his possession in the car a German machine gun and two smaller side arms, said by Toronto officers to have been stolen. When stopped and returned to the police station for search Thursday night the car was found to contain a machine gun of foreign make but small pistols of antique manufacture, and a quantity of rifle goods. The man whose appearance fits the description given to the detaining police officers, is being held in the local station until arrival of the officers with wife and mother-in-law, who were with him in the car, before moved on to return to Toronto with the machine after he was arrested.

Owing to the ambiguous wording of the telegram the local police were of the opinion, that the man was travelling alone and that the machine gun reported stolen was a possible threat to any officer who might stop the car. All weapons however, were found to be found to be obsolete and unfit for offensive purposes.

It is stated by the police after questioning the man, that some time ago, Lauder being in need of money, raised a certain amount on bonds found, and upon leaving Toronto, he went to the home he once had lived in there without the money required. Not finding the man at home, it is alleged that Lauder took his trophies and fled. He followed by telegram for his arrest. Lauder was an aviator in the war and it is believed has been employed in war trophies of the great conflict.

ACT NOT NEW SAY DEALERS

Amendment Re License Has Been Incorporated For Some Time

Rigid enforcement of an act prohibiting all radio dealers from selling or offering for sale any set to an unlicensed owner has been promised by the Department of Marine, at Ottawa, but the dealers generally given due notice to all dealers in this district.

The act is not a new one, accord, ing to local dealers, who have been questioned regarding it, but was incorporated in departmental rules governing the Radio Act, about three or four years ago. It is not, however, been generally enforced. New publication of the enforcement was given to local dealers during the past week, with the promise of a penalty or fine if any infringements are found.

Despite popular belief, that one license only is required for each home, regardless of how many receiving sets are being used, information from local dealers is to the effect, that each set owned one license must be secured. In the case of dealers, who use demonstrators in homes a special dealers' license must be carried, when the set is on demonstration, but the shop each set must also carry a license when on demonstration.

He asked the doctor for a little shot of morphine before entering the institution. After Seymour then left the office returning within the doctor was out and under the pretense of getting the office girl to telephone to the hospital, he stole a bottle of morphine tablets and disappeared before the girl returned.

He is described as being about 5 foot, 8 inches tall and is around 35 years of age. He has a prepondinate scar on the left side of his face. The local police are investigating the case.

Notice to Parents

The Board of Education have installed a fee system in the Belleville Public Schools whereby all supplies are furnished by the Board, and we invite your co-operation, to assure its success.

The fee payable on the first of each month for the respective classes will be:

Primer	5c per month
1st	10c per month
2nd	10c per month
3rd	10c per month
4th	15c per month

The above based on ten months.

When supplies have last books suitable for use, same may be used. Only the cost of the required material will be assessed.

Owing to the heavy initial cost of installing the system, the Board desires parents to pay in full if convenient, if not, to pay as many months in advance as possible at the opening of school on September 6th. This would also simplify the bookkeeping for the Teachers, who are willingly co-operating with the Board in the matter, without compensation.

SEEN IN THE ECLIPSE

Among the accompaniments of the sun's eclipse on Wednesday, Belleville people learned a number of things. They learned that the temperature which had been 89 degrees at two thirty P.M., had dropped eight degrees to 81 by three forty o'clock, this time practically coinciding with the period of opening with the first appearing of the dint in the north side of the sun until after the period of the greatest darkness had passed. They learned what uncanny effects in colors and shades followed the dimming of the orb of day. They also learned, those who had them, that fowls did not go to roost, that animal nature was not so much upset as they had expected, they also were impressed with the majesty of the natural world, when the great fountain of light and heat, the sun, went into his eclipse and came out of it, to resume his control of all life.

Had the day been one of gloom the effect would have been nearly so thrilling and dramatic as when the sun in full open sky had to peer around the disc edge of the moon.

These are some of the things which impressed the people who are not scientists but ordinary mortals. Scientists, of course, learned other things of vast importance, the results of which may go down the ages. It is remembered that our gas-filled bubbs through which electricity passes, owe their origin to the discovery, during an eclipse, of an unknown gas in the sun. That was the stepping stone and it meant the discovery of helium gas on earth and its employment in electric light bulbs.

BACK TO GARDEN

The man with a hoe can eat.

During their leisure hours—too numerous—the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's employees are cultivating 7,600 gardens, one for every seven workers.

New York State's 5,000 industrial gardens feed 25,000 people, while some forty-five Indiana cities have a total of 50,000 gardens, and Illinois boasts 60,000.

According to an Associated Press survey, a majority of the States are now fostering co-operative gardens to provide work and sustenance for the needy. Of the report pertaining to the mining industry, relief agencies, universities, and county agricultural authorities have joined State organizations to obtain land and direct planting and harvesting of truck crops."

Thus "the nation has swung into gardening on a scale never equalled before as a result of unemployment," and we read:

"Vacant plots and idle lots blossom into productivity as capable hands turn from closed factories, chopping out weeds and replacing them with orderly rows of vegetables. In fact, there were scenes reminiscent of war time as two 'divisions' of a self-help army grubbed fields under the county-managed plan. The 2nd Cross at Birmingham, Alabama, had many community gardens flourishing.

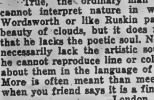
"Memphis, Tennessee, appropriated $10,000 for gardening projects, with penal institutions canning the surplus, and citizens donating enough seeds to plant 2,500 vacant lots.

"Mills B. Lane, Georgie banker, turned over 4,000 acres for the unemployed—suggesting that small homes could be built on the property for persons who agreed to put themselves on a self-supporting basis.

"Kentucky miners, 20,000 strong, forsook the pick for the hoe, and the Society of Friends in that State took funds left over from war-time relief to encourage the production of chickens, cows, and hogs.

"Ohio, too, joined the movement, in four cities especially. In Lorain and Barberton, the municipal governments furnished plots. Akron's municipal plots were supplemented by lands from industry. Cleveland's 2,890 gardeners not only obtained food, but won prizes for the best-looking and highest yielding crops."

In Nebraska, the American Legion "sounded a once-time call," and five hundred needy veterans, instead of joining the Bonus Expeditionary Force, began wielding the hoe. Reports from Minnesota show that both the Twin Cities have fostered emergency gardening.



"A FINE DAY"

Undeserved reproach is sometimes heaped on the head of the man who talks about the weather. When he says that it is a fine day, a grand day, or a swell day, it is unfairly supposed that he suffers from poverty of thought and from lack of appreciation of the troubles of the world and other weighty subjects of conversation. The truth often is that he is not thoughtless or frivolous, but merely inarticulate. He does not mean only that the day is not wet, or is too cold or too warm, but that it has a beauty which he cannot express but for which he is thankful as Wordsworth, who says:

O, there is blessing in this gentle breeze;
A visitant that while it fans my cheek
Doth seem half conscious of the joy it brings
From the green fields, and from yon azure sky.
What e'er its mission the soft breeze may come
To none more grateful than to me.

True, the ordinary man or woman cannot interpret nature in words, like Wordsworth or like Ruskin painting the beauty of clouds, but it does not follow that he lacks the poetic soul. Nor does he necessarily lack the artistic soul because he cannot reproduce line or color, or talk about them in the language of the artist. Appreciation is meant than meets the ear when you friend says it is a fine day.

SIDELIGHTS
GRAVE and GAY

BELLEVILLE MOTORISTS who visit "The Outlet" and other nearby Lake Ontario beach resorts, should have a care and not take their cars too near the water. Seems the sand is so fine there and so loose near the water's edge that car wheels just sink down into it and the job of getting the car out again. With the front wheels sunk and the back wheels churning up sand in great style, just exposing the axles in the rear to match the depressions holding the front wheels, it is just too bad, as several motorists from Belleville have discovered this season. With a tow eye for business a young man has set himself up in business at "The Outlet," with a car, a block and tackle and a tow line in it, and he hauls them out at regular rates, $2.00 for a small car, and $3.00 for a large car — so a motorist informs us, and is said to have rescued about one hundred cars already this season. So, when you go to "The Outlet," hang your clothes on a hickory limb but don't go near the water, in your car.

LAND OF HOPE AND GLORY, did you say all that good cooking at Belleville Fair? Pies and cakes and cookies, biscuits, scones and tarts, my oh, my, the display was a warming reminder of the goodly land, flowing with milk and honey and other things, land of good cooks and chicken pie. No better picture of the prosperity and prosperity to be shown than those long lines of pies and cakes baked by the women folk of the farms of Bay of Quinte district. Wonder is why Prosperity took a nap at all.

ECLIPSE CAME OFF just as you advertised, said a smoked glass customer to a member of the staff of the g.f.j. Sure, and it pays to advertise for many people might have ruined their eyes if not warned that the consequences of the attempt of trying to see the eclipse with naked eyes.

SCIENTISTS who went to Quebec to see the eclipse were disappointed, visibility being obscured by cloud banks! Should have come to Belleville where the eclipse was served up in a clear sky without a cloud to interfere.

STALKING GRIMLY FORWARD, day by day, every dawn that much nearer, relentless, inexorable, silent but sure, the shadow travels on, growing larger day by day, casting gloom over the old swimming hole, and tinging even the midway delights at the fair with the sadness of apprehension —the mind of youth reflects that next week school reopens. But what a glad and glorious vacation with a variety of weather fit for every purpose. Cool days and cooler nights, a few hot sizzlers, but barefoot weather all of it—what price a few stone bruises. Only one cloud to mar a perfect summer vacation, there was no circus in Belleville. John Ringling who owns all the circuses worth while, has followed the lines of Big Business and retired some of the circuses so that the others can make more money, and for two seasons he has ignored Ontario entirely. Being as John was once a boy himself he might let the kids here have just a teeney-weeny circus at least—how about it John?

The boy listened expectantly for a while and then said: "Dad, he's a long time sawing it, isn't he?"

"What is your name?" the grocery store manager asked the young applicant for a job.

"Scott," replied the lad.

"And your first name?"

"Walter."

"That's a pretty well-known name," remarked the manager, with a smile.

The boy looked pleased.

"It ought to be," he replied "I've been delivery groceries around here for two years."

MUCH DOUBT REAL DISEASE SAY EXPERTS

Victim of Obsession Loses Initiative of Action

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous American Psychiatrist and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

If you are troubled with doubt and cannot find it difficult to make up your mind you know how torturing such a state of continual uncertainty can be. Not to be sure, not to be able to decide and to stick to it, can sometimes become so worrisome that it actually amounts to a disease.

There are a few who are always rock-sure about everything, but only a few, and often they are not half as sure as they seem. Constant doubting, to greater or lesser degree, is a very human and universal failing. To doubt a little, one might say, is normal, but to doubt all the time falls under the category of obsessions.

We must guard against the doubting habit as much as we can, for it soon becomes a habit and, when once established, it is very difficult to rid oneself of it. The French call this habit "folie de doute". Freely translated that means doubting mania, or the obsession of doubting.

Doubting undermines personality and makes us timid and a mere chameleon. It can also make us feel inferior and subject to the inferiority complex. It makes for suspicion of others. Indeed, it is one of the many pernicious things to our general well-being.

One should not, of course, rush into action on the slightest provocation, but when we have weighed and considered carefully all the pros and cons of a matter, and have but if one has the tendency to "if" and "but" too much, it is better to act rashly than to wait and allow doubt definitely to settle in the mind.

Unable at first to decide so much as what dress to buy or even not to go shopping, the victim of the doubting obsession after a time cannot do anything upon his own initiative; and the worst of it is that, even after he has been forced to decide or to act, such a person still is harassed by doubts.

Individuals galore, young and old alike, have been known to lie awake nights wondering and doubting. Their minds become hopelessly because when not distracted by the passing show outside they can only concern themselves with doubt. Their dreams may be quite supreme so. They cannot have any peace at any time because of their torturing doubt.

Doubt arises from the unconscious mind rather than from the conclusions. Usually the basic cause is to be found in childhood when the individual is not a free agent, even in his own home, but is always being directed. Parents and teachers are constantly telling him what to do and what not to do, and therefore the child's mind is a state of doubt more or less continuously.

Now some children outgrow this and become quite free, but the modern pedagogy is trying to do away with doubt in the minds of younger generation. We want our children to become self-reliant thinkers, to have the strength of their own convictions, and to be fearless in expressing and living out those convictions.

But some children remain doubters especially those who have been punished, coerced and thus inhibited. These quickly develop "folie de doute" and suffer much because of it.

If you notice that doubting is getting the better of you be sure to act whenever doubt assails you, even if you do make many wrong mistakes; for doubt must be fought to a standstill. It must be routed out with decision.

In very severe cases nothing short of a psychoanalysis with the By-Ahis method the unconscious factors are found, and the case cured and doubt is dispelled once and for all.

FIND CATTLE AND MYSTERY SOLVED

Farmer Drove Them Into Wrong Corral by Mistake

Hamilton, Sept. 2 (CP). — The great Beverly Township cattle mystery has been solved. Right head of cattle, owned by Fred Moffatt, were found safely. They strayed from Moffatt's pasture. Another resident of the district noticed them and thought they belonged to John Allison. So he very kindly drove them into the Allison corral and left them. Meanwhile, a wide search was in progress. Finally Mr. Allison discovered the strange cattle and they were turned over to the owner.

GYPSY MOTH BEING CRATED

Mollison's Plane to Accompany Him on Boat to England

Quebec, Sept. 2 (CP). — The Gypsy Moth which has taken Captain J. A. Mollison across the North Atlantic to New York and back to Quebec via Saint John and Sydney, N. S., has served its purpose for the present. Today it was being crated for passage back to England in the hold of the liner Empress of Britain, sailing tomorrow.

The captain, abandoning his plan to fly back to Ireland, flew to Quebec yesterday to slightly over seven hours from Sydney at which point he was prevailed upon to return by steamer. Last night Captain Mollison said he was pretty well but not as fit as he should be. He spent the night at a local hotel and today was to receive official greetings from the city. Captain Mollison is looking forward to the five days' rest on the Atlantic.

FREEMAN RINK RIGGS WINNER

Ted Green of Kingston Skips Ritchie Cup Winners

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, Intermediate, Champions of their William St. green, put on an innovation in connection with their annual tournament. Instead of a draw being made in the morning and play starting then, the draw was not made till 1 p.m. Some late finals resulted; the last game in the Primary competition was not finished till 1.30 p.m. while the final in the Consolation games did not reach its conclusion till 3.45 a.m. The Peterboro rink skipped by H. Freeman eventually eliminated the J. Tamon rink of Deseronto in the former contest for the Riggs trophy, and the Kingston rink of Ted Green outpointed H. Wood's rink of Cobourg for a shot for the Ritchie cup in Consolation. When it was found that the Consolation event would take so long in running off, the third round, semi final and final was cut to six end affairs. Twelve ends constituted the Primary games and ten ends those of the Consolation. Twenty-six rinks of 104 bowlers took part in the successful tournament. Kingston was represented by 2 rinks, Belleville 2, Trenton 2, Deseronto, Picton and Stirling sent 3 each, Peterboro, Brighton, Cobourg and Brighton were each represented by a rink, the remaining 8 were composed of Belleville players.

SAVES HORSES FROM FIRE BUT SUCCUMBS

Perth, Ont., Sept. 2. — Andrew Hunter, an elderly Bathurst Township farmer, died suddenly from heart failure immediately after saving his horses from fire, when the barn was struck by lightning and completely destroyed during one of the most severe thunder storms of the year. Mr. Hunter ran on releasing the horses toward the farmhouse to summon aid, but was overcome by a heart attack and succumbed almost instantly.

Neighbors saved the dwelling, but barn and sheds were damaged to the extent of $2,500 partly covered by insurance.

Police Escort Wrestler and Manager From Grounds as Crowd is Excited Over Bouts

Manager Chases Youth Who Throws Chair at Masked Marvel

'CLEVER' BOUTS

McDougal Favorite of Fans Wins Close Bout From Cattalino

While an estimated crowd of one thousand red-eyed, riotous citizens, in a frenzy of mob fervor, trailed closely in the rear and hemmed the officers on both sides, three local policemen, Sergeant Booth, Constable H. Wood and Provincial Officer Gordon Campbell escorted the Masked Marvel and his manager out of the Belleville Fair grounds last evening, following a riot which occurred on the grounds. The disturbance was climaxed by a desperate attempt of the Masked Marvel's manager to catch a local youth, who had flung a chair at him from the grandstand stage at the conclusion of the final wrestling bout of the evening in which the Masked Marvel had bested a local wrestler, Rodney LaRocque, by what was alleged unfair methods, the decision of which was supported by Referee Earl Nelson.

Previous to the riot which occurred at the ringside and in front of the dressing room of the Dufferin, both wrestlers had gone through the ropes to the road at the side of the arena, following the refusal of the LaRocque to accept the second "fall" of the bout, which had been officially awarded to the Marvel by Referee Nelson. On the hard road both wrestlers indulged in a mixup in which fists were used freely. They were separated by police only to mix again a second later. The crowd roared and mob fever reached its height. Then the Masked Marvel reclaimed the right to "settle" it. LaRocque refused. It was while order was restored that the youth attempted to go to their dressing room that a local man, whose name police have, and one of a crowd, which hemmed them in, threw a chair, which narrowly missed the Marvel. The chair-thrower was pursued by the manager. This excited the hostilities of the crowd which resorted to rocks, pummelling and stone throwing at the lad who retreated to the dressing room. Police officers curbed actual physical violence and escorted the pair to their car outside the grounds. But it was not until both wrestler and manager had left the city that the excitement of the crowd was restored.

Bad blood had been apparent between both wrestlers during the bout, which was further heightened by the antics of the manager of the unbefeated Marvel who antagonized the crowd by his actions at the ringside during the bout in his own man and of a previous one in which he incited trouble by taunting the spectators. A rematch between the two is being sought to clear the air.

Best Fairly Good Bout

The best liked between the Marvel and LaRocque was fairly credited to the latter, however by apparent shadiness and dirty work on the part of the Marvel, who displayed more of it than had been observed in the city in previous bouts. LaRocque, though outclassed by the heavier and smoother working mystery man, used slambang methods to advantage, several times landing the unbelievable champ hard presses. Footwork, elbows and rabbit punches were used freely. The first fall by the Marvel came after nineteen minutes and thirty seconds time during which LaRocque by an alleged unethical self strangle hold lost the opportunity of recovery of how body slams and active work on the part of the Marvel. Some of the fans disputed decision over LaRocque in the second fall. The decision which was given to the Marvel and which was strongly contested by La-Rocque, was the one which caused the trouble.

As an opener the popular local wrestler, Bobby Sampson, mixed with the flying and tricky Hungarian Kid Szabo a newcomer to the ranks of Canadian wrestling having not yet learned to speak the English language since leaving his mother country. This bout was an exhibition of finer wrestling which was lost on the crowd, unanimous as they are to the bang-up style of boosting. This have lately been observed. Absence of dirty work on the part of both mat artists served to accentuate the slowness of the bout, although applause for their favorite, Bobby Sampson, was plentiful from the crowd. It took just twenty-five minutes for the 110 pound Sampson to floor the 110 pound Szabo in the thirty minute limit. It was a swift, neat and clean bout all the way through.

MacDougal Wins Again

Scotty MacDougal, another rising local star of the Belleville crowd, fought, pummelled and pounded his way to a two-one minute victory over the scowling Cattalino in the semi final bout of forty-five minute limit, after he had been three times pressed for short periods when the dark stranger employed some of his body slamming antics which left the Scotsman bewildered and tired. Twice Cattalino got chased from the ring after he had used some of his footwork on the anniversary of MacDougal, who strongly resented such methods of wrestling. Twice he came back to mix it up and then crawl through the ropes when the going got too rough. The bout was distinguished by the liberal use Cattalino made of his hands and feet in windmill fashion and by the odd pouncings he made over the backs of the ring. Mayhem was narrowly averted on the person of Monsieur Cattalino by MacDougal before the final tackle gave the Scotsman the two minute decision in at 10.0, MacDougal 216.

Neuritis is often a stubborn condition to cure, no matter in what part of the body it appears. It is an inflamation of "one or more nerves." Relief is usually different from every other, and must be treated accordingly.

Wins 2.16 Class in Straight Heats After Running Day Before

Over a track that was lightning fast and edged on by the plaudits of the crowd, "Babe" Kimbirst lassing Lou Ganot owned by Percy Morgan of Campbellford, broke the track record on Thursday afternoon at the Driving Park in the third heat of the 2.16 class. The record held jointly by Sid Hall owned by Dr. Whitely of Goderich and Willis Gratias at the time by W. J. Hodgens of London, was 2.08 1-2 before Lou Ganot lowered it to 2.07 3-4 and had there been opposition to "take him" might have clipped a fraction off that mark. The performance was all the more remarkable, when it is considered that on Wednesday, this same horse won the 2.14 class having to trip two miles right around 2.10 to gain the verdict. The record mile was eventually raised, the first half being 1.04 and the last half a quarter of a second faster. The liberal was not distressed in any way and both owner and driver were given an ovation by the large crowd, which attended.

Straight Heat Win

Needless to say, Lou Ganot won the 2.16 class in straight heats with the chief opposition being furnished by Bud Wenger, a local favorite of this track and long be remembered. Bud Wenger went away on high and going into the turn was in the front. Elmhirst picked up the leader and soon was locked in behind the Wenger horse waiting for the stretch to take out. When the stretch came out Bud was witnessed. Bud Wenger carried the Canot horse wide but once straightened for home both drivers high reined and worked on their charges as only those with experience can. The Canot horse had a little the better of the duel and won by a scant nose in 2.10 1-2. The second trip was not as fast the Canot horse not being threatened and the third heat he broke the track record.

Clifford Chapman, trained Pearl Grattan, owned by J. T. Payette of Penetang to a three straight heat victory in the 2.22 class the other race on the card. The mare was always in command and chief opposition came from Marion Direct, a winner at the Picton Fair, the time in this class was slow and the racing not interesting due to the standing of the Grattan mare over the field. The summary:

2.16 Class, Purse $200.00.

Lou Ganot, C. Morgan, Campbellford 1 1 1
Bud Wenger, Wm. Wright, Hastings 2 2 2
Murray Direct, W. Sharon, Marlefield 3 3 3
Betty Wenger, O. Dunford Peterboro 4 4 5
Joe McGregor, W. Hillock Colborne 5 5 6
Time—2.10 1-2, 2.11 1-4, 2.07 3-4 (New Track Record).

2.22 Class, Purse $150.00.

Pearl Grattan, J. T. Payette Penetang 1 1 1
Marian Direct, E. Redmond, Peterboro 2 2 2
Catharine Grattan, F. Orr, Belleville 5 3 3
Hermia Grattan, H. Ingram Lindsay 3 4 4
Peter Direct, W. J. Noden, Orono 4 5 5
Time—2.16, 2.13 1-2, 2.14 1-4.

Starter—Geo. O. Tice, Belleville.
Judges—R. H. Stock, W. Lavery.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Behind the bodely pitching of Ed. Jepson, their veteran hurler, the New Toronto stalwarts made it two in a row when they stopped the Kingston Frontenac nine of the Kingston Fonties 7 to 4 on their home ice Wednesday. The victory was the first Kingston fans were burned up plenty. The language used during the game was plenty of the Foxy players, was just nobody's business. The Kingston fans threw verbal insults towards the Fonies which were received with anything but an amicable feeling by the rocky Fonies.

Texas Bogue hits were the down fall of the Kingston nine New Toronto club presented a well coached team of veterans and they not only placed this just over the field but also bounded back into top-lofty "Tammy" Jamieson out of the ball park. Three times in succession the Kingston players were laid down perfect bunts to draw the mis Kingston hurler out of the play, and all were safe. The result is best out of the way when the for its senior ball is concerned.

We do not want to bring up old stories but we are of the honest opinion that the Belleville Belleville Nationals would have literally pounded the ball around the park. The New Toronto hurler had nothing more on the ball than the perverting Jepson and the Kingston Batsmen were trying to knock the ball out of the ball-ground. They struck out, eventually.

Frank McCallum, who played with the Oshawa team a few years ago was coaching the New Toronto club Frank still has old soft spot in his heart for the old Central League. Here's a tip; Frank Fisher should consider returning to the C.O.B.L. next year Interesting certain baseball fans are involved. We'll have more news on the subject later this fall.

The Belleville Victorias excited themselves all Labour Day and Tuesday when they held the island Town uber sports right in their own back yard. Manager Pamphilon of the Vics will in turn the tables on the fast Gananoque nine when the return game is played in Belleville early in September. The game was originally scheduled to be played in Napanee but in all fairness to the Victorias the management of the Victorias decided to play the game at home.

In all probability Ed Hutton, the Vics' star right hander will pitch the hearing duties for the home team at the Fair Grounds Saturday, Coach Chipmunk Gerow has Ralph Bey to throw in against the Island Town alibe also while he may pull a "fast one" and throw Archie Campbell, one of the best game of the season in Gananoque yesterday, right back at the Gananoque nine.

Wednesday's game at Gananoque saw a swell pitchers' battle between two left handers, Derry of Gananoque and Campbell for the Vics. Although Derry was credited as being the winning pitcher of the day he had absolutely nothing on Campbell while on the hilltop.

With - Belleville's veteran - pant sailor, Morris Callahan, at the helm, the sailing punt, I'm Alone owned by Bill Hinkle romped over the finishing line ahead of a dozen or so other craft during the race on Wednesday afternoon. The Belleville Sailing Club's punt was second and as she won the first two races and finished second on Wednesday, was awarded the Chas. Hanna trophy emblematic of the junior championship of the Belleville district for 1933. Punt racing has been doubled popular in Belleville this year and its reinvention is assured for the future.

There was no apparent reason for the action of the fans following the wrestling and boxing bouts at the Belleville Fair. Because of the fact that the Masked Marvel is somewhat unpopular in Belleville and took the part of the villain, while he is quite popular here, adds no reason for the disgraceful scenes that were on the bout. The party who threw the chair was not sure of his aim when shattered, the chair thrower ducked out his way expected. These things have no place in sport pay a nickel to help defray the expenses of athletics, and not to see a fight because the greatest amount of fighting was attempted in the court, should be made of one or two of these trouble makers.

Congratulations are in order to Eric F. Hall of Campbellford, following the breaking of the local track record by his smart little horse Lou Ganot driven by "Babe" Kimbirst. The record was 2.08 while the mile was 2.07 3-4. The previous track record of Sid Hall and Willis Gratian. The races at the Belleville Fair this year have been far better than in many years past.

There was some talk of a benefit game among the girls' clubs to help defray the expenses of Rene Duncup's broken finger. What better 'ad could one ask for than Labor Day?

Drivers of Commercial Vehicles Figure Largely in Auto Accidents

It is difficult to understand how drivers, expert enough to be in charge of commercial motor vehicles could be involved in over 1,200 accidents in one month, in one year—yet that is Ontario's record for 1931.

Last year 110 commercial vehicles—work involved in fatal accidents 1,088 were involved in accidents in which, personal injury was sustained. These are official figures, furnished by the Motor Vehicle Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways.

It is to be expected that the use of commercial vehicles in the province will continue to increase. It is therefore of the utmost importance that drivers thereof take warning from last year's appalling experience.

And it is equally imperative that drivers of pleasure cars and pedestrians co-operate in an effort to lessen the toll on the streets, needless killing and maiming of human are on Ontario's streets and highways.

INTEREST KEEN IN FINAL GAME

Redneersville and Victoria to Again Meet in Final Contest

In a rather one-sided game, the Redneersville softball team defeated the Consecon Club 17 to 14 in the elimination tournament at the Belleville Fair Thursday evening. This victory gives Redneersville the right to meet Victoria in the final game of the series to be played Friday evening. As both of these teams played off for the championship of Ameliasburg with Redneersville coming out a narrow margin with the interest for the large trophy is quite keen.

The Redneersville team simply played with their rivals making the game somewhat of a farce during the dying innings as they were some ten runs in the lead in the last innings.

The line-ups—Clarke, R. James, Phillips, Miller, Vanhorne, R. Mc-Conkey, Hayes Clarke, and C. McConkey. Thompson, Farley, Thompson, Walkam, A. Dempsey, G. Dempsey, Ellis, Russell, Thompson and H. Dempsey.

Score by innings:

Consecon .000 020 4—14 runs.
Redneersville 740 402 0 17runs.

"THE GHOST TRAIN" PACKS THRILLS AND LOVE INTEREST

The Cornish Riviera speeding on its way suddenly begins to slow up. The communication cord has been pulled! The driver is startled, but "that's the first time that's happened on my run," but the guard is investigating. What does he find?

I am is it not madness to die, in order to escape death?—An old Roman poet to an intending suicide.

A survey indicates that about half the passengers who travel on long distance buses in the United States in summer are women.

GUARDED!

● The secret of Gillette's new equipment that assures uniformity of hardness in razor steel is known to only a handful of men inside the factory. You enjoy the benefit of many exclusive advantages when you shave with the Gillette BLUE SUPER-BLADE.

The Blue Blade is made in addition to the regular Gillette Blade sold in the green package.

Murder? Robbery? Suicide? No! A slim active young man flies out of the carriage door, runs along the line, and to the consternation of the guard calmly picks up a hat. The fugitive's friends will soon discovered the hat and it had blown out of the window he simply had to get it back. The guard is not sympathetic. This will cost you 5/- at his single statement. On enquiring he discovers the delinquent's name is Teddy Deakin, but by this time Teddy is happily ensconced in a carriage with an exceedingly pretty girl. Does he know her? No, but he intends to! Thus starts "The Ghost Train" with the spry and the gist, love interest and suspense, and mystery—and the train proceeds with ever gathering momentum—and incidentally adventure and increasing love interest—with a haunted railway station to give added thrills and interest, following a great railway disaster. The play is different, unique and entertaining to the greatest degree. In fact so much that "The Ghost Train" packs the thrill of a life time, and bored theatregoers are strongly advised to see it, today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre.

I am is it not madness to die, in order to escape death?—An old Roman poet to an intending suicide.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

It's not too soon to think in terms of velvet for winter. Hints are already gracing the shops. A lovely evening frock is made of dull velvet in garnet red. Shirring at the high waistline is held by a ruby and rhinestone ornament. There are tiny puffed sleeves and a short train.

It is a necessity to look smart and the new clothes are the smartest ever and so youthful. A new hooded, a street frock of sheer wool crepe in black. It has a tucked and unbelted line and a high neckline. There is a round capelet of bonsai red suede glove fabric stitched in black and fastened with a row of small black buttons.

Everlasting in its smart appeal is black accented with a sparkling touch. A lovely new evening frock is of black triple sheer with rows of black net ruching edging the hem of the skirt. Pointed scanning holds the skirt to the figure. Twin clasps of oval clips mark each side of the V-shaped neckline as the only ornament.

No more bidding for the ostrich since his plumage is the last word for evening wear. With a frock of white chalky crepe is worn a bit of white uncurled ostrich, while a black frock complements its charm by the addition of a red ostrich boa, worn with matching red crepe shoes.

Just now many woman are buying simple black crepe frocks for the formal evening wear. A most successful model has a fascinating high neckline which extends into a wide shoulder treatment. There is a rhinestone pin at the neckline and rhinestone buttons on the belt. Long earrings are worn to accent the sparkling touch.

Beatrice Fairfax Letters

IS $35 A WEEK ENOUGH?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm engaged to a man who is almost twenty years old and who earns $35 a week. He also has his own car. We're both terribly in love. And he is saving toward our home and furniture. Do you think we could live on $35 a week?

A. B. H.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down, my dear, on the amount of money on which a young couple can live. It depends entirely on whether they are thrifty or extravagant! How much the girl knows about keeping house? And the health of the young people is a concern—for as you know, doctor's bills and medicine and even an occasional practical nurse are expensive.....and more important than all these things, are they really in love, or just fascinated?

I'm afraid you won't like this, but I think a boy "almost twenty" is entirely too young to undertake the responsibilities of marriage. As this young man seems to be doing very well indeed to have a job and own a car, why don't you agree to wait for a couple of years, continuing meantime to save for that home you speak of. You could learn to keep house economically and fill your hope chest.

A VICTIM OF BASHFULNESS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm terribly bashful. Every time a girl looks at me, I go red. I just can't "crash the gate" to the opposite sex. As time goes on I get worse. I'm not young, not smooth-talk. Please tell me what I can do to overcome my bashfulness.

Bashful.

That easy, the graceful, man-of-the-world manner that you'd like to have is only acquired with practice in playing golf, tennis, learning to dance, singing, playing the piano. Go out, all you can, meet all the people you can, till the embarrassing shyness wears off. Try not to think of yourself—just say this fellow I'm taking round isn't I—he's not a mind reader, anyway, and after a while the bashfulness will decrease. Girls like to have boys tell them they look charming, that they dance well, and you can always talk about the movies, baseball and things like that.

HELPING ALONG AN INDIFFERENT HUSBAND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young, attractive woman, married almost a year, and already my husband has completely bored, terribly indifferent. Do you think there is anything I can do to change him, or would you suggest a divorce. Of course any woman can divorce her husband, the trick is to hold him.

Weary

You're quite right—the trick is to keep a husband, not to divorce him, if he's at all worth keeping. But this one of yours hasn't come to being a bit spoiled. A wife can't do much more for a man than work to help him toward a better education—that should bring gratitude and considerateness—the fact that it has not, makes me wonder if you should go to look for friends. Should you flatter them, make them believe you don't care, or just be yourself. Do you think it all right for a girl my age to keep company with college boys twenty to twenty-two years of age? And if a boy is going away to school, is there any harm in corresponding with him? Thank you for your help.

Mary

If you want to make real friends and keep them, the best recipe is: "Just be yourself." If you try to be something that you are not really, the gold wash, veneer, silver plating or nickel finish is bound to wear off in time and show you're not genuine.

As the same time, there is no denying that "more flies are caught with molasses than with vinegar", and a girl who says agreeable things and doesn't make sharp, sarcastic remarks is more popular than one who does. Don't gossip, don't repeat unkind things, don't write to boys in college, it's all right, if your mother or father is willing, be a good pal, put off serious love affairs for a few years yet.

Beauty..... BY HELEN JAMIESON

Touching up Those Silver Dreads

Beauty operators who specialize in hair dyeing haven't flattering opinions of women who come to them to have their wrecked hands repaired. Women who have used the wrong coloring agent. Women who haven't applied it properly. Women who have gone from one combination of chemicals to another and bestowed up their thatches such tints as nature never dreamed of. But there's no reason why these women should be classed as wishbinded; they just didn't know what they were in for.

Hair can be dyed beautifully. It can take on titian red shades, the blackness of the raven's wing, lovely chestnut hues. But it isn't altered to a state of perfection by a casual purchase and haphazard application. Hair dyeing is the most difficult work that is done in beauty shops. To achieve it successfully, the operator must be experienced. Difficult problems pop up. What works like a charm on one head won't do the least for the next thatch, hair varying in quality, color and susceptibility to chemicals.

Let the woman fancy that the first ducking is the whole job. She needn't believe either that she can treat the first hair band and get the medium on evenly; that is impossible. Hair that is white won't come out the same shade as hair that is dark; the gypsy and salt head is the most difficult of all to color. And that's the kind that usually gets the final dash of dye at home.

Beauty shop owners are a kindly clan. They give advice freely, even when they know it will end a man in the day's sum total in the cash register. If a woman feels that she cannot afford professional treatment—and hairdyeing is not to be had at bargain prices—let her consult an operator who has made a reputation in that line of work. He or she will recommend the best combination for her needs. No sensible woman need be told that no one dye serves for all.

The dyeing will have to go on and on because any hair pushes out at the scalp giving the beauty game away This new growth only must be treated for the reason that as more and more dye is put upon the portions of the shafts that are already colored, they will get darker. The hair grows one inch every two months. The usual rule is a touch up every six weeks.

Another item to keep in mind; the day may come when the dyed darling will be tired of the bonds; ees, resin herself to her snowy crust. She'll want her old hair back no matter what it looks like. What then? She can cut her locks and wear a wig. She can have the old dye removed and a lighter shade applied—one of the most skilful specialists can do that job—or she can go about half natural and half painted, enduring this period of transition as best she can. Shoffle, most courage for it.

There's no reason why a woman shouldn't darken her greying locks. It's nobody's business but her own. But if she is going to do it, let her seek information on the subject, know exactly what results will be, realize she must expect of herself in the future in the way of faithful poses to keep it up. It is a step that is not to be taken blindly.

Peps Up Dad's Breakfast—
Three Helpings for Bob!

ALL the Dads and Bobs who know Crackels agree on one thing : : : that Crackels is the most inviting, the best flavoured and the crispest of all cereals.

Dad must have Crackels often: Bob wants three helpings at every breakfast. Why don't you start to enjoy Crackels tomorrow?

Not just one cereal, but a blend of different grains. Crackels are unlike any other cereal. "Over-Shredding", a process we discovered, gives them a flavour such as you have never tasted before.

And so light, these little sun-coloured morsels float on the top of your milk or cream. So crisp, they stay crisp till the last spoonful is eaten.

At breakfast or any other meal, serve Crackels right from the package. They tempt children to take more milk or cream. Some mothers do not wait for mealtime, but give children handfuls.

Many Issues Advance Two to Four Points

New York, Sept. 3—A broad advance, centring in the steel and railroad issues, swept the stock market, starting higher in moderately active trading today.

Many traders had already left town for the week end, and bulls were convinced that Labor Day might mark an important turning point in general business activity evidently had the market largely to themselves.

The leading railroads were again buoyant, gains of 1 to 3 points appeared in Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and Delaware and Hudson, issues of 2 to 4 points increased by a good margin, and preferred, Gulf States Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Crucible Steel, Inland Steel, Illinois Central, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Nashville, American Telephone, American Can and others.

Advances at one point or so appeared throughout many groups, including Motors, Coppers, Oils, Utilities, Rails and more particularly, the Steels.

Such issues as Gulf States, Lehigh, Inland, Republic, Alloy Steel, Vanadium, Crucible Steel Foundries reached new highs for 1932.

Pursuant to dealer reports from the Youngstown area, reports of quickening steel activity in the Birmingham area, and a news item estimate that operations in the Youngstown district would be doubled next week, contributed to extraordinary buying and investment in the steel issues.

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"Well, we did whether he admits it or not," said Claire. "We fought like two strange bull-dogs.....You see, we discovered that we had to live all by ourselves, just the way you do, so we went way up the Hudson River to Woods, far from everywhere. And four days after we got there it began to rain. It's the truth, and we didn't have a thing to read or even a piece of cardboard. We simply had to. Then I got married I'm going to Atlantic City on Peter Beach for some other crowded spot for my honeymoon and no fooling."

"When you get lonesome come back to town and call up the Mansion." Her voice floated after them through the clear bright air. "Don't forget!"

The gray-blue shadows of late afternoon were across the garden as Mary Faith and Klag drove into the main street of Carrettsville—the main street, as they called it.

It was a long narrow street lined with little shops, each one more quaint. Called The Sugar Bowl, a White Front Tea House, a Fruit and Candy Store filled with tinsel and love, a jewelry store that resembled Mary Faith, and so on. No wedding ring.

Klm parked the car at the little telegraph office and they sent off two day letters, one to his mother and one to Mrs. Puckett.

"Now then, we've done our duty," Klm said when they came out into the snow and sunshine once more; "and we can settle down to the real work for two solid weeks...Mrs. Parrell."

The world that Mary Faith had always known already seemed very far away. Was it only last night that she had sat talking to Mrs. Puckett in the house on Elmer Street? Only this morning that she had said good-by to Mark Wells in her old office in the Nesbit Building? It seemed ages ago.

Snow lay deep on its porches and along the tops of its diamond-paned windows. A silver fringe of icicles hung from its low-pitched roof and on either side of it stood a tall fir tree.

"It isn't a real house at all. It's a picture on an old-fashioned Christmas card, Klm, and I know it!" Mary Faith declared as they drove up the hill and into the drive of the backyard.

"It's old-fashioned, all right. There isn't even a garage," Klm said dryly. He always seemed embarrassed when Mary Faith made extravagant statements or quoted poetry to him. "The car will probably freeze, standing in that woodshed all night."

"Sh- set the suitcases and the Maltese books on the back porch and unhooked the door.

The kitchen was filled with a faint spicy smell as if gingerbread had often been baked in it, and the low red sun shining in through the wee red sun shining in through the week windows made it seem very bright and cozy. There were rag rugs on the floor and a big cushioned rocker stood near the stove.

Mary Faith stood in the very middle of it, enchanted.

"Did you ever see such a lovely kitchen in all your life?" She turned wide starry eyes to Klm. "And look at the way paper in the dining room! All little Chinese pagodas and bowl. What a house it is! Just a house of a dream, isn't it?"

"Is it?" Klm asked. He had no eyes for the little house. He had come up beside her and his hands were around her, holding her so close that she seemed to feel the quick heavy drumming of his heart on her own heart. She sighed, lifting her face to him.

"Klm," she said with a throbbing note in her voice, "Klm, I'm never happy unless I am with you."

For two weeks both of them were gloriously happy with a happiness that Mary Faith had never dreamed of. The days were gone before they knew it, and yet all of them were pretty much alike.

Every morning Mary Faith went downstairs as soon as it was light and made the coffee. She made it as she had learned to make it at the Business Woman's Club cooking classes, with hot foamy milk, and carried it upstairs on a tray. She and Klm would sit up in bed in their bathrobes and drink it, telling each other with great solemnity that this was the life!

It was indeed the life.....There were no outsiders to bother them, no ringing of the telephone, no necessity of going to the office at nine o'clock every morning, or of getting answers at any time. They were all in a hushed snowy world of their own where they could do exactly as they pleased. It was wonderful.

"We're like Robinson Crusoes and his man Friday on their desert island," Mary Faith said one morning. She was on her knees, raking out on the ashes from the fireplace in their big sunny living room.

"You work all the time as if you thought you were man Friday," Klm answered her. "I ought to be ashamed to lie here in bed and let you build that fire."

Propped against the fat pillows of the bed he was smoking his first cigarette of the day and watching her with half-shut gray eyes.

"When you've finished and dressed, Mary Faith would cook breakfast—a delicious country break-fast of eggs and sausage, creamed potatoes and coffee. They always ate it before the fireplace in Aunt Ella's parlor with the Battenberg lace curtains, the family album and green plush curtains.

Sometimes they stayed at home all day. Mary Faith would curl up at one end of the big sofa and read and Klm would lie with his head in her lap while she read to him and stroked his thick blond hair with slow gentle fingers.

Sometimes they drove down into Carrettsville to buy groceries or occasionally to see a movie. Sometimes they went for long tramps through the snowy fields and woods, the day behind the house and came back with bunches of mistletoe and evergreen branches in their arms.

They went to church on both Sundays and to Ann Ella's supper with its seat of wine-colored velvet. On Christmas morning Mary Faith awakened and found with two French brier pipes tied, she had bought for him at Stern's department Shoppe in Carrettsville, because Klm had absolutely refused many gifts, so she told him.

"You embarrass me with your lies! I—I bought the one for you," he said when she gave them to him. "Turning her head over you haven't bought you your wedding ring yet, have you?"

"Oh, And I would really like one, Klm! Just a plain white-gold band. We'll talk it over with one of these mornings and get one, won't we?"

"Sure; we'll go to tomorrow without fail," he promised.

But the next day there was a blizzard and Mary Mayed in the house and hugged the stove.

Your friend Claire Maddox is all wrong about honeymoons, Klm," Mary Faith observed one night as they sat on the big white bearskin rug that lay before the fireplace in the parlor, listening to the dance music that came pouring into the room from the wheezy radio. "We've been married for almost two weeks and I haven't been bored for a single second, have you?"

"You haven't seen me yawn; have you?" Klm's eyes twinkled. "Claire said we'd be so bored after the first week that we'd yawn every time we looked at each other. Remember?"

It was their second Friday night in the little house. In the morning they would have to think about getting it in order for Aunt Ella, and on Sunday they would have to lock it up and go back to town.

"The thought of packing up and leaving gives me the blues, as a matter of fact," Klm said, stretching his long legs out toward the fire. "I could stay right here with you until next summer and like it. I've never been so contented in my life as I've been the last couple of weeks."

Mary Faith knew that she had made him happy and comfortable. She had worked at it. She had cooked the things he liked. She had darned his socks and pressed his neckties. Every morning she had filled his tub and laid clean towels out for his bath. On Monday she had gone down into the basement, while he was doing a nap, and laundered his shirts....And she had been good at it. She was taking care of him.

I've had the time of my life, Klm," she said, "and I'm still having it. It's heaven to be here together, isn't it? Listen there's the Merrow Hotel Orchestra. They're playing our song."

With their eyes on the fire they sat listening to a blues song on the radio.

All last summer they had danced to that music—the song hit of 1927. They had fallen in love with its melody and had asked orchestra leaders to play it for them. They had called it their song.

They moved across the little room like one swiftly moving figure, crooning the silly wistful words of the song as they danced.

Long afterward, whenever Mary Faith heard it, she would remember the smell of pine logs in the fireplace, the sound of the fire crackling the shutters of the little house, and the comfort of Klm's strong arms and the weariness of his hand on her waist.

She would remember how light-hearted she had been that night, and how happy.

They came back to town on Sunday. The snowdrifts and the noise, the mixed street lamps and the cars packed with tired-looking people depressed Mary Faith. She remembered suddenly that Klm's mother would have to be faced in a few minutes, and that Klm would be gone all day tomorrow.

A line of Robert Browning popped into her head. "So we lose ourselves—Klm and I," she said to herself, leaning back in the crook of his arm as the chauffeur noted its way through the crowded downtown streets.

"Well, here we are, back to the old everyday existence," Klm said, as if he read her thoughts. "Only it won't be dull and everyday for us now, will it?"

The windows of the flat were in darkness when they drove up in front of the apartment house on Wilton street.

"Looks as if the sisters Kimberley have gone to church, doesn't it?" Klm asked, switching on the lights in the living room as they came in. "Gee, it's cold and still! I had been the Misses Kimberley when they were out."

"Hello! Anybody at home?" he called, and almost at once Aunt Ella answered him from the rear of the flat.

"Kimberley, is that you?"

She came trotting into the room, her finger on her lips.

"Let me talk to you," she whispered and waved them back into the hallway.

"Your mother's sick in bed with little cold," she said to Klm softly. "She's been all upset about you for two weeks, and I think she's worked herself up into a fever. You know how high-strung she is....So I thought maybe you'd better go in alone and speak to her, Kimberley."

"I'll bet both go in to see her," Klm answered firmly. "Come along Mary Faith."

Aunt Ella padded along behind them.

Mrs. Parrell was sitting up in bed eating milk toast from a large soup plate. She had on a pink wool bonnet-light. Her cheeks were pink and Mary Faith thought she had never seen her looking so well.

Klm sat down on the edge of the bed.

"Well, Mother, I'm sorry to find you sick like this." He reached for her hand but she drew it away.

"I'm sorry about a few things, myself," she said bitterly. "I'm sorry that you thought you had to sneak away to get married.....I'm just think of it—my only son!—and creeping me to say that he had just been married! If that wasn't small, nothing was ever so insult!"

"—I suppose she helped you to deceive me!" She rapped the bedspread with her knuckles. "Come to you for your honeymoon without letting me know a thing about it! I'm sure I don't know what I've ever done that my own son and my own sister should treat me the way they have."

Klm's eyebrows came together in a scowl. He stood up and looked down at his mother, his hands in his pockets.

"You know why I didn't tell you I was going to marry Mary Faith Mother," he said irritably. "Last fall we did tell you we intended to be married—and you kicked up such a row about it that this time we decided to get married first and break the news to you later—and the way you're acting now proves that we were right!"

"Well, Kimberley, you never spoke to me like that before in your life," she said slowly and impressively. "But I'm not surprised. I know things would be like this as soon as you brought that girl into the house. You know what they say—Mary son's my son till he takes him a wife."

Mary Faith did not wait to hear any more. She turned and went quietly out of the room, closing the door of it behind her.

Klm's bedroom was at the end of the hall. She carried the suitcases into it and dropped down into a chair that stood beside the big black walnut bed.

It was a cold and comfortless sort of room. Between the windows stood a marble-topped dresser with a cloudy mirror hanging above it. The floor was painted chocolate-brown and there was a rug in front of the dresser and another one beside the bed.

The door of the clothes closet stood open and within were Klm's suits, hanging in a neat row. His hat stood on the floor beneath them.

Mary Faith walked across the room and looked at them....Ten pairs of shoes, not counting a pair of golf shoes and some straw bath slippers!

A curtain rod was tacked on the inside of the closet door and his neckties dangled from it. Neckties of every color and pattern. Polka-dotted ties, striped ties, black ties to be worn with his dinner jacket, wash-silk ties for summer wear. So many of them that Mary Faith couldn't begin to count them.

"He must have a hundred, though easily," she was thinking when he came into the room.

"Aren't you the Beau Brummel," she began and stopped. His face was like a storm cloud and he had on his hat and overcoat.

"Come on—let's get out of here," he said gruffly. "We'll drive around and see if the Maddoxes are at home. I could stand a little cheerful conversation for a change, couldn't you?"

Mary Faith glanced down at the suitcases piled in the middle of the floor.

"Don't you think we ought to stay here and get settled tonight? You'll have to get up so early tomorrow morning and you look awfully tired, Klm. That long drive up from Carrettsville—"

"For the love of Mike, don't stand there arguing!" he interrupted her. "If you want to stay her, stay! But I'm going."

He turned and went, and Mary Faith followed him, getting into her coat as she flew after him. In silence they got into the car and in silence they drove down Wilton street.

"The Maddoxes lived on the top floor of a tall apartment house that overlooked the east side of Halfmoon Park.

CLOSING SPRINT WINS FIRST HEAT FOR WOOD

British Boat Takes Water, Don Does Not Know Cause: Spark Plugs Fouled

British Challenger Led For 28 Miles in Cup Race Defeated in Last Lap

Both Boats Develop Engine Trouble During Race

SLOW SPEED

Average Time Much Less Than That of Last Year

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—In one of the most thrilling demonstrations of speed and powerboat pilotage Gar Wood, United States defender, after trailing at the start, out ran His Miss America X today to win the first heat of the Harmsworth Trophy race from Kaye Don, British challenger.

So slow was Wood's craft in the first four laps of the 10-mile course, that it seemed he appeared to have encountered motor trouble. Seemingly, however, he was only conserving his boat for he opened up at the end of the fourth lap around the course and crossed the line to gain the lead by only a few boat lengths behind Don's white-hulled Miss Madison.

At the end of the race, Wood said: "I ran the race exactly as planned. I am very happy and I hope to win again Monday."

Don went in for a debrief and made no immediate statement.

Don in Pocket Lap

Despite Wood's victory, which at the finish showed a margin of nearly two miles, Miss England III, turned up the fastest lap, 87.587 miles an hour, on his second time around.

The average speed for the 35-mile heat was Miss America X, 78.014; Miss England III, 71.858. This was considerably slower than last year's heat when Garfield Kaye Don set to Miss England II at 92.213 miles an hour.

Rain that began early in the morning continued intermittently causing the long course to be run in the regatta committee to get the two hydroplanes away at 2:47 p.m., after a 30 minute postponement. At that time visibility had improved to a point where Lake St. Clair and ricked up white caps that caused the two boats to ride considerable rough on the rain, coming again in the fourth lap, scheduled originally as the last of the pilots' troubles. Nevertheless, both boats performed splendidly.

Took No Chances

Taking no chances on another powerboat spill, Don kept Miss Wood lag back at the start. About a minute before the starting gun, he began to come forward and down to the starting line only a few seconds before it fired. He was 15 seconds behind and Wood 20.

The English boat shot into an immediate lead at the end of the first lap it was half a mile ahead. Finishing the second and third laps it increased that lead somewhat to a mile and a half. Wood's craft, however, had begun to pick up speed and on the fourth lap, however, Wood had cut the lead to nearly two miles in front of the British challenger.

The race failed to discourage many thousands of spectators. They lined the shore of the mainland, some with umbrellas and others wearing rubber ponchos and pants. Opposite the course several hundred craft, ranging from canoes to the ferry boat Columbia, additional thousands to watch the contest.

The second heat will be run over the same course Monday morning and a third, if necessary, on Tuesday.

Harmsworth Course, Detroit, Sept. 3.—Gar Wood, after trailing at the start, passed Miss England III, to win a breath-taking speed to win the first heat of the Harmsworth Trophy race on Lake St. Clair today.

Kaye Don, British challenger, driving his Miss England III, over the course at a marvellous clip, took the lead at the start of the race and held it for nearly 28 miles.

But Wood was not to be denied, and he opened up his Great 12 engine power to overtake the Briton and win the race.

Wood's astounding finish stunned the crowd of more than 100,000 persons who lined the shores and crowded lake boats to see the 35 nautical mile race which was won which ceased just before the race had been begun, and at the close of the fourth lap.

Flames for Three Laps

Don, after roaring away to the

Salient Facts of Cup Race

The contestants:—Miss England III., holder of world's one mile record, 119.61 miles an hour; Kaye Don, pilot; Rod Garner, mechanic; Miss America X, defender, piloted by Gar Wood; Orlin Johnson, mechanic.

The course in Lower Lake St. Clair, off Grosse Point, distance 35 nautical miles with laps. Shape of each nautical miles; two three-mile straightaways and two 1½-mile turns.

The heats: 35 nautical miles each; two best of three to determine winner.

The trophy: Harmsworth Plaque, first presented in 1903 by Alfred Harmsworth, later Lord Northcliffe, symbolizing world speed boat competitive championship, held since 1920 by Gar Wood.

long lead, gained consistently for three laps. Wood picked up speed as the distance on the fourth lap, and on its final round turned the big 40 cylinder speed plant of 6,400 horsepower to completely overwhelm the challenger.

Wood's speed for the 35 nautical miles of the heat was 87.587 miles per hour, while Don's was 71.858.

Choppy water apparently slowed both boats, as neither pilot was able to get full power on the first three mile straightaway because of a heavy chop about of their boats.

MISS ENGLAND RIDING LOW AFTER HEAT

Took Considerable Water But Cause Not Determined

NOT A LEAK

Believes Boat Will be Ready For Second Heat Monday

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 3.—Miss England III, Kaye Don's entry in the Harmsworth Trophy Race, arrived at its boat well at the end of today's first heat with its stern riding low in the water. Don said that the craft had taken considerable water during the heat, but he did not know the cause.

As the Miss England neared the boat house at the end of the race, a mechanic standing on the pow called to the operator of the speedboat to change up rush her into the well as soon as possible. Don called for gas to be put in the craft.

Asked why the boat appeared so low, Don replied:

"We began taking water. I don't know how. I don't think we sprung a leak and I don't think we shipped all the water we took on board. Now I am going to find out."

That is what we will have to find out today.

Soon after Don landed Commodore Harry Greening of the Detroit Yacht Club, who represents England on the Harmsworth Trophy committee, and Captain Berthiel, of the American Power Boat Association, to talk with the British Pilot.

In response to a question as to whether he would be able to race Monday, Don replied: "I think I will be. I will be out Monday all right. But, of course, I can't tell until we find out what's wrong. How can I answer such a question when I have been in only five minutes?"

Could See Clearly

The English pilot added that he did not believe he had struck anything in the course, and that, although the lake was rough, it was smoother than water in which the boat ad been run before.

"I could see clearly," he continued, "I could see clearly and it was a pleasant afternoon."

He confess that I do not know, he said when asked if the boat was leaking. "At the end of the third lap I lost a lot of revolutions and I lost a lot of speed. Why I can't tell you. We picked up speed in the last lap, the end of the day. Something just went wrong, that's all."

Don said that he believed Miss England's spark plugs had been fouled.

Soon after the Miss England was towed into her boat house and both the craft and it was hoisted from the water and an inspection of its hull began.

No Word From Local Hydro Board on Advance In Cost Per Horsepower

"The local commission has not had a meeting yet", stated Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Hydro Electric System, on Saturday, when a reporter asked if the local body had received notice of any change in the rate of power to municipalities owing to the adverse rates of exchange affecting interest and principal due on Hydro debentures in New York. Brockville and Toronto have received notices of increase in rate per horse power. Brockville is asked for $2.51 per H. P. more.

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 2. — Although the cost of power to consumers in Brockville is to be increased by $2.51 per horse power this year by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, the Public Utilities Commission, it is announced, will not only absorb this extra charge without raising rates" but may authorize a reduction in power rates, while commercial and domestic rates will remain stationary.

The increase is said to be due to adverse exchange rates on Canadian funds in New York in which interest and principal on Hydro debentures are payable.

TEN DAYS FOR GAS THEFTS

Two Local Men Found Guilty of Attempting To Steal

On a charge of attempting to steal gasoline from the tanks of a local wholesale gasoline company, Dorland Hughes and William Mondeville, both of this city, appeared before Magistrate Wills in the police courts Saturday morning. Both boys were found guilty of attempting to steal the gasoline. It was pointed out by the local manager of the company, that the boys had five 5-gallon cans when apprehended earlier in the night. It also pointed out to the court that the boys had been seen getting out of disappear from the tanks during the past three weeks.

He also told the court that the gasoline had been taken at night and the thieves had unscrewed the water drain tap and forced a siphon hose through this to the tank getting out the gasoline.

His Worship took a very sympathetic side in the matter pointing out to the boys that although they had not been convicted of actually stealing, their intentions were doing those things. His Worship was rather inclined to give the boys a month "on the hill", but after their counsel, Mr. Arnott, explained that Mondeville was a married man and out of work, and also that Hughes had just been recently released from the local hospital he took a kinder leniency, and fined them by giving the boys but ten days in the county jail.

Following the court proceedings Crown Attorney D. Boulton, announced in the court room that charges had been preferred, too much stealing of gasoline from the wholesale companies' tanks and he will intended to make this case an example of the next person or persons to come before the court charged with stealing gasoline in Belleville.

FAIR HANGS UP RECORDS OF ALL KINDS

Track! Weather! Crowd! Provide Grounds For Enthusiasm

PROFITABLE YEAR

Attendance Steady For Four Days of Exhibition

Belleville Fair is over. Four days of the most successful fair this city has had were concluded late Friday evening with the last race of the vaudeville show on the stage in front of the well-filled grandstand. But while the roar and blare of the Midway continued for hours after the last event had left the grandstand, and, the last exhibitor had packed his goods, the Belleville Fair 9 or most of them was officially by 9:30.

"It was the best fair we have had in years", members of the Fair Board said, simply.

Track records were broken. Gate and attendance records for years were shattered. Entries in every line of exhibit, from cattle to needle work, were never as large. Satisfaction on the part of almost one was never so heartily and cordially displayed. And the weather held through the whole four days was perfect.

While it is difficult to arrive at any actual estimate of the number who entered the grounds during the four days of the fair, conservative estimates of officials place the number during the four days as being in the neighborhood of twenty-five thousand people. Many of the population of Belleville, but not all were paid admissions. Actual paid admissions through the turnstiles at the gate were placed at 18,058. Of the whole four days the peak of attendance was Thursday, when Patrick Burns' Cowboys turned out with the bucking broncos and wild cattle to give the visitors an exhibition of range life.

Louis S. St. Laurent, of Quebec, retiring president, described the meeting as one of the most successful in the history of the Association.

MOLLISON ON HIS WAY BACK

No Shadow to be Cast on History of Ocean Exploits

Quebec, Sept. 3 (CP) — Captain James A. Mollison, who contributed another daring feat to the annals of aviation, left here today on the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Britain.

The first to accomplish a westward crossing of the Atlantic solo, the Irish Free State flyer had at first decided to make the return trip by air. A special landing strip was planned, but today, however, taken too great a toll of his nervous resources and on the advice of his wife, he altered his plans.

Mollison concluded that no failure of "human machinery" should be allowed to cast a shadow on the history of the trans-Atlantic flying exploits.

With him in the Empress was the tiny Moth plane. Yesterday Mollison supervised the crating of the machine which paid tribute to its faithful performance.

Plates of Eclipse Will Be Shipped to Greenwich By Hamilton Expedition

Coronal Phenomena of Unusual Character Recorded

NO CLAIM MADE

Sixty Days' Delay While Plates Are Being Analyzed

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 3 (CP) — Hamilton, Ontario, the Royal Canadian Astronomical Society today prepared to send to Greenwich, England, the photographic plates its party took of the total eclipse of the sun last Wednesday morning.

The plates will be subjected to analysis at the Greenwich Observatory and until then nothing definite can be learned of the observation they are thought to record.

The expedition took twelve exposures of totality in all, J. A. Pash, former president of the Hamilton centre stated today. One set was taken through a blue filter.

The photographs taken through the blue filter shows coronal phenomena that so far as we know have never been seen here before on a photographic plate," he said. "They are not discoveries as yet present, but will submit our plates to Greenwich Observatory for examination and there will probably be a delay of sixty days before we can make a positive announcement."

Eclipse History

"Study of the eclipse phenomena is not new to my father," Mr. Marsh continued, referring to Rev. Dr. D. B. Marsh, B.A., F.R.A.S., head of the expedition. He went to Labrador in 1905 to observe the eclipse and has continued his studies ever since. He flew Haven in 1925 he got a hint of what we believe we have now and since that time he has worked incessantly on light filters with this object in view."

Questioned as to what the supposed new discovery might be Mr. Marsh was reluctant to make any definite statement at the present time.

"Dirigibles are now using helium which will make it safe for a total eclipse of the sun," he said. "Specialists will have to be employed who enabled the chemists to find the element in the laboratory."

Poet's Corner

THE LITTLE HOUSE

O little house of childhood days,
How oft I hear thee call
From out your sphere of mysterious dreams,
From the shadows on your walls.

I feel as tho' some alien foot
Was treading on the floor
Of them who once kept warm the hearth
They, who were so truly brave.

I know within your shadowed depths
Each closet, hall or stair,
The spirits of my loved one's walk
Tho' none but I can hear.

Your windows now put forth no light
To beckon me within;
I feel your soul looks forth at night
To mourn them in the wind.

Oh, little house upon the hill
With the maple at its door
You've bound my heart within your own,
Till we are both no more.

STARS RETURN TO BROADWAY

Old Favorites Welcomed Back For Start of New Season

New York—(CP)—Maud Adams, Eva le Gallienne, Ethel Barrymore, George M. Cohan and a host of other old friends of Broadway are being welcomed back for the start of the new playing season.

Missing for a year or more from Manhattan playhouses, an impressive array of favorites are either in rehearsal or lining up new vehicles for what they hope will be new triumphs on the country's leading stages.

Included among them are Jack Buchanan and Jessie Matthews, English stars who have not been seen on this side since "Wake up and Dream" some seasons ago. Buchanan will be in a musical comedy with Miss Matthews and will be a comedienne in "The Gay Divorcee."

Another returning Londoner is Ivor Novello, who will have the leading role in one of his own dramas, "I Lived With You." He played on Broadway last with Billie Burke (widow of Florenz Zeigfeld) in "The Truth Game" and with Benita Hume in "Symphony in Two Flats," both written by himself.

Maude Adams, who spurned Broadway last season for a road tour, is coming back to the original scene of her many triumphs, but it is altogether likely she will choose one of Barrie's plays, "Twelfth Night" in association with Rizie Ferguson.

Eva le Gallienne has revived her Civic Repertory Group, after a year of study in Europe and is first to play opposite Joseph Schildkraut in Franz Molnar's "Liliom."

George M. Cohan returns in the manner of the prodigal son after some irksome experiences with the movies and failures in Hollywood. "Bad as Broadway is, it is still far ahead of the movies," he says. He will produce two more of his comedies in the west 40's.

Ethel Barrymore has been renouncing Broadway in favor of the road, but is coming back. Under the aegis of her old manager, Arthur Hopkins, she will play in "Encore."

The young season did not get off to a flying start during this month. "Scarpboat," first musical show, turned out to be an array of vaudeville acts and the final play "Pals Pyramus," has been attacked as a weak, haphazard comedy. It was written by Carl Menkel, Brooklyn dentist.

BOOKIES PREFER TAXES TO FINES

Leading Member of Profession is Arraigned in Court Almost Daily

Montreal—(CP)—Montreal "bookies" are getting together. They have a business proposition to put before the city authorities. So far this year they (with their clients) have paid almost $125,000 in fines, special sessions of court for their contributions to civic coffers when they appear in the police court a week and all the heavy expense of bailing out their clients.

If the law permits they would sooner pay the city a heavy price for a license and dispense with the necessity of going to Recorder's Court in business hours. They think that they could either force them to close up entirely or provide them with a license. Continuous raiding only results in ruining the business, they say.

It is learned that a well-known bookmaker, who is arraigned in court almost daily, has left the city. He is amalgamating in an attempt to have city authorities amend the existing by-law and ask each establishment to pay a heavy license. They would be willing to pay as high as $3,000 or $4,000 annually, it is said.

"The city gets a large revenue from us and they would naturally expect a high license fee," one of said this bookmaker.

Police have declared this year of gambling and betting-house raids:

January, 790 arrests in 87 houses; February, 353 in 37 houses; March 791 in 81 houses; April, 1,013 in 83 houses; May, 1,367 in 72 houses; June, 1,130 in 70 houses; July, 1,288 in 73 houses; total for the first seven months: 6,632 arrests in 418 houses.

Rev. George Kersey of the Mitchell United Church conducted the service during which Clem Maynard of Stratford sang "God Kindly Light". The entire gathering joined in the solemn singing of three hymns "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" "Nearer God's Love that will not let me go," and "Unanswered Yet". The pallbearers were Allan Kew, of Granton; Frank Ingram, jr., Lorne McDonald, Clem Ingram of Stratford, and Reginald Burgess of St. Marys, all nephews of the deceased man and Ernest Branston of Toronto. Following the service the remains were taken to the Dorchester cemetery for interment. TABERNACLE FOR THE SUN

The church is not afraid of the conclusions of science, sees no struggle between science and religion as many suppose. No better proof of this is to be found than the fact that in astronomy there is no greater figure than the Abbe Lemaitre of Louvain, Belgium, who came to Quebec to study the sun's eclipse. He told a correspondent that he sees no conflict between the two, the laws of science are one thing and the laws of the spirit are in another sphere, that there are laws of the heart and soul as well as laws of nature. Again it has fallen through the cloudy condition which closed the view to most of the scientific expeditions, to the lot of a seventy-four year old minister missionary, Rev. Dr. D. R. Marsh of Hamilton, to make the most important record of the eclipse at Acton Vale, Quebec.

These two men have found it worth while to devote some of their time to the study of the stars, surely a means of widening their outlook upon the majesty of life and the working of the spirit behind nature. Theirs is a great task in the spiritual realm but it does not preclude interest in the world and its knowledge.

Those who see science as a monster in the way of true living and faith have but to look at Abbe Lemaitre and Rev. Dr. Marsh, who have made such notable contributions to the world of knowledge, while retaining their place in the church.

Science does not make men unspiritual or hard. A fine despatch paints a picture of the grey-haired astronomer in his seventies, Dr. Marsh, resting in a little frame house at Norwich, Ontario, as he develops his plates which may reveal new elements in the sun. Tanned by years of service for God and Christ in the Bermudas and South America, the 74 year old minister takes but four hours' sleep while he is developing his plates.

These Thursday night in the little dark room behind the Presbyterian manse, he labored with the plates until he was required to rest from sheer exhaustion. He arrived but Thursday night and forgot all about his four-hundred mile motor ride from Acton Vale. His white-haired wife, slight, frail and good, natured as himself acted as mathematician for the party, working out everything to the fraction of a second. He believes that the blue filter used may show something not yet known. It may be reflection or new elements.

Psychology tells us that the scientific and the spiritual phases of the life of these men are complementary, the one of the other. In their lives is no cleavage between the priest and minister and the scientist.

Rev. Dr. Marsh is well known in Belleville where he has preached at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and where he delivered an address on astronomy some years ago.

BUILDING OPPORTUNITIES

Construction of dwellings is urged at the present time as one of the opportunities which the law of averages brings. The chance is to work done cheap may not come again for a long time. Few hope it will come again.

Cheap materials and other reduced costs entering into construction offer an inducement which ought to tempt anyone who has any intentions in the near future. Low prices are predicted as well as immediate dividends in the form of rents, or domicile value.

MOLLISON'S DECISION

Friends, old and new of Captain Mollison, first solo champion of the western Atlantic flight, are glad to know that he will not give up life in attempting the return trip as first contemplated. He has won laurels which will put him in the foremost ranks of pioneering aviators and the fact that he has not thought wise to make the east flight does not take away any of the friendships he has made. He might make the return trip were he to try and then again he might not achieve it. Planes are not yet so perfect that they eliminate all the hazards. Even these will remain for some time. In the course of years some one will double the ocean, when flying is safe. Even then the honor of success will be great but it will be lessened as more and more make the journey.

On the advice of his doctor and on the urgent appeal of his wife the flier has decided to boat it home — two good reasons for the decision.

COL. MacNIDER

Col. Hanford MacNider, United States minister to Canada, has resigned his post after filling the office with dignity and ability. One of his most important tasks was to see undertaken the St. Lawrence development scheme.

Belleville has reason to remember Mr. MacNider whose forbears lived in this city and district and who visited here during the past winter.

He has done what he could to increase the spirit of good feeling between Canada and the United States.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

Supervised by The Lazy Editor

YOU

By Aline Michaelis

So many plans, so many dreams,
So much of toil always;
Care's sombre shadows, love's bright gleams
To fill the flying days.

So many scenes, all fresh and strange,
Wherein your steps must go;
Through maze of circumstance and change
A hundred selves you show.

New selves to match each varied mood,
Each phase that living brings,
The bitter, sad, the mean, the good,
The self that sighs or sings.

But through Earth's changeful ways that wind,
Still know this much is true:
In all the selves you ever find,
The best of each is you!

So many selves to toil and play
Through life, to dream and do;
But of them all, the proud, the gay,
The best alone is you!

THE POET TENNYSON, as early as 1870 looked into the future "as far as the eye could see" and saw the heavens filled with aerial fleets, and his poetic vision as related in "Locksley Hall" was recalled by many poetry lovers in watching the thrilling evolutions of the three young airmen officers from the training camp on Trent Road known as Camp Borden. Not so many years ago an aeroplane demonstration as the principal attraction of a fall fair would be a daring adventure in high finance, and surely mean a doubling, at least, in attendance figures. Aviation has made giant strides since that day and the evolutions of, the "three young flyers at Belleville Fair demonstrated just how far the advance has gone. Flying in various formations, making the plane stand on its head on the edge of a cloud or reversing quickly and standing on its tail supported by faith, hope and a modicum of charity, turning completely over at various angles, swooping down out of the skies seemingly to kiss the earth, then as swiftly swooping back — while the thousands of spectators accustomed as they were to aerial demonstrations, held their breaths. It was a great demonstration of the possibilities of the craft in peace and in war, rendered all the more interesting from the fact that the Flight Commander was a Belleville boy, Flight Lieutenant Lawrence Wray, son of Mr. Robert J. Wray, of this city.

WHEN IT'S SPRINGTIME in the Rockies I'll be coming back to you, runs a song which also mentions "Bonnie eyes of blue," "little sweetheart of the mountains," and sichlike — and that must have been the song in the heart of the young Earl of Egmont who-this spring left his ancestral estate, Enfield Chase, back to Canada and married his Calgary sweetheart, whose love he carried across the sea and kept undimmed in the years of the great fighting in which he was admitted overseas as the son of his father, The Earl of Egmont. What a romance. The father, fighting for a living as a ranchman on limited capital, in Western Canada, then called overseas to an Earldom, life in a lonely castle, with a bachelor father, and then in consequence, the father's death in an automobile accident, carrying on the succession as the young Earl of Egmont, lord of the manor, and all the fair domaine — then the call not to be resisted from his sweetheart of the mountains, so that springtime in the Rockies was a way found the young Earl of Egmont on his way back to Canada and his sweetheart. The wedding was informal and had not been announced in advance.

FUNCTIONING OF KIDNEYS IS ESSENTIAL

Neglect is Frequent Because of Risk of Deterioration

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

As you probably know two kidneys are the great eliminators of the poisons normally produced within the body and which must be got rid of. They have a lot of important work to do which means, of course, that they can and do deteriorate and that they are subject to various sorts of disorders, both acute and chronic.

We tend to neglect our kidneys, however, and do not regularly have the urine examined chemically and microscopically as we should because simple and inexpensive though such a procedure be. And so it often happens that an individual goes for the first time to the doctor with swollen ankles, for instance, and is astonished to learn that his kidneys are not normal and have been functioning badly for years.

Kidney disease of whatever kind is some sort of inflammation in one or both kidneys, and this inflammation may be mild or severe in its early stages but eventually a severe symptoms or it may not.

People usually assume that pain in the small of the back means kidney trouble, but this is not necessarily true. Back pains may arise from a variety of causes, and many of these have nothing whatever to do with kidney function. Even the presence of albumin in the urine is not a sure sign of real or serious kidney disease, although it often is. There are types of nervous disorder in which albuminuria may appear for a time only. Presence of albumen is a sign, however, which should always be closely watched and checked up on by means of urinalysis at regular intervals.

Excess water in the system is one of the chief things the kidneys eliminate, and with this goes considerable proportion of salts, likewise a product known as "urea" as well as other things normally produced, substance and carbon dioxide. To be able to do this well the kidney structure is highly complicated. Indeed, the kidneys are one of the most marvelous of nature's many marvelous mechanisms.

In some cases of kidney disorder the volume eliminated is greatly reduced while in others it is increased. Puffiness under the eyes is due to a sure sign of trouble, for fatigue can produce this and usually does. Backache, or pain in the middle of the back may be a symptom, or poor digestion, shortness of breath or swelling of the ankles.

The point is that no person should ever make a diagnosis of his own possible kidney trouble. Regular examinations should be made, and if this is not done at his doctor's office, the patient should be consulted at once if the report is not normal.

Usually the diet must be modified and restricted in kidney disease. Often the rate of meals and salts must be cut down or given up entirely for months. In many cases one finds the patients do not stick to the diet sufficiently, but they are not fooling their doctors. They are only injuring themselves.

Kidney disorders have a tendency to produce disorders elsewhere in the body. Hardening of the arteries is one of these. High blood pressure usually is the accompaniment, also some degree of heart impairment.

We cannot be careless about our kidneys without courting serious trouble of one kind or another. Urinalysis once a year should be the minimum check-up. Let us consider themselves perfectly healthy in every way.

Curtain Falls on Best Fair in History of Organization and Directors are Most Pleased

Attendance Was Good For Full Four Days

REVIEW IN FULL

Residents Came Early And Stayed Late on Last Day

In a blaze of glory the curtain was rung down on the 1932 edition of the Belleville Fair on Friday evening.

All departments of Belleville's biggest and better fair a much better fair than ever anticipated by either the directors or the exhibitors, were open for the entire four days of the exhibition.

The opening attraction before the grandstand, supplied by the Clifford Amusement Company, Buffalo N.Y. was by far the best seen locally in many years. Mr. Clifford's troupe of artists of the company, brought his entire staff of performers and workmen and they ran off all programmes in a first class manner, which fully appreciated by the hundreds of patrons present in the afternoon performance during the four days and nights of the fair.

The Flying Wards, of jugglers and trapeze performers were perhaps the best seen locally in many years. The dancing girls presented by the Clifford Amusement Company were also of a high class in the entertainment line. Mr. Clifford himself, coupled with that funny man, Jack Mahoney, gave a performance that was good throughout the entire week.

Friday night's programme opened with a drill by six girls. This was followed by a dancing feature which was heartily applauded by all. Then Clifford and Jack Mahoney went over in a big way with their act, which followed. The act was of the "Story Book" variety. Jack Mahoney was always getting things well mixed up, when Clifford was trying to tell the story. The orchestra on the stage assisted the pianist in playing several high class numbers, which also went over big. Then Radio Rambler's Orchestra played all the accompaniments for the various acts as well.

The six girls then returned in a dancing act, which was followed by a comedy bit by Jack Mahoney. Then Wilson, Keppel and Betty, a clever trio of juggling act was the best act of the entire show, while the younger two Tierneys received a big hand for the high trapeze stunts, while Jack and Jess, his wife, Purcell Sisters' jog-show was also very well received, while the comedy bit by Jack and Jess, his wife, Purcell brought many a laugh.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfist and the doorbell reng & mother's trademark, and I ran and got the mail, being as I was the only one there was at them, saying, I'd be willing to bet Mrs. Goldberg's name is Ann.

Meaning on account of him bringing her a letter from Ann.

It's pritty good of a joke, and pop started to open the letter, being as it was from the Treasury Department asking for more taxes, I supposed, but instead the payments are never satisfied, he said. And he started to read it, saying, I was all wrong, the postman's name is Amos Clark and Amos is Cressus Morgan Rockefeller, just reason to this. And he went on reading, being Dear Sir: Pursuant to taxes payed at the rate of $12.50 per month, leaving you $13.50 for which we incloce check.

Do you mean the government is actually giving me money, I said. Well, it was actually my money but I feel as though they were giving it to me. Well, this is starting the day rite.

That's prefectly marvelous, mother said, I'll have some more tea. And pop finished reading and the government sent all people's money back to them. Willyum, and I think you owe me a penny for box tops, that what they cost, $13.99. I'm going to send one home, and every time you purchase your next cake look at that mook ash reserver you'll recognize the resemblance, he said.

But what the doces is a mook ash reserver? pop said, and ma said, Why, that's the cleverest thing I ever saw, it looks just like one of these tall ash reservers that all the cafes seem to like, but it's not. What it really is, is a mook ash for the home.

The world was made for wimmen, I said.

And he lolled up the morning paper and went down to the office.

Ramona Grattan, Free for All Winner After Five Tough Heats

Margaret Brewer Wins 2.18 Class in Straight Heats

Racing was concluded at Belleville Fair on Friday afternoon, when a Free For All and 2.18 class were carded and the racing was of the same high calibre that has featured all of the racing during the week. The Free For All was won by Ramona Grattan owned by Dr. Whitely of Goderich but the big brown mare was forced to go five heats before she was declared the winner, the chief opposition coming from Willis Grattan, the little Red Horse, teamed by Clifford Chapman, a great favorite in this section and who held jointly the track record with 2nd Star until broken on Thursday by Lou Canot. In the 2.18 class Chapman made every post a winning one with Margaret Brewer, owned by that veteran sportsman Lou G. Bennett of Port Hope, who was forced to watch the race from an easy chair in the centerfield due to injuries received earlier in the week. The Brewer mare paced the fastest mile of the afternoon, also stepping the second heat of her race in 2.09 1-2.

Disqualification in the Free For All were handed out twice during the running of the race by the judges, due to horses going to a break and running under the wire. In the first heat Willis Grattan finished in front but was set back to second position, Chapman tried different tactics in the second heat allowing Ramona Grattan to go out in front and in the stretch drive, "Chappy" outdrove and outlasted Johnny Mullins. Willis Grattan went away on top in the third heat but was driven to a break just at the wire and was set back to third place. Sid Hal and other hors owned by Dr. Whitley getting the verdict. Willis Grattan did not appear keyed for a hard race but will be tough to take in Toronto next week.

Margaret Brewer was much too good for the rest of the field in her class and was given a smart drive by Clifford Chapman. In the first heat she went around the field to win going away and after that the race never was in doubt. This mare right now is plenty keen and will take a lot of beating in any man's horse. There were no accidents to mar the sport.

TABLES TURNED BY VICTORIA

Win Softball Tourney at Fair After Ten Innings

Revenge is sweet and all the more so for the Victoria softball team, who defeated the Redeerville club in the final softball game of the tournament staged on the Belleville Fair, when after three extra played innings, the Victoria club were victorious by the score of 3 to 2.

As Redeerville defeated Victoria recently for the championship of the Ameliasburgh league, the winning of the large trophy at the Belleville fair meant considerable to Victoria especially as they were drawn in the final game of the tournament against Redeerville.

The game was the fastest of the series played in the fair and was keenly fought throughout. All games played in the series were of but seven innings but when A. Dempsey cleared the ball for a home run in the seventh after Redeerville had been given four outs going into that frame, the ball game was once again tied up. The Redeerville team went out in order in the eighth but Dempsey crossed the plate with the deciding counter, in the eighth Victoria scored twice and in their half Redeerville again rose to brighten to even the count. There was no score in the ninth but in the tenth Victoria shoved three runs across the plate, while the trailing Redeerville team could only manage to count but one run. A. Dempsey, Gillie and Thompson all hit for the circuit.

J. Parker was on the hilltop for the losers while H. Wannamaker hurled for the winning Victoria team. Wannamaker in Victoria pitched beauty ball throughout the entire game and well deserved the win.

The line-ups:

Victoria—Barber, D. Cretney, H. Wannamaker, Thompson, Bovay, R. Cretney, Wallbridge, Montgomery and Foster.

Redeerville—J. Parley, Wees, Wallace, A. Dempsey, R. Dempsey, Mussell, Thompson and H. Parley.

SPORTS

Jimmy Thompson

ONE OF THE BEST

Johnny Walker, world famous swimming coach was a very disappointed man when George Young had to be taken from the water in the world championship marathon swim at Toronto. Johnny has put over many famous winners including Margaret Ravior for successive years in the women's swim and George Young last year in the men's swim. This year George just couldn't make the grade and Johnny said, "We have no alibis the boy was all in when he went under." If George had won the victory was to bring Johnny Walker a trip around the world. It was not be. It was another black day and another man's victory. I doubt whether anything could have defeated George Blagden in that race. He was in there to win and win he did.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

The bigger and better and it was bigger and better, Belleville Fair of 1932 has ended. As we must take the fair from a sporting angle there was one great feature for us to relate. The breaking of the track record by Lou Canot. Any horse that steps a mile in 2.07¾ over any track is deserving of comment. On Friday when the three for-all was run off there was plenty of excitement for the fans. Ramona Grattan won the race but not before Sid Hal and Willis Grattan had each taken a heat. These latter two horses collectively held the previous track record of 2.08½. All three horses to win a heat in the three-for-all was interesting to break the track record as the previous day by Canot.

The softball tournament at the fair was a decided success although it presented a rather queer angle when all the games were played off. Victoria won the tournament when they defeated their ancient rivals, Redeerville, 3 to 2, in the sweeter for Victoria as Redeerville had defeated them for the championship of the Ameliasburgh Township League by defeating them two games out of three.

There has been considerable controversy about town in regard to the way in which Thursday night's wrestling event ended in the fair. The sporting public feel that they should be given a return bout for Rod LaRocque and the Masked Marvel in a finish to finish match. They have met here twice now and the Frenchman has been the recipient of decisions, one decided decisions on the part of the officials each occasion.

For the information of those interested in girls' softball, we would like to pass on to Dame Fame the fact that the Kingston Frontenacs lost their series to the Oshawa girls in two straight games. Maybe it is just as well that the Kingston Frontenac girls did not win from the hard hitting Frontenacs in their series. For the benefit of Rene Dracup, who had the misfortune to break her finger in a league game at the Armouries last week, there is a box for softball game staged on the ice on Monday morning.

Once again "the old fox" Car Wood rose to heights when he took the first heat of the Harmsworth Trophy race held on Lake St. Clair this morning. His British rival, Kaye Don led the parade for 28 miles but the grey haired American stepped on the gas at the last minute to cross the line first. The boats only averaged but 76 miles an hour while in tests they had been clocked at well over the 100 mile mark. Tomorrow is another day.

According to the latest press dispatches the breach between the National and American Hockey Leagues has not been closed. It is hoped that three two-game series can get their shoulders behind the wheel with the ultimate results that each will be the winner.

'HEROINE OF REEF', PASSES

Gallant Deed of Three Years Ago is Recalled

Rotherby, Sweden—(CP)—Elly Pihlava, called "the heroine of the reef," is dead of consumption here. She was only 25 years old and her death revives the memory of a deed of unique bravery three years ago, when she saved several lives.

The Swedish steamer "Nils" went down during a severe storm off the town of Vaxtervik on the East coast of Sweden in the winter of 1929. One man was drowned but the remaining seven managed to save themselves on a small reef, where they were stranded 36 hours without shelter in the icy gale before help came. The men were exhausted and suffering from cold, the 22 year old stewardess, Elly Pihlava, native of Finland, forgot her own troubles to save her comrades. She forced them to walk and run to keep from freezing. She sang and joked and told funny stories to keep their spirits up and soon as a man wanted to "quit" she made him get up and move again. "If Elly Pihlava had not been with us we would all have been doomed to die," the captain related afterwards.

Elly herself wore thin clothes, cotton stockings and low shoes and she danced a screen into an armour, but she never uttered a word of complaint. In spite of her physique she caught a cold on the reef, and contracted a pulmonary disease which ended her life after a year of suffering in the hospital. She wasn't afraid to face death again but she worried and grieved at the thought that her little boy Vilhelm, who is now left alone at the age of six.

A leading Stockholm daily, after publishing the tale of her heroic and selfless deed, made an appeal to the public and started a collection for the benefit of Elly Pihlava's boy, who will always feel proud of being the son of the "heroine of the reef."

Fall Fashion Trends

Wool Fabrics —Fashion's Pets For Fall Wear

The fashion wise this fall will flock to the shops in search of wool dresses, for no wardrobe can be a complete success unless it boasts at least one dress of the new sheer wool fabrics. Pictured at the right is a smart model in wool crepe in wine shade, so favoured for this year's wear. The vestee is white satin, which will be found combined with practically every colour for fall wear. The wine felt hat included in the costume is a perky little model that shows the popular dipped effect. Its chic bow is a big fashion point on fall hats. Oxfords in two shades of brown and in maroon belt are interesting touches in this costume.

The Evening Mode Promises Elegance

Beautiful effects in evening wear will be effected this winter through the use of cunning little jackets of a contrasting shade to the frock with which they are worn. Over a simple dress of palest pink chiffon is worn a cape jacket of wine red in the illustration at the left. The wrap crosses in a long scarf at the back while deep cuffs of silver fox are most effective. The simply cut pumps are of kid dyed wine shade to match the cape. The beaded bag heralds the return of this popular accessory for evening wear.

LIBRARY CORNER

Of great interest and value to the many stamp collectors of Belleville will be "Glimpses and Stamps" by Kent B. Stiles. The author is peculiarly fitted for there is romance in the world of stamps, for they picture clearly geography's ever changing outline and form an illustrated story of the political developments which have yevised the map of the world. Many cote of stamps are included in the volume, and the final two-thirds of it is given to a comprehensive alphabetical list of the thousand names of countries, cities and governments that have issued stamps, explaining the political and geographical position of each.

Those who have read "The Man Nobody Knows" will be glad to note that the library now has another of Bruce Barton's popular religious books "The Book the World" deals with St. Paul. The book is in four parts: A failure at forty, Taking it on the chin, The most important battle in our lives, The journey into Spain. These headings reveal an unconventional treatment of the topic and an escape from the beaten track of biography. Although he admits that he "did not like Paul", Mr. Barton has presented a vital and charming interpretation of this personality. St. Paul as "an actual human being, rather than as a super-human prodigy."

The student will enjoy Frederick Orvern's new volume "French novels from the Revolution to Proust." After considerable delving into old manuscripts and journals, Mr. Green has been able to present from a new angle, contemporary views of the development if Romanticism and Realism and their representatives. Criticism there is too, but it is chiefly the casual comment of a mind at play, and the subject is often content to be amusing. The volume is in effect, a student's informal notebook leading to orderly development and in entertaining style, the literary theories and ideas of the authors of the period.

Because of the political unrest in Germany at the present moment, Mrs. Sinclair Lewis' book "I saw Hitler" will be of particular interest. "When I finally walked into Adolph Hitler's salon in the Osteria Hotel, I was convinced that I was meeting the future dictator of Germany. In something less than fifty seconds I was quite sure that I was not. It took just about that time to measure the startling insignificance of this man who has set the world ago." Such was Mrs. Lewis' first impression of the leader of the Nazis. Then a scathing attack on Hitler, written in typical journalistic diction and containing an appendix of over forty photographs of Hitler, his satellites ad his opponents.

NEW STORE OPENED IN FOOTBRIDGE GANGWAY

Another new business enterprise opened for public approval this morning, when two young men of this city opened up store in the footbridge gangway of a tobacco, news stand and novelties. The proprietors are James Alexander and Bert Adams. The former was for some years a member of the local Y.M.C.A. staff, while Bert Adams has for some years conducted a footwear repairing business in the footbridge gangway. Both young men are well and favorably known and the business begins with every augury of success.

EXCHANGING PHOTOGRAPHS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Is it proper for a girl to give a young man, whom she has been going about with for over a year, her photograph? They are good friends but may not be engaged for some time, if at all, due to many difficulties.

2.—When giving a photograph as a gift, should it be framed or just given in a folder? The picture happens to be quite expensive without a frame.

3.—If a young man and young woman break off after being engaged, or even just good friends, is it proper for both to return the presents they have received from the other, and, if engaged, the engagement ring?

T.

1.—Yes, it is a most natural thing for friends of each good standing to exchange photographs....and it is correct for them to do so. The thing to keep in mind is that, if the photograph is autographed, the autograph-message should be a dignified one.

2.—It is a bit-presumptuous for us to have our photograph framed when we present it to a friend. This seems rather too definitely to suggest that the photograph must be framed in a conspicuous place. It's better not to do this.... better to leave to our friend the privilege as to whether or not the photograph is to be framed.

3.—Yes.

THE GENTLEMAN IS HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When your young man friend comes to your home, who is to suggest what to do and where to go?

M.

If there is to be any suggestion as to going to the theatre or to the movies, or to any other form of entertainment away from your home, this suggestion should come from the young man, since he will then be the host.

INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

An argument occurred down at the office and I would be asked without some proof. So I'm writing to you to give me an answer to settle it to the girls.

1.—When introducing, whose name do you say first, when you are introducing a young man and a young girl?

2.—An older man and a young girl?

3.—A distinguished man and an older man?

P.

1.—Mention first the name of the girl. You introduce the man to her: "Miss Young, may I present Mr. Young man?"

2.—Mention first the name of the girl.

3.—Mention first the name of the older man.

SERVING A VISITOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if it is proper to serve cake and coffee to a boy friend who had come to spend the evening, when my aunt and sister are present? I have gone out with him twice, but have known him about a year. I have been told that it is not proper to serve anything unless there is a girl friend or my sister's, or another girl present.

ANNIVERSARY GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am "keeping company" with a young man whose grandparents will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary soon. I have only met them once, a short time ago, when I was introduced to them on the street. I would like to give them a present, but do not know what would be appropriate. Please help me.

Miss M.

Better take time to send either of these would be to send a few flowers to them as compliment on the occasion of the anniversary. Beautiful yellow roses would be a charming choice, since they are of the golden appropriate to the anniversary.

(Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on good manner submitted by readers.)

Beauty..... BY HELEN JAMIESON

Take our Time When Reducing

In the war against fat cells it is the steady-going boldoaver who wins, the woman who knows what she should eat, doesn't raid the icebox on the sly, plods straight ahead until she has slimmed down to standard weight. And then she doesn't quit. She has worked for health, intends to keep it.

In the past decade there have been offered any number of fad diets. Pineapple and spinach, Grapefruit and practically nothing else, known as the eighteen day diet which, the government says, was launched by a shrewd advertising mind. Meat diets won't do. No woman can afford to sacrifice vitality even for beauty's sake. There are certain elements—minerals, vitamins, proteins—that the body demands. These elements must be entirely desleted if the supplicant for slimness is to retain her health.

Foods, containing fats, starches and sweets are enterprising fat, cell manufacturers. They are foods that plumpitudinous gals love. A heavyweight may claim with justice that she eats little, It's true. But she lives on concentrated foods that are fat producing. It isn't quantity that counts; but the kind of food.

Despite fears of adding to weight the rotund woman should drink one pint of milk a day, eat one egg. They won't put on an ounce of fat and they will supply nutritive substances that are necessary for well being.

The dinner the would-be-thin one is allowed a small serving of lean meat. She can have roast beef, roast lamb a lamb chop, a slice of liver with bacon from which most of the fat has been fried out.

The main part of the diet consists of vegetables that grow above ground, tomatoes, string beans, cauliflower, asparagus, lettuce. At each she should have fruit. If the fruit is cooked no sugar, is added. Twice a day she needs a green salad, to the dressing of which mineral oil is substituted for olive oil. Forbidden fruits are bananas and avocados.

Vegetable soup, skimmed clear of every particle of fat, is permitted. She should drink plenty of water, at least six glasses a day because when reducing takes place, there is an excess of waste products for the eliminating organs to dispose of.

There is no need of violent exercise. With a sudden lessening of calories, the body is in no condition for vigorous muscular effort. A two mile walk a day is all that is required. It won't knock off any fat cells, but it will aerate the lungs, stimulate circulation, help keep her health.

Foods to avoid are potatoes, white bread, butter, cereals, pastries that are rich in fats and sugar.

Stop eating before the appetite is thoroughly satisfied. "That's a good rule for normal-sized women too. It prevents that unpleasant feeling of fullness that follows the meals of greedy feasters who have traveled beyond the hunger milestone.

Limit the hours of sleep to seven. Follow the warm bath with a cold shower. Keep active and cheerful. The result will be a loss of two pounds a week. Won't the bathroom scales be surprised?

The Beauty Box

(By Helen Follett)

Can you, at any time, go flop, close your eyes, relax, snatch a cat nap? If so, the chances are you will escape that tense look that destroys beauty, places seams in the face, puts on evidence of wear and tear. Fatigue is the body's appeal for rest and should not be disregarded. Even if sleep is impossible, there can be relaxation of muscles, a delightful sense of laziness which freshens the complexion, puts starshine in the eyes, makes the step skippy, stimulates the mind. It is the woman who drives herself beyond her strength who starts beauty wailing long before her time.

For housework, walking and sports the heel of the shoe should lift the body one inch and one-fourth. Chiropodists claim that if this heel is worn during the day, a woman can indulge in moderately high heels during evening festivities with no bad effect on posture or figure. The heel is used to add an inch to a small base that doesn't provide a foothold, allowing the ankle to turn and sway, causing tension of the muscles of ankle and leg, throwing the body out of balance.

Peacock blue and blue-green mascaro are used now on eye lashes. Usually they are the same shades are applied to the eyelids. Girls who like to be up to speed ahead of the every-day beauty parade are letting up on the vivid lip sticks, concentrating on red curls which the tops of the heads are charming and exotic, others not so good. But that's the way with beauty fads. Clever women seize upon them, benefit by them; less clever ones abuse them.

Naive and charming is the coiffure with the side parting, wide loose undulations straight across the back of the head, clusters of tight small curls along the nape of the neck. For this hairdress it is necessary to have the air tapered at the back, trimmed out, not three inches below the hair line.

A mild bleach—four ounces of rubbing alcohol, two ounces of stronger mercuriol, fifteen drops of simple tincture of benzoin. Apply with cotton every night and let dry on.

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Kim pushed their door-bell five times and stood smiling to himself as he and Mary Faith waited for the door to open, each one thinking of soft phonograph music on the other side of the door, enhanced tenderly and then came Claire Maldon's voice: "Jack, that's Sandy Farrell's ring."

The door was thrown open and she stood in the threshold, shaking hands with both of them at once.

"How grand to see you both!" she drew them into the room behind her, glowing at them. "Jack and I were just talking about you, wondering how soon you'd be back —and here you are!"

Jack Maldon came in from the kitchen. He had a bread knife in his hand and a tea towel was tied around his middle for an apron.

"Hello, you two!" he said, and greeted them, grinning. "Had your supper?"

"No—what do you think we came here for?" Kim asked, and shook back at him. "You don't think we come up here because we give a damn about you? I'm not sorry very much at home with them helping my himself in the kitchen, and Mary Faith sitting on the mantelpiece, stretching herself out in a long line, and Claire looking down into the windows that looked downright in the lamp-starred darkness of Bloor."

"Gosh, this is the greatest place in the world!" she said comfortably. "Mary Faith don't you wish we had a little dog-out like this?"

The flat consisted of four rooms —living room, bedroom a tiny dining room and kitchenette—but it was a sparkling white-tiled kitchen.

Everything in it was new and bright and modern, from the electric-ice box in the kitchen to the plate-door of the shower in the bathroom.

"What a lovely apartment this is, Claire," Mary Faith said, taking off her hat and coat in the hallway which was hung with rose Du Barry draperies and smelt of expensive perfume and those flowers.

"We rented it furnished. It's not what I'd like to have, but it's an amusing little place." Claire answered. "We've bought a lot of things for it, of course."

"Amusing" described it perfectly there was a radio in one corner of the living room and a phonograph in another. There was a small revolving wheel and a box of playing cards on a coffee table that stood in front of the silver velvet davenport. On one of the window sills was a Chinese brass bowl filled with dice, chips and a miniature gambling game played with tiny iron racing horses.

Claire sat on a high supper on the table in the dinette—chicken sandwiches, celery stuffed with Roquefort cheese, big brown ripe olives and an iced drink in amber glasses.

At first Mary Faith thought that it was cider and lifted it to her lips. Then, as the sharp odor of it struck her nostrils, she set it down. She glanced at Kim's flushed-looking face and saw that he was looking at her.

"Claire, I forgot to tell you that the Little Woman is a teetotaler," he said. "She never takes a drink."

"Don't you? Honestly, Mary Faith?" Claire looked at her pityingly. "Not even a little highball, just to be sociable?—These are terribly weak, over here."

All the time she was talking she kept one shoulder moving ever so slightly in time to the music of the phonograph, and she held a cigarette in her left hand and a fork in her right as she ate.

Her cheekbones were covered with some kind of scarlet polish that made them look like bits of carved red coral and her eyes were shadowed with blue-gray make-up.

There was nothing extraordinary about her slender, blond prettiness. The remarkable thing about her was her electric quality —her crackling vitality.

She was never still a minute. When she wasn't talking or laughing she was humming under her breath. When he wasn't in the living room changing a phonograph record she was in the kitchen getting more ice or ginger ale or Roquefort cheese.

As soon as the supper things were cleared away she brought out a contract-bridge score and a deck of cards.

"Well, how about a little game for a hatful of a cent a point?" she asked them in her fresh pretty voice. "Just enough to make it zippy."

"Sorry, Claire," he said, "but Mary Faith is a regular Puritan. She wouldn't play cards on Sunday if her life depended on it."

"Why aren't you funny, Mary Faith!" she stood looking at her with wide eyes. "I didn't know my body was as old-fashioned as that any more!..... Sandy plays cards on Sunday. He's done it right here in the flat lots of times. Haven't you, Sandy?"

"Tell us, Lazy," she said to him, "and dance with me."

Kim stood up.

Claire put both her arms around Kim and closed her eyes as they danced. She was a little girl and Mary Faith knew it. Kim's expression, too, had altered very bright against the dark blue of his coat.

Sitting in the corner of the blue davenport, watching her, Mary Faith began to feel dull and unboring fortable and out of place. She knew that she had nothing in common with these friends of Kim's. Claire had told her that she was "funny" and "old-fashioned" and she knew she wouldn't play cards on Sunday.

"I'm old-fashioned," she thought, and her head ached and her heart was sore and narrow-minded." Mary Faith said to herself, "I am, I am, so I am until just lately."

In the days of their engagement Kim had never been much of a drinker or card player. Certainly he had never played cards for any money.

"What are you looking so melancholy about, Mary Faith?" Jack Maldon came in from the kitchen with a tray of tea and glasses and set it on the mantelshelf.

"Aren't we going to play cards on Sunday.... I'm sorry."

"Would you like to dance?"

Mary Faith shook her head and sent him a troubled apologetic smile. "I don't mean to be a spoil-sport, Jack. I'm afraid I'm a terrible spoil-sport."

"No," he said gravely. "I think you're all right.... I get a little tired of doing things with all the time, myself. It's a relief just to sit and talk and forget the time. Don't you?"

"Even if it's just pig-logs." Kim and Mary Faith went home.

"Well, what do you think of the Maldons?" Kim asked her as soon as they were out of the little flat.

"Wasn't the room just too cute for Claire? She's a dandy girl, isn't she?"

"Isn't she pretty?" Mary Faith answered him with a question.

She was sorry now that she let Kim know that she did not like Claire Maldon and was sure that she was she was with her. She was going to accept all of his friends and make them welcome in her home.... She was going to make life peaceful and pleasant for him always.

"I enjoy going up to their flat more than any place I know," Kim was saying slowly and a bit stickily. "There's always the makings of a good time there. You never sure does know how to do things, doesn't she? Wasn't that a slick little supper we got up?"

"Delicious. But I wish you wouldn't drink, Kim. You never used to drink."

"I don't drink now," he said. "Not what you could really call drinking anyway. The occasional drink I get packed up her things and went home to Carterville.

"I'm doing Ma-purpose," she told Mary Faith in her sharp, kinda way. "Ol' Ma Faith has let me come on you to take care of her for a few days she won't be so high-and-mighty with you. You and she will get to be pretty good friends if there's nobody but the two of you in the house all day—so I'll just move myself out of the way and give you a try." What Aunt Ella lacked in English she made up for in good hard common sense.

All the week Mary Faith took care of Mrs. Farrell. She made her bed brought her her meals of chicken broth and milk toast and gave her the medicine that Dr. Thatcher prescribed for her.

Dr. Thatcher had been the Farrell family doctor ever since Kim's babyhood. He was a tall broad-shouldered man with a heavy handsome head and a boom-grey beard. Mary Faith liked his deep low voice and his air of solidarity.

"He's a widower", Mrs. Farrell told her, "and I've got to say that half the nurses in town have their caps set for him. But I doubt that he'll ever marry again—and if he does it'll be some woman his own age he will pick, I imagine."

Every morning when she was expecting him, she would sit up in bed, brushing her thick hair, winding it around her head in a coronet braid that was very becoming to her and powdering her face. Once Mary Faith came into the room and found her rubbing violet toilet water into the palms of her hands.

"Please don't get it into your head that I'm fixing myself up because the doctor's coming" she said shakily. "I just happen to like a little perfume now and then. It makes the air in the room seem so fresh."

On Friday Dr. Thatcher told her that she was so much better he wouldn't have to come to see her any more, and on Saturday she got out of bed.

Mary Faith sent for her trunks and her cedar chest that afternoon and she unpacked them while Mrs. Farrell sat in the living room crocheting and showed her where to hang the Simon etchings and the bookshelves.

"I thought my mother would raise Cain when you brought your things into the house," Kim said the next morning when Mary Faith brought him his coffee. "She would have, too, if you hadn't asked her where to put everything and nidded her along the way you did."

"I wasn't kidding her, Kim. I just want her to feel that she and I are partners. Women work together in offices without quarreling and there's no reason why they shouldn't do it in houses. You'll see how fine and I will get along all right if you just give us time."

Mrs. Farrell was also felt shaky after her illness and she spent most of the next week sitting the books that Mary Faith had brought from Mrs. Farrell's. She sat all day in her easy chair at the front window with her feet in her little stool, lost to the world in the pages of "The Duchess of Wrex or Wickhampton."

All that week Mary Faith had the flat to herself, and to the work that it brought she came nearness and deftness that she had given to her work in Dan Hendrie's office. But she enjoyed it as she never had enjoyed office work. She took a man over head," Kim answered her, and he stooped in the darkness of Wilton street to kiss her.

That was on Thursday. On Friday night she Maldons came over to spend the evening.

Mary Faith brought out a card table and the four of them played bridge but not for money. At eleven o'clock Mary Faith went into the kitchen and came back with cheese sandwiches and coffee on a tray. She was very proud of her hand-embroidered table cover and the dainty, pink-sprigged china dishes.

"We had a good time, didn't we?" she asked Kim as the door closed upon Claire and Jack. "And we didn't have to gamble or drink to enjoy ourselves, either, did we?"

He looked at her and his eyes were full of disgust and anger. "What are you talking about?" he said, "You don't imagine they had a good time sitting around there without a thing to drink but coffee, do you?—— We didn't even have a ne fiance sweet to pep things up. No, they had a rotten time; and if you had any sense about such things you'd know it."

On Sunday night Clair Maldon called Kim up.

Mary Faith heard him answer the 'phone when it rang. She heard him say, "Wait a minute, Claire. I'll ask her."

And then he came into the sitting room, where she was reading the woman's section of the Sunday paper.

"Claire wants us to go over there and play some poker," he said. "She says they have a crowd of people in for supper....Let's go. Mary Faith, Everybody plays cards on Sunday; and we've done nothing but sit around this flat, dying of dry-rot for a month or more."

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

As the flames ate their way through the bungalow, one of the Waziri warriors left for dead began to move again. It was the black giant, Muganshi, who still lived. The hot flames were almost upon him as he raised himself painfully upon his hands and knees and pitifully, tried to escape. At last he managed to elude the fiery furnace, reach the veranda beyond, roll down the steps and crawl off into the cool safety of the nearby shrubbery.

All night he lay there. In his conscious moments he watched with savage hatred the lurid flames which still rose from burning buildings. A prowling lion roared close at hand but Muganshi was unafraid. There was place for but a single thought in his savage mind. Revenge! Revenge! Revenge! And for another terrible man lay where he had fallen upon the floor of the treasure chamber of Opar. Tarzan lay long as one dead; but now he stirred.

Slowly he staggered to his feet. Where was he? His mind could not remember. His head ached, but otherwise he felt no ill effects from the blow that stilled him. Only, he could not recall anything that had happened. He felt his limbs, his body and his head; the last still as his side. His spear was near him. But nothing spurred his hurt memory to a recollection of past familiarity with his surroundings. He blundered on through the dark.

Suddenly he stepped out into space, lunged forward, and shot downward into water and sank beneath its surface. The fall had not injured him and when he rose to the surface, he shook the water from his eyes and found that he could see. Daylight was filtering into the well from the orifice far above his head. It illumined the inner walls faintly. Tarzan looked about him. Ahead he saw a large opening in the slimy wall and swam to it.

COMEDY AS CHARGED BY TURNS ITS MURDER THRILL TO LAUGHS

A new sort of murder story, with a comedy turn to "Guilty as Charged," featuring Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, and Richard Cromwell, which will be presented on the two feature program at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily.

The picture, adapted from the successful stage play which ran for many months last season on Broadway, makes sport of the conventional murder thriller by never taking itself particularly seriously. It's created entertainment, for this reason alone, but the additional fact that the film has the human type of comedy graces it makes it even better.

The audience sees smarter comedians in the picture opens and then sees McLaglen and Lowe, cast as a detective and a reporter respectively, trying to solve it. They bungle amusingly, but finally succeed. Just in time Arlen is exonerated by circumstantial evidence, but guiltless from the first frame.

McLaglen and Lowe battle each other but remain the firmest of friends, but as they did in "The Price Of Glory," "Cockeyed World," and "Women of All Nations." They're one of the best comedy teams in pictures today, and in the role of rival police heads in "Guilty as Charged," they're even better than in the past.

Arlen is excellent as the suspect and Adrienne Ames is pretty girl over whom McLaglen and Lowe battle, in fact the whole story is battling for yourself.

TOM MIX AND TONY

A great screen star, Tom Mix; an exceptional supporting cast headed by Lois Wilson; a superb story and a screen-full of continuous action comes to the Belle today in the form of Universal's thrilling, lightning-moving, romantic "Rider of Death Valley."

Mix gives the acts of performance in the film that makes one lament that he was unable to hear the star's performance as well as see them in his famous, old silent pictures, and if the cowboy star continues to improve in appear with each picture as he has in this one there will be very little left to be desired when he finishes filming pictures.

The celebrated cowpuncher star with the sort of a heart voice that you would want to hear from him, and those who had any misgivings at all about the janky Tonk's acting ability will most certainly be placed at ease with the excellent, histrionic ability that he reveals in this picture.

At The Capitol

"FORBIDDEN" REAL LOVE STORY POWERFULLY PRESENTED AND ACTED

Anything with a heart interest is bagged a love story, but "Forbidden," the new Barbara Stanwyck vehicle commencing Monday at the Capitol Theatre, is a real love story powerfully presented. Love is its only motive. It starts on a Spring day when the heroine is moved by thoughts of love to squander her savings on a search for an adventure in Reno. Of course, she finds it, but her love proves to be no plaything that can be tossed aside when the home port is reached.

They know each other only as 06 and 99 their stateroom numbers on the Havana-bound ship whose they meet. Luis does not return to the small town Ilberg where she previously worked, but gets a job in a newspaper reference room. Al Holland an aggressive reporter, is determined to make her Mrs. Al, if it takes him a life time to do it.

Then 99 tells her he is Bob Grover, lawyer, and headed for politics. He also tells her he is married to an invalid and a cripple and he cannot, in justice to her, ask for a divorce. In a revulsion of feeling she puts him out of mind, telling him that she is going to have a baby.

Two years later Bob has managed to locate her, flies secretly to Reno and she shuts the door on him then runs after him and they meet in an embrace at the end of the many delightful touches that show the fine hand of Director Lloyd who directed "Forbidden".

A chance meeting with Holland brings about a situation in which Lolu is forced to let the Grovers adopt her daughter Barbara. Holland is the sworn enemy of Bob, now District Attorney, and adoption story sounds funny to him and he puts it out of his mind for fifteen years. By this time Bob is running for Governor. Lolu has tried to get him out of politics, but his struggles only bind them tighter, until now all she asks of life is his success.

But Bob is tired and heartsick. Power has lost its meaning. He's a hypocrite and he wants to admit it to the world. He tells Lolu the end of his life happily with Lolu, but not before her pride in his success and she suddenly marries Holland so Bob will quit.

Then what scene Frank Capra, author as well as director, has devised. Bob, Lolu and Barbara, grown out of the truth. The woman he has always loved and now proudly married is the skeleton in the closet of the man who has just been elected! Holland knows the whole secret in her face. He'll print it all over the front page! But he reckons without the force of Lolu's love. She has made every sacrifice and there is still another she can make. How, we leave for your surprise when you see Forbidden," which is a must picture!

Barbara Stanwyck is superb as the young girl, the mother, and then the worldly-wise woman. She is equal to every demand of a difficult role. Monroe Owsley is perfect in a part that, less expertly played, could have lacked sympathy. Ralph Bellamy adds a powerful impersonation as Holland. Dorothy Peterson is excellent as the wife, Myrna Pradbolts is an adorable baby and Charlotte V. Henry a charming ingenue. A Frank Capra Production, Columbia has give it an exceptional artistic setting.

Fee System Introduced In Public Schools For First Time

While school bells clanged incessantly throughout Belleville with whoops, noise and confusion, pleased through the portals of six city schools, approximately three thousand, said strong Tuesday morning, to begin the Fall term, following two months summer holidays. Tanned, healthy and brown, and with vacation marks still smarting on their arms they got themselves to settle down to the routine of class work until Christmas holidays again provide a pleasant interlude. Increase in Attendance

Every school in the city this year has shown a decided gain in regis., trations. In the Collegiate Institute this has been especially noticeable. Last year the attendance there for the while this year, although not all scholars have registered, the attendance Tuesday morning was placed in the neighborhood of one thousand. The Public School showed a gain of twenty four new pupils, making the total attendance 388. St. Michael's Separate School gave a nominal attendance of 400. Other schools in the city had not yet completed the count of pupils who had attended.

New Teachers.

This year, pupils will face several new teachers which have been added to the staffs of the various schools, but they will also witness an increase in the fee system, by which books and schoolroom supplies will be paid for at five cent per term in the history of the schools. A Fee System will be put in use, whereby the parents will pay a fixed fee per month for books and necessities, which will be used, although some confusion existed Tuesday morning while the distribution of the books and supplies was taking place in the schools, the minor details will be straightened out within the next few days.

St. Michael's Academy resumed classes after the holiday, with an attendance of almost four hundred pupils in the junior school with slightly registered in the high school classes. Previous to the opening of school a special Mass for the scholars was celebrated in St. Michael's Church by the pastor, Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G. Monsignor Nicholson addressed the children on the importance of diligently attending to their studies and of faithfully fulfilling the instructions of their teachers. School days were not only the happiest days of their lives but were of a value that they would only realize in their mature life. Pray teachers compose the staff of St. Michael's Academy, of those whom they are in charge of High School work, which this term will cover the third year curriculum.

NEW DAWN TO BREAK BELIEF OF MINISTER

New 500 Million Employment Plan Goes Into Effect

ASKS CO-OPERATION

Must Awaken Forces Slumbering in Private Industry

Berlin, Sept. 6 (AP).—A prediction that Germany has reached the bottom of the depression and better times are at hand was made by Minister of Economics Hermann Warmbold as the Von Papen Cabinet's new $500,000,000 employment plan went into effect today.

In a message to the nation last night, Herr Warmbold urged all classes of the population, employers, employees to insure the success of the venture.

Coincident with the effectuation of the new plan, Hermann Schmitt, Minister, had lieutenant of Adolf Hitler and President of the Reichstag announced last night he intended to convoke the Parliament to session Sept. 12.

Whether this would interfere with the government's plan could not be determined although there have been reports of a Nazi coalition with the Centrists to overthrow the legislature and the Nazis have been pledged to fight the Cabinet at every turn.

Chancellor Von Papen has been reported ready to dissolve the Reichstag if necessary, however, a dissolution decree was signed in blank by President Von Hindenburg last week and needs only to be invoked by the Chancellor to become effective.

The official statement putting the new plan into effect declared "private industry still constitutes the best means for the rational satisfaction of humanity's economic needs: the forces slumbering within the private industry must therefore be awakened.

POLICE SEEK SLAYER OF HARRY THOMAS

Found Stabbed in Boat House on Otonabee River

BELLEVILLE BOY

Served With Distinction in Great War And Was Wounded

Peterboro, Sept. 6.—A province-wide search is being conducted for three transients believed to be the slayers of Harry Thomas, Belleville, 43, unemployed, and former member of the 2nd C. F. A. Battery, whose body was found in the Otonabee river early Sunday morning in a small boat known locally as "Hobo Jungle", when he allegedly refused to go on with a transportation by a local man, whose name police refuse to divulge, was to have been the victim of the hold-up. The man's actions had been watched and suspicion aroused. The trip was planned for Saturday night. Thomas was last seen going in his jungle home with several loaves of bread at 10.30 Saturday evening.

Movements Known.

It is thought he went to his boat-house and returned again to the city where he is said to have had a conversation with a local citizen. Returning to his jungle home he prepared for bed. The companions arrived later to proceed with the business that had been planned and according to the reconstruction of the affair by the police, Thomas refused to go and in the ensuing altercation a knife was plunged into his breast almost completely severing an artery close to the heart.

In the difficult sifting of all the available clues and reports received by the twenty two score transients, who were questioned, the accusation finger returned again and again to one person who, with several others, had been interviewed on the Saturday night. The search for this man was started Sunday morning and quickly broadened out in all directions from Windsor to Montreal and along all the roads leading out of Peterboro.

Chief of Police Newhall is convinced that if this man and one or two others were brought to material witnesses can be rounded up. The solution of Harry Thomas's death will be quickly unfolded.

Peterboro, Sept. 6.—As a result of a thorough search of the murdered man, Harry Thomas, 43-year-old unemployed transient, by Chief George J. Thomas, prominent retired Belleville resident, and Detective Belleville, was found in a boat moored in the Otonabee river.

No arrests had been made up to late last night, but police are holding no effort to apprehend the killer. Transients in the city have been held for questioning, while police have extended the net over a wide area.

Quarrel Reported

It was stated at a late hour tonight that Chief Constable Samuel Newhall had received information that the murder resulted from a

Wolves May Not Attack Humans But Will Tackle Deer Humans are Saving

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 6 — Algoma wolves will not attack a human being, but they will attack a deer while humans have their hands on it, trying to rescue it.

Proof of this was given at Wolf Lake, back of Hillsdale on the Algoma Central Railway when a party of tourists led by Stanley Hauxhurst were camping there. They heard wolves in the bush, quite close to camp and went out to investigate.

Embarking in three canoes members of the party went out on the lake, which seemed to be the centre of the disturbance. Approaching the far shore they saw a deer in the water, threshing about frantically. Reaching the animal they managed to get it into one of the canoes and found that a big timber wolf had a grip on its flank. With some difficulty the men finally beat the wolf off and found that the deer was badly mangled, the wolves having almost one ham away.

Flying Hutchinsons Pay Stiff Fine for Landing in Greenland Without Permit

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 6 — George Hutchinson, United States flier leading a party of eight from New York to London over the Arctic air route, was fined 1,000 Kroner (approximately $190), by the Governor of Southern Greenland for landing in Greenland without a permit.

The Governor, notifying the Danish Government of the penalty today, said Hutchinson's conduct since arriving at Godthaab had been exemplary and that he had expressed sincere regret for his error. The Governor said he did not know yet when the Hutchinsons would continue their flight.

The Hutchinson party includes Mrs. Hutchinson, their two children and a crew of four. They landed Greenland in their dirigible when they left New York, Upper Bridge. Reynolds was prohibited permission for a landing there, explaining that should the plane come down the Danish authorities could not assume responsibility for the safety of the fliers.

Mystery Surrounds Death Of Noted Film Executive

Paul Bern, Husband of Jean Harlow Takes Own Life

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 6—In an effort to uncover a motive for the apparent suicide of Paul Bern, motion picture producer, Inspector of Detectives Dewitt Darbinian announced today he would question Jean Harlow, screen star he married the producer two months ago.

Davidson said he would call on Miss Harlow on a visit to her parents as soon as he received word the actress was in a condition to be interviewed. Miss Harlow reported was in Chicago with relatives.

Although Davidson said there was no doubt in his mind that the death of Bern, whose body was found yesterday afternoon in his Beverly Hills home, was a suicide, the inspector said he wanted to clear up all angles of the case.

"Miss Harlow may be able to tell something that will aid us in our investigation," he said.

The widow was at the home of her parents in Chicago this today. She became hysterical on being informed of the death of her husband and so far has made no statement to police.

Experts Test Alcohol Find it Good and Bad, What "Hangover" is

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 6.—Alcohol had been found beneficial in treating some diseases but injurious to others by Dr. Yandell Henderson and Dr. Louis H. Nahum of the Yale Medical School.

Results of their study showing that alcohol increases the viscosity of the blood in points formerly believed incompatible with life were made public today here and at home, where Dr. Hinwich read a paper at the International Congress of the Federation of Societies for Experimental Biology.

In diseases such as tetany, where the blood contains an abnormal amount of alkaline substances, the scientists determined the addition of alcohol acts as a neutralizing agent.

Small doses of alcohol were found to be helpful in treating diabetes, for they increase the effects of partially oxidized fatty bodies.

On the other hand, the research showed elimination of alcohol by pneumonia patients delays recovery by increasing acidosis.

The "hangover" following intoxication, they concluded, is caused by the accumulation and persistence of lactic acid in the blood. This substance, which does not disappear as quickly as the alcohol, also has a local irritating physical effect and is believed responsible for a feeling of fatigue after hard work.

BROKEN AXLE DITCHES CAR

Belleville Party Narrowly Escapes Death When Mishap Occurs

Ditched upside down at the side of the road, with the front wheels nine feet from the water, the plane piloted by Lieut.-Col. Osborne, after the left rear axle of their machine had snapped, a party of seven Belleville residents narrowly escaped more serious injuries, on Sunday evening, than the minor scratches and bruises they received. The party, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brooks, East Dundas Street, owner and driver of the machine, with his wife and two children, and Mr. Lorne Wilson, member of the local fire department, with his wife and small son, had been returning from Toronto Exhibition when the accident occurred. After the axle snapped the car turned over once on its side, skidded to the side, narrowly missing a telephone pole and large boulder on the way, and then finally came to rest with wheels in the air at the side of the road, at that point helped to break the force of the fall. After the occupants of the car had clambered through the open windows of the machine, they realized the extent of the accident, and conveyed the ladies and children to the city. A garage man from Osborne towed the car in, finally arriving in the city at a garage at which the car had been travelling, when the same mysterious warning is attributed to the little darkage done.

ACTED HONESTLY

Willing to Hear Any Evidence Before Enquiry Closes

Toronto, Sept. 6 (By The Canadian Press)—Upon the certain testimony and documents x x what is called the payment to Aird was not in fact a payment and was not properly described" declared Mr. Justice W. R. Riddell in resuming the investigation into certain affairs of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and its dealings with John Aird, jr., of Toronto today.

Referring particularly to the payment of $30,000 to Aird by the Hydro in connection with the purchase of certain rights on the Madawaska River, Mr. Justice Riddell said: "It is quite plain the payment to Aird for services rendered was part of the purchase money insisted on by the vendors."

Done Nothing Wrong

The Hydro according to His Lordship had done nothing wrong. "At present we cannot see anything wrong that the Hydro or any which they ought not to have done, or anything they left undone, which they ought to have done. We shall be glad to get any evidence from Mr. Aird."

"We shall not call upon Mr. Aird," (Mr. R. M. Tilley, K.C., counsel for the Royal Commission, which had been investigating Hydro) explained Mr. Justice, regarding the Hydro Board to give any further evidence, but the onus will be cast upon any person acting in the impropriety to establish the impropriety.

"We do not regard 'propriety' solely with integrity subjective, but objective 'propriety,' not only by which the Hydro Board acted sincerely and honestly with the public, but propriety with a business point of view, which they entered into on behalf of the public. If any person has any evidence that they should not have entered into after prudent investigation from proper sources in the carrying out of business, we shall be glad to hear of it."

Mr. Justice Riddell, with Hon. G. S. Henry, K.C., Hydro head over the evidence taken at the investigation, and Messrs. W. J. Justice J. H. Orde, necessitated the appointment of two others to conclude the investigation.

The commission investigated the payment of $50,000 to Aird in connection with Madawaska; the payment of $125,000 to Aird by the Beauharnois Power Corporation in connection with Hydro contracts and the payment of $2,000,000 by the Hydro for the assets of the Dominion Power and Transmission Limited at Hamilton.

INTEREST IN PLANE SHOWN BY PONTIFF

Receives Album Recording British Conquest of Air

Rome—(CP)—In addition to his interest in wireless and other developments in modern science, His Holiness the Pope is following keenly the progress of civil transport, recognizing the important part it is playing in the peace and more friendly intercourse between nations.

As a practical evidence of this interest in the international development of aviation, His Holiness has just received in audience at the Vatican in Rome the Manager of the Italian Area of Imperial Airways Ltd., J. Lloyd-Taylor.

This, it is believed, is the first time that a director of any big foreign air transport company has been received by the Pope. Mr. Lloyd-Taylor took the opportunity of presenting to His Holiness a handsome album which bore the Papal arms stamped on it in gold, and which has been prepared specially to illustrate the activities and aircraft of Imperial Airways along the 14,000 miles of European and Empire air-lines.

In this album the multi-engined aircraft of Imperial Airways are shown in flight along the main air routes between England and India and England and South Africa. Photographs are also included showing the luxuriously-appointed interiors of the big four-engined aeroplanes and their pilots, while the illustrations include in addition maps of the Imperial Airways systems of routes and pictures exemplary of the aerodromes and ground organisations along the Company's air-lines. The title borne by the album is "Seen From the Air."

During the audience it was made clear how appreciative the Pope is of the advantage the world will derive from a wide-spread development of aerial transport and he evidenced particular interest in the part played by wireless in modern air transport and also in the fact that it is now possible to travel regularly by airway to and from the Holy Land.

In the latter respect it is worthy of note that already members of the Clergy, together with pilgrims, tourists and travellers are utilising in growing numbers the speed and comfort of air travel facilities which are provided to and from the Holy Land.

The Imperial Airways flying-boats operating on the Mediterranean sections of the India air route now actually alight on the Sea of Galilee and the airway journey from London to the Holy Land can be accomplished in three days; while travellers also have the convenience of the connections provided by the Empire routes from India and Central and Southern Africa. This means that a journey from India to the Holy Land by air now occupies only two and a half days, while from Central Africa the time is five days and from South Africa eight days.

As a South African buffalo grows older its horns become shorter and thicker.

TRUTH CANNOT BE HID

By Wallace Havelock Robb, of Abbey Dawn

In the issue of the Ontario Intelligencer of August 17th, there appears an article under the heading "Dick and Hawks." In this article Jack Miner is quoted as saying, among other generalities, that 90 per cent. of the bird life on the continent was composed of Passenger Pigeons, that the Passenger Pigeons were exterminated by disease, that, this being the case, the hawks, which prey on diseased birds should have been reduced 90 per cent., that the men who condemn his actions in shooting hawks on his farm and sanctuary when they become a pest, would destroy valuable bird life and men living in cities who spend most of their time in office buildings and know little or nothing about nature, are talking nonsense, a little more light on the subject, I believe, furthermore, that the public is growing weary of this idea of letting everything perish which happens to be suspected of a birdlike flight or a swallow of anything natural to it. That the hawks and owls remove sickly birds and keep down plagues of mice is true enough, but I do not believe this is the main point. I believe the main point in the heart of humanity finally comes down to this, as far as birds are concerned. Birds are things of spiritual beauty in the lives of mankind; they inspire our artists, our musicians, our writers, our priests and pastors, our back yard gardens, and our wild areas open countryside, and the farmer, tilling his plow as the end of the field, wiping the sweat from his brow as he turns toward the sky that is lifted in spirit by the sight of a soaring hawk. I do not believe the birds were meant to be conserved by sanctuaries in order that they may be shot later. My sanctuary is called a Crown Game Preserve, as is true with Jack Miner's sanctuary as far as I am concerned, for I care nothing for game as game and bodies for guns, but care everything for security and tranquility to all kinds of birds. Wild ducks come and go at will, but no corn is spread for them. They do not come for food, but for safety.

But let us examine some of the statements given in the mendacious article in question, "Dick and Hawk." No statement to the effect that 90 percent of the bird life on the continent were passenger pigeons can be confirmed because there is only one work on which to base such a statement, furthermore, there is little or nothing on which to base a statement that the Passenger Pigeon was wiped out by disease. On the other hand, there is all too much reliable record to convince us that the wild pigeon was wiped out by slaughter. Here are statements from the official records and from the New England States, to say nothing of plenty of other official records I could quote:

"Mr. C. Hart Merriam asserts that one of his men shot six female pigeons that came to feed a single squab in one nest." "How was it possible for man to kill them alive? All that was requisite to bring about this result was the destruction of the young birds each year. Each female, as a rule, laid but one egg. The squabs were shipped to market in carloads! For many weeks the pulsating shipments averaged fifty barrels of dead birds per day, from one victim's nest; this does not include steam-boat shipments. Any attempt to make laws against the slaughter met with failure. The warnings of scientific observers were disregarded. When the public awakened to the peril, the birds were past saving, scarce laws were made, but it was too late! From the pitiful records of the pioneers, counting the whole season, the shipment of dressed birds alone averaged twenty-five barrels a day, of five hundred birds per barrel! Add dead birds daily! 1,000 for the summer! From one shipping point alone! Five hundred thousand slaughtered in crate of six dozen birds per crate. 1,116 crates! Add to these this one point alone, amounting to 80,352 birds! The squabs were all killed for market. There came a day when the hunters, finding parent birds were too old to reproduce in an effective way. The wild pigeon had been killed off! Left behind by its parents through death of their young, the squabs, unfed, perish; we took advantage of this and purchased squabs by the bushel as a delicacy, killing every adult bird that came to give it food. Soon they died out."

Such is the squab. Thus the passenger pigeon was reduced to a helpless thing, unfed and starving. And the Heath Hen is another example of failure to preserve through reduction beyond the point of safety. "Gone, and will not last forever," is the knell Heath Hen left. Is, or was, the last of the few remaining birds of its species. They were given every protection, but the protection came by the time left by man who believes in reducing any species of birds by 90 per cent. is practically advocating their extinction, that is, if we are to judge by what has happened to birds in the past. I believe the public is distinctly opposed to wholesale slaughter. And, as far as Mr. Miner's sanctuary is concerned, that is the affair, but when he comes out of his sanctuary and makes broad sweeping general statements and asks the public to listen to him, that, is another matter. And when he says the men who oppose his policy of slaughter are men who spend most of their time in offices and know nothing about what Nature is going out of his way. Abbey Dawn Sanctuary, which is hawk and owl sanctuary, a place where wild ducks come and go, where partridge and quail feed, where ruffed grouse, bluebirds and thrushes, have a sanctuary, and a part of it, a field with a splendid herd of cattle, a thoroughbred herd, who found you am not an office man, I am a farmer, but I am one who has little time to tired of this killing business and, as a bard of the people of Prince Edward County, as an influences the lives of humanity, I would suggest that Mr. Miner and Jack Miner's slaughter of birds. I believe the public is getting statements of the mass of the people, and I am against Jack Miner. This is all right.

Derelicts Rotting on Reefs Tell Tragi-romantic Tales To King of the Main Ducks

Sovereign of Lake Ontario's "Graveyard" Relates Fate of 18th Century French Brigantine Broken Upon Isle's Rocky Tentacles, and of Later Ships Cast Up on the Shores to be Battered to Pieces

(By Thelma S. Craig, Mail and Empire Staff Writer)

Another tragi-romantic story of Canadian history came to light the other day when Claude Cole baptized—by the king of the Main Ducks, in cherry pie—a proverbial King Cole, though the sovereign of the "Graveyard of Lake Ontario."

Bitcoles he spun rivalled the legendary myths of old times—e'en to the weis of which cling to the octopus reefs and broken bones of the Main Ducks, where the wild birds find a safe and centuries-old rest.

King Cole is a romantic soul, a lover of the wide-open spaces and fond of adventure, as befitting his sunburned, seafaring tendencies. "Live in the city? No, not I; it's time to visit, but I'd die there if there, they don't really live," he said.

"Why, there are 1,125 acres in Main Ducks—great acres of wood land and water, deer roam and birds of all kinds nest; wide spaces under sunny skies and sandy sweeping waters; contented fishermen in the lake, fish nets as a decoy, killing every adult bird that came to give it food, and they left their young again. Thus the passenger pigeon was reduced to a helpless thing, unfed and starving. And the Heath Hen is another example of failure to preserve through reduction beyond the point of safety. "Gone, and will not last forever," is the knell Heath Hen left. Is, or was, the last of the few remaining birds of its species. They were given every protection, but the protection came by the time left by man who believes in reducing any species of birds by 90 per cent. is practically advocating their extinction, that is, if we are to judge by what has happened to birds in the past. I believe the public is distinctly opposed to wholesale slaughter. And, as far as Mr. Miner's sanctuary is concerned, that is the affair, but when he comes out of his sanctuary and makes broad sweeping general statements and asks the public to listen to him, that, is another matter. And when he says the men who oppose his policy of slaughter are men who spend most of their time in offices and know nothing about what Nature is going out of his way. Abbey Dawn Sanctuary, which is hawk and owl sanctuary, a place where wild ducks come and go, where partridge and quail feed, where ruffed grouse, bluebirds and thrushes, have a sanctuary, and a part of it, a field with a splendid herd of cattle, a thoroughbred herd, who found you am not an office man, I am a farmer, but I am one who has little tired of this killing business and, as a bard of the people of Prince Edward County, as an influences the lives of humanity, I would suggest that Mr. Miner and Jack Miner's slaughter of birds. I believe the public is getting statements of the mass of the people, and I am against Jack Miner. This is all right.

"What is why that old sea-dogs and mariners who guide the barges and tugs through Lake Ontario call it the 'Graveyard of Lake Ontario'," Capt. Cole explained.

One that fell taken in more recent days with inviting bays and sculpin still forming a siren lure for time of storm, they also told. A little more than two years ago the wreck and rescue in the crew of the barge—Samladoc was added to the lure of the past. In the face of a blizard and a churning sea that piled up on one of the rocky projections and lodged there while merciless waves beat high in the air, the Samladoc crew stood at their posts like hardy seamen until rescued by the Valley Camp.

Almost under the lighthouse as it were, in history of man's attempt to overcome the forces of Nature lie the twisted remnants of a metal freighter, the Hickox, that piled the lake 15 years ago. In the lure of the past, famous for its wrecks, the battered prow of the John Hardy that met grief in November, 1920, protrudes above the waters. Far away in the bosom of the Navajo, a wooden steamer that was caught in a squall on Lake Erie after salvaging the Ceylon, another boat which had met with her fate in the same year the City of New York perished and with her 200 passengers.

"Beware of Lake Ontario when the tempest is brewing," Capt. Cole who navigates his own tug, C. W. Cole across the lake when the weather is threatening, the storm warns would have ducked for retreat.

But if the Main Ducks have been the scene of many a tragedy, tragedies and thrilling rescues in which Capt. Cole himself has figured a time or two, there are days of intimation of this), it is nevertheless a rare spot of entertainment.

Enchantment means to him not only the thrill of the wonderful fishing colony with men and women—boarding and lodging hundreds of thousands of fish; a cozy bungalow with all the coquettences that make the city home the envy of the country; the glorious swish of the waves; the sweet sound of the foghorn and flare of the lighthouse, but hunting and there more hunting, and new birds and new animals from deer to the wild boar. Capt. Cole has tried bears and buffaloes and Angora goats and Shetland ponies and quail, ruped stock. Twenty head of horses in the herd that he keeps on the 100 acres of woodland. As many as 23 deer can be seen at a single time, the largest weighing 312 pounds, having been captured by Detective Sergeant Hall, of the Provincial force.

At this time of the year the Main Ducks are a bird sanctuary. But in winter the fishermen visit the island, which is then known as an Arctic isle. Food is stored up for the season and the only means of communication is through the radio and the lighthouse, where the lighthouse keeper has a line of defense if necessary. King Cole usually spends the winter months on the major portion of the winter but his son and son's wife remained last year.

"If the light on the island appeared dimmer at night in succession I charter an aeroplane and fly over to see what's the matter," he said, "and then I go back to my tug, which is moored in the middle and everything a bottle in which the letters were placed, to study daily in case that the raft fills across the lake. Then I pick up by the passer-by, who is attracted by the unusual sail-boat, and carries the letters to the post office," he said.

Capt. and Mrs. Cole fit happily into the glamorous picture of their little kingdom that lies in the middle of Lake Ontario and in its most dangerous part.

EX-BROKER IS STAND OWNER

Makes More Money Selling Hot Dogs Than Stocks

Montreal—(CP)—Stranger than Horatio Alger's saga of penniless youths who eventually attain plutocracy, is the true story of Thomas Bird Lamb, who forsook the plush-upholstered office of a stock-broking company executive for the modest headquarters of a hot-dog stand owner and there found a reduced revenue, hard work and contentment.

The hot-dog venture, which Mr. Anderson calls a "roadside refreshment stand," is the result of his resignation about two years ago from an important Montreal stock broking firm which assigned 12 months as its departure.

In a cheery but decidedly modest little office and store-front on Mountain street, Mr. Anderson, who had foreseen the recent financial collapse and had "got out" in time to preserve some capital. Tossing about for some means of earning a livelihood for himself and his family, he finally decided on a partnership with a McGill University student earning his way through college in refreshment booths. Mr. Anderson supplied the capital and the student provided the technical knowledge necessary for the operation of the business.

Result of the joint effort is a gaily-painted stand on Notre Dame boulevard, near where a string of cars pours to and from the Laurentian foothills. Customers are served across the counter and when cars are walled upon in the best restaurant manner by waitresses. A tent attached to the automobile window and used as a table, "It is the kind of place 'nice people patronize," says Mr. Anderson, and in making plans for the inauguration, next Spring, of 12 similar establishments at different points throughout the Island of Montreal.

BLACK SPOTS

They were formerly thought to be "holes," that is, spaces where stars were absent.

But if so, they must be long and tubular, and must point directly toward us, which is quite unlikely.

Astronomers have concluded that they are not "holes" but vast clouds of cosmic dust, which, observe the stars behind them, just as a rain-cloud hides the sun.

The latest opinions on these "dark nebulae" are given by Dr. Robert J. Trumpler, of the Lick Observatory, California, in a leaflet issued by the Astronomical Society of the Pacific (San Francisco, Cal.). We read in it:

"In the great Sagittarius cloud, so densely packed with minute stars that there is hardly any space left, we come suddenly upon a dark spot, where the faint stars are nearly entirely missing.

"It is but natural that at first thought such an object should be taken for a real vacancy in the star structure. Barnard, who started his work with this then prevailing view, gradually convinced himself that the dark markings could not be anything else but regions where the distant stars are hidden by some accumulation of dark, opaque material. They are now quite generally called 'dark nebulae.'

"A real vacancy of stars could only appear as such, if it extended all through the depth of our stellar system. In other words it would have to be like a narrow, straight tunnel some 10,000 to 20,000 light-years long; and would have to be pointed exactly at the solar system. Any one such formation would certainly be a most curious coincidence, but the existence of several hundreds of them is extremely improbable.

"These conditions make it likely that the bright nebulae are not supplying their own radiation, but borrow it from the stars included in them or in their neighborhood. Such stars being rare, many nebulae fail to find a proper source of illumination.

COTTON FAILURE PLEASES

Disaster spells delight as the joyous news of cotton-crop failure cheers the entire United States in one of the depression's queerest paradoxes.

Crop disaster: Better conditions, says Literary Digest.

Such as it seems, that is the contradiction that thrills the South, encourages the North and East and West, stiffens the stock exchange, commodities markets and the heart-beat business everywhere.

In the reduction of one of our chief staples observers see positive indication that the depression's back has been broken.

Hero of the hour, in another strange twist, is the boll-weevil, the cotton pest. For this year has been more active than usual, eating heavily of the crop to make the reduction that boosts the price that helps the farmer who helps the country back to prosperity.

Co-operating with the weevil for the benefit of the grower was that other evil weather. Thus, twin curses combined to convert a blessing for Dixie's agriculturists.

What sent cotton kiting to an advance of five dollars a bale was an announcement by the Department of Agriculture that the forecast for this year's crop totalled a drop of 4,790,000 bales from last year. This estimate, the lowest for August since 1921, was read, places the crop at 11,300,000 bales. If correct, this would mean the smallest production since 1923, when it was 10,171,000 bales.

The news was electrical. Up shot the price of cotton. And along with it wheat, corn, sugar, coffee, cocoa, rubber, hides, and silk. That was the immediate effect, and there was general confidence that the gains would be maintained.

Coupled with the Government forecast and helping to boost prices was the announced plan of cotton mills interests to buy the 3,000,000 bales held by the Federal Farm Board.

A VICTORY FOR DECENCY

New York has stopped the flow of indecency which had befouled even the refuse cans into which discarded pornographic stuff was thrown.

The editors of fifteen of the twenty-two publications found objectionable have agreed to clean them up, while the editors of the other seven have promised to "tone down" their articles and caricatures.

This announcement was made by Assistant District Attorney James J. Wilson, when four news stand owners of the Times Square district appeared in the court of Special Sessions on charges of lasd spring for selling copies of some of the publications. The case against them was dismissed on the publishers' pledges. Whether this settlement will be lasting is problematical.

WITH THE TWILIGHT

Will you forget, at nightfall,
The lance of mellow light
That rests upon the river,
The tireless gulls in flight?
The river, slowly nearing
Its long-desired sea;
Will you forget, at twilight,
The prairie wind, and me?

x x x

You may forget, at nightfall,
Those scenes where once we moved,
And all the fading pageant
Of beauty that we loved;
But ever with the twilight
And those lost joys we knew
I shall come creeping back, dear,
I shall be near to you!

For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonders that would be:
Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens filled with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew
From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue;
Far along the world-wide whisper of the south-wind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples plunging thro' the thunderstorm;
Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle flags were furl'd
In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World.
There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe
And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in Universal Law.

WATCHING THE GAY YOUNG AVIATORS in their thrilling aerial evolutions over the government training camp near Belleville one can not help but wonder at the vision of the poet Tennyson who as long ago as 1870 visioned the conquest of the air by man, expressing his vision in the lines which read "Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails, Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales; Heard the heavens filled with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue; Far along the world-wide whisper of the south-wind rushing warm, With the standards of the peoples plunging thro' the thunderstorm; Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle flags were furl'd In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World. Despite talk of disarmament all the leading nations are perfecting aerial navies and the latest threat to the peace of the world comes from Russia where an immense aerial fleet of bombers and fighters is being developed. Other nations will watch Russia's aerial program with keen interest and push their own aerial preparedness plans to watch.

IN ONE of the schools in Brooklyn a 16-year-old-boy has already gone in for racketeering, according to the New Yorker which says that Capone's scouts ought, in fact, to keep an eye on him. His school has the monitor system, by which one of the boys is appointed monitor to keep the others in hand, report their misdeeds, etc. This lad was chosen because it was felt his general rowdiness would be curbed by giving him responsibility and authority. It has worked that way: he exacts a dime a week from most of the children under threats of reporting their misdeeds, either real or fictitious, if they don't "come across." Of course he has had to split his loot with some of the other tough boys, because if he didn't they would take him for whatever passes for a "ride" among school children in Brooklyn. Of course, under the gang's system, very few children are reported for misdeeds—they pay their fines. The teachers are proud of the school splendid record.

TRY TO THINK CLEARLY UPON ALL ISSUES

Few of Thousands Are Anything But Confused

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D. Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

LOUIS E. BISCH

Few people really think clearly. Thousands of times any school child could have done it more easily and better than the wisest of the grown-ups. Why? That's a question that is so important that it does not separate the wheat from the chaff, as it were, but it comes to our intellectual fodder.

Bacon, I believe, once said that some books are to be tasted, some to be chewed and only a few to be swallowed and digested. The same general principle were applied to our thinking there surely would be more direct and effective mental activity all around.

But it's so easy to drift along lazily from hour to hour and from day to day without bothering much to think. We have our newspapers and they tell us which all citizens are proud to take part.

Victorias Even Count With Ganaonque in Series Winning Well Played Game by 10-1

Archie Campbell Subdues Island Town Boys Easily

WINNERS HIT WELL

Infield Clicks With Two Lightning Fast Double Plays

With a deluge of extra base hits, the Belleville Victorias evened the Intermediate O.B.A.A. play-off series between them and the fast Gananoque nine, by beating the Island Town club by the score of 10 to 1, at the local Fair Grounds, on Saturday afternoon.

Archie Campbell, the Vics' star left-hander, was Doctor Chummy Gerow's choice to assume the mound duties. Campbell pitched hurled the first game which Vics lost by 8 to 2 in Gananoque on Wednesday afternoon, but he rose to the occasion on his second trip to the mound, by starring down in the pinches and with the combined efforts of his infield, pitched an air tight ball throughout the entire game. Only in the fifth frame, when visiting batters singled in succession, was Archie Campbell in any difficulty. In this innings the eccentric left hander started to bear down with the bases loaded with the result no runs were scored. Only one extra base hit was registered against the deliveries of Campbell, this being a three-base clout coming from the bat of Shine, a pinch hitter, in the sixth inning. Shine was thrown out at the plate trying to stretch the hit into a homer.

No Mayety Hurler

Hawkins, a right-hander, started on the hillock for the Gananoque team and his slants proved no mystery to the Vics once they started hitting collectively. Johnnie Kerr was the big hitter for the home club, when he collected three hits out of four official times at bat. Johnnie had a single, a double and wound up an almost perfect day by hitting the ball well over the left fielder's head for a home run in the eighth innings. There were runners on the paths at the time. Besides pitching an excellent game Campbell helped himself to a single and a double, while Wilf Latchford and Blaker also had two hits apiece. As a matter of fact Darrah and Ross were the only two locals to fail in getting a hit from the offerings of Hawkins during the stat game. Dorey, the Gananoque stat left-hander, was not used on Saturday but kept for the third and deciding game of the series.

The Victorias played bang-up ball defensively, their infield having two lightning fast double plays to nip Gananoque rallies in the bud. Although Hawkins struck out a total of eight to Campbell's eight, the local hurler only walked one while Hawkins placed three on first base via the four-ball route.

Besides Kerr, the ball well Johnnie Kerr, at third for the Vics, played a smart game defensively, handling all chances like a veteran.

Of the twenty-seven putouts registered by the Vics, only one was credited to an outfielder, that going to Latchford in centre. Blaker and Seeger, who handled very capably Campbell's shoots, each had ten putouts while Darrah, at second, counted out six Gananoque players.

How Runs Scored

The visitors scored their first and only run in the fourth when Kenny, after singling, crossed the plate on Brennan's double. The Vics evened the score in their half of the fourth when Flagler walked, stole second and scored, when the catcher threw to centre field trying to catch him. Again in the fifth the Vics added another counter when Latchford singled and stole second later to cross the plate on Kerr's double.

The sixth innings proved to be a big one for the locals when on hits by Burgoyne, Campbell, Blaker and Seeger four runs were scored, counted out six Gananoque players.

NEWARK BEARS CINCH TITLE

Cannot be Ousted From Lead as Result of Double Win

(By The Associated Press)

Al Mamaux's Newark Bears, pace-setters almost all the way, have clinched the International League pennant two weeks before the season ends.

A double triumph over Jersey City in the Labor Day programme gives the Bears a season's record of 100 victories against 52 defeats and definitely assured them of the championship since 1913.

Rochester has split with the Bears by 17 games with only 16 to play while Buffalo is 17 1-2 games behind and has only 17 to play.

Newark maintained a lead over the rest of the field through the first months of the season but ran into trouble in the latter part of May and surrendered the league lead to Buffalo on May 26. They had fallen into third place, five and one-half games out of the lead, when Mamaux arrived in shape of Jack Saltzgaver, second baseman from the parent major League Club the New York Yankees. Forest Jensen and Marvin Owen. The Bears quickly pulled themselves together and regained the lead on July 2, and never thereafter relinquished it.

YANKEES NEED 6 MORE GAMES TO COP FLAG

Made Hay When Gomez And Allen Take A's Twice

LEAD CUT

Pirates Making Belated Rally to Overhaul Cubs

(By Herbert W. Barker)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Joe McCarthy's pennant-bound New York Yankees garnered the most valuable harvest of Labor Day's crop of doubleheaders.

As the teams stood today, the Yankees lead the Athletics by 12 1-2 games. Six more Yankee victories, or any combination of Yankee victories and Athletic defeats which totals six, automatically will give the Yankees the pennant. Washington, in third place, will be eliminated, when the Yankees win five games or when Yankee victories and Washington defeats total five. Gomez and Allen Wes.

Gomez turned in his 22rd victory against six defeats in the opener which the Yankees won, 8-4, chiefly because they scored six runs in the fourth inning on six hits on balls, singles by Gehrig and Gomez, and McNair's error. Allen, on his 16th game against a few losses in the nightcap, giving the A's nine scattered hits and the Yanks won 6-2. Babe Ruth hit his 46th homer in the first game.

Effective pitching by Alvin Crowder and Fred Marberry gave Washington two victories over the Boston Red Sox, 6-2, and 8-3, and Cleveland walloped the St. Louis Browns twice, 13-2 and 6-4. Earl Averill clouting his 20th and 30th homers in the opener. Earl Whitehill pitched steady ball as Detroit turned back the Chicago Whitesox 5-3, but the Sox came back to take the nightcap, 3-1, as Milt Gaston allowed only five hits.

National League.

In the National League, Pittsburgh shared another game off the Chicago Cubs' lead by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 6-4 and 3-1, behind effective pitching by Ethele Meine and Larry French. The Cubs split a double header with the Cincinnati Reds, winning the first 6-3, but dropping the second, 6-5 as Si Johnson steadied after his team mates had given him a 6-4 lead in the ninth inning. Pittsburgh, which has won 18 games in a row, now trails the Cubs by but a game.

The Phillies advanced to within two and one-half games of the third place Brooklyn Dodgers by taking the New York Giants over the hurdles twice, 5-3 and 5-4, despite Mel Ott's 30th and 31st homers.

The Boston Braves moved into fifth place, two games behind the Phillies as a result of two triumphs over Brooklyn, 13-2 and 8-4. The Braves had only tied Brooklyn in each game, clinching the opener with six runs in the fifth, and scoring all their runs in the second game in the third inning.

A survey of 1,383 dairy farms in New Hamwshire, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania showed that 35 percent had milking machines.

Wedding music was played by the Commodore Orchestra.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Moose Auditorium for about two hundred guests being present. Mrs. Samuel, mother of the bride, was attired in black satin and velvet, and Mrs. Safe, mother of the groom, was gowned in black lace.

Dinner was served after the reception, the tables being most attractive with bouquets of fragrant flowers and softly shaded candles. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Tobese, of Montreal, to the bridegroom by His Worship, Mayor Tice, and the toast to the bridal couple, on behalf of the congregation, was proposed by Mr. Louis Kroch, president of the Sons of Jacob. With Mr. Charles A. Payne, K.C., as chairman, short toasts were by Mrs. P. Samuels, and Miss B. Tobe, while Rabbi Gerstel read the telegrams of congratulations for the bride and groom.

The Commodore Orchestra played for the dance which followed the dinner party. Guests were present from Brooklyn, Detroit, Brantford, Kingston, Newark, Toronto, Oshawa, Picton, Montreal, Trenton and Hamilton.

The groom's gift to the bride was evening jewelry of matching necklace, ring and carrings; to the maid of honor and bridesmaids, necklaces; to the flower girl, a silver mesh bag, and to the best man, a fountain pen.

Mr. and Mrs. Safe left on a motor trip to New York and Atlantic City, the bride wearing a chic costume of deep brown suit and matching accessories. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

On Monday, at the home of the groom Mr. and Mrs. A. Safe gave a special dinner to all guests, who remained over for the holiday. The celebration on this occasion of the early part of the week married continued during the whole day, with music, song and good fellowship. This celebration was held in accordance with Jewish custom. Mr. Louis Kroch, as president of the congregation, expressed the pleasure of the whole community in that, this was the first wedding since the synagogue had been built and the congregation most acceptably welcomes Bennie and Doris into the happy family.

AUNT FLO TO THE RESCUE.. by ALBERT DORNE

Make sure about "B.O."

PORES are constantly giving off odour-causing waste—a queer daily job—needed pleasing—overheated moments—others are quick to notice even a trace of "B.O." about us.

Use Lifebuoy. Its creamy lather cleanses so deeply, purifies so thoroughly, that every trace of "B.O." vanishes. Its pleasant, sweet-clean scent disappears as you rinse.

A complexion to be proud of.

Every night, massage Lifebuoy's bland lather well into the skin; then rinse. Pores are freed of impurities—dull complexions brightened. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

Beauty..... BY HELEN JAMIESON

Rules That Apply to All Complexions

Let us assume, that, try as she will, Paulecia can find no help with her complexion. The Sun has not selected it as a cause upon which to paint freckles. Pores are not expensive, no film of sebaceous oil lays on an offending skin. Pimples have yet appeared to burn skin cells in crops. Food is not counting in the pink of condition, Paulecia doesn't bother her head about it. And it is right there that Paulecia makes a mistake.

Enemies are threatening the complexion. Wind tears into its fibres. Atmospheric dust is a destructive element. Strong sunlight burns the epidermis. Digestive upsets translate form is into a gray or yallery tegument. That snow-and-roses condition is subject to change. Therefore, it is up to Paulecia to give to her complexion a certain amount of attention, so that it will retain its pristine loveliness, not succumb to the first beauty boys.

Three needs there are for every complexion: cleanliness, healthful stimulating treatments to keep glands and skin cells functioning properly, rightly anointing that makes for smoothness and texture. These attentions are its rightful prerequisites. They are form of insurance against cutaneous blemishes that Pooper Time distributes.

For the purpose of keeping the skin clean there're refreshing soapy scrubbings—men's complexions thrive on it—and various cleansing meals and renovating oils. The woman who is beautiful does not confine herself to one method of keeping the face free of foreign substances; she employs them all.

She doesn't contribute to the burdens of her complexion by using soiled powder pads or rouge compacts that have been on duty too long. Atmospheric dust clings lightly on the skin, but the coiled and grimy dirt into the pores.

Stimulation is acquired by following the warm soapy scrubbing with a cold rinsing, by laving with witch hazel or cast de cologne, the alcoholic content of which warms the flesh, stimulates capillaries, produces glow and color. Ice is useful and, now that we have neat little cubes to Woo with, the astringeing of the complexion is no task at all.

Other means of stimulation are to be had. Deep breathing, by accelerating the blood stream, acts as a tonic. Physical exercise is helpful; it arouses the body, produces a flow of moisture from the sweat glands which flushes the pores, and gives a perfect feeling for a rabe. A delicious filling for into a tablespoon of boiling water, stir in a thick!

Now for that smooth surface effort. The skin is, constantly sloughing and skin cells functioning and goes on too rapidly, the epidermis is rough, what we call chapped, lifeless skin. The method of cleansing cream comes along as a good friend. The heavier emollient that is tapped into the complexion at night, after the soapy cleansing, tends to keep tissues firm to nodding the cutaneous covering that is getting enraged and going on a flaking spree.

So when Paulecia has it all in a nutshell.

Throttle Control Releases Giving Gar Wood Easy Win Over Kaye Don, Challenger

Miss England III Towed Off Course as Engine Quits

MECHANIC BURNED

Tried to Hold Control Until Heat Was Completed

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6 (CP). The seventh attempt of a challenger to lift the Harmsworth Trophy failed as have all others in the last decade—in the dizzying pace of the challenging craft, Miss England III, piloted by Kaye Don, Britain's ace speed demon, was one of the historic bronze plaque, yesterday's heat was merely a workout in Miss America X. After mechanical difficulties had beset Don, to a complete stop before he could finish 15 miles of the 30 mile course, Wood coasted along to an uncontested victory.

Broken Throttle Control

Don stated it was a broken throttle control that caused the motor which caused all his trouble. When the starboard motor failed, he said, the added strain was too much for the other engine, which quickly agreheated.

Before Wood had finished his fourth lap of the seven-mile semi-ellipse Don had accepted a tow for his hot and smoking craft and had eliminated from further competition this year.

"I am deeply disappointed since I feel that I have disappointed many thousands of people who had good contest in today's heat."

He said he would leave here for Toronto Wednesday, but added that he was not sure he would be able to put on a scheduled demonstration run at the boat, Thursday.

Wood expressed regret that the mishap had eliminated Don. "That was tough luck on Don," he said the latter's boatwell.

"Rotten luck," Don agreed.

Dick Garner, Don's mechanic, suffered burns about the head in his right forearm and face when he attempted to make repairs to the disabled motor. He was given hospital treatment after the boat was towed to the wharf.

Tried Holding By Hand

"I tried to hold the throttle control together by hand, and just hung on, wondering how many laps we would make. I held on as long as I could, and had to let go. Garner explained afterwards.

With visions of Miss England III showing something like the 119.81 miles an hour, that gave it the world's speed championship, the fully 200,000 persons lined the mainland shore and the observation points on ferryboats, cruisers, canoes, rowboats, or other craft.

The race gave them probably only one real thrill, a beautiful start that carried both boats across the line less than one second apart at a speed which Don nearly and Wood have both between ninety and ninety-five miles an hour. Wood got across the starting line only 4.31 seconds after the starting signal. Wood was 5.17 seconds behind the signal.

Wood Soon in Lead

A few boat lengths away from the start, Wood's Miss America X shot into the lead, and within a minute Don was again fighting the trouble that overtook him the first heat on Saturday. He tried gamely to carry on. With only one motor functioning, he pressed on for six more miles, and then was forced to give up.

It was noted that as Miss England III and Miss America X approached the starting line Monday, Don also slowed down the challenger perceptible. "I didn't want to go across too soon," he explained. He added, however, that he did not believe the sudden down of his boat's speed had anything to do with his later difficulties.

Asked whether he had noticed the failure of the starting gun, he said, "I didn't make any difference. We never hear it anyway in the rear of our motors."

Wood said that as soon as arrangements can be made he will make an attempt with Miss America X, to beat the one-mile record now held by Don with Miss England III. No definite time or place for the trials was announced.

driving his car in the same direction. He passed the two boys on the bridge and knew nothing of the accident until after it had occurred. When he came to the east end of the bridge a number of local firemen, who were on duty at No. 1 fire hall, saw the car dragging a bicycle and the boy behind it. They shouted and waved frantically to Mr. Reynolds who immediately stopped his automobile.

The lad had evidently got his front wheel tangled up in the rear axle hampertire of the Reynolds' car as it was being dragged from that part of the automobile. Young Knudsen also got tangled up in the wheel. He could not free himself and was dragged for at least 30 feet. As soon as it was ascertained that the boy was seriously injured the local police were notified. Constable Evans hurried to the scene of the accident with the ambulance and took the boy, who was suffering considerably from his injuries, to the hospital.

According to statements from the police officers no blame was attached to Mr. Reynolds as he had driven his automobile on the right-of position. Besides being rather badly bruised and shaken up, the injured boy was suffering from burns received when he dragged on the pavement. The car was also badly damaged.

His fracture were reported by Dr. Cronk, who attended the lad, after x-Raying same after an x-Ray examination early Monday morning. Late that afternoon the boy was released from the Belleville General Hospital.

the large cuts received from the flying glass. Later in the day she was discharged from the hospital.

Miss Damford was driving east as the time of the accident and following a car which she thought was slowing up for the railway crossing. She applied the brakes of her car to slow up also and as she did so she car swerved to the left skidding some little distance turning completely around on the wet slippery pavement, sliding into the south ditch and turning completely over. The car came to rest upside down against the guy wire of a telephone pole.

No particular damage was reported to the car except a bent fender and three of the windows were broken, the shattered glass flying and cutting the occupants. Provincial Constable Stringer investigated the accident.

SMALL TORNADO HITS THE CITY

Hydro And Telephone Employees Work Hours to Clear Debris

Approaching in severity a miniature tornado, a sharp, sudden electrical storm, which swirled in from the west, early Sunday morning, seemingly for a fitty mile gale deluged the district with rain of cloudburst proportions, uprooted thousands of trees in the section, and tore off to the east leaving behind it wrecked gardens, a trail of broken trees and branches in the city and scores of broken panes of glass in homes in the western section of the city and district, where the storm had reached its zenith. Considerable damage to trees was reported from the west, but it is believed that the eastern section of the county escaped comparatively light.

In the city many electric lines, power lines and telephone wires were carried to the ground by the falling branches In some sections light and power was not available until late Sunday, while Hydro and telephone men worked strenuously to repair the damage. On almost every street huge limbs and leaves littered the roads and walks. All day Sunday department of public works men were engaged in clearing up the debris. Casualties from falling limbs and trees were reported to be light owing to the fact, that few pedestrians were crossing. She applied the brakes of her car to slow up also and as she did so the car swerved to the left skidding some little distance turning completely around on the wet slippery pavement, sliding into the south ditch and turning completely over. The car came to rest upside down against the guy wire of a telephone pole.

BOY RUNS INTO REAR OF TRUCK

Taken to Physician but is Not Seriously Hurt

Mr. B. D. Salisbury, 33 Howard Street, reported to the police Saturday afternoon a slight accident that occurred near the corner of West Moira and Coleman Streets about 2.30 p.m.

Mr. Salisbury was driving a truck and proceeded east on West Moira Street, he passed two cars which were parked on the left hand side of the street and met a car proceeding west. He was driving his truck well on the right hand side of the street when suddenly the approaching car, As the oncoming car passed him, two little boys ran out from behind it, one evidently running into the left front fender and was knocked down Mr. Salisbury at once stopped the truck and returned to the scene of the accident. The little lad was not hurt to any extent although the driver took him to a local physician to be examined. No action was taken.

HIGH WIND CAUSES DAMAGE TO TREES

Many trees and limbs were reported to have been blown down in and about the city during the high wind and heavy rain which visited Belleville early Sunday morning. Limbs of trees were thrown about the streets, some of which obstructed the traffic in the early morning hours.

Many Hydro Electric lines were broken during the storm with the result that practically all the Hydro System was out of commission for well over five hours early Sunday morning. The Hydro employees worked strenuously all night to try and repair the damage.

The local telephone service was also interrupted for a short time but by 8 a.m. all repairs had been made and the telephones were reported to have been in full operation.

Some little damage was reported to have been done to the residential district caused from the flying limbs of trees and trees falling on property. The property. The storm was some of the worst of its kind experienced this season. The high winds, accompanying the rain storm, caused the most part of the damage.

THEFT CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN

No Intent is Shown When Taking War Souvenirs

POLICE SEEK SLAYER OF HARRY THOMAS

quarrel which developed afterplans had been made for a ball-out just outside of Peterboro. The information was obtained from three of a group of twenty-five transients, who were rounded up After the murder was reported to the police. Early arrests are expected. It was stated this morning.

Long War Service

Thomas, who is stated to have lived in the "hobo jungle" here for some time, is reported to have sailed in business recently at Windsor. He was an ex-service man and went overseas to England and France with the 34th Battery, C.F.A. subsequently serving with the 2nd Battery. Discharge papers show he enlisted at Valcartier on Sept. 22, 1914 and received his discharge at Kingston on Feb. 13, 1919

Maurice J. Gaining, part-owner of the boathouse, made the grue-some discovery of the dead man's body at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning.

"The boathouse has been used much by transients," he said, "and so bad, after the murder was discovered that one day I was ordered off my own property.

"Sunday morning" Mr. Gainey continued, "I opened up the boathouse door and saw a body of a man in a reclining position against one of the boats. I went in to see if he was dead. He made no reply, and I thought he was asleep.

Returning to the boathouse a few minutes later, Mr. Gainey was suspicious when he saw the man's body in the same position. He notified the police.

Fitted up with a rough table and rudely constructed bunks and old stove, the boathouse had been occupied by a number of men, but an unknown transient, who is stated to have been a "hobo king" among people away. He and other transients have been a source of worry to residents in the vicinity of the jungle, despite repeated raids which have been made by police through out the summer.

Seen Late Saturday

Albert Lessard, one of the many transients living in the boathouse, who gave a Quebec address, said he last saw the murdered man, whom he knew as "Dutch" or Thomas, at 7 p.m. on Saturday. He described the man as being of a quiet disposition.

"He left with another man, who is supposed to have been his chum for three months," Lessard said. "They were both sober, and earlier in the afternoon had been in a fight. They were both sober, and earlier in the afternoon had been in a fight," said Lessard.

The unknown man, stated to have been the man's chum is missing, and it is for him that police are searching. Lessard stated that he recently, blood-stained table-knife, which he had found in the bush. An autopsy was made here Sunday afternoon by Coroner H. J. Young, but the results were not made public. Lessard, who is a Catholic, was called upon Archdeacon Dr. B. C. Blagrave, who visited the boathouse with the police. He had a hard-luck story to tell, and stated that he had once failed in business at Windsor.

The tragic passing of Harry Thomas of this city at Peterboro on Sunday is deeply regretted and sympathy for his many friends here and especially by the men, who served with him during the 34th Battery with the 34th Battery to join the first Canadian Contingent at Valcartier and proceed overseas with the September draft of that year. In the final organization of the contingent to proceed to France in the 2nd Battery, C.F.A. number of the 2nd Battery, C.F.A. and with that battery he served throughout the duration of the war to the eventful march into Germany and final demobilization in Canada in 1919.

Blown up at Ypres

He was blown up at the second battle of Ypres by a shell while carrying up ammunition to his harassed battery. To all who fought with the late Harry Thomas, memories of his soldierly devotion to duty will ever be cherished. He ever played a soldier's and comrade's part.

Subsequent to disbandment of the Canadian Corps he resided in Belleville, working as brother's butcher store here. Later he took over the managership of one of Phillip's chain stores at Windsor. Upon his retirement from active in Belleville, then he entered business for himself at Windsor. In the depression of 1929-1930 he found his business unsuccessful and returned to Belleville where he resided again for a short time, then going to Montreal and again to Windsor.

At Half Staff

Today the flag is at half staff on Memorial Hall in Belleville and in front of the building draped in mourning in respect to a soldier, who played a soldier's part in the war for Empire and King.

The family surviving are the father and mother, George L. and Mrs. Thomas of this city, two brothers, Walter of Belleville and Albert of Kingston; four sisters: Misses Beatie and Irene, at home, Miss Dorothy of Detroit and Mrs. Harry Stewart of Oshawa; two half brothers George and Lawrence of this city, and a half sister, Mrs. Martha Cockell of Vancouver.

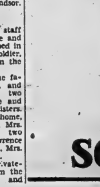
CAR SLUES AND THEN ROLLS ON ITS SIDE

After going out of control, a car which was driven by Mr. Chas. Runion of Campbellford, turned sideways and rolled completely over on the Campbellford-Stirling road about six miles west of Stirling early Saturday evening.



Accompanying Mr. Runion at the time of the accident, were Messrs. Ayrhart and Thomas Stewart both of Campbellford. The car was being driven in a westerly direction at the time and no apparent reason could be arrived at which might cause such an accident to occur.

Mr. Runion was taken to the surgery of Dr. Alger of Stirling later being treated for a compound fracture of the left thumb. Later he was able to return home.

Mr. Stewart also needed the attention of a physician as he was slightly cut, about the head. All three occupants of the car returned to their respective homes late Saturday night. The car was quite badly damaged.

Provincial Police investigated the case and charges may be laid as a result of their investigation.

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Mary Faith looked up at him with troubled frowning eyes.

"Kim you and I never have played cards on Sunday," she answered. "Why should we start to do it now? —Besides the Maidens pay for the money and I wouldn't gamble over a week-day. I don't want to go, Kim."

He stood staring into space for a minute or two. Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"Suit yourself," he said. "But I hope you won't mind if I go. I'd like to get out of this place for a couple of hours. After all, Sunday is the only day in the week that I have to myself.... and I like to see people once in a while. You never ask anybody here."

"You won't let me ask Jean Bertier...here," Mary Faith reminded him. "And you don't like Jean and the men she used to pal with. I'm sorry, Kim, but I like you to get into the habit of drinking and gambling with these fellows. I never used to do things like that."

Kim started down the stairs. "Well, I'm not doing them now," he said as he walked away from her. "I suppose I'll have to get some personal liberty even if I am a married man."

She heard him tell Clarice that he'd be right over to play bridge with her, go on deep, the hall to his bedroom.

She got up presently and followed him.

He was standing at his dresser, plastering his blond hair close to his head with a few brushes.

"Kim, I don't know what to do about the Maidens," Mary Faith said, eyes meeting his in the cloudy mirror above the dresser. "They're nice people, but I think they're too swift for us.... At the same time I don't think that a with ought to be a good sport. I'd always made up my mind to like your friends and to go whenever you went."

"Well, why don't you go then instead of talking about it so much?" Kim cut her short. "Playing cards on Sunday isn't one of the seven deadly sins, whether you know it or not—"

"Oh, I wasn't going to play cards even if I went!" Mary Faith interrupted him this time. "I thought I'd go and read while the rest of you played. I'd have just as good a time as the rest of you, and I would not bother anyone."

Kim brushed that over for a moment.

"No, that wouldn't do," he decided. "You'd be just a wet blanket, sitting there by yourself, refusing to take a drink or enter into the spirit of things.... If you're not going to go and behave yourself like a human being you'd better stay here."

He took out his bill-fold and took from it a ten-dollar note from it. Then, with a grin, he handed her the bill-fold.

"That's all I'm going to take with me," he said, pocketing the ten dollars. "When I've lost that I'll leave. ...Ten dollars are all those sharks are going to get from me this night my girl."

As was long after midnight when he came home. Mary Faith was in bed and he did not turn on the light in the room when he came in. She heard him stumble against a chair. Then he sat down heavily on the side of the bed.

"You can turn on the light, Kim. I'm awake," she said.

He turned it on and stood, blinking at her, in the sudden white radiance. His hair was on the back of his head and his overcoat was thrown wide open.. He took it off and Mary Faith saw that he had only a vest under it.

"Where's your coat?" she asked him sharply, and he looked down at himself and began to smile sheepishly.

"I took it off while we were playing poker," he explained, "and I must have left it at the Maidens'. Don't worry about it, Mary Faith. Jack'll bring it down to the office in the morning."

He was shivering all over. "Could you get me a drink of water?" he asked. "Cold as Greenland!"

"You're cold," she said. "You hop into bed and I'll get you something hot to drink."

In the kitchen she heated some milk and filled a hot water bottle. When she came back into the bedroom he was sound asleep, and his mother was tucking an extra blanket around his shoulders. She looked at Mary Faith, and spoke to her in a whisper.

"He's been drinking," she said. "He's just like his father before him—too fond of the good thing. How many times his father came home to me just like that! I got tired of it after a while and so I left him."

She started out of the room. She "You'd get tired of it too." threw the words over her shoulders as she went.

Kim slept until eleven o'clock the next morning although Mary Faith went into the room three times and did her best to wake him up. When she finally did get up he showed the ill effects of the night before. His eyes were clear and his skin was fresh and ruddy.

He sang "I've been Working on the Railroad" as he took his shower, and he ate his usual large breakfast, taking his own good time about it.

"It's almost noon, Kim!" Mary Faith said to him when he had finished and was opening the morning paper. "Don't you think I ought to call up the office and tell them that you're not going to work? I'm worrying where you are, won't they?"

Kim glanced at her over the top of the paper his eyes narrowed. "What are you trying to do? Nag me out of the house?" he asked. "I'll be there. You don't have to call up the office and tell them anything. I'm capable of running my own business even if I am married."

Mary Faith made no answer him She left him and went back into the bedroom and began to make the bed. "I'll be ready in an hour," Kim called after her. "Have lunch ready when I get there."

Then there was the matter of the bathroom. He let it be clear that he wanted to have the use of it at any time between half past seven and half past eight. He went when he called out of it, the walls and floor were dripping with water because he always forgot to draw the shower curtain, and the bathmat would be lying in a corner along with the wad of wet bath towels he had used.

But that sort of thing did not worry Mary Faith. She was all cleaned up after Kim was part of her job as a good wife and she did it cheerfully.

Every Monday morning she and Mrs. Farrell did the week's washing. Every Tuesday Mary Faith did the ironing alone.

"I like to iron," she told her mother-in-law. "I like the hot smell of the iron and the way it leaves a nice smooth trail behind it. It goes—and—goes—and—goes—"

Mrs. Farrell had been sending the washing out to a laundry that had charged anywhere from three to five dollars a week for doing it.

CHAPTER 20

"If you wanted to do a real help to Kimberley," said Mrs. Farrell, "you'd get a job and go to work in an office again. That's what you'd do."

"Nope," Mary Faith came back at her, "I don't want to work. Kim would feel that I was discontented and didn't want to live on what he makes. It would hurt him—it would hurt his pride terribly. He wants to support his wife and—"

She had plenty to do at home, besides. She spent the short days of the winter making new curtains of natural scrim and dyeing them to various colors. She bought tan and cream and green silk and made covers for the cushions of the old couch in the parlor. She bought two wicker boxes of daffodils for the front window of the flat.

The winter went by and spring came all at once, in a burst of sunlight, the last week in March. All that week Mary Faith cleaned house—washing woodwork, brushing cobwebs from the smoky ceiling, polishing the water faucets until they shone like silver. She put the dusty carpets to the dry-cleaners and bought a dark blue rug for the living room and Kim and Kim shared.

"Where did you get the money for all this stuff?" Kim asked her on Sunday as they sat over their morning paper.

Mary Faith laughed. "You don't think I worked for four years without putting away a dollar every now and then, do you, Kim?"

He shifted in his chair, studying her face with his gray eyes.

"Look here, Mary Faith," he said at last. "I hate to ask you, but can you let me take sixty dollars?"

She answered him without a second's hesitation. "Why, of course, Kim, and I'll be glad to. I'll get it out of the bank first thing in the morning."

What he did with his own money she didn't know. He put his monthly check for every week for food and ice and newspapers, and the rest he kept himself. Mary Faith knew almost nothing about the household finances.

The next day Kim came home in the middle of the afternoon. His mother had gone to the library for a book and Mary Faith was sitting by the window, reading, when she saw his car stop in front of the building.

She opened the door for him and he dropped down on the window seat without stopping to take off his hat and coat. He was sobbing and he took a cigarette out of his pocket and lit it.

"Well," he said, "you won't have to lend me that sixty dollars I asked you for."

"Honey, that, Kim?" She had brought it home from the bank that morning and it was lying now in the bottom of the drawer where she kept her stockings and handkerchiefs.

"Well, I'll tell you why I wanted that money," he began slowly. "You know, I go a lot of collecting for the firm, and a couple of months ago I collected sixty dollars from an old fellow named Grammas over on the west side."

He took a cigarette from his pocket and struck a match to it.

"I didn't turn it in at the office that day," he went slowly on, "and that night I had a run of luck at playing craps at the Athletic club."

Mary Faith remembered the very night that it must have been. Kim had called her up and told her he was going to play poker with Jack Maiden and some friends of his and that she'd better not wait up for him—he was going to be late.

"I ought to have put everything else on and put that money back right away," Kim said, "but I knew you had it and I knew you had any money I'd have been all right. But I didn't."

"You can put it back now!" Mary Faith got up from her chair. "I have it in my room.... I'll get it."

"No, it's too late now. You don't think I'm going to admit now that I took it, do you? You must be crazy," he said. "I told them that I turned it over to Mike Brennan" she takes care of all that sort of stuff—and I'm never going to tell anything else. That's my story and I'm stuck with it."

He got up and went home at dinner time and told her that Mike Brennan had forgotten to pay him.

He was very bitter about it.

"When I think of the years I've wasted, working for them!" he said. "Going all over town every day, collecting their bills and doing the rest of their dirty work for them! Why, they haven't ever given me a raise in the whole seven years—and then, by gosh, the first time I don't turn in a piece of money and hold it, they kick me out!"

Mary Faith came and sat beside him, laying one of her hands over his. It was no longer white and smooth and pink-tipped as it had been in the days when she was Mark Welsh's secretary and it was all without a wedding ring.

"Why don't you take that sixty dollars of mine and give it to Mr. McIntrear" she asked him. "Why don't you go to him and make a clean breast of the whole matter? He's always been a master to me at some time or other in their lives, and there isn't a shadowy hint in your body, really." Her blue eyes pleaded with him, believed in him, and loved him.

He was staring at the floor and his mouth was set in a hard stubborn line.

"No, I'll see him in Calcutta before I go near him," he said. "Besides I don't want his dirty penny job any more. He can take it and give it to the office boy.... If I had any money I'd open an office of my own I'd show them whether I'm a lawyer or not!"

He looked at her then. There was a question written in his face.

"How much would it take—how much money would it take?" Mary Faith asked.

"Well, I wouldn't be able to count on getting very many clients for the first two or three months. I'd have to take a thousand dollars anyway. You see, it would cost something to keep this flat going and I couldn't rent a decent office for less than a hundred a month. Then I'd have to have a girl to answer the telephone and look after things when I wasn't there."

"All right. I have a thousand dollars and you can have it, Kim," Mary Faith said and watched the look of relief that swept across his face. "I can be your office girl, too can't I?"

"Oh, no. I may be a poor sort of a husband, but I won't let my wife work in my office," he said promptly and firmly.

Then he caught her in his arms, crushing her close to him. "To think of a little thing like you saving all that money, when I've never saved a red cent!" he said humbly. "Why, you're nothing but a gadget!"

"A very thrifty gadget," Mary Faith laughed and then sobered all at once. "When I saved that money I didn't know how much Kim loved me. I was saving up for myself, Kim," she said.

WILL ROGERS IN "DOWN TO EARTH"

Will Rogers newest comedy romance, "Down to Earth," is the feature attraction at the Belle, today and Wednesday, matinee and night.

It is said to focus all the brilliance that has ever been the greatest and most quoted observer in the country today. While in a sense the picture is a continuation of Rogers' first talkie, "They Had to See Paris," its theme and locale are completely different.

The story opens with Rogers as "Pike Peters," the Oklahoma millionaire, back home again with his family after their Paris jaunt. The stock market is shot to pieces and Peters is greatly worried, but his wife has an insatiable desire for social honors and his son aids her in extravagant spending. The failure of a bank forces Peters to apply for a local loan and that failing, as a result of Mrs. Peters' love of elegance and display, he goes to Chicago with the same result. How he gets his family down to earth again forms the basis of the production.

"Down To Earth" is called the most important picture of Rogers' career. It was written by the author of "They Had to See Paris," Homer Croy, specially to fit the star's talents.

Irene Rich As Wife

Irene Rich, who appeared as Rogers' wife in his first two talking pictures, again portrays the part, by analysts here brings about most of his hilarious troubles. Mitchell Harris, who made the first few days of the production, on the film a long-distance contract, enacts the role of the irrepressible son, and Dorothy Jordan that of the boy's childhood sweetheart who gave aside in favor of her wealthier rival.

Theodore Loll, the Grand Duke "Mike" of the Ziegfeld Follies, creates the role in this new film that Mary Carlisle plays the part of the spoiled "deb" who sets her cap for young Kemp. Clarence Wilson, Brandon Hurst, Louise Mackintosh and other noted character players fill out the supporting cast. Edwin Burke wrote the screen play from dialogue from Croy's original story.

Constance Bennett Coming

The many Belleville admirers of Constance Bennett will be pleased to hear that her popular screen actress, "Two Against the World" opens at the Belle on Tuesday. It is a great vehicle one has been given what it deserves in the dramatic role. Certainly it is one of thrilling emotions, for the heroine is charged with murder in a sensational criminal court trial in which she confesses although innocent, in a plaint with a man whom her brother has murdered. And since it is done in the presence of the man she loves, Neil Hamilton, who is compelled by his legal position to prosecute her brother. There are twenty odd new gowns, worn as only Miss Bennett can wear them.

Will Rogers and Dorothy Jordan in "Down to Earth," now at the Belle.

ONCE OVERS

In a game of bridge what sort of a partner are you?

Do you measure the one playing with you if she or he makes a poor play?

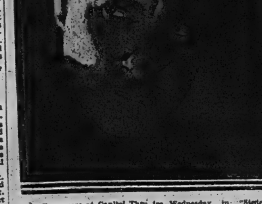
Are you persistent in your objections as that you annoy the one opposite to you to a point where thoughtful playing is impossible or the object of anger and resentment?

When you attend a bridge party, social gathering, you should not expect that all of your partners will be perfect.

Some persons have no card sense. Others play infrequently and therefore are not good players.

Contesting in a regular tournament, in which all partners are expected to be fairly good, at least, you have a right to demand more knowledge of the game.

But a social bridge party, at the home of a friend, or in your own home or even club house gatherings where you are a guest or a good player, must expect to be paired with some who are not so good.



The person who grumbles at his partner's play is the worst sort of a bore.

JOHN BARRYMORE STATE'S ATTORNEY

The personal magnetism of John Barrymore is emphasized more than ever in RKO Radio Pictures "State's Attorney," which comes to the Capitol Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

The actor plays the role of a court-room Don Juan who wins juries by his fiery eloquence and women by his debonair personality. Blanche Helen Twelvetrees plays the feminine lead.

Plays Sensational Lawyer

Barrymore plays a brilliant attorney who is drafted into public service because of his record in defending criminals. In a sensational trial he secures the conviction of a notorious murderess and later finds himself forced to demand the life of the underworld leader he once represented legally.

The amazing climax begins to unfold as the prosecutor arraigns the witness he really loves during the underworld leader's trial, and comes to a point when he lays bare his soul in a blazing plea to the jury.

Star Cast to Support

William Gargan plays the part of the underworld chief and Jill Esmond plays the society girl, Mary Duncan the "moll" and one of the murderes. Others in the featured cast are Lucien Littlefield, David Apfel, Ralph Ince, C. Henry Gordon, Hal Pereira, Edmund Breese, Tom and Leon Wayoff. George Archambaud directed. The screen play by Gene Fowler and Rowland Brown is based on an original story by Louis Stevens.

John Barrymore is the ranking favorite of the "royal family" of Broadway and Hollywood. Theatrical history began with the birth of the Barrymores and the Drews—his family on his mother's side. Barrymore was born in Philadelphia. He wanted to be an artist, so went to Art school in Paris. Tried drawing cartoons for newspapers in London and Philadelphia and advised him to try the stage with other members of the family.

Mediocre success led to stardom and sensational popularity that has been equally great on stage and screen. "Hamlet" is probably his best known stage role, and is his favorite.

He has the world's most famous profile, referred to as the "ideal of evil pictures and has been even more successful in light pictures. Some of his latest are "Grand Hotel," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Svengali", "Moby Dick" and "Arsene Lupin."

He plays his first modern American role, that of a reckless, gallant not-too-scrupulous criminal in crooks who eventually attains the district attorney's office through politics.

"State's Attorney" reveals a new John Barrymore—gay, suave, the lover as in the past, but also a man of steel and fine challenging fire of the law, and later crime in the same skilful and unrelenting fashion. It is a role said to be admirably suited to the versatility of Barrymore. "State's Attorney" comes to the Capitol Wednesday morning in time for its star cast Helen Twelvetrees, Jill Esmond, William Gargan and Mary Duncan and others.

Ramon Navarro in "Huddle", comes to the Capitol on Thursday. Unsurpassed success of this picture in the States has marked "Huddle" as one of Navro's biggest hits.

Wednesday is Glassware Gift.

SIR GILBERT PARKER DIES IN LONDON

Germany Asks Equality in Armaments From Disarmament Conference

Sir Gilbert Parker, One Time Resident of City, Dies in London England

AT HOLLOWAY

Broke Trail For Canadian Literature And Wrote Many Books

LATE SIR GILBERT PARKER

Cal. W. H. Fenton, K.C. received word late this afternoon from the Hon. Minister of the Interior, Sir Gilbert Parker, that the funeral will be held in Belleville. Instructions will be forwarded as soon as possible, the table stated.

London, Sept. 7 — Sir Gilbert Parker, noted Canadian-born novelist, died here at his home in London last night, aged 72.

For more than 30 years his name figured from time to time among the best sellers and was best known, perhaps for his novel, "The Seats of the Mighty," which sold more than 100,000 copies in 1896.

He was born in Camden East, Ont., Nov. 23, 1860.

Two years ago he was still engaged upon the almost interminable writing of which he could visualize no end. He had a yearn to put on his memoirs he said and other plots in his head.

He made frequent visits to Ontario, his native neighborhood, and some years ago purchased a home in Belleville, Ont., where his parents and sister resided nearly years ago.

Born at Camden East

Camden East, where he was born, is a few miles north of Napanee, in the public school of which he received his early education. He taught school at Melbourne in many halls north of Belleville for many years and afterwards was attached to the staff of the School for the Deaf.

After his ordination to holy orders he was curate at Trenton. Later he developed a literary bent. Trinity College at Toronto and paid his way with fees from elocution instructions.

Sir Gilbert's wife, who died in 1931, is buried in Belleville cemetery.

Surviving Sir Gilbert are a sister, Mrs. Beaumont Jarvis, Toronto, and two brothers, Harry of Belleville, and Arthur.

London, Sept. 7 — Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian-born novelist who gained fame in the newspaper fields at Hamilton and afterwards ship at his turn of the century, died in his seventy-second year yesterday after a heart attack.

The author of such best sellers as "The Seats of the Mighty" and "The Lane Had No Turning" also became in world fame by working steadily in his London flat in Whitehall. Until a few months ago, when it was necessary for nurses to attend him, he had been under the Dr. A. Leslie Lankester was called in. The famous author expired at 4.30 p.m.

Present were only nurses, Sir Gilbert's wife and a Parliament. He had no close relatives in England, although several resided in Canada.

Sir Gilbert's wife, the former Amy Van Tine, wealthy heiress, died in 1931 after the couple had been married for thirty years.

Before Sir Gilbert went to London, he early 80's he had done a deal of writing which had not attracted universal attention. He was not until he developed a leading character, half-and-half villian, but essentially an adventurer, and romantic figure of the days of the North woods, that Sir Gilbert won his way into the best-seller group.

But as he began to reap the rewards of his work he devoted more of his time to politics, and in 1900 became a member of Parliament from Gravesend, serving eighteen years, the longest period of any, in, 1902, a Baronet in 1915, and in 1918 was made a member of the Privy Council.

Portrayed French Canada.

Sir Gilbert Parker long held a place of leadership among writers of fiction of Canadian birth. His romances (1) early life in French Canada opened a new path especially previously touched, and though he later employed other settings for his fiction he will be best known for "The Seats of the Mighty" and other tales of New French regime.

He was born at Camden East, Ont., Nov. 23, 1860, of Loyalist descent. He was educated privately and at Trinity University, Toronto. He was married in 1895 to Amy the daughter of Ashley Van Tine of New York. He was ordained to the Church of England, but turned to journalism and literature instead. In 1889 He went to Australia and engaged in journalism there also travelling in New Zealand, Tasmania and the South Sea Islands. Since 1890 he made his home in England, where he entered Parliament, and carried on his career as a novelist. He was Knighted in 1902.

His visits to Canada from time to time and received evidence of high appreciation of his work as a writer.

Among Sir Gilbert's best-known books are: "The Vendetta" (1889); "The Pierre and His People" (1892); "Mrs. Falchion" (1893); "The Translation of a Savage" (1894); "The Trail of the Sword" (1894); "When Valmond Came to Pontiac" (1895); "The Seats of the Mighty" (1896); "The Battle of the Strong" (1898); "The Lane That Had No Turning" (1900); "The Right of Way" (1901); "The Weavers" (1907); and "Summers Son" (1910).

JEAN HARLOW AT LOSS TO EXPLAIN ACT

Conflicting Stories Told of Events Leading up to Suicide

ALL MYSTERY

Note Left is Meaningless to Wife States Detectives on Case

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 7—Conflicting stories of week-end events which preceded the discovery of the body of Paul Bern, film producer and husband of Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen star, confused police investigation of late supper-set suicide today.

Coroner Nicholson, head of the police homicide squad, said he was dissatisfied with the progress his men have made in the case since pending the inquest Thursday, he would again question domestic help of the producer.

The inspector of detectives said the contradictions differ as to the events of last Saturday and Sunday.

The unclothed body of Bern, 42, was found by Johnn Carmichael, butler, Monday, in the dressing room of his home. A bullet from a rifle discharged, was gripped in Bern's right hand and a bullet wound was in his head.

Miss Harlow was questioned by police last night. She is said to have been forced to wait for more than twenty-four hours due to her hysterical condition.

"I can't understand why this terrible thing should have happened," she said. "As for the note left by Paul, I have no idea what it means. This 'frightful wrong' he apparently believed he had done is a mystery. I can't imagine what it means."

Paul Bern talked to me of suicide as a general topic, but never once did he intimate that he himself contemplated such an act. There was nothing between us that would think of that would have caused him to do this.

Fairies of Folklore an Actual Race of Men but Driven Out by Influx

York, Eng., Sept. 7—There are reasons for believing that the fairies of folklore were an actual race of men—perhaps driven out by the influx of modern man—the British Association for the Advancement of Science was told today.

It was quite possible, said Rev. Canon J. A. MacCulloch, that the stories of fairies are based on facts and date back to some long-lost race of pygmies or neolithic men, who lost out in the struggle for survival with the ancestors of man as he is today.

The traditional conception of fairies and gnomes bears a close resemblance to pygmies as they are known today. Fairies also may have been thoughts of as ghosts of an earlier race. They are often connected with burial mounds and there are parallels in folklore between fairies and ghosts.

An early pigmy race can not be the sole foundation of a belief in fairies, however, Canon MacCulloch said. The fairy folklore has been embellished with many supernatural beliefs and fairies finally became beings with a combination of human and imaginary traits.

Ancient man in Britain, who may or may not have been the basis of the fairy-tale folklore, came back to glacial times, said Prof. P. G. H. Boswell.

It is now definitely known, he explained that Europe was at one time characteristic a mammal of glacial and inter-glacial times as the mammoth and straight-tusked elephant."

Unemployed War Veterans Have Allowances Increased

Conform to Rate Paid by Municipalities is Decision

Calgary, Sept. 7 (CP) — Relief allowances to unemployed war veterans have been increased, effective yesterday, according to Premier R. B. Bennett, instructions have been issued by the Department of Pensions and National Health to bring such allowances up to the standard of unemployment relief in the municipality in which the veteran resides.

The scale of relief, however, is still lower than prevailing previous to August 1 last, year when reductions were made. Average reductions of pensioners received $30 per month while married men with five children received $67 per month.

Lowered Single Men

The cut lowered single men 10 $15 per month, while those married without children obtained $21.50. A married man with one child was given $30 per month with $2.50 for every child up to the number of five. A child under 16 was given as married man with six or more children.

According to veteran organisations officials here single men in Calgary under the increase will secure $13.80 per month. Married men without children will get $19 a month plus their $27.50 allowance. An increase of $5 will be granted to married men with one child and married men with two children will get $46. Married men with six children will receive $54 instead of $42.50 and receive additional child 50 cents monthly.

In other municipal districts and cities the rates will not be the same because of the differences obtained in the various sections of the Dominion.

NOVEL WAY OF GETTING CASH FOR AN APPEAL

Blackpool, Eng., Sept. 7.—The Rev. W. Leigh Jones, rector of Stiffray, fell afoul of the law again today, but his detention was brief.

The police charged him with "aiding and abeting the construction of a footpath" by selling in the church a monkey fair on exhibition at three cents a look. The proceeds of the unlicensed deterrent but the charge was dropped on police court learning the money for the exhibition promised to break his contract with the church.

Recently the Rev. Mr. David-son was convicted of immorality by a church tribunal. His adventure in the barrel, he said, was a means of obtaining funds for an appeal.

MICHIGAN KID AND YANK ARE-MEN SOUGHT

No New Development in Death of Thomas in 48 Hours

THREE HELD

Believe Transients Can Identify Men if Apprehended

Peterboro, Ont., Sept. 7—The 48 hours which have elapsed since the finding of the body of Henry Thomas have been entirely barren of any developments which would lead to knowledge of the events or details of his assailants. Police are in possession of meagre descriptions of the murderers, "Canadian-bolford Shorty" also known as the "Michigan Kid" and a man known as only "Yank," who are thought to have been Thomas' companions on the day and night of his death.

Three Held

Three transients, who gave their names as Albert Lessard, Quebec; Sam Kelley, Ottawa, and Leslie Scott, London, are held by local police on technical charges, but it is believed likely that they may be able to identify the slain man's companions and may fall into the police net which now stretches from Montreal to Windsor.

The coroners jury last night brought in an open verdict that Thomas met his death at the hands of persons unknown. Medical testimony showed that Thomas met his death sometime between 10 p.m. Saturday and 4 a.m. Sunday. Death was due to a severed heart artery which would be fatal a few moments after infliction of the wound.

2 VICTIMS OF SUICIDE PACT

Man And Secret Bride Found by Side of Brook

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 7 (CP).—Believed to be victims of a suicide pact, William Rowzer, 28, and his secret bride, Joyce Roberta Romeck, 18, are dead as a result of carbon monoxide gas poisoning suffered when found lying on the bank of a brook here late today.

Mrs. Rozzek was shot through the temple and Rowzer through the base of the neck. Both were conscious when found. Rowzer died but died soon afterwards. No revolver has been found.

A note in the woman's purse disclosed their plan and the fact that they had been married in May.

WORKLESS NOT TO HAVE RIDES

Must Settle Down in One Place or Walk Distance

Calgary, September 7—Wayfaring workless adventurers will have to settle down in one place or walk under a new ruling announced, premier R. B. Bennett yesterday told deputations of unemployed committees and cities on unemployment relief here by the Dominion Government had decided to stop the movement of transients on trains.

While the deputation heard the ruling and promising consideration to appeals for increased federal assistance in unemployment relief, Mr. Bennett said that it was primarily the responsibility of the provinces and municipalities. The Dominion could not change the constitution and did not propose to relieve the provinces of their responsibility.

One of the requests of the Dominion Government will consider is for a contribution of 50 instead of 1-3 per cent. in the case of direct relief. Another request asking that unemployed in concentration camps be given relief, Mr. Bennett said, would be difficult. The Dominion had no power to order men into camps but could deny them relief if they refused to go.

NO WILL LEFT BY LATE PAUL BERN

Los Angeles Cal., Sept. 7—R. D. Richardson, Attorney for the late Paul Bern said as far as he knew no will was left by the film producer.

In that event, his widow, Jean Harlow of the films, will receive half of the estate and the other half will go to blood relatives.

Friends intimated today the estate of Bern will not be large as he was reported to have lost heavily in the stock market crash of 1929 and to have spent large sums of money in philanthropies.

German Ultimation Asks Equality in Armaments or Else Cessation from Pact

Request Came Out of a Clear Sky by Foreign Minister

ARM ANYWAY

Refutes Charges That Germany to Arm on Pre War Standard

Berlin, Sept. 7.—A German ultimatum, announcing that she will quit the world disarmament conference unless the powers agree to grant her equality in armaments was before the world today.

Delivered late last night Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath, published the text of the governments side memoire to the disarmament arms equal-ity demands. The document was handed to the French ambassador more than a week ago.

The note also suggested "Confidential talks between the French and German governments." Its publication followed a recent statement made at Hemingberg by Defense Minister General Kurt von Schleicher who said if Germany is not granted arms equality she will arm anyway.

The defense minister, recognized as a power behind the Von Papen government, made it be meant when he said.

Foreign Minister von Neurath said he published the text of the note to France to dispose of erroneous impressions which had got abroad and to refute charges that Germany was planning to arm to the pre-war standard. The additional memorandum published confidential, he said, but France had seen fit to communicate it to other nations. It contained nothing surprising, as the text would show, he said, and formed no intent to throw obstacles in the path of a disarmament treaty among the nations.

It is useless to tell us to have patience and wait for other powers to disarm in the course of time," the note said, "and that equality will only come along, too. We have been waiting now for 10 years to get our claims recognized."

Saint John, Sept. 7 (CP)—"The world-wide menace of communism in China," said Rev. John McNeill, principal of the Presbyterian University, Hamilton, and president of the Baptist World alliance, speaking before the Canadian Club here Tuesday.

Prominent in the field of theology, Dr. McNeill also is well known for his work of world-wide scope as a result of extended travel. For years he has been chairman of the Canadian Mission Board of Canada, and next July he will preside at the Baptist World Conference in Berlin.

"Communications in China, said the speaker, were largely due to the fact that she was bearing in one generation the great revolutions, Political, economic, social, intellectual and ethical.

Many Chinese had turned to Russia as the hope of the future and "we may yet see these two great countries with their vast populations combine in a communism that will dominate the east, and finally the west."

FOUL PLAY IS FEARED

Body of Aged Man Found Thrown Off High-way

Kemptville, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP) — Foul play is feared in the death of Edward Maddick, 75 year old farmer of Kemptville, whose body was found on the Colonial highway, near here, early today.

There was a deep crescent-shaped cut between his eyes which police believe was inflicted by a sharp instrument, and a small-sized gun secured. In view of the nature of wound between the eyes, police are disinclined to accept a theory of accidental death.

No motive has been advanced for the murder, which Coroner A. MacKay was without money, according to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Graham of Oxford. He visited Mac-Key last night, and he accompanied her part way home along the highway, and was returning to Kemptville when he met death. An inquest was ordered, but pending further investigation of the circumstances, it was adjourned until September 16th.

Michigan Motorist Swaps Bill With Manager and Saves His Exchange

Gate of exchange on American money may be a thing of the past to the majority of tourists from south of the border who will travel the broad highways of this country in their motor cars but it is proven a bonanza, in a lot of local gas station proprietors and collectors who have successfully collecting the odd twelve cents on every dollar. Most tourists have cheerfully kicked in and said nothing. Others don't like the idea.

A motorist from Michigan pulled in the station on Wednesday morning, pointed to an empty gas tank on the side car and murmured: "Fill her up".

Jimmy filled it to the brim, a ten dollar bill in American money was passed over and converted into Canadian change.

"Exchange" bellowed the motorist. "What about the exchange?"

Jimmy pointed to a sign on the wall, "Exchange 12 cents." The man from Michigan stormed: Bill no results. He entered his car and drove away, with a fierce glean in his eye.

Ten minutes later he was back, this time with a Canadian ten dol. lar bill. He had changed his money at the bank.

"Now we'll swap bills. Give me yours and I'll give you this one"

Jimmy gave him back his ten, with his bill wondering if he had "Fill her up".

SAVE WATER BY COOL WEATHER

While residents of the city have put by their garden hose and walk the streets shivering in toy coats, officials of the waterworks department have no cause for complaint over the weather, which has taken such a sudden sharp drop in temperature during the past few days. They have noticed an appreciable saving in water pressure. The fact that the sprinklers have ceased a total loss since the cold spell, they believe is the main contributor to the fact that the largest number of the season facing the standpipe in the city are from out of town, while 40 of them are beginners. Just commencing their great adventure into the halls of learning.

No Reason Why Toronto General Should be Singled Out

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP).—"There is no reason in the world why Toronto General Hospital should be singled out as the sole recipient of the $15,000 a year grant," declared Dr. James S. Simpson, surgeon-in-chief at St. Joseph's Hospital here, in commenting on criticism of the Ontario Cancer Commission report by Dr. Frederick A. Cleland.

"I think the benefits of research and study, which that money will give should be better distributed among some of the smaller hospitals, where it is just as much needed," said Dr. Simpson.

He agrees with Dr. Cleland," he added, "that the technique of radium handling is fairly simple and can be mastered by almost any intelligent surgeon."

"The need is for clinical research and why shouldn't that be done at a dozen different places?" stated Dr. Wilson. "Understand, I don't want to criticize the cancer commission."

He did not think the money available would provide adequately for cancer research.

The modest hero was nowhere to be found today. It was learned, however, that the young doctor, native of St. Thomas and captain of the Mustang grid team last autumn galloped rough-shod over opponents in the inter-collegiate race, is none the worse for his efforts in dragging the unconscious swimmers safe after another from the lake. Each rescue required a series of from 100 to 150 yards.

A Lesson in Elocution

The best lesson in elocution and public speaking, contained in Shakespeare's play of Hamlet, Act III, Scene III, when Hamlet gives instructions to the players.

Hamlet:—Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus but use all gently; for in the very torrent, tempest, and as, I may say, the whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness. Oh, it offends me to the soul, to hear a bobustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings, who, for the most part, are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb shows and noise; I could have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termagant; it out-herods Herod; pray you, avoid it. Be not too tame neither, but let your own discretion be your tutor; suit the action to the word, the word to the action; with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature; for anything so overdone is from the purpose of playing, whose end, but at this first and now, was and now holds, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature; to show virture her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time his form and pressure. Now, this overdone or come tardy off, though it make the unskilful laugh, cannot but make the judicious grieve, the censure of which one must, in your allowance, o'erweigh a whole theatre of others. Oh, there be players that I have seen play—and heard others praise and that highly—not to speak it profanely, that, neither having the accent of Christians, nor the gait of Christian, pagan nor man, have so strutted and bellowed that I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably. O reform it altogether. And let those that play your clowns speak no more than is set down for them; for there be them that will themselves laugh, to set on some quantity of barren spectators to laugh too; though, in the meantime, some necessary question of the play be then to be considered; that's villainous, and shows a most pitiful ambition in the fool that uses it. Go, make you ready.

If the scholars in all schools and universities in all colleges were encouraged to commit this lesson given 330 years ago to memory, the future standing would be greatly improved.

For Your Child's Sake, Buy a Home!

You will probably never again have an opportunity to buy a home so cheaply as at the present time; and the lasting effect, upon your boys and girls of having a home can never be reckoned in dollars and cents.

It is well-known among people who deal with juvenile delinquents that most of these children who are in trouble come from rented homes, small, crowded, unhappy homes. Says Judge Allegretti of Chicago "Ninety per cent of those of boys who come before me come from homes that are not owned by their parents".

There is a definite pride about owning your own home. The husband home to work in the garden, fix the porch steps or mow the lawn—and Son is alongside! There exists a common feeling of loyalty between them, the sharing of a common interest, a natural desire not only to preserve that home as it is but to build on it, to improve it. A child in a home he can easily claim as his own is owned by him and his parents. He gets a sense of responsibility for it that is seldom present in a house that is only rented.

With the acquiring of "our house" is born a civic pride, that grows into a local and later a national pride. And I don't feel that I'm going too far when I suggest the possibility that because we let boys and girls of having a home the other man own the house, we've come to feel that the other fellow is also the Government, and have dismissed all thirst with a shrug of indifference and irresponsibility.

Neither do I feel that it is out of place to go further and say that when dire necessity drives a family back to the ownership of a small plot of ground and a cottage, along with the feeling of responsibility for these will come again the feeling that each individual is a part of the community.

And children bred to these feelings will succeed all the better that the generation of "Let George do it" has perpetrated.

Lone Handed Grid Star Brings Seven in Out of Treacherous Undertow

Heroic Deed Witnessed by Many at Port Stanley

NO NAMES TAKEN

Dr. Angus D. McLachlin Most Likely Will be Rewarded

London, Ont., Sept. 7—Fighting a sensational battle in which he admitted he was at times "scared stiff," Angus McLachlin, star of St. Thomas, rescued seven persons—one at a time—from drowning in the undertow at Port Stanley Beach.

Through more than an hour of heroic effort the indomitable 1928 captain of Western's Mustangs assisted a handful of onlookers by repeated plunges into the treacherous surf, and, dazed, fights to drag half-drowned men and children ashore.

Into this movie-like thriller the doctor interjected other breath-taking episodes in which he used his medical skill to fan back the spark of life into three persons thought drowned.

Tuesday when friends in St. Thomas began to talk of drawing his position, Dr. Angus McLachlin of the Royal Canadian Humane Society with a view to securing official recognition of his acts, it was discovered that the names of the persons rescued had not been taken in the excitement.

Dangerous Undertow

The incident took place after some of the bathers reported that a dangerous undertow was developing. The London and Port Stanley Railway warned its patrons, but it is claimed that not one of the seven subsequently rescued from the lake paid heed to the railway. They had come, for the most part, from cottages, or in the case of the boy, had entered the lake without making contact with anyone in charge.

The first of the near victims was a boy who, while swimming with his 200 pound father, was suddenly swept under. His father, grown desperate at the boy's peril, soon became exhausted.

Seeing their plight, Dr. McLachlin plunged into the lake and swam strongly toward the drowning boy. He reached him about 75 feet from shore, spectators said and brought him to land, but as he did so learned that the father had not made shore.

Through still feeling the effects of his strenuous exertions, Dr. McLachlin ran again into the breakers and, swimming out, supported the man and led him to the beach.

The boy was lying in a perilous state, and the doctor immediately treated him by the prone pressure method of resuscitation, and soon had him sitting up.

Another search for help, focused attention on the arm of a young man frantically waving from the rolling breakers. It developed that this man had gone down while trying to help the father of the first boy. McLachlin reached him quickly and brought him ashore. The youth collapsed as he reached the beach, and again in the role of physician his rescuer brought him around.

McLachlin is in excellent physical condition, but the work began to tell on him and he begged persons nearby to shout a warning to all along the beach to quit the water.

At that moment cries were raised that a boy of 13 was fighting a losing attempt to help his nine year old sister ashore. She had been swept under, and the lad had swallowed water himself and was in great distress.

It took a 100-foot swim to save the little girl; the boy meanwhile was making progress by his own efforts.

The doctor was at work resuscitating the girl when the boy collapsed still far from the beach. Again McLachlin played the rescuer. This done, he completed the task of saving the little girl. Meanwhile, a lifeboat had been launched, and with its aid Dr. McLachlin supervised the task of clearing the waters and bringing in his amazing score to seven rescues.

Calgary, Sept. 6 (CP). — Two thousand Calgarians gave a rousing reception to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett Monday night as he passed through the city en route home. Addression one of the largest gatherings in the city's history, Mr. Bennett told the throng here were signs of greatest depression which the world has ever seen that about reached its lowest level."

Conservatives, Liberals and men of many political and religious faiths crowded the hotel where the reception was held to honor of the Prime Minister. Calgary welcomed Mr. Bennett with cries of "Good Old R. B." The reception was strictly informal and Mr. Bennett was forced to shake hands with practically the whole audience following the official welcoming address by Mayor Andy Davison.

Mr. Bennett believed great things would result from the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference. He believed, however, that only through toil could prosperity be brought back.

TOWNS NEARLY ISOLATED NOW

Ready to Evacuate if New Levee Gives Way

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 7—(UP) —The Rio Grande's mighty yellow flood rolled slowly into the lower valley of Southern Texas Tuesday almost surrounding the town of Hidalgo.

Citizens were ready to evacuate Hidalgo at a moment's notice. An aerial survey showed six small towns—four on the Mexican side and two on the United States side—submerged in Hidalgo County.

The flood of the international border had moved as far east as Mercedes where a huge protective floodway system.

Reports and reports of loss of lives except the sight taken by drowning cattle, mules and other animals—sluggish river rose early Thursday night to the highest stage in history and began a course to the Gulf of Mexico.

Hidalgo might reunited when a levee hastily thrown up about the town and completed Tuesday afternoon was destroyed. Water submerged everything except a paved highway a mile back from the river.

EXPECT LARGE NUMBER AT O.S.D. THIS TERM

While city schools are humming with activity during the enrolment of the largest number of scholars on record, pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf have yet one week to go before opening finally resume for the fall term for that institution. Next Wednesday, September 14th has been set as the opening day for that school.

In keeping with the increased attendance in schools throughout the province the Ontario School for the Deaf anticipates a larger attendance than ever. It is expected that the annual enrolment will seriously cramp existing facilities in the school, although no definite count has so far been taken.

The fact that the school is attracting the attention of the Provincial Department of Education who have evinced an intention of erecting additions to the class rooms and dormitories within the near future.

In Chili the church is forbidden by law to perform marriages unless preceded by state marriages. Therefore all couples are married twice on the same day.

MAN INJURES WOMAN THEN SHOOTS SELF

Russian Tries to Kill Woman After Refused Money

KEPT COMPANY

Dead Man Left Note Stating "She Ruined My Life"

Toronto, Sept. 7—Enraged with jealousy and the refusal of the woman to give him money, William Micknow, aged 40, of 196 Massey Street, shot Annie Holub, aged 40 of 218 Bathurst Street, as she stood in front of the home Tuesday night, and then shot and killed himself.

The bullet, aimed at the woman, pierced her heart and she fell dead beside the rifle. She was rushed to the Western Hospital, where it is anticipated she will recover, unless peritonitis sets in.

Micknow had been keeping company for five years with the woman. Three months ago she left the Massey Street house where she and Micknow had been residing to live with Sir John Jones' husband at Depot Harbor, Parry Sound. Two weeks ago she came to Toronto. She took a room at the Bathurst Street house a week ago Tuesday.

Wells for Woman.

Tuesday night Micknow called at the Bathurst Street house and asked for the woman. He was told she had not returned from work. He went to the place where the woman worked and there waited for her. Between 9.30 and 9.40 Tuesday night they met together in the Bathurst Street house.

Without preliminary at the front step arguing, Micknow demanded $50 from the woman. She refused him and said she did not want to see him again, police say. Micknow drew a .25 calibre revolver and fired a shot into the right side if his head and a second one in the left chest, which pierced the heart and caused instant death.

Note Found.

Before leaving his room at 100 Bathurst Street, Micknow left a note written in pencil. It told of being out of work for a considerable time. He charged that the woman and the last night she worked had done him an injustice, and in his letter wrote that he would have killed him, except for the fact of his wife's illness. The number of times he had tried to get his job back were referred to, he said, and he had fought a useless battle to get work for a year.

He then referred to the Holub woman, whom he described as "her" he wrote: "This woman has ruined my life; then she refused to help me, so I made up my mind to put an end to this. I had to kill myself, because I am too skilled to take her with me." After bidding his friends goodbye he signed his name, with the declaration that he was a World twenty-one years ago from Russia.

Sons Shooting.

Arthur R. Watson of 25 Bellwoods Avenue who was walking past the scene of the double shooting Tuesday night, described it to The Globe last night.

"I was walking on Bathurst St., on the opposite side when I heard two pistol shots, and saw a man stagger into 218," he said. "I immediately rushed across the street and there I saw the man lying on the sidewalk, his head in a pool of blood. I couldn't stay to examine him closely, I was sure he was dead. He was the man who fired the shot. There were quite a number of people up the street when the shooting started, and in a few minutes about 500 people had gathered. The police and the ambulance came and took the woman from the house."

DIPLOMATS OF AMERICA ARE GIVEN RIDE

Held by Bandits And Ordered to Disrobe

ALMOST SHOT

Finally Rescued by Imperial Troops of Persia

Washington, Sept. 7 (UP)... A word picture of three weary American diplomats hiking through the Persian mountain trails while clad only in underwear was painted for the State Department Tuesday in a report from Minister Charles Hart, in Teheran.

The three unwilling travelers were the victims of Lors bandits, from whom they finally escaped after the intervention of an Imperial Persian troops. Today's report had the diplomats safely back in Teheran after 72 hours of danger and misery. They were physically unharmed, save for bruised feet.

Last Thursday the three men were Robert P. Skeppe, of Columbus, O., American consul at Teheran; Cyril L. F. Thiel, of Cincinnati, O., and Thomas J. Hickok, of Rochester, Pa., consul and vice-consul respectively, at Kermanshah started out from Kermanshah to complete a leg of their journey from Bagdad to Teheran. Military guards held them up near Sahneh. The bandits took them to their camp and robbed, cuffed around, ordered to strip and shorts, and forced to run and walk, alternately, over 20 miles of rough mountain trail.

"If Persian troops try to rescue you," the bandits told them, "we'll kill you."

Dusk descended over the mountains. The Lurs stopped to divide their loot. Suddenly Persian troops appeared, opened machine gun fire on the bandits. The diplomats escaped in the confusion.

But they were not yet safe. While approaching the Persian troops, they were fired on. Presumably the Persians thought they were part of the bandit group. So the diplomats again took to the hills and spent a chilly night.

Early next morning the American camp found a Persian officer and sent them to a military encampment.

"The governor at Kermanshah, a former Kadjar prince," Hart reported, "was extremely courteous and helpful. The governors said that word of the diplomats' plight arrived at noon Friday and that all available troops, some three regiments, were immediately ordered out."

"Upon learning of the capture, the governor immediately telegraphed a report direct to the foreign minister at Teheran, and on learning on the following noon of the escape of the three Americans, he again reported the fact to the Persian Ministry."

Hart, before he entered the diplomatic service, was in Washington newspaper work, and, on such occasions as the one last week he exercises his old editorial skill for the State Department. He enjoys a reputation for writing the most colorful, interesting dispatches of any officer in the foreign service.

FLIES 4 MILES INTO UPPER AIR

Aviator Missing, Who is With Cosmic Ray Expedition

Cormorant Lake, Man., Sept. 7 —The silence of the arctic wilderness was shrouded in mystery as Flying Officer R. A. Gordon, commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force station here, who piloted Dr. Millikan's scientific party, failed to return to camp following a flight of four hours and 40 minutes.

Those interested are recording important data in the California scientist's investigation into the cosmic ray.

Flying Officer Gordon took off from the air base here at 1.45 yesterday afternoon. He was due to return shortly after six o'clock Tuesday. At 7.40 p.m. he had failed to return and alarm is felt as it is believed he landed on some lake when out of petrol. Unless word is received tonight from the pilot search planes from here will scour the north country. Gordon carries no food supplies.

The plane he is piloting is a Fairchild, powered by a supercharged Wasp engine. It is capable of carrying dozens of intricate instruments and has a cruising speed of 100 miles per hour.

The flying instruments were to go to 14,250 feet, fly there for an hour then fly to the ceiling for his plane, about 23,000 feet.

Cheap Ammunition to Kill Off Surplus Starlings and Crows

Combination of Wheat And Strychnine Will do Trick

SIMPLY PESTS

Many Orchards And Fields in District Have Been Ruined

If farmers and gardeners of this district, who have been spending sleepless nights lately trying to devise some new method for the control or extermination of the hitherto unknown blackbirds or starlings, which have infested the country lately, ruining whole gardens and orchards in a single day, would follow out the simple suggestion given below by one farmer-naturalist of this section they will find an inexpensive winter plan for the complete extermination of both birds, who are so increased in numbers and boldness during the past year or so.

The plan is simple. It calls merely for 25 cents worth of strychnine placed in a half-gallon jar, filled with wheat and enough water to moisten it well. Let it stand for some hours to allow the poison to soak up and you will have enough cheap "ammunition" to kill thousands of the winged pests. Two or three grains picked off the ground is enough to kill each bird.

Cheap Ammunition

As a further suggestion it is pointed out, that if the Provincial Government Ontario would hold a "Starling week" during which time every Ontario resident would put out the poisoned grain placed on the lands where the birds, including crows, could get at it, the ranks of the winged robbers would be greatly reduced before spring. Inoffensive birds would have migrated by then and would not suffer.

Farmers in this section have this year reported the loss of thousands of grain stripped by the robbers. Whole orchards of cherries and plums have been ruined; corn has sufferred to a greater extent than ever before, and even the corn borer, and other garden stock has also felt the ravages of the hilled thieves. This year the menace of the starling has grown. Some of the chief sufferers have felt that the government should take up the matter with the control of the birds, but with the above remedy so cheap and certain to kill, there is no farmer who takes care of his own section. It must be pointed out, however, that the poisoned grain is valuable only during a brief period in the winter, left the country, otherwise robins and other birds who have delayed flight may be the chief sufferers

MANY GRASSHOPPERS SEEN IN TORONTO

A city official has just returned from Toronto, where he has spent the past few days taking in the Canadian Exhibition. He was queried this morning regarding the grasshopper "plague" he saw while on the visit to that latter town.

"It was not the livestock exhibit. It was not the traffic around the main gates or the noise and confusion and bustle in the main buildings. It was not even "the swine", he declared. "It was the grasshoppers I saw. Millions of them swarming all over the down town section. I saw more grasshoppers on Yonge Street, that I ever saw before in my life. Yet Torontonians were going along as if that was in every day occurrence. Belleville isn't so small a place after all", declares the city official.

The average person realizes his place in the religion, philosophy, and art, but in science he is prepared to accept without question the statements alluded to him of an outsider.

THE BARBER

The barbers have taken the reference of Dr. Yerkes of Yale to the instinct which prompts them to snip away at their customers' hair and whiskers as the same instinct which is demonstrated by chimpanzees have taken the laughs of their customers good naturedly while the chimpanzees have not been interviewed in regard to their liking of or disgust at the suggestion.

Outside the realm of joking probably Dr. Yerkes is right from the psychological point. But chimpanzees are far from the barbers in their stage of development. The chimps have just started, the barbers have reached a height of achievement at least as high as that attained by any of the races of history in their decoration of the human face.

Up at London, Ontario, the Advertiser poet has grown ecstatic and ambles on in verse as follows:

In Defence of Our Barber

The learned Dr. Yerkes of Yale
Comes out with a most barberous tale;
A barber at his work, says he,
Is very like a chimpanzee.
And yet, you know, we hate to harbor
A thought like that about our barber.
For if we did he might not love us,
And then he'd make a monkey of us
By leaving us in such a shape
That we'd look like a hairy ape.
It's bad enough as things are now,
But if the barber fails us—wow!,
And so we hope some barber jerks
The whiskers off this Dr. Yerkes.

INERT STUDENTS

One convention declares that the exceptionally bright student must not be held back for the mob of less brilliant and that the laggard in academic knowledge must be hoped along as much as possible, but still remains a burden.

Hamilton Spectator refers to the listless student and says the school until the age limit expires and hopes to see some method devised for weeding out these inert slackers. Getting them out would lighten the burden of taxation and accelerate the education of the average or more than average scholar. That paper comments—

"In Calgary action of a practical kind is about to be taken by the school board, according to the Calgary Herald, which will have the effect of discouraging the dilatory high school pupil. Pupils who failed to pass a minimum of 40 per cent in the last term will be required to make special application to their principals and the high school superintendent before they are permitted to return to their classes. If admitted for the new term, they may take no more than five subjects and must make progress in these satisfactory to their teachers, principals and superintendent, as shown by monthly reports; otherwise they may be suspended, 'habitual neglect of duty being an offense calling for suspension.' Commending the school board for its action, the Calgary Herald says: 'It is to be hoped that there will be no laxity shown in enforcement of the new regulation. It is fully justified and if any one suffers from it the fault will undoubtedly be their own. But there still remains the problem of the high school student who starts but never finishes, quitting school after one or two years, having just wandered along without any particular goal in view, filling in time to no advantage educationally to him or herself, all at the expense of the taxpayers. Something should be done to minimize this evil in our secondary school system. If there is no way to deal with the situation short of legislation or new regulations issued by the provincial department of education, these should be sought.' The 'evil' is not confined to the province of Alberta."

PEDESTRIANS AND CARS

"Collision with pedestrian" accidents continue to be the most serious as regards personal injury. Of the fatal motor vehicle accidents which have occurred in Ontario during the past twenty-three months, about forty-seven per cent have been of this type—445 pedestrians having suffered fatal injuries during the period. From the information available, the responsibility for these accidents is almost evenly divided between drivers and their victims, approximately fifty-three per cent being attributable to the pedestrians and about forty-seven per cent chalked up to the fault of driving actions of motorists. These estimates are based on an assumed right of the motorist between intersections and the superior rights of pedestrians at intersections. However, as the pedestrian may at times be careless almost to the point of criminality and many drivers are absolutely malicious in the usurpation of the right of way at intersections and in making right turns at both controlled and unprotected crossings, the problem is to prevent accidents, to provide protection and convenience rather than legal status. The situation demands a greater recognition of the rights and responsibilities on both sides. The pedestrian must realize and display an understanding of the rights of the motorists between intersections by refraining from "jay-walking" and similar foolhardy actions, and the motorist must recognize the pedestrian's right to definite protection and convenience at intersections. The problem is one that may be solved only by co-operation on the part of all those who at any time either drive or walk on our streets or highways.

PAYMENT
By Alina Michaelis

After the hours of toil are done
What is the payment for weary days?
Handful of silver at set of sun.
Smile of a loved one or word of praise?

Many a worker who earns such pay
Takes it with thankfulness, well-content;
Little he reckons that day by day
He is paid in a coin that can not be spent.

For with every task which is ably done
Something of power has the toiler gained;
Greatest of gifts that by work is won,
Strength for fresh struggle is thus attained.

Duty to duty and task to task,
So winds the pathway from sun to sun;
Richer payment no man could ask
Than this sweet fruitage of toil well done.

SAILING PUNT RACES off Victoria Park drew a very large crowd of spectators on Labor Day afternoon much to the delight of William (King) Rogers and his associates who have been encouraging the youth of Belleville to build and sail punts on the bay. "King" Rogers, with many years of sailing experience behind him, including the incident of the Atalanta, when this Belleville built boat challenged for the America cup and raced outside of Sandy Hook on the Atlantic ocean course for the trophy, also races at Chicago and various fresh-water ports, still loves a spanking breeze, "a wet sheet and a flowing sea." Quite a number of punts have been built and rigged by boys of Belleville and punt sailing promises to become a popular sport on the Bay. The large crowd of citizens witnessing the races on Labor Day is an evidence of the growing interest in this fine, clean, healthful sport.

NEW YORK CITY SPENDS a Billion Dollars a year on education, according to a compilation of one of the city newspapers. There are 1,000,000 students and 1, 200,000 of them are educated free, spending $105.11 annually on every elementary pupil and $161.35 on every high school student. There are over 700 public schools, 36,000 teachers with a payroll of $150,000,000 annually. It is claimed that more subjects are taught in New York schools than in any other city in the world, including instruction in, lampshade design, iron smelting, dancing, fencing, elocution, stenography, motion picture photography, undertaking, podiatry, lip reading, tea room operation, farming, art, dressmaking, journalism. New York city spends a BILLION DOLLARS a year on education, yet has Tammany Hall racketeers, gangsters, scandals among the city officials, and in the City Hall, a city administration directed from Tammany Hall, a political organization which has ruled New York for many years with few defeats but many scandals. It would seem that the rising generation might be educated in better government out of that billion dollars, but perhaps Tammany Hall would not stand for that.

IN DAYS GONE BY holidays meant civic celebrations, but Belleville has not had a celebration since the famous United Empire Loyalist Commemoration which lasted nearly a week and was an unqualified success. But it is a question as to whether occasionally but the old time Queen's Birthday, Dominion Day or Labor Day celebrations have passed from the calendar as far as Belleville is concerned, even the annual celebration of the King's Birthday by the War Veterans was allowed to lapse, although in its early stages it was quite profitable. Perhaps the city has outgrown such events, perhaps the motor car militates against it, perhaps folks just cannot be bothered, but the fact remains that very few of these civic celebrations are held nowadays and mostly in small places when they are held.

CIRRHOSIS IS ONE FORM OF LIVER DISEASE
Not Beer But Hard Liquor Blamed as One Cause

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

Yes, the liver can harden and does often. Doctors call it "cirrhosis" of the liver, a term that familiar enough to most of us.

The liver is really made up of a framework of so-called connective tissue and the connective tissue supports the active parts—cells of the liver, the ones that do all the work. When an individual suffers from cirrhosis it means that the connective tissue has increased in amount and has more or less strangled the liver cells or has otherwise interfered with their normal proper functioning.

There are several types of liver cirrhosis which may arise from several different causes. Cirrhosis may come from a congestion of the liver blood vessels which has existed over a long period of time, and can readily occur in certain types of heart disease when the heart is no longer is able to pump the blood around the system in a satisfactory manner and a certain amount of damming up in the liver takes place.

Disease of the bile ducts—the liver, of course, produces bile as one of its most important functions—may likewise cause hardening of the liver. Poisons like alcohol and lead, and those produced in the body from diabetes, likewise malaria, may give rise to cirrhosis.

In the produced liver disease is usually associated with chronic indigestion. And that it is a common disease among heavy drinkers there can be no doubt. Beer does not, as a rule, produce cirrhosis, but hard liquors, like brandy, whisky and gin, are notorious offenders.

In this condition—the alcoholic variety—the liver usually becomes smaller than normal, although it may even be fatty deposits in its substance. This, of course, interferes with the proper functions of the organ as a whole, finally causing destruction of the liver cells themselves and obstruction of the normal flow of blood through it.

Such cirrhosis may exist for years and the patient be unsuspecting of what is troubling him. Sooner or later, however, digestive symptoms appear, such as nausea and vomiting, mornings. The tongue is always chronically coated. Hemorrhages may occur in the stomach although these may not prove fatal. Often there is a rather sudden distension of the abdominal cavity due to the effusion of fluid into it. And with this last sign go swollen feet and legs—in other words a typical case of the well-known "dropsy".

In severe cases of this type fever may develop, delirium and even coma, sometimes with unconsciousness. So-called "tapping", in order to relieve the pressure in the abdomen, may have to be resorted to time and again.

Other liver complaints also exist and many are serious. Among the latter may be mentioned liver abscess and cancer.

Abscesses may be single or multiple. There may be but few symptoms, if any, with pain there may be fever, pain on the right side, sweating, etc.

Cancer cannot a present in the liver it is usually associated with cancer elsewhere in the body. Cancer tumor growths, like "sahcoma" may appear in liver tissue, but these are not malignant.

Jaundice is a common symptom of liver trouble of with obstruction of one of the bile ducts. When there is rapid enlargement of the liver in association with jaundice a growth of some kind should always be suspected.

Fatty degeneration of the liver is another form of liver disturbance. Often it occurs in conjunction with pneumonia and has besides those, other disorders may befall the liver.

Don't drink just coffee. Drink one hundred per cent. full-flavoured coffee. First, ask yourself this question—"Is there air inside the tin or package you buy?"

If there is—coffee deteriorates, loses flavour.

If there isn't—that coffee keeps full flavour indefinitely.

Here is the Answer Vita-Fresh Packed Coffee

That means Maxwell House packed by the exclusive Vita-Fresh process which alone removes and excludes all traces of oxygen from the sealed tin.

Maxwell House is smoother, richer, more satisfying. Simply because the world-famous quality of the Old South's noted blend is now fully, completely protected—more so than any other coffee sold today.

Belleville Vics Champions Of Eastern Ontario by Win Over Gananoque in 3rd Game

SCORE 18-3

Campbell Hurls And Hits His Team to Victory

After hurling two full games against the Gananoque intermediates last week, Archie Campbell assumed the mound duties for the Belleville Victories in the third and deciding game for the intermediate championship of Eastern Ontario at Napanee Tuesday afternoon, and before the game was over had added the slugging laurels to those he had already collected the superb hitting of his team mates, the Victories batting early and trod their rivals under foot with an avalanche of extra base hits to win the third game by the score of 18 to 3.

The score tells the tale as the local Vics pounded the offerings of the combined efforts of Dorey and their star left hander, and Baltama a right hander, who relieved him in the fifth, hard and often. While the Vics were pounding out a total of 18 runs Archie Campbell was superbly pitching his arm off for the cause of his team mates. Archie Campbell goes the lion's share of the win as he has pitched three games in six days for the Vics. He lost the first game in the series by an 8 to 3 score last Wednesday at the Island Town, but Saturday, Dorey, Dorey's choice to subdue the Gananoque sluggers, was touched for a concentric left hander let the visitors down with single wallops and the winning the game 10 to 1.

Tuesday, when the third and final game Campbell again received the call by Manager Jerry Fanning and foe nine innings had the Napanee batters practically eating out of his hand. Wild a single curve and a speedball ball of pace he out-pitched, the champ of pace he out-pitched, the much advertised Reg Dorey in the previous game of the work and gave Baltama, the relief pitcher, a lesson in how to hurl baseball besides pitching an excellent game, Campbell was the team's big hitter with four hits to his credit. Three were singles and the other a hard drive to right centre, that went for three bases. Three of the Vics' three bases on balls in the game the bases were well populated.

All The Vics Hit.

Every Victoria player helped himself to at least one hit from the combined efforts of Dorey and Baltama Bateman, the first batter to tige, Art Seeney, the Vics scrappy little receiver, put his second home run of the deliveries of Dorey in run of the deliveries of Dorey in the fatal fifth after which Dorey was derricked in favor of Baltama. Seeney had hit for the circuit in Gananoque in the first frame. Lionel Blaker, lanky first baseman of the Vics, had the distinction of hitting one of Baltama's stands on the nose and far away he travelled before he and far away for a home run over the right field fence. According to all time honored ball fans and critics in Napanee, this is the first time in two years, that this feat has been accomplished. Two hits not only tore the ball around the fence with both and cleared the fence with plenty to spare. Dorey's downfall was the second player to collect a double during the slog-fest.

Due to the heavy ground, the high winds, which prevailed and the blinding sun much could be credited with five errors apiece. Once again, on Saturday, the combinations of Flagler, Darrah and Blaker pulled a lightning fast double play to nail their team out of a bag hole in the second inning. When the current baseball season opened, the Belleville Victories were not even considered by outside chance of winning their respective loop honors, but by the threshold of the intermediate Class B championship as they enter the semi finals against the Port Orono intermediates on Saturday of this week and year the Victory club were finalists in the class A series of the intermediate O.B.A.A.

Lost Two.

The locals lost the toss and Gananoque elected to take the field. The initial frame proved to be the down fall of the Island Town nine as the locals scored no less than five runs in the first. Ken Kerr, the lead-off man singled and stole second. Rose was out at first. Flagler singled, Kerr scampered home. Seeney singled while Flagler and Two-on. Campbell whiffed and Seeney slashed a single through the infield to drive home Flagler and Palmer scored. Then Blaker got a one base hit and stole second. Seeney was on third on the previous throw-in. Mumford struck to the plate and singled scoring both base runners. Mumford was thrown out by Lloyd. No more scoring was in evidence until the fifth when the local batters got to the mound for a passage and scored 10 big runs on seven hits, six bases on balls and two errors. It was in this frame that Seeney clouted the horse hide for four bases with two on and Dorey was yanked. The next innings Blaker's circuit blow was the local's only counter. In the eighth Campbell singled and stole second, later to score on Latchford's hit. Not satisfied the Vics added another run in the ninth to make a grand total of 18 runs when Ross crossed the plate, after hitting, and Campbell's base.

The losers, Gananoque did not put into a scoring position until the fifth, when Brennan and Amo connected for two base hits after two errors had been committed by the local's out and two hits had been made by the Island Town batters. Two more errors further accounted for by the losers came in the eighth, when Dorey scored on a fielder's choice play behind beaten the Vics in Gananoque and stopped the hard hitting Oshawa Athletics of Peterboro, proved to be no puzzle to the Victory batters on Tuesday as they pounded and hammered his offerings to the corner of the park. In the intermediate class B Semi-finals between Orono and Port Hope the latter club by definite word has been received as yet but it is expected that the first game will be played in Orono on Saturday with the return game in Belleville next Wednesday. Either Ralph Dey or Ed Hutton will be the mound choice for the first game of this all-important O.B.A.A. series.

HORNSBY...THE MAN WITHOUT A TEAM

Rogers Hornsby was a St. Louis Card from 1915 to 1926 and then he was traded to the New York Giants in a deal for Frankie Frisch the year after he managed St. Louis' first pennant winner, New York signed him as manager. Hornsby batted .361 and .349 and then amazed the baseball world a year later by batting .459 for the first month of the season began. Rogers succeeded Jack Slattery as manager. Rogers had lasted just a year with the Braves when the Boston club sold him to the Chicago Cubs. Manager Joe McCarthy was let out in 1930 to make room for Rogers. Now, the Cubs have fired him. The baseball world wonders what Hornsby will do next. Will he take a crack at the Amburgh or Philadelphia Nationals? Or will he take a crack at the American league? Well, what is your guess?

CURRENT SPORT
Knocks and Boosts

Coming out of no place in particular and with no particular solicit in view the Victoria Baseball Club, Belleville's entry in the intermediate class B series are the surprise baseball team of Eastern Ontario.

The Vics, after winning their league, stepped in and beat Deloro, Orono and Gananoque in the play-offs. Then they were pitted against the much surveyed Gananoque intermediates who had beaten the Napanee Gibbards, last year's intermediate class B champions. In the third and deciding game in the Victory-Gananoque series played at Napanee on Tuesday the Vics showed their superiority by knocking the Island Town nine by the score of 18 to 3. This gives them the intermediate championship of Eastern Ontario They now move up to the semi-finals series for the intermediate championship of Ontario, the coming series they meet Orono Gambey's Orono intermediates.

During Tuesday's game the Vics knocked the much advertised Reg. Dorey of Gananoque out of the box in less than five innings. The way the Vics plastered the "Secret Sale" was really nobody's business as Archie Campbell, their ace hurler, got the bulk of the credit though. Archie has now pitched three games against Gananoque inside of six days. No mean feat, well say. Besides letting the Island Town batters down with nine scattered hits, only one of which went on the extra base h's nature, Campbell was the Vics' big hitter of the day with four hits to his credit. He used a slow sweeping curve and a nice change of pace to an advantage.

During the recent series between Gananoque and the Belleville Vics four home runs were hit by local batters. Johnnie Kerr cracked one here in Belleville, Art Seeney slapped one in Gananoque and another in Napanee on Tuesday while to Lionel Blaker, the Vics burly initial sacker, goes the honor of hitting the longest home run of the series when he connected with one of Bateman's shoots and knocked it out of the Napanee Fair Grounds. Blaker's bit cleared the race track fence by a mile, if not more and it over the fence it sailed. According to old timers this is the first time in over 30 years that this feat has been accomplished. An old time ball player named Allison from Napanee hit one over that fence many years ago, they say. Of course the horse plate in Napanee has been moved back a couple so Blaker's mighty smash was perhaps as far as was Allison's. Blaker was across the plate before the ball appeared back over the fence. The right fielder jumped the fence retrieving the ball.

Although no authentic information has been handed down as yet is expected that the Victorias will play the first game at the series at Newcastle on Saturday. The Orono nine play all their home games at Newcastle, understand. The return game is expected to be played in Belleville next Wednesday afternoon. Either Ralph Dey or Ed Hutton will be used on the hillop in the first game of the series as Archie Campbell has pitched three games inside of six days now.

This wrestling game must be going over in a big way down in Florida, judging a announcement bout some ten days ago the "great" Angelo artist got into print a Saturday sigal show in the Pinellas Arcumpus on Saturday of this week. Jack Rogal has been signed to meet Rod La Rogue in the third bout of the show. Prince Edward County sports are red hot.

In regards to the "reailng" business we were informed that the Masked Marvel received $250.00 to meet Rod La Rogue in a return match to be staged in Belleville soon. If the promoter can stick up that much money at the gate Jimmy says we can't keep him back. At that we understand that the Marvel is to meet another opponent in Belleville in the near future. What a really good wrestler he'll get. The Marvel's manager is the man who arouses the ire of the fans through.

Today's question: A. G. G. asks for ruling on the following question: Batter pull bat strikes ground in front of plate and bounces up and hits bat and goes into air and is caught by catcher. Is batter out? In same situation does batter hit bat and be called a ball. The ruling on ball striking ground before reaching home plate is: Pitch is called a ball unless struck at by batter, in which case it is a strike.

BERN SUICIDE BEING PROBED

Jean Harlow Will be Asked to Explain Strange Note Left

Hollywood, Sept. 7 (UP) — Jean Harlow, vivacious siren of the screen and grief-stricken widow in real life, was summoned for official questioning Tuesday in a last attempt to solve the baffling suicide of her picture executive husband, Paul Bern.

Prevailed from interrogating the platinum blonde actress because of her emotional collapse after Bern's death in their "honeymoon house," authorities announced Miss Harlow will be tell her story at an inquest next Thursday.

Friends' phrases—"The frightful wrong I have done you," "Last night was one's remedy"—written by Bern just before he shot himself to death, were the mysteries Miss Harlow was counted upon to clear.

Servants, friends, casual witnesses, "big names" in the screen colony and even Bern's own family were involved in the investigation. But tonight police thought the answer to the one big question, "Why did Paul Bern kill himself?"

The mainspring of the inquiry, however, was provided by Detective Sergeant Frank Jones and Detective Inspector David Davidson in the fact that both officers were conversant between the discovery of Bern's body yesterday and the "preliminary of police—

"Logical explanation" of the galaxy, as well as reported discrepancies in the statements of various principals, said an official of the officials said.

Miss Harlow Too Ill to Talk

Detectives met their first rebuff when they called at Beverly Hills to question Miss Harlow at the Beverly Hills home of her mother, Mrs. Jean Carpenter Bello. A nurse curtly turned them away with the statement that Miss Harlow was ill and "in no condition body" on orders of her doctors.

Hello, by the way, has maintained the actress was unable to speak coherently to any one. Physicians had administered sedatives to quiet her distraught nerves.

"I can say that Miss Harlow did not quarrel with Mr. Bern," the night-gabbed maid said, "and wonderful husband, very attentive and devoted. They were completely happy."

Meanwhile, detectives went into a conference with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials, whose studio employed Bern as executive producer and Miss Harlow as a fee actress. They said it had been determined whether Irving Thalberg, studio executive and husband of Norma Shearer, would be questioned.

Thalberg David O. Selznick of RKO studios and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., were reported in line to arrive at the Bern home, and before police were called. Miss Harlow was working on a studio set at the time.

3 LONDONERS ARE MISSING

Sailed Friday From Bay-Field to See Kaye Don Race

London, Ont., Sept. 7—Anxiety was expressed here Tuesday for the safety of three Londoners, all connected with the R. Chapman tire firm, who left Bayfield, at four o'clock Monday morning with the intention of witnessing the Harmsworth boat race at Detroit. The party sailed from Bayfield in a 30-foot boat, equipped with outboard motor and sails, and were expected to return last night at a late hour but failed to arrive at the Bayfield from them.

The three are: Eric N. Chapman, 24, son of R. Elmwood Avenue; Reginald A. Appleyard, 416 Colborne Street, and Donald A. Miller, 134 Wyatt Street. The latter two are with the firm while Eric Chapman is a run of the manager of the firm.

Authorities at Sarnia and Port Huron have been notified, but no trace of the missing men has been found. Mrs. Chapman, mother of Eric, stated tonight that there was nothing definite on which to base fears but lengthy delay was over taken the trip, but said she couldn't help feeling anxious.

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR WORLD'S SERIES

New York, Sept. 7. — Kenesaw M. Landis, High Commissioner of baseball, is in town to make arrangements for the forthcoming world series.

The commissioner has called a meeting of representatives of the three leading clubs in each league for Friday, when all details of the series will be worked out. Invitations are to be sent to the New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators in the American League, and the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Dodgers of the National

DISAPPOINTMENT OVER STRIKE NEGOTIATIONS

Manchester, England, Sept. 7 — Both strikers and employers expressed disappointment today as the Lancashire cotton strike continued and the government's attempt at mediation was limited to the letter directed to both sides yesterday by Sir Henry Betterton, Minister of Labor.

The letter thus far appeared to have produced no results. Spokesmen for both sides said that unless a stronger policy was adopted for bringing the disputants together there could be no hope of immediately ending the strike.

DIVIDE INTO GROUPS FOR REAL WORK

Problem How to Make Farming Pay With Low Prices

JOIN FORCES

Many New Methods No Doubt Will Come Out of Conference

Toronto, Aug. 30 (CP)—Dividing into committees to examine every phase of the first conference of agricultural experts, Federal, Provincial and Academic, today grappled with the farmer's greatest problem—how to make farming pay when prices are low.

Summoned by the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Robert Weir, more than 100 delegates from nine provinces met out on a programme of co-operation which is expected to link all the agricultural services of the Dominion and give more practical assistance to the farmer than ever before.

A National Advisory Council to continue the work of co-ordination was advocated by Mr. Weir in the opening address and possibly provincial councils to deal with problems of particular local importance. Agricultural organizations, he declared, should join forces rather than work separately on the same problems.

National Council composed of scientists, a "crystal, a physicist and Wilson's Secretary, Mr. Weir, is the Research Council in fundamental research.

Inspect on Rail

S. E. Todd, Secretary of the Inspect on Rail Council of the Canadian Meat Packers Association, announced that henceforth packing plants will be inspected by Federal inspectors to inspect hog carcasses on the railway cars. Heretofore this concession is expected to help farmers to get a better hog-buying market against competition from Denmark. Mr. Todd declared farmers have for some time enjoyed the advantage of government inspection of their hogs.

Dean A. M. Shaw of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, called attention to the market for finished beef in the United Kingdom, and pointed out that wheat is ad ideal finishing feed for cattle. Continuity of supply, he declared, was even more important requirement than quality. Canada could feed Dominion market because dealers supplied that there would not afford to disappoint or lose their customers.

CUTS SALARY FOR ECONOMY

Acting Mayor of New York Starts Campaign of Economy

New York, Sept. 7.—Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, who succeeded James J. Walker, announced Tuesday he has cut his own salary immediately from $40,000 to $25,000 a year.

At the same time, he slashed the salaries of the 24 commissioners who receive $15,000 a year, and hold down only appointment, to $12,000.

He also said, after a conference with the City Budget Director, that he was insistent on a 5 per cent cut into the $425,000,000 budget item for salaries.

The cut of his own salary, he explained, was the first step in making the budget.

The day he took office on Friday Mayor McKee announced an economy pledge, and said his first task would be to "trim the budget to the bone."

ZION S. S. CLASS ENTERTAINED IN UNUSUAL MANNER

On Tuesday, Aug. 22, Mr. W. H. Ketchenson held a delightful evening and rather unusual picnic for the members of his S. S. class and friends. Cecil Ketchenson's class of young ladies. The thirty two in attendance motored to the picnic in four cars. Mr. Ketchenson obtained permission from Mr. French jailer to show the party through the county jail and court house. Then they motored to the East Belleville park, grounds where a bountiful picnic supper was served. After the children had enjoyed the swings and games they were sent to the wharf where Mr. Ketcheson treated everyone to marshmallows and ice cream. Then everyone went home with pleasant memories of another enjoyable outing with Mr. Ketchenson had given them. This is only one of numerous similar outings which Mr. Ketchenson in his genial way has given for the children and young folk of the community in the past.

Improve The Figure By Breathing Exercises

Fashions are making chest demands. You don't need more than a shadow of a curve on hips and thighs, but you do need a sassy little waistline and a chest that is almost athletic. How get-'em? By washing out the lungs with fresh air three or four times a day, developing the chest cavity, cultivating the queenly pose-head erect, shoulders dropping naturally, hips back, tummy flat.

Beauty benefits acquired by correct breathing form a long list. Circulation reacts upon the complexion, thus pumping ozone into the lungs puts color in the cheeks, color that beats rouge compacts to a finish. Digestion is stimulated and that's good, since any complexion ills are due to digestive sluggishness. Fresh air puts on the sparkle. It pounds away at it, creates appetite, makes sleep restful, more refreshing.

Let's start with clavicular breathing, that lifts the collar bone and the shoulders. With each deep inhalation the body stretches tall, the backbone goes out of its lazy, good for nothing huddle, the apices of the lungs are expanded. For the girl who is cursed with a concave chest and who would be bosomy this is an effective exercise. Especially if the arms are lifted with each breath and the body, in its stretching movement, comes up on the toes, goes down again slowly.

Try this the first thing in the morning. It is a sure cure for what is known as the before-breakfast face.

For doing away with shelves formed by collar bones, for strengthening and tightening the tissues that have started to toboggan for a double chin which should play solo, we highly recommend costal breathing.

Clasp the hands at the waistline at the back of the body. Draw in the slit slowly through the nostrils. Exhale through the mouth with a whistle. During inhalation lungs are expanded to their fullest, chest lifted, tummy pulled inward. The position must be correct, feet three inches apart, toes pointing straight ahead, chin up, neck stretched, hips back.

Now for the woman who worries about that mountain range of adipose tissue that has hidden away the trim waistline, whose hips have followed a policy of expansion, totally out of order with modern ideas of what constitutes the perfect silhouette.

For her there should diaphragmatic breathing. Take soldier's pose, firm foothold on the floor, hands on the hips. Take long breaths through the nostrils drawing the air down and in slowly until the lungs are fully expanded and abdominal 7wers tighten. Exhale slowly through the nostrils. Pal gals who don't take to exercise, who are inclined to be a bit lazy, can try out this exercise first when lying flat on the back in bed. When they find that they survive that much effort they can do the exercise standing up which is of course speedier of results and in every way more effective for deleting extra measurements of waist and hips. All three exercises are worth trying. They make the beauty-gymnast face.

The Beauty Box

Reports from beauty shops, those battlegrounds upon which beauty ills are fought and conquered, are to the effect that few women are complaining about falling hair. The feminine brain thatch is doing nicely, thank you. The explanation seems to be that short hair has created the weekly shampoo habit and that a clean scalp helps toward a healthy growth of wool. Also hot oil is generally used preventing accumulations of dandruff which is a menace. And certain fax-thinking specialists cherish the notion that the balanced diet has something to do with hair health and vitality.

An individual hair exists for six years, though weaker shafts give up the ghost before that time. It withers away at the root, the papilla dispossesses it from its lodgings, an understudy appears. It is natural then that at every combing or brushing of one's hair, some threads shall be detached. That's nothing to worry about. But when the shedding is excessive and the growth at the temples looks barren and thin, it's high time to be about the business of reconditioning.

One way of enlivening and stimulating hair is to pick it up in small strands and pull gently. The hair root rests against tiny fibers. It receives its living from the blood streams. This gentle pulling is a form of exercise that rouses blood vessels. Do a bit of pulling while reading that new mystery story. Or while you are listening to the papa tell what a great little feller he is. Five minutes devoted twice a day to this stimulating treatment will prove effective.

See that the shampoo is thorough, that the silky strands come out of the rubbing with that fine, sleek, clean "feel". If there are grey deposits on the bristles of the hair brush, soap scum is clinging to the shafts. Within two days the hair is flat, oily, unmanageable. Begin the shampoo with a rousing old vitality with the right spray to remove surface dust. Don't boil soapy lather and stand in a pool of water over night. There will then be a rich thick liquid, instead of soap jelly which all too often takes a grasp on hair shafts, refuses to let go. Rinse until the soap foams up into a rich, heavy lather, hair will now be clean.

The night before the shampoo, go in for the hot oil treatment. Part the hair at various places, apply the oil along the partings. Spread fingers and thumbs over the scalp, move the scalp slowly, the purpose being to keep soft and thick that padding of tissues that is spread between skull and scalp surface.

Tonics of alcoholic contents are helpful because they provide heat. They are more effective when followed by a brisk rubbing of the scalp with an ice cube, the sudden contrasts of warmth to chilliness producing a circulatory reaction that is highly energizing to the hair growth.

Milk contains calcium and calcium is necessary for the well being of bones, finger nails and hair. The pint of milk each day may prop up the spirits of a glorious form that has fallen into a state of depression, is scattering itself to the four winds of heaven. We won't say that milk is a hair grower. We don't know. But there are hair specials who greet a good word for it, suggest that the cash customer who is having scalp massage add it to the regular diet.

Fashion Flashes

VICTORIOUS VICTORIA influences this season's fashions, what with fringe, full sleeves and feather boas. Right in the mood of the late nineties is a frock for evening made of dark brown velvet with sleeves formed of half flounces of cream Alencon lace hanging from wheels of mink marking the armholes.

SHALLOW BUT DEEP in importance is the shallow beret turban now being imported from Paris. A new model is of burgundy red velvet with the beret line marked by a fringe of looped band of velvet to pasted ostrich shaded from pink to wine red.

YOU CAN BE AMUSING through the medium of your hat. With a shallow bad of black velvet with a braided edge Suzanne Talbot, the Paris milliner, offers a black vidi with a cut-out monocle effect over the left eye. The cockade is embroidered in heavy black silk and the result is as amusing as smart as can be.

LITTLE TOUCHES mark dresses as being of the new Autumn crop. A typical new model of lightweight woolen crepe has a tucked yoke and has a draped neckline, slender skirt, tucked bodice and modified leg o' mutton sleeves.

BUY A SUIT for Autumn. A charming model is done in black velvety suede and has a long coat. The coat is trimmed with an ermine collar and one wide rever of jacket buttons across the scarf. The skirt is a wrap-around and the same line is followed by the blouse which is of red rabbit's hair wool.

ON THE CHEST of the wave is the hat with high, crestlike trimming. A topic of light beige silk velvet has a cord crest of the same material draped high across the top. The body of the hat is entirely shirred.

SHANNONVILLE- W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Shelter on September 1st.

Mrs. Walter Morden who had charge of the devotional opened the meeting by announcing hymn 271, Mrs. (Rev.) Clark took the Scripture Lesson from Numbers also from Acts. She read the devotional leaflet and made an appeal for the members to pray for new outgoing missionaries whose pictures are in the Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. L. E. Mills led in prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Mrs. H. Shelter read the correspondence. It was decided to accept the invitation of the Salem Ladies to meet with them. Mrs. R. Gilligan, the Supply Secretary, wished the Ladies to leave their donations for the sale with her as soon as possible. The members are asked to donate two pies for the booth at the Fair.

Mrs. C. Liddle gave a reading showing the influence the moving pictures have on the young people urging all to use their influence to keep them wholesome and pure as so many attend them.

All joined in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. L. E. Mills then took up the next chapter of the Study Book, "Canada and the New Day in Korea," which was very interesting.

Roll was then called, sixteen members being present. The collection was $1.80 and for the flower fund 65 cents. Mrs. William Osborne was the Group Leader in charge of the meeting which closed by singing a verse of the hymn "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" and all repeated the Mizpah Benediction.

Sandwiches, cake and lemonade were served after the meeting and a social half-hour enjoyed.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Jean's aunt, Mrs. Hogle, 21 Calhartne Street, Belleville, in honour of the bride and groom to be, Miss Jean Hoare and Mr. Earl Curry of the city.

The parlour was very beautifully decorated with pink and white tissue paper into which the couple entered amid showers of confetti.

The gifts were unwrapped and the following address was read by Mrs. Len Riley:

Having heard of your intention of embarking on the sea of matrimony on the 7th day of September we could all afford to let this important milestone on your careers pass without showing in some tangible way the high esteem in which you are held.

We hope your lives are filled with sunshine and the showers which in your way may be as happy as this tonight.

Signed on behalf of those present, tonight.

Both Jean and Earl thanked everyone for their kind thoughts towards them.

The rest of the evening was then spent with games and music.

A dainty lunch was served to about twenty-five guests by Mrs. Hogle, Catherine, Jean and Mrs. Gilbert Lott.

Before departing they all sang, "How They Are Jolly Good Fellows," and wished them much success and happiness in the future.

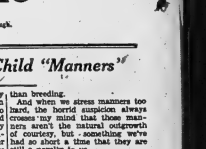
Teaching the Child "Manners"

Too many people get courtesy and "manners" all mixed up in their minds, and the mother who yearns for a well-mannered child can, I believe, find a short-cut by teaching the old-fashioned principle—thoughtfulness of the other fellow. God manners, which are merely a matter of geography, andway, will follow as a matter of course.

One mother is distressed over the fact that her children insist upon chewing gum any time and every time they can purchase it. They can't get it at home, so they get it from young friends outside the home. Their gum-chewing has become an obsession with her. It isn't good manners, she contends. Yet the same children feel perfectly free to turn on the radio full blast when other people are reading, talking or are engaged in other pursuits that require peace and quiet.



Setting an Example

Two negligible examples, perhaps you'll say, but fifty spell big trouble in the home and later on, while the other involves selfishness—pure thoughtlessness at the comfort and happiness of other members of the family.

The individual who thinks, before he acts, as to how his act will affect the other fellow, is free from his desires, for the greatest happiness of all concerned—that every individual is courteous and well-mannered.

The best way to teach children to be courteous is by example. The child slips off his brain unless backed up by acts that he can SEE —and see often. The lad who sees his Dad rise when a woman enters the room will do the same, hardly knowing he does it. But Dad could TELL him to do it forever, and without a living example the boy would forget, or do it in self-consciousness that it would fall into the category of "manners" rather than breeding.

And when we stress manners too hard, the horrid suspicion always crosses my mind that those manners aren't the natural outgrowth of courtesy, but something we've had so short a time that they are still a novelty to us.

"WHAT IS LOVE

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

An authority on problems of love and marriage.

"What is Love?" asks Laura B., as casually, as if she were not asking the difficult question of the world to answer. One which has inspired poets to immortal flights, and prompted musicians to weave the definitions into deathless compositions. "What is Love" has inspired men to conquer across strange countries, to sail the seven ocean in the frailest craft seeking treat is accordingly—not to come in contact with it, or let your mind dwell on it—but to be overwhelmed by it.

It makes you think of that ancient wisecrack about talking of love's troubles: "Those troubles I can begin on mine." And after you've heard about friend's salary and school loans, savings spent in the last bank failure, loss of job, you're more than human if you don't complete the vicious circle by talking of your own calamities.

Well, as everyone is talking poverty, it might be as good a time as any to ask ourselves the question: "How rich am I? What have I managed to salvage out of the world's great shake-up?"

If you have a business, a small job—a roof that doesn't leak, a family enjoying good health, friends—you're rich. Even if that pay envelope has been cut, the house smaller and less comfortable than it was three years ago, the family table less loaded down with old clothes—if you've managed to salvage these things, you're rich.

Truly, riches, it seems, are to be found in the aimless, staring "what next?" look in the eyes of the unemployed. Real tragedy to have a mind consumed with fright and fear to work, hands trembling with eagerness to begin—and no work obtainable.

That's stark poverty! Don't brush Laura B. with a shrug glance, even if you're nothing to give. Perhaps a word of understanding may help more than you realize.

We used to talk of riches in terms of possession. We talk now of the world's richest citizen, John D. Rockefeller, grandfather to children the secret of the wealth which would be theirs one day. On every side he saw wealth the unfailing boomerang that returned to annihilate the riches of the rich. He would have his children learn to be useful.

After all, it's the poor, or the small-wage folk that have the real friends in the tenements, when a mother dies or a father is laid off who is it that comes to console? Why, the neighbor across the hall, or the family round the corner. They have a time to make ends meet but they make the time to come because they understand.

It's impossible to go anywhere these days—to a movie, in a street car, to a shop or a friend's house—and avoid hearing remarks that of that depression menace you're trying to side-step.

That Son of Cyclops

BY SYLVIA PARKER

After trying for six months, the police finally got Cyclops Thorpe, though to this day they don't quite know how it came about. That's because they are unaware of what took place in Cyc's apartment that night before. There was nobody there but Cyc and the red-headed kid he called Son.

The boy, standing in front of the dying fireplace, was arguing. "I don't know why you're so set against fighting, Cyc," he said to Cyc. I'm nearly eighteen and sick of this fancy prep school you've stuck me in. All the fellows think that the kids are accordin' of their fathers are bankers and doctors, but there isn't a boy at school who wouldn't want to be a second Cyclops Thorpe."

Cyc frowned a horny, hairy fist down on the polished table. "I'll tell you flat," he declared, "I got other plans for you. Plans I been nursin' a long time. You're to graduate from prep school and go to the biggest in the land. There's honor and glory in that, Son. I'm going to give you the break I never had. I'm going to make a gentleman out of you!"

Hands behind his back, he paced the room. "I'm going to win over this boy who means more to him than his life," Cyc was thinking out loud. "Duty. Command him? He won't. Anger is child. Frighten him? The boy didn't know the word fear.

Back and forth he went with the rhythmic, rolling tread of a sailor, and hearing that the last he stopped, feet spread apart. Slowly he measured the boy with his eye and then he began to laugh. Great rolls of mirth like breakers heaved out of him. He laughed until tears stood in his good eye and the black patch slipped out of place.

"Wants to join up with a band of bad men, does he?" Cyc gasped between laughs. "Wants to play gangster like he used to play Indians? Think it'll a game with Bonds, shootin' like fireworks? Why, boy, you're too soft! I've brought you up soft—on purpose. You'd run at the sight of a gun!"

Cyc whipped his automatic from inside his coat and flung it on the table. "You haven't even got the guts to touch it!" he declared ridiculously, raising his voice through his words.

The boy, still standing on the spot where he had been rooted at the beginning of Cyc's outburst, said nothing as Cyc strode from the room.

Then, unaccountably, his chin began to quiver. He ground his teeth in an effort to control himself. "He thinks I'm a sissy," his lips murmured soundlessly. "All the time I thought he was proud of me, he's been thinking me a sissy!"

His chin came finally under control. He was beside the table, his hand closing over the cold muzzle. "I'll show him I'm not!"

The pistol was in his coat pocket; his hat on his bristling red hair. Quietly he let himself out of the apartment.

Two hours later Son let himself into the apartment. He felt hat was pulled down to his eyes and a cuff hung over his right hand. The light was still on in the room. With calibre tread he crossed to the ill-carved oak cabinet and unsteadily poured himself a drink.

"I've got to wake Cyc up and tell him," he spoke in a husky whisper. "They'll be here after me, and he'll get it from them. Oh, God, please make him understand why I did it. I only wanted to show him I'm a man. And I didn't mean—"

The door opened and Cyc stood there, broad and terrible, in his pajamas.

All the words Son had planned to say seeped away. In a moment he was across the room, hugging himself on Cyc, his red head against the heavy ridges of Cyc's chest.

"Cyc, Cyc," he cried. "Honest to God I didn't mean to. I didn't know a man could crumple up like that and fall over just because one shot to scare him. I told him not to move or I'd shoot. But he laughed at me, like you did, Cyc. And I fired. They're coming here for me, Cyc. They'll get me. I don't care what they do to me, Cyc. I only want you to understand. I'm only going to hold him up. Just to show you I was good enough to be in with you!"

Cyc's face went white. He led the boy to a chair. "Let me get this straight. And quick. You went out of here after I went to bed? Where'd you go?"

"Just down the street. To that beanery that's open all night. Where the cab drivers eat. You know."

"What'd you do when you got there?"

"Well the place was empty. The clerk was all alone. I went in. Oh God, Cyc, I didn't mean to do it."

"Go on." Cyc ground the words between his teeth.

"Well, I took out the gun—"

"What gun?"

"Your's. The one you threw on the table and dared me to touch."

"Let's have it."

The boy clenched his hands. "Don't get me, Cyc! When he fell over the counter like that—I dropped the gun—and ran—never turned pleadingly to Cyc. "I only meant to hold him up, Cyc."

Cyc gripped the boy's shoulder, bringing him to his feet. "Get up your room and into your pajamas! Get into bed!"

Son glanced across the room. At the door he turned. "What you going to do, Cyc? Who's at the door?"

Cyc turned his eye on the boy. "Hell!

When the door had closed on Son, Cyc lit a cigarette and sank into a chair. There he sat staring into the empty fireplace, his brows knit.

Often the cigarette burned his fingers, he ground out the light, reached for the telephone and dialled a number. Then he spoke into the transmitter, his voice like cut steel. "This is Cyclops Thorpe, Cap'n. You boys couldn't get me on any of the counts you tried, and I'm not going to give my gun on a job. A kid fresh with me and I lost my temper. Oh, use, I take my medicine. I'm at my place and you won't have to shoot me out.

"One thing." he went on. "My boy knows about this and he's out by over a State he's going to swear he did it. Got some story all worked out. Now you boys down to hold up this guy. If he tries to spring it, I'll spoil it, will you?"

Cyc hung up the receiver and went to his room to dress.

FINDINGS OF COMMISSION SOON READY

May be Handed Out End of The Week

GOES TO BENNETT

Understand Board is Unanimous on The Report

Ottawa, Sept. 7—Report, of the Royal Commission on Transportation will be submitted to Prime Minister Bennett when he returns to Ottawa at the week-end. It contains something like 50,000 words, and is said to deal most compact, brutefully with the ills which afflict the steam railways of Canada. The findings of the Commission are quite important, and it is believed they will meet with the approval of a large body of public opinion in Canada which favors continued public ownership of National Railways free from political interference in the management or operation of the system. The report, moreover, is said to be opposed to any railway merger in Canada, so the Premier Bennett's slogan of "Amalgamation never; competition ever", is likely to be realized. The report has been anticipated some of the recommendations of the findings are unanimous.

Sensational Arrest Made In Chicago Vault Robbery

Frank Parker, Reputed Montreal Brewer is Held by

Chicago, Sept. 7—Frank J. Parker, who said he was a Montreal brewer, was arrested today on suspicion of being connected with Sunday's amazing safe deposit vault robbery.

Police said they captured Parker because they believed him the only suspect intelligent enough and wealthy enough to engineer and finance undertaking.

"I'm no bank robber," said Parker. "I'm worth about $10,000,000, and I have enough money without stealing more."

Parker is reported to have served four years in Joliet Penitentiary before he became rich. Police claimed he originated the system of bringing bonded liquor from Canada by air plane.

Four other men, whose identity still is held secret, also were arrested.

The 300 robbery victims filed 10 at a time into the Koch and Company vault, viewed the hole the robbers cut from above, and attempted to check up their losses. The robbers took between $100,000 and $150,000 currently, but a definite figure was unavailable because many of the box owners feared to come nor admit they told how much money they really had hoarded.

Some of the box holders told pathetic stories. Mrs. Joseph Frilch 91, who had saved $2,900 to buy a cemetery monument after she died lost every cent. Her son said he feared to tell her, in belief the shock might be fatal.

Sunken Ship Believed to be Source Of Reported Anthracite Find in North

Toronto, Sept. 7.—Frequent discoveries of anthracite on the shore of Hannah Bay, east of James Bay in Northern Ontario, have given rise to the belief that rich coal deposits exist there, but the department of mines threw cold water on the idea when inquiries were made at Queens' Park yesterday.

Some 20 years ago a boat loaded with anthracite sank in Hannah Bay. The load of coal gradually was washed ashore, where it became buried in the ground. Dock hunters frequently unearth lumps of rich-looking anthracite and mines department officials believe these lumps are part of the cargo of the ill-fated vessel. Surveys and geological investigations in the North have found nothing that would lead experts to believe there is anthracite there.

Hundreds Homeless but Citrus and Farm Lands Escape Damage

Texas Belt is Swept by Flood Crest of Rio Grande

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 6—Hundreds of persons were homeless but the rich citrus and farming lands of the lower Rio Grande Valley appeared to have escaped major damage as the Rio Grande flood crest poured down from Mexican villa and the Gulf of Mexico today. Lowlands adjoining the river were under water but levees and floodlands protected other sections.

The crest passed Rio Grande city in Rizdgo county last night. Army aviators reported the river was two to five miles wide between Penitas and Rio Grande city, but that stretch of land is outside the Hidalgo county flood control area.

Volunteer relief organizations were formed to provide food and shelter for boats driven from their lowlands.

Many of the many lires had been lost in the wider stretches of the river, where the property damage was greatest, was not definitely known. Loss in Val Verde county alone was estimated at $2,000,000. The flood has swept away railroad tracks, bridges, stretches of road, ranch and farm buildings, and homesteads on both sides of the border river. Several hundred families were driven from their homes, Tex. and in Piedras Negras, Mexico.

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER II

KIMBERLEY FARRELL
Attorney-at-Law

They didn't let his mother know that he had lost his position with McIntire and Westover.

"There's no reason why we should," Mary Faith decided, "she will only make her miserable, Kim. We'll simply tell her that you've made up your mind to go into business for yourself."

And that was what they told her.

"I suppose that was your brilliant idea," she said to Mary Faith, the next morning after Kim had left the house to hunt for an office. "But I think he'd have been much better off if he'd stayed right where he was, making sixty dollars a week and having no responsibility at all! Suppose he fails—what then?"

"He won't fail. You need not worry about his failing," Mary Faith said bright-heartedly, as she left the room that morning.

She was glad to have Kim away from the office of McIntire and Westover. Perhaps he wouldn't see so much of Jane Carter and his crowd of card-playing friends now that he was no longer working with them.

And that Janet-Girl—she went on thinking, as she rinsed the pink-sprigged china dishes and began to wipe them—Mary Faith wished with all her might that she might never see all day long any more, either."

"Where's Dad, asked Kim about his girl named Janet, but she had always had a feeling that she was still wanting for McIntire and Westover.

On Friday Kim drove her downtown to the Towers Building and showed her the office he had rented. The Towers Building was old, and its elevator made Mary Faith think of a bird cage. A very old and rusty one.

"It's not much of a building," Kim said apologetically, "but I won't have to pay for the elevator."

His office was on the eighth floor. It was small and its one and only window looked out into the well of the building.

"I got it for ninety smackers a month," he announced proudly, "and I signed a lease for six months. By the end of that time I'll be able to afford a better place—what do you bet I won't?"

"I know you will," Mary Faith told him. "You're half clever, Kim, and you're sure to win out. The germ of success just isn't in you, I'm afraid. It will all be heart. The meant it with all her heart. Her confidence in him was boundless.

He showed her where his desk would stand and where his office girl's desk would stand. He took a roller of the typist's desk and measured the wall where he would put his filing cabinet and his book-cases.

When he had finished Mary Faith put out her hand for the tape. "I'll measure the window and make you a pair of net sash curtains for it," she said. Kim, let me tell you about a place where you can pick up a rug and second furniture for almost nothing. It's second hand stores that deal in office furniture. I know about it because Mr. Nesbit sold some of our old desks that last year."

"Don't talk to me about him," Kim said sharply. "He was still jealous of Mark Nesbit. "He and his office furniture don't interest me in the little bit."

The office was all ready to be occupied on the last of April. On the first day of May, which was a Sunday, Kim took Mary Faith down to see it and she put up the cream-colored net curtains that she had made and presented him with a leather desk set that she had bought for a surprise.

"Did you hire an office girl?" she asked suddenly on the way home.

Kim nodded.

"What's her name?"

"Miss McCune."

The month of May was a month of beauty even in Wilton Street with its red brick apartment buildings and its narrow sidewalks. The sun shone and the grass grew greener day after day. The kitchen grass under Mary Faith's kitchen windows began to turn from a young green and every morning and evening a robin came there and sang at the top of its throat would burst. To Mary Faith hanging out clothes or shaking rugs on the porch, the tiny square of backyard seemed to hold the very heart of the springtime.

And at the very end of that month of beauty and promise, Mary Faith became aware that she was going to have a baby.

Late on Monday afternoon—afterward she always remembered that it was the twenty-eighth of May—she put on the dark green suit in which she had been married and went downtown to the Medical Building where Dr. Thatcher had his office.

It was five o'clock when she left him and came out into the sunlight of Spring Street once more—sunlight that seemed brighter and lovelier than any sunlight she had ever known.

She felt as if she were walking in an enchantment as she started to go west on Spring Street toward the Towers Building. She was going to break Kim's heart at this one time, and go up to his office to tell him about the wonderful, the utterly thing that was going to happen to the two of them.

His office was at one end of the winding corridor on the eighth floor of the old building. As she walked toward it she felt her heart swell with love and pride at the sight of his name on the door. It had a fine important look, painted there on it in the frosted glass in neat black letters:

KIMBERLEY FARRELL
Attorney-at-Law

She pushed open the door and went in. Kim was sitting at his desk, his head and shoulders dark against the light of the window behind him. His feet were on the desk, her feet braced against his chair and both of his hands shoved in his pockets.

She jumped down when she saw her, but only for a minute. A little incredulous sound in her throat. She was a dark, pretty girl young and very well dressed. Everything about her gave the impression of softness and smoothness—her little figure in a black dress, her cheeks and chin, her small red mouth.

All this Mary Faith saw in the second before her eyes met one second before her eyes met Kim's eyes.

"Hello, there." She steadied her lips to get the word out. "Hello, there" as a chair beside his desk and she sank down into it. "I had to see you right away, Kim, and I never thought I'd ride home with you."

Kim got to his feet. He was sorry that he was answering her. But she couldn't tell that. She couldn't. There was a sudden loud ringing in her ear like the sound of church bells. Or was it bells in her head?

Then she saw the girl move across the room and take down her hat and jacket from the coat-tree in the corner. All her movements seemed very slow, like action in a nightmare.

Then she was standing bright on one of her fingers. It flashed as she raised her hands to her head and pulled her hat down over her hair. Mary Faith heard the words in the wide eyes fixed on it, her hands gripping the arms of the chair until the knuckles whitened.

It was a ring. A narrow white gold ring set with a modest diamond and two chips.

The last time Mary Faith had seen it was the rainy September morning in Hazlehurst Park when Kim had asked her for it and she had given it to him. It was the ring that she had worn on her own hand every day for almost four months. Her engagement ring.

She heard Kim's voice. faint and thin as if it came to her from a distance. He was speaking to the girl, trying to keep Mary Faith's letters in the chute on your way out, Janet."

And then, after what seemed a very long time, the girl said, "Good night, Mr. Farrell." There came the click of the door as it closed behind her and the sound of her heels dying away down the corridor.

Kim began to clear off his desk, putting papers and envelopes into the top drawer. He slammed it, tried to see if it was locked, opened it and slammed it again. He swung around in his swivel chair and picked his gray hat up from the filing cabinet against the wall.

"All right, let's go," he said.

"No. Wait just a minute. I want to ask you something, Kim. Who is that girl?"

His mouth tightened and he threw his hat down upon the desk. "Oh, you know who she is just as well as I do! You saw her with me that night in Armbruster's! What are you trying to do? Trap me in some kind of a lie.

Mary Faith shook her head.

"You're wondering what she's doing here, aren't you? Well, I'll tell you! Kim said roughly. "She was so doggone loyal to me that when I left McIntire and Westover she left too. So what could I do but give her a job when I opened this office?"

Mary Faith gave him a deep still look.

"That's why you didn't want me to come down here—because she was here," she said, thinking things out. "You didn't want me to see her. But I didn't even know her, Kim. I didn't look at her hat that night when she was in Armbruster's with you. And I wouldn't have known who she was just now if she hadn't been wearing my—ring."

CHAPTER XXII

With a great effort she pulled herself up out of the chair and walked around the desk to him.

"Let's not talk about her, Kim." She put her arm over him and laid her cheek against his smooth head. "Let's talk about us, dear."

But Kim sat bent over him and laid his head against his smooth blond head. "You can't talk to me about her," he said.

"You came here to spy on me." He pushed her gently but very firmly away from him. "And now that you've found out what you wanted to know, I suppose you'll keep nagging at me until I put that little kid out of my office." His face was at to the mood of sullen anger.

"I never nagged you, Kim!" She was sure that she never had. "Good lord, you started before we'd been married three days! You nagged me about smoking cigars. You nagged me about the drinks. You nagged me about the Maldons. You knew I liked to go to their house, but would you go there with me? Not on your life! And when I went without you, you nagged me about that. You nagged me about playing cards for a little money. To hear you talk, their flat was a gambling hell!

Mary Faith listened to him with a dreadful sinking of her heart. What on earth was the matter with him? Why did he want to go on quarreling with her like this? And all about nothing, really....

"I never refused to go to the Maldon's, Kim", she said brightly. "I was perfectly willing to go so long as I didn't have to take a drink or play cards. I told you that. I told you that. Don't you remember?"

"I'm—you're a regular dead-game sport." There was biting sarcasm in Kim's voice. He pulled out his watch and looked at it. "It's half past five," he said. "Let's go. We can finish the battle at lunch. It'll be a swell way to spend the evening."

As they stood in the hall, waiting for the elevator, he looked at her suddenly, his eyes as gray as pebbles, like pin points.

"You said you came up here to tell me something," he said. "What was it? What's on your mind?"

Mary Faith didn't answer him for a minute or two. She stood, staring at the bronze doors of the elevator shaft and at all times, was sure that she had to tell him what Dr. Thatcher had told her that morning.

"Nothing—I'll tell you some other time," she said at last.

Mrs. Farrell was walking up and down the floor in front of the apartment when they turned into Wilton Street. She was wearing an old golf cape and the chilly air had whipped some color into her tired face.

"I suppose I ought to be in the kitchen getting dinner ready," she greeted them. "But it was so nice and sunny, I just couldn't go in."

"How about a little drive in the country, mother?" Kim asked her as she beamed with pleasure. It wasn't often that he took her for a drive.

Mary Faith went into the flat and began at the dinner ready. There was cold roast beef, left over from Sunday, and a bowl of vegetable salad that she had put on the ice early that afternoon before she started for the doctor's office. She would make some potatoes, she decided. Kim liked them.

She put them in the oven and was setting the table when she was setting the table when she heard the elevator door in the hall open and shut, the rattle of Kim's engine and the rattle of Mrs. Farrell's cane.

Kim's mother came into the flat alone.

"Where's Kim? Putting the car away?" Mary Faith asked her.

His mother shook her head. "No. He said he wasn't going to have dinner with me tonight. He said something about a business engagement that he had to keep. I'm sure I don't know what time that might when he came home. He came walking out into the kitchen where his mother and Mary Faith were and was dangerous and folding down the clothes that they had washed that morning.

The kitchen was filled with the fresh sweet smell of clean linen and the yeasty smell of bread above the sink ticked with a cozy, happy sound. The kitchen was a very pleasant and comfortable place these days.

"I was afraid you two would be in bed," Kim said, pulling a chair out from under the table and setting one foot up on its seat. "I want to talk to you—"

Mary Faith saw him brace himself to go on. "I've been downtown all morning and in my office all evening, thinking things over," he said, "I've spent almost half of the little bit of capital that I had to start with—and haven't made a cent the whole month. I haven't had a single client—not one."

"Well, I wouldn't be discouraged Kim," Mary Faith looked up from over the sheet she was folding. "What's a month? It takes time to succeed."

He went on as if she had not spoken: "And so I've come to the conclusion that we'll have to give up flat I'm going to keep the office open. If we don't I'm just going to fail, that's all. I have all the money to keep up both places."

"Why you must be crazy!" His mother's voice was a wail. "I've lived on this flat for more years than I've got fingers and toes, Kimberley Farrell! It's my home, and I'm not going to break up my home for anybody! I can't.... Why where would I go when I left here?"

She sat down at the table and began to wring her hands.

"Why couldn't you go out to Gertrudella and stay with Aunt Ella for a while?" Kim asked her. "She'd be tickled to death to have you, and you could put your furniture into storage. It would be a rest for you."

"And what about you and Mary Faith? Where would you go?"

Kim shrugged his broad shoulders an dhis light above his head in a careless and blase way as he turned to look at Mary Faith.

"Oh, I'll get a cheap room somewhere—and I imagine Mary Faith would go back to Mrs. Puckeridge," he said, "I'm sure we'll be this is the best thing for all of us. I can't you, Mary Faith? You and I have been married for five months and I don't believe that either one of us thinks that our marriage is a howling success."

Mary Faith caught her breath sharply as if he had dealt her a blinding blow. Its pain her hand up before her face as if she were trying to protect herself from him.

"You don't mean that you're tired of me!"

CONSTANCE BENNETT IN "BEST SELLER" SHINES IN GOWNS

"Two Against the World" which brings the glamorous Constance Bennett to Belleville audiences again under the Warner Bros. banner at the Bele Thursday and Friday, matinee daily, is said to be the most sumptuously dressed and dramatically satisfying of all the pictures in which she has been starred.

Based on the best selling novel of the same name by Marion Dix and Jerry Horwin, "Two Against the World" is a thrilling story of love and murder in high places; of a luxury loving lady who Miss Bennett finds herself suddenly face to face with law with the man she loves, as the prosecutor; of a proud girl who dares disgrace and ruin to protect a name.

Running all the way from the lantrums of a spoiled child of the rich to the lurid emotions of a disgraced woman in love, "Two Against the World" gives Miss Bennett her greatest screen role to date it is said, has been recently rumored, the Marquise de la Falaise as Constance Bennett is known in private life, is to retire shortly from the screen. "Two Against the World" may long be remembered as a thoroughly satisfying, opportunity laden vehicle for her swan song.

The picture is lavishly staged and richly dressed, as befits the fame and beauty of the star. Miss Bennett herself has never been so beautifully gowned. The supporting cast, headed by Neil Hamilton and including Allen Vincent, Helen Vinson, Gavin Gordon, Walter Walker, Hale Hamilton, Alan Mowbray and Rocco Karne, is of impressive excellence. The picture is directed by Archie Mayo, who guided Miss Bennett's first Warner Brothers production "Bought," a tremendous box office success of some months past.

"Two Against the World" is really a vital love story involving a woman of the masses and a woman of the classes. Public calamity, the great World Conflagration in brief, down old barrier and build new ones, with the aid of the periodicals reversed. There are many light moments and one delightful and smartly dialogued scenes, with a countercurrent of real dramatic intensity rarely seen before on the talking screen.

The twenty-odd new gowns worn as only Miss Bennett can wear them. There are two songs played as only Miss Bennett can play them and an audience thrill which only an exceptional combination of star, cast, story and producing organization could possibly offer.

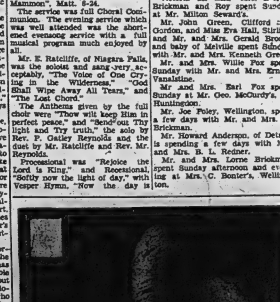
STATE'S ATTORNEY 3-STAR PICTURE

John Barrymore may, in all truth, be regarded in that select circle of screen boo-boos whose screen who are remarkable for their versatility. Not alone because he is the reigning child of the theatre's "royal family," but because, as an actor, he has demonstrated to critics and the public his unfailing skill in portrayal.



Looking back over his career one is immediately impressed by the characterization he has attempted and succeeded in carrying off. From the superb "Hamlet" of his stage days; the finest "Hamlet" an American actor has ever given in the eyes of the cognoscenti, to so diverse a series of roles as his Baron in "Grand Hotel" and his counselor-at-law in "State's Attorney," the inimitable John has always been successful.

Neither the magic of his name, nor the handsomeness of his profile are the qualities that have endeared him to American cinemagoers. Barrymore's chief claim to fame is his genius for workmanlike performances. The statement that "Genius is the infinite capacity for taking pains" is no idle one where he is concerned. So to the Barrymore is part and parcel of his qualities. He lives parts, in short, and because he does, and couples with this quality the true actor's unfailing sense of play, he is outstanding.

Take his role in "State's Attorney," in which he appears at the Capitol Theatre. Never before has he played a modern American role of this character, taken bodily out of the lurid files of fact and biography, the story of a lawyer who rises from a cheap political shyster whose brilliance is his only asset to the district attorney's office, but whose private life is colorful, scarlet, romantic. A role of steel and silk, it moves swiftly, heightened by atmosphere, highlighted by romance.

Barrymore's career has been a full one, its training for any role he might essay. On the stage he began his career in "Magda" and played leads in such outstanding dramatic confections as Sem Benelli's "The Jest," in which he appeared with Lionel his brother; "Hamlet;" "Peter Ibbetson," "Thief in the Night," and others.

Barrymore was born in Philadelphia. His father was Maurice Barrymore, his mother Georgiana Drew, and his uncle was John Drew. Ethel Barrymore is his sister, Lionel Barrymore his brother. Together they form the royalty of the acting profession, and of them all John is considered the favorite son.

Watering Horses When Taken

The "Kid," for whom a search had been conducted since Sunday when Thomas' stabbed body was found in a boathouse here, was captured as he watered horses on the farm of Leslie McLure.

The man, whose correct name was said to be Henry Reid, attempted to fight off detectives who went to arrest him. He was overpowered, however, and taken into custody.

Police said after they told him for what he was wanted he admitted "I did it."

Reid said another hobo called the "Yank" was with him at the time of slaying but left him immediately afterwards. He professed to know nothing of this man's whereabouts.

No charge was laid against Reid immediately.

Peterboro, Ont., Sept. 8—Henry Reid, alias the "Michigan Kid" alias "Campbellford Shorty," was captured by police today and was said to have confessed he killed Henry Thomas, unemployed war veteran in a boathouse Sunday.

Reid, after keeping ahead of his pursuers for four days, was identified by Leslie Scott, detective of the hobo jungle, as police came upon him at the farm of Wesley McClure, in Dummer township.

The "Kid" was watering McClure's horses. He offered little resistance. Police quoted him as saying "I did it."

Capture of the man, wanted originally for questioning in the fatal stabbing of Thomas, brought to a climax a search which continued for another hobo known only as "Yank" who, Reid said was with him when Thomas was killed. Reid said he did not know where the man had gone after the stabbing.

KAYE DON HAS NO EXCUSES

Engines Not Responsible For Breakdown in Race

Toronto, Sept. 8 (By The Canadian Press)—"I don't propose to make excuses. I have none to make," said Kaye Don of his second failure to take the Harmsworth Trophy away from Sir Malcolm Wood of the United States.

Speaking at the luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition shortly after his arrival by plane from Detroit, Don declared his Miss England had received the best of care from her mechanics and that the two great Rolls Royce engines were not responsible for the breakdowns of Saturday and Monday on Lake St. Clair.

It was the same boat, Don reminded his audience, which proved her worth by doing more than 100 miles an hour on Loch Lomond, Scotland, and actually did do 98.76 at lap of this year's Harmsworth trading. "But that's poor consolation," he added.

The accident occurred Monday night in pitch darkness and LaFrance said he had considerable difficulty in preventing two of the girls, Unita A'mstrong and Edna Saunders, from jumping into the water to look for their sisters, after he had dragged them to shore, 10 feet from the point where the car sank.

Could Not See

Their were unable to see from the bank how many had reached safety owing to the darkness of the night.

Magistrate Atkinson, after hearing evidence, immediately dismissed the case and congratulated LaFrance on his heroic rescue.

LaFrance himself said he had no idea how he accomplished it. He was so excited and frightened. He said he did not realize he had got all his passengers out until after it was all over.

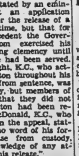
F. G. Johnston And L. E. Clarke Out on Ticket of Leave



Toronto, Sept. 8—The Evening Telegram says today: Frederick G. Johnston and Lawrence E. Clark, one-time high-priced executives of the Stinson Finance enterprises, who were sentenced respectively to three and two and one-half years in Portsmouth Penitentiary on charges of publishing false prospectuses have been released on ticket-of-leave before half their sentences are served.

"The Telegram was unable to learn what extraordinary plea was advanced on behalf of the prisoners. It was stated by an official connected that an application could be made for the release of a prisoner at any time, but that for a matter of precedent the Governor-General seldom exercised the powers of granting clemency until half the sentence had been served.

"Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., who acted for Col. Johnston throughout his trial and appeal from sentence, was out of town today, but members of his firm stated that they did not know Col. Johnston had been released. A. A. MacDonald, K.C., who acted for Clark in the appeal, stated that he had no word of his former client's release from custody, and had no knowledge of any attempt to secure his freedom.

Scribbled Note Tells Pathetic Story of Man Found Dead at Pier

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 8 (CP) — A bullet from a heavy army rifle today ended the earthly troubles of John Ross, a brush salesman, whose pathetic story was scribbled over eight pages of a note book found beside his body on a waterfront pier.

This was the John Ross, who recently wrote to the police of Hamilton, Ontario, to learn the whereabouts of his mother, Mrs. Gordon Pickup. He had not seen her since his childhood. He was planning to marry in October and wished her to be present at the wedding. His letter brought the news that his mother was dead.

Added to his financial worries his mother's death was sufficient to deprive him of desire to live, according to the note book.

"I lost some of the company's money, but no one would believe that," is contained in a statement addressed to the manager of the brush company for which he worked.

The note mentioned "Bunny," believed to be the girl Ross was to marry.

Ross, who was 32 years of age, started as a boy at LaHave, N.S., later he went to the United States but was deported for illegal entry. Coming to Halifax several weeks ago he found it difficult to get work, said the proprietor of a local cafe befriended him.

Yesterday Ross called at the cafe and paid the proprietor $7 that he owed him. The proprietor said Ross appeared depressed but did not indicate that he was desperate.

Gas Well Explodes and Two are Burned to Death

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 8 (CP) — Two men died today from burns suffered in the explosion of a gas well last night on a Dawn township farm.

The men, John Blackhall, Newbury, and Nick Diehl, Clarkesburg, were burned when a spark ignited gas as they were drilling at the well.

Neighboring farmers rushed to their assistance and dragged them from the roaring fire which leaped high above the top of the well.

Flames from the well shot high into the air, illuminating the countryside. Men gathered at a committee meeting rushed to give aid to the men caught by the fire.

They found the two critters lying on the ground with their clothing burned from their bodies. Both were unconscious. The rescuers braved the heat to drag them clear of the fire.

The community meeting had received 18 or 20 men usually at work on the well and it was said the toll of the fire would inevitably have been higher had the entire drill crew been at work.

NO GUN FOUND

Former Suitor of Girl May Throw Light on Affair

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 8 (CP)—Police today clutched a theory of double murder and reviewed evidence of a suicide pact—and neither of these leads threw closer to a definite decision in regard to the death of William Rosnek and Joyce Roberts yesterday.

Rosnek, proprietor of a small store, and the pretty 16 year old girl were found seated in a car at Table Head on Tuesday night. Both had bullet holes in their heads and they died in the hospital at Glace Bay.

The girl had been shot through the right side of the head, Rosnek directly from behind.

Although a note found in the girl's purse told of a suicide pact police were baffled by the absence of a gun from the scene of the tragedy and the possibility of a double murder was investigated.

We were married May 24, 1932, the note read. Here police were skeptical. They had to find any record of the marriage.

Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roberts, had been "keeping company" with Rosnek for some time. Police questioned a former suitor, who had been known to the girl by the pet name "Maurice Caswell."

Police said they did not suspect him of any complicity in the shooting but thought he might be able to throw some light on the general circumstances of the affair.

An inquest will be held tomorrow night.

Slight Arguments Public Should Know Loss Sustained

McCARTHY OBJECTS

Have No Jurisdiction Over Payment Made in Quebec

Toronto, Sept. 8 (CP)—Ontario's Royal Commission inquiring into financial deals negotiated by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, closed yesterday sitting in an atmosphere of uncertainty.

Carrying on the work interrupted by the illness of Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton and the death of Mr. Justice J. F. Orde, the two commissioners, Mr. Justice W. R. Riddell and Mr. Justice O. H. Sedgewick, faced the possibility of demanding further evidence concerning the purchase of Madawaska power rights from the O'Brien interests as suggested by A. G. Slaght, K.C., counsel for opposition critics of the Hydro.

When the Commissioners moved to consider the payment of $125,000 to John Aird, jr., by the Beauharnois Power Company their power to do so was challenged by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., counsel for Aird, on the ground that the payment was made in Quebec by a Quebec corporation.

More Information

The first question was raised by Mr. Slaght with the request that Hydro authorities should give the public more information about the Madawaska purchase and the property. He suggested evidence should be introduced to show what loss had been sustained on the property since the purchase, whether the additional power asserted was actually needed, and whether Hydro must power going to waste at Niagara.

On Monday, Sept. 12, counsel for the Hydro Commission objected to questions by Mr. Slaght "fishing for information" asserting that the necessary evidence had already been given. If the Commission desired further evidence however, he would try to produce it.

Mr. Justice Riddell said a ruling of Mr. Slaght's because, would be given at a later sitting. The commissioners then proceeded with an inquiry into the Beauharnois payment of $125,000 to John Aird Jr.

D. L. McCarthy, K.C., counsel for Aird, at once questioned the jurisdiction of the Ontario Royal Commission over the Beauharnois payment. Mr. McCarthy's counsel was made in the Province of Quebec by a Quebec corporation, he argued was not a proper subject of inquiry for a commission of another province. Moreover, as it related to the purchase of power by the Province of Quebec from Beauharnois.

To apply for an injunction," said Mr. Justice Riddell.

"No," replied counsel. "I can apply to the Appellate Division for an order for a stated case."

Had Every Power

The late Mr. Justice Orde had maintained that the commission's inquire into the matter.

The commission would proceed with its inquiry into the $125,000 payment, said Mr. Justice Riddell. W. N. Tilley, K.C., Hydro counsel, then outlined Aird's dealings with the Province of Quebec and Manager of the Beauharnois Power Corporation at the time.

CONTEST WINNERS TO BE ANNOUNCED

The winners of the prizes to be awarded for the correct guessing of the number of beans displayed in the Capitol Theatre Booth at the Belleville Fair last week, will be announced from the Capitol Theatre stage on Friday night.

Scrutiny of the thousands of guesses deposited by visitors to the Fair reveals that the sense of judging beans has its own comedy. One coupon was marked Joe E. Brown, 19 million beans, and another listed 900 beans to be the correct number.

It will be interesting to know exactly how many beans were in that jar.

ANNIVERSARY IS LARGELY ATTENDED

Miss Roberta Wallbridge has returned home after spending a holiday at Newmarket and Toronto. She was entertained at "Sharon" North York on the 107th anniversary of the first feast in the Temple, which was built in 1825 and was called David's Temple. It was restored in 1918 by the York pioneers and the Historical Society for a historic and museum. She was greatly impressed with the curious collection loaned by the descendants of the pioneer settlers.

NO FROST IS REPORTED HERE

Although there have been current rumors of the season's first frost being experienced locally of late there is nothing suitable as the local temperatures will determine. Wednesday the mercury fell to 44 to 42 during the early morning hours and had soared to 67 as the high point for the day. Thursday the mercury only dropped to 43 and Hanna re-ALP will be sorry to learn that he is ill at his home, had reached as high as 72 at noon.

SWERVES CAR TO AVOID STRIKING MAN

An unknown man who presumably sought to obtain a lift by stepping from the shadows at the side of the road on No. 2 highway, near the Ontario School for the Deaf, almost lost his life when a car being driven by Mr. Harold Gaines of this city, almost caused an accident, late Wednesday evening, when a last minute swerve by the driver of the car sent the machine skidding across the road, momentarily out of control, to land with front wheels sticking over the edge of the ditch at the side.

Mr. Gaines, who had been returning from the west with his car, declared he did not see the man until he stepped in front of the machine and loomed in front of his lights. When the car was started up again the man had disappeared.

LARGE EEL CAUGHT AT ROBLIN'S LAKE

Residents of the immediate section of Prince Edward County surrounding it are staunch in the belief that Roblin's Lake contains in the water mightier and queerer specimens than have ever been caught. Time and circumstances only serve to strengthen the theory.

Some time ago, for instance, a story was related of a huge black bass, which swallowed a little bass and choked to death doing it. They were found floating on top of the lake by Mr. Blades.

This week came a gentleman from Toronto. He hired a boat, some fishing, and proceeded to haul in some nice, plump fish. Then his line became taut and the fun began. Most of every man's turnout is fitted with steel reels doubled and his line cutting strikes through it. He thought what fell like an animated saw log on the end of it only served to deepen the bewilderment of the fisherman. He thought he must have hooked a sturgeon at least. The smoke cleared and the character of the catch was pulled in.

It was an eel. It was four feet and some inches long. And the diameter of the creature was about as eight inches around. All of which constitutes another record for Roblin's Lake.

MAKING LEFT HAND TURN AS CARS MEET

A motor car accident occurred about two miles west of Shilting, Wednesday evening at 8.30 p.m. when a car driven by Miss Leslie Johnson of Shilting collided with a car driven by Mr. D. H. Fleming of Toronto. Mr. Fleming was driving westward at the time of the accident being followed by Miss Johnson. As Miss Johnson attempted to pass the Fleming car, she started to make a left-hand turn. Miss Johnson alleges that the driver of the Fleming car failed to signify his intention of turning to the left, pressing to her attempting to pass him.

The Fleming car was damaged in the extent of a bent back door and fender, while the Johnson car was damaged to the extent of a broken spring, lamp bracket, bent axle, and bent fender.

MONOXIDE GAS IS USED TO KILL DOGS

A triple threat machine recently built by Thomas Thorne at the pound for the quick and painless extermination of unwanted animals has, evidently put a question on the rambling proclivities of canines of all descriptions throughout the city. Not a solitary dog has been picked up by the custodian of the pound since the lethal chamber has been built. Not even a stray dog has been sighted.

The execution chamber, which was built by Mr. Thorne depends on carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of the family car to send to the happy hunting grounds the stray animals not called for. A piece of flexible tubing run from the muffler of the machine is connected with a pipe leading to the air-tight chamber in which the dogs and cats are placed. Forty seconds "revolving up" of the motor fills the box with enough gas to kill anything.

Picton Magistrate Touches on Phases of Juvenile Delinquency

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 8—Magistrate Frederic Watt of Guelph today recommended formation in Ontario of a unified police force which would include all police of cities, counties and the province.

Magistrate Watt outlined his proposal at today's annual assembly of the Ontario Magistrates' Association which was welcomed to the city by Mayor John Peebles.

The meeting was presided over by Col. C. S. Woodrow of Sarnia.

A general discussion was held following the address of Magistrate Watt. It was suggested that schools of instruction be held for magistrates. The practice of the public inspecting the police court of the collection of debts was deplored.

Magistrate A. E. Calnan of Picton led a discussion on the Juvenile Delinquents Act. He touched upon the increase in juvenile crime and declared that the tragedy of present day life was the fact that when a young man left school he could find no place to secure employment. He suggested that the leaving school with no prospect of jobs in the city should be placed on farms.

Mr. Tilbrook Gains Recognition at Ex With Spaniels

Mr. C. R. Tilbrook, whose fame as a breeder of Springer Spaniels has gained recognition throughout the country and also on the American side, where several of his pups have recently been sold, once again defended his laurels and made a surprising showing of his animals from the local Moira Kennels at the Toronto Exhibition from which he has just returned.

In competition with sixteen other Springers, which had been sent in from all over the Dominion, and parts of the United States, the only two dogs Mr. Tilbrook took to the show were awarded respectively one First and one Second prize for "Trent Valley Jack Light," the Male and one Third prize for "Lady Rose of Moira," six and one half months old Female, who had been entered in the competition with dogs much older owing to the fact that there was no puppy making but the two. This is an excellent showing for such a small kennel as the Moira Kennels.

"Novadoc" Largest Boat Ever To Enter Belleville Harbor Unloads Flour Cargo at Dock

13,500 BAGS

Boat, is One of Largest Lake Freighters, Well Equipped

The largest boat ever to enter Belleville harbor, the "Novadoc", lake freighter, of the Paterson Steamship Line, out of Port Wilham, warped quietly and without fuss to her berth at the government dock late Wednesday afternoon.

She carried the largest shipment of any commodity ever to be unloaded in this city. The consignment, 13,500 bags of flour and feed, is destined for the Ewing Milling Company of this city, from the Robin Hood Milling Company, of Moosejaw, which has made Belleville a distributing point for their products. This step was decided upon only after the company had made a careful investigation of surrounding territory and had reached the decision that this city possesses natural advantages not enjoyed by any community within the radius which it serves.

This agreement was reached even after several tempting offers had been made by other Hastbound towns to induce the company to locate there, and in the face of strenuous opposition, when it was learned that Belleville had been decided upon.

First of Many

This consignment is believed to be only the first of many figures to appear which will arrive by boat at well-spaced intervals throughout the season. Arrangements to out the season. Arrangements to the Robin Hood Company, and officers of the steamship line themselves were pleased with facilities which exist in this city.

"It was due mainly to the strenuous efforts of officers of the Tweed Milling Company that we decided to locate and ship this produce here," said Captain Beatty, who, declared Mr. Gene Clarke, agent of the Robin Hood Company who arrived in Belleville with the consignment, "this is really my first trial trip, but so far we are pleased with the way it has turned out," he stated.

Reference was made by Mr. Clarke to the repeated requests made by a neighboring town west of Belleville to have them locate their distributing point there. "We decided on Belleville because we believe Belleville is better situated and able to handle the shipments."

Describing the boat's trip here, she was moored, the "Novadoc" presented a new spectacle to the throngs which had visited her during the afternoon and evening. Differing from the smaller boats which call occasionally, the "Novadoc" is unique singularly in size. While sightseers climbed over and around her decks, she was unloaded and polished, derrick booms swung and men, recruited from the ranks of local labor, toiled in the glaring hold, where electric lights swinging into rope baskets dozens of bags of flour at each dip of the boom. They were loaded shortly into the air to be lowered gently to the dock where a group of men sorted and piled them, into neat stacks, four high, on the commodious sheds. Fully fifty men from Belleville were employed at the elevators.

Capt. Beatty, Pilot

Piloted by Captain Beatty, the boat was brought from Kingston up the final stretch of Quinte's bay by Captain Bloomfield, now residing in Belleville, a recently retired skipper of the old "Aletha", and dean of the lake fraternity, many years ago.

With a tonnage of 11,152, the boat is 25-foot long and has a 43-foot beam. Fully loaded her holds are capable of stowing away 14,000 tons of dead freight. When she entered Belleville she was loaded only lightly, over half her full cargo, when she left Fort William being unloaded at intermediate points on down. On the last trip bound to lake freighters. Fitted with radio direction finders and every other modern convenience and necessity, she is able to plow through crowds of waters or fog undisturbed. A nominal crew of 18 men is carried whenever she is in operation.

Two things were revealed by Captain Beatty on short talk on the bridge of the boat Wednesday afternoon. Interspersed with the hissing of steam from the busy winches unloading the hold, came the Captain's clipped sentences regarding marine matters, right here in Belleville.

"No trouble at all with that harbor. Any boat could come in it. Limitation of cargo is governed entirely by the depth of water. So long way outside the Bay or Gravelly Shoals Narrows, to be exact. That is a ticklish part of the course. Little less cargo, though, which can be carried by say boat."

Then all that need be done to allow large boats into this harbor is to deepen the channel at the Narrows in places?" pursued the questioner.

"Impossible Couldn't be done. You would have to dredge and chart miles and miles of bed all the way down. That would be an impossible undertaking for the hardiest derived."

NOTED ORGANIST DIES AT SUMMER HOME

Magnetawan, Ont., Sept. 8 — Stricken with a heart seizure, A. D. Jordan, organist and choirmaster of Palace Memorial Church, Toronto, died at his summer residence here last night. He had just returned from Parry Sound.

Widely known in musical circles, Mr. Jordan came to Toronto from London, Ont., in August, 1925. The body will be accompanied to Toronto by Mrs. Jordan, his widow, and Dr. Jordan fils son.

St. Lawrence Waterways project was dismissed with a contemptuous sniff by Captain Beatty, who seemed a new angle to the matter which may possibly have been overlooked in the enthusiasm displayed by many during the initial fervor accompanying the agitation for such a project.

What will happen to lake freighters now on the waters, when foreign boats from overseas ports are able to enter and compete with them, with a resultant keener competition sniff enough as it is at present?

The question was not Captain Beatty's. He did not even suggest it, but there was an intimation, that things would undergo a drastic revision if and when the deep waterways scheme finally matures. No Nazafis in Belleville.

"We don't need it at all," was his comment, when that subject was broached to him. "Belleville benefit? Not at all. None of consequence. It would undergo the slightest change, as far as ocean traffic is concerned. Same old stuff would be carried and taken on smaller freighters, to be in turn discharged to those smaller ports. Belleville wouldn't even know, that the waterway was open, yet she would no doubt be able to ship more cheaply as a result of improvement. It would take a lot of stuff to fill the holds of our lake freighters though" soliloquized the Captain.

Looking at the slight, fine figure of Captain Beatty, clad in a fine, grey business suit, with a clean shaven face, brisk manner and bricker eye, it was not difficult to believe, that the day of the dungaree-clad whiskered captain of lake freighters had passed. There is a new alertness required of lake freighter captains, which will not enable the finger-tested tactics of yore active sailors. There is a new technique required to manipulate radio direction finders, to use sun and latitude instruments and other dozens of more modern devices which are now necessary to successful sailing of monarous boats now on the waters. Captain Beatty has kept abreast in that cash on the bridge, which has made the passing of many captains of even twenty years ago. Those days are long overgrown, and to a science. Owners these days demand that the boat losing one of those floating palaces.

But through it all the glamor and call of the wide waters which it was attested by the men and wife, which flocked and swarmed the boat, while she was in harbor. It was again proven by Captain Beatty's remarks of Captain Beatty: "Sailing is the greatest business in the world."

And all who looked with envious eyes on the ship and her fittings will agree.

The Mixing Persons Bureau of the New York Police Department long has handled over a quarter of a million cases of disappearances in the last 15 years.

Visionaries Vindicated as Port of Belleville Becomes A Principal Shipping Point

Much Opposition, When New Dock Proposed And Built

HEAVY YEAR

Surprising the Amount of Goods go Over Dock Each Week

Visionaries, who sit on the harbor front and pass small talk among themselves had long and predicted dire prophesies concerning Belleville as a port.

They cheerlessly point to giant trucks and lorries, which pound their way over the highways laden with box-car loads of goods destined for points throughout the province. No boat could compete with these things, they declared, when it came to haulage rates and the staying away of real cargoes. And, all if that wasn't enough, there was also the railroads with their reduced freight rates in competition.

Back in the days when the old steamer "North King" used to roll in her sparring steam and shrill wails of sparks from a red-hot stack, with every window shining in a blaze of light, and the big walking-beam turning the paddle wheels which churned the dark waters of the harbor into a frothy foam, there was a certain confidence that fishermen some trouble as she warped to her berth and commenced to unload, but it was good for trade, and commerce and the port of Belleville. They took some monstrous loads out of the hold of the old North King and kindred vessels. Loads of cheese and butter and machinery and a thousand other articles went back in to replace the empty hold for a trip that was like to dozens of ports. Those were halcyon days.

But with the passing of the years boats and shipments form the ports of Belleville is a new low level. Other methods of conveyance children in on the legitimate business belonging to the boats. Shippers lost interest in water routes. Other factors stepped in and helped to put a quietus on the whole business. From then on fishermen and boats were left undisturbed to their nightly labors.

Might Never Be Used

Then came the government dock. The croakers croaked loud and long. They held nightly conclaves in the shadows of old buildings on the waterfront to discuss the new, foolish move of the government. No sense in building a dock which would never be used. It would be merely something to tie punts to and fish from.

Giant dredges snorted up the bay. They deepened channels, filled barges with thousands of tons of harbor mud and had them towed away by fussy tugs. Pile drivers added their noise and din to the rest of it. Cement and stone arrived by the ton. Before their eyes a long, smooth, gleaming dock with deep water all around it took shape and jutted out into the bay. Great mooring irons were set in the cement to hold the boats. A commodious freight shed was built on the end. It was much too large—and the mooring irons would never be used, they said.

Through the years the dock has prospered. In spite of the doleful prophesies of those who profess to know, it began to show a profitable return. Belleville's district, more years brought more business, more interest.

Heavy Year in 1931

In 1931 there had been more merchandise handled through Belleville's port than ever. She began again to grow conspicuous as a shipping point by those who had stuff to sell and ship. With the increase in business freight rates declined. Boats began to come from any other medium. Sugar, cheese, flour, canned goods, bottled merchandise had come again begun to assume shipments of larger proportions than ever before. There is the history of the government dock and there are the men themselves handled as there had been in 1931, But there it did stop. If previous breeding records, for season of 1932, even so far, has topped all records since the popular lake rural of the old-time steamers years ago. You have that statement on the authority of Harbormaster Robt. Sandy.

"Last year was a good year," affirms Bob, "but this year has it topped." We have also delivery and freight out of Belleville this year than ever did since the new dock was built. It's going better every year."

At present there is one boat which regularly calls at the dock. The Glenn Allan making trips from Picton, laden with goods from there, mostly, but with some other cargo of cheese, canned goods and hundreds of other articles and leaves for the east, Montreal and intermediate points. Other boats and boat there are giant freighters making periodic stops, unloading thousands of tons of coal, flour and other goods.

Miscellaneous Cargoes

During the past year mammoth gas tanks and oil tanks have been erected at the lower end of the city by various oil companies who found it advantageous to make Belleville a distributing point. Millions of gallons of oil are brought in by lake freighters during the enough of the season and pumped into them. Molasses for manufacturing into alcohol in the district also constitute a large part of the fluid cargoes. There is machinery and wheat and candies being unloaded is a steady stream. And there are record shipments of thousands of cheese in every cargo going out each week.

Men are needed to unload and load these shipments, this local men find work. Far into the night they labor and the steady hum and low of huge truck exhausts as they back into the well-filled freight shed. Early in the morning they go with a full cargo in the hold they pull out again with cheery whistles reverberating across the placid waters. What will happen when the St. Lawrence Waterways scheme finally materializes needs little vision to comprehend. Farmers sitan that displayed some years ago when men worked to build the dock.

No longer croakers croak. There may be a complaint or two, but they will come only from the mutual fishermen who find no more quietness to pursue their sport from a quiet dock. Lately it has been too busy for fishing.

Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, earned the money to finance to see capital by painting portraits and a panorama of the burning of Moscow.

COALITION IN BR. COLUMBIA POSSIBILITY

Wants Men Able to Render Best Service During Crisis

ELECTION NEAR

Decision Reached After Many Months of Deliberation

Victoria, Sept. 8 (CP).—British Columbia is on the brink of important political changes. Formation of a union government, and an early general election emerge as strong probabilities as a result of Premier S. F. Tolmie's intimation he will shortly issue a statement recommending a coalition administration.

Premier Tolmie said that he and his colleagues had come to the conclusion after many months of deliberation that the time had arrived when the best service to the province could be rendered by the men able to render it, irrespective of party.

"The statement is the first break in the hazy atmosphere of political rumor that has enveloped the province for many months.

Those who have stood undecided as to what would happen and what they would do when it did happen, must soon declare themselves, and the electorate will presumably have an early chance to say whether they have done well.

May Change Mind

Premier Tolmie has more to say, and, pending that, a discreet silence is being observed. Also, eyes are looking to T. Duff Pattullo, the Liberal chieftain, who is motoring in the interior of the province when the Premier made his announcement. Mr. Pattullo has been opposed, in principle, to the peculiarity of the times may induce him to change his mind, if, indeed, he has been asked to do so.

Though events may be expected to move rapidly, some little time will probably be necessary to clarify the situation.

It is not thought that Premier Tolmie's plans are clear-cut as yet. He is understood with Mr. Bowser, K.C., former Conservative premier, who has played a prominent role in the situation.

It is the first time since Sir Richard McBride formed his ministry in 1903 that a Premier of British Columbia has declared for the party government.

This may mean to the political life of British Columbia lies in the lap of the fates.

Excepting pre-Confederation union in 1843, Canada's only experience with coalition governments was when the Unionist Government formed by Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden in 1917, and the present Manitoba administration headed by Premier John Bracken.

ASKS CHURCH TO BE FIRM

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 8.—Make no further retreat in the missionary fields is the bold stand taken at the present position until better times come, Dr. Robert Laird, Toronto, Treasurer of the United Church of Canada, urged delegates to the Northern Ontario Presbyterian missionary convention here yesterday.

Reports revealed reductions in Presbyterian stipends from 1928 amounting to approximately $2,000 a year, which Dr. Laird declared, was the least.

Secretary of the missionary and maintenance funds for each of the six Presbyterian presented reports showing total receipts of about one-quarter the $44,800 allocation. Suggestions were made for the furtherance of missionary, education and

ANGUS ALBERT LOVES HIS DOG

Dog Had Been Killing Cickens on Indian Reserve

London, Ont. Sept. 8. — Angus Albert, Chippewa Indian, loves his dog. He demonstrated that Wednesday when he walked 36 miles from the Reserve to county police court to save the animal's life and then walked home and started home again on foot. Officials didn't have the heart to order the animal killed after they heard Albert's story so they gave it another chance.

The dog had been killing chickens near the Reserve so Albert was told by police it would have to be destroyed. Albert knew he would have to pay for the chickens but he couldn't see why the dog's life so he brought his money along with him and count out.

SIR ROBERT PARKER

Another of Belleville's distinguished sons has crossed the Great Divide and having experienced everything this life has to offer, has pierced that curtain of mystery which divides the here and the hereafter and entered upon that larger and fuller experience which religion teaches awaits the weary wayfarer when the burden of life is at last laid down. Sir Gilbert Parker was not born in Belleville but he spent a number of years in this city and vicinity and is numbered among Belleville's most distinguished sons. That he loved Belleville was evident in his various visits here, retention of local friendships, and intense interest in anything pertaining to Belleville and its people. The fact that he had constructed a private mausoleum in the Belleville cemetery and there laid the body of his wife who died in a distant city and arranged that his own body should repose there when the call came is sufficient evidence that Belleville was home to Sir Gilbert Parker.

Sir Gilbert Parker's life was as interesting as his books. He studied for the Anglican ministry and often occupied the pulpit. He was quiet, reserved and studious and like many other noted men experienced the life of a country school teacher, drowsing away the languid hours among the birds and bees in Hastings County, in the pleasant task of teaching the young agriculturists things they would need to know to achieve success as farmers or city dwellers.

Fond of elocution and a platform entertainer of pleasing parts he might have been an actor had not his life current drifted him in different direction. He was one of those quiet men who see visions and dream dreams and his busy brain was weaving stories of Canadian life and times long before the tales that were to make him famous and bring Canada romantically before the world flowed from the type to the printed page. Journalism called him and the experience helped him later, no doubt, in building his stories in the most attractive style. The country school house became too small, Belleville cramped him, the world was calling, and the urge to travel and see distant places took him as far as Australia, later to London.

London, it is said, received Gilbert Parker coldly, like many another budding genius, but he conquered that coldness, broke down every barrier and wrote stories of Canada that not only made him famous but created a better feeling for Canada and corrected misconceptions abroad of this country. He became Sir Gilbert Parker and entered politics in England.

Sir Gilbert Parker's memory will live long in his books which still have a steady sale. His "Seats of the Mighty," "The Right of Way," "Pierre and His People," are still very much alive and some of his Canadian stories have met with great success as screen plays. He wrote other stories with different settings but his Canadian stories will always live as his best works and are still in demand when books of other authors of his period are all but forgotten.

Beautiful Belleville cemetery where rest so many men and women of genius and prominence in Canadian affairs will soon receive all that is mortal of another of the distinguished sons of this community, coming home after years of wandering in far countries, coming home to the quiet tomb on the hill overlooking the wide sweep of the Bay of Quinte, 'neath the trees which murmur and whisper in the breeze of the great minds and great hearts of those who rest beneath their spreading branches.

Sir Gilbert Parker will long be remembered by his many friends in Belleville and elsewhere not only for his stories but also for his kindly personality. He was a quiet contemplative nature, he made friends slowly but he made lasting friendships, and he was kind and generous to a fault. The reverse of demonstrative he was often misunderstood but to his intimate friends he leaves a memory of warm fellowship which will not soon grow dim.

BEAUTY'S FOLLOWERS

By Aline Michaelis

All you who follow Beauty
And worship from afar
Her tints in every violet,
Her torch in every star;

All you who find her glamor
In looks of youth and lass
And watch the fading wonder
Across old faces pass;

I join with you in vowing
Allegiance without end
To one who never fails our faith,
Whatever life may send.

Though none can tell of Beauty
Just how it is, or why
Some evanescent loveliness
Can lift our spirits high.

We sense her potent magic
In violet and star,
All we who follow Beauty
And worship from afar.

KAYE DON'S 119 miles an hour speed boat just acted up like a lot of these early motor engines and refused to take the Harmsworth trophy away from the Yankees. Seems silly that after a craft has been brought all the way across the ocean engine trouble should be sufficient cause to call off an international test of mechanical genius and racing stamina. Last year the trophy was dragged through an unsportsmanlike trick, this year it looks like hard luck. Seems funny that the boat which could speed one hundred and nineteen miles an hour on a Scotch lake without a falter from her engines could not develop ninety miles an hour in Yankee water without going blooey.

SIXTY FEET HIGH, a great granite arch embellished by statues grouped to represent every branch of the Canadian war service is being assembled in Hyde Park, London, England, preliminary to being transported to Canada. This great war memorial is a tribute to Canadian heroism in the great war and was created by the March family of nine brothers and sisters. It will stand in Hyde Park for one year before being taken to Ottawa.

CORN IN EGYPT, carefully husbanded by that shrewd Prime Minister, Joseph, saved thousands from famine and reunited the Prime Minister with his family, years after he had been cast off and sold by a few members of his race, is still a great place for corn as two million bushels of South African corn, or maize, has recently been purchased by Canadian grain brokers for sale in this country. This comes as a direct result of the Imperial Conference recently held at Ottawa. Prior to the conference only one cargo of South African corn had ever been landed here, and the present purchase will require eight or ten ships to carry it here. Argentine and United States corn has hitherto been imported into Canada in rather large quantities, but it is said the South African corn is better suited to this climate and the greatest care generally is taken by the South African government that corn exports shall be of the finest quality and in condition to stand the long voyage to Canada without deterioration.

SIDELIGHT READER registers a complaint against the condition of the dressing rooms at Corby bathing pavilion in Victoria Park. He went down there for a swim and states he was amazed and disgusted with the filthy condition of the dressing rooms, there evidently being no inspection or supervision. He also called attention to the sewage allowed to collect on the shore of the park with its offensive odor and disease breeding possibilities.

Another is the picnic tables in Victoria Park would encourage folks to take their lunch there, as is done in other places, writes a Sidelight reader. A little more attention to Victoria Park all round would help to restore its waning popularity.

There was an accident on one of New York State highways recently — just a minor one involving a lady driving north and a gentleman driving south, says the New York Times. The cars collided. Both drivers climbed out. The lady proved to be unqualifiedly apologetic. "It was all my fault," she said. "I was away over on the wrong side of the road. I can't imagine what I was thinking of. It was my fault entirely." The gentleman stopped her with a courtly gesture. "Not at all, Madam," he replied gallantly, "not at all. I saw you coming for half a mile at least, and I could easily have turned down any side road and got out of your way."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and the mail. Let's go to the Mawsoleum tonite, Willyum, it's the last nite of Rose sell in Twisted Roles and everybody says it's a picture that simply can't be missed.

Letz stay home and miss it and prove they're all wrong, pop said. It's too hot to go to the pictures, he said.

But Willyum, the Mawsoleum is cooled by a wonderful air and cold air in constant circulation, ma said. They handed out a circuler discribing in grate detail just how it works. I could explain it to you if I remerbered what the circular said, she said, and pop said, I doubt it, but anyway I'm just as soon not have a lot of cold air spurted down my neck. I herd of a man that once was spurted and iced air circulating along his spine. Let's just sit here and stay kool by thinking pure bewtiful thawts, and let's see, ma, if she will we mite try some ice cream, he said.

And he nocked the ashes off his cigar to prevent them from falling off, saying See, by the way, isn't this the nite you said that confounded insurrance man was going to stop in so see me?

Why yes ma said, and pop said, Yes gods, tear me to the iced air. I herd of a man down in Monmonta after being overbested by an insurants agent's flow of hot air. Let's step on the gas, pop said, and you started this so I dont want to hear any objections, he said.

And they quick went out, and about 10 minuts later the telefone rang and it was the insurants man calling up to say he had got ma's message safely and would call Thursday nite instead, and it was quite satisfactory to him.

Fontana Calif, Sept. 8—The endurance plane "Spirit of '76" after being aloft eleven more than 50 hours, was forced to land near here shortly before 3 a.m. today because of a broken oil line. The plane took off from Los Angeles last Friday afternoon in an attempt to break the 647 hour endurance flight record of Forest O'Brine and the late Dale Jackson.

DISAPPOINTMENT

ELECTION IS IN THE OFFING

Nazis And Centrist Party Have Until Monday to Decide

Berlin Sept. 8—(AP)— Adolf Hitler's Nazis and the Centrist party of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening have until next Monday to decide whether they will support the cabinet of Chancellor von Papen or go before the voters in what would be the fifth major election this year.

If the leaders of the coalition parties is not to support the government, the Chancellor will invoke decree, already signed by President Von Hindenburg, to dissolve the Reichstag and another election will be held, probably Nov.

The President announced he would receive representatives of the proposed Nazi-Centrist coalition at 10:30 a.m., Saturday. Newspaper opinion generally held this reception will be merely a formality, after which the President will reject the coalition proposal to oust the Von Papen cabinet.

FRANCE WILL NOT ANSWER

Says Versailles Treaty Calls for Reduction Not Expansion

Paris, Sept. 8 — (AP) — The French government emphasized today that France feels she has no right to reply to the German side memoire demanding arms equality without consulting the other powers.

The spirit of the League of Nations, the papers pointed out, requires an exchange of views on any question having an origin similar to the reparations question, which the Lausanne conference solved concerted problems of disarmament, which affect the interests of all the powers.

Germany's demand, it was recalled, is based on only the treaty of Versailles but other accords such as the naval treaties of Washington and London.

Several newspapers, particularly Le Petit Parisien, stressed the need for concentrating efforts to increase international security against war rather than for reducing.

They predicted, however, that Germany's initiative was likely to be followed by Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Weddings

WEBB—TURNEY

At the home of the officiating minister Rev. Dr. MacTavish, a marriage was solemnized last evening when Miss Maude Phyllis Turney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Turney, of this city was united in marriage to Mr. Clayton T. Webb, of Cannifton. The groom was supported by Mr. Palmer Phillips of this city, while Miss Ruth Brough of Halloway, attended the bride. After the ceremony the happy couple left to spend their honeymoon in Rochester, N.Y., and in Toronto and on their return will reside in Cannifton.

SYMONS—GARDNER

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at 2.30 on Wednesday afternoon, only immediate relatives being present, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gardner of Gananoque, when their elder daughter, Margaret Evelyn, became the bride of Mr. J. Franklyn Symons, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Symons of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Perry of the United Church.

The bride was very charming in an ensemble of Mount Blue Velvet and Ermine with accessories to match and wearing a white fox fur, the gift of the groom's brother. A corsage bouquet of Talisman roses completed her costume.

The young couple were attended by Mr. Fred Symons, cousin of the groom, and Miss Miles Mobrgan, both of this city.

A buffet lunch was served immediately after the ceremony. Later Mr. and Mrs. Symons left on a motor trip through the Adirondacks, the bride wearing a costume of Mount Blue velvet, ermine scarf. They will visit the States of Vermont and New Hampshire before returning to reside in this city.

The bride was visited in Belleville on several occasions and the many beautiful gifts received testify to the popularity both her and in her own town.

DOIG—VANDERVOORT

Beautifully decorated with autumn flowers, Holloway Street United Church was the scene of a lovely September wedding yester-day when Jennie Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandervoort became the bride of Kenneth Gerrard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Doig of Edinburgh, Scotland. The ceremony was performed at one-thirty, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives, by the pastor, Rev. Harold R. Neal officiating.

Chadsdd autumn shades were used in the decoration of the altar and church. The bride was given in marriage by her father, entered the church as Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Mr. Alec Gordon. She made a charming picture in her gown of white georgette touched with crystal trimmings and fashioned on long flowing lines, with full puffed sleeves. Her tulle veil was caught in cap effect with orange blossoms and her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

The bridesmaid Miss Miles Mc-Dougall of Sterling Place, cousin of the bride wore a lovely frock of Alice blue lace, with hat to match ture hat and pink slippers. She carried pink carnations.

Mr. George Flower of Belleville acted as groomsman.

After the ceremony a buffet lunch was served at the bride's home, Trent Hills at which about forty guests were present. The bride's table was artistically decorated in pink and white and lunch was served by two chums of the bride, Miss Doris Irwin and Miss Kathleen Bell. The groom's gift to the bride was a Bulova watch, to the bridesmaid, a vanity bag, to the groomsman a cigarette holder and to the organist a safety razor.

Mr. and Mrs. Doig left on a wedding trip, by motor, to Eastern Canada. The bride chose for travelling an ensemble of autumn brown and beige. On their return they will reside on the Trent Road.

The many beautiful gifts received by the bride and groom mark their popularity.

The bride visited in Belleville on several occasions and the many beautiful gifts received testify to the popularity both her and in her own town.

"THE HOME OF TREMENDOUS SAVINGS"

The Beauty Box

Here we are back to that momentous question of eyebrow culture. We believe that the girls are going a bit wild on the subject. They've done everything to eye aches except to form them into lines of scallops, a series of points, or zigzags like streaked lightning. With what results? The steady-minded femme who follows nature's design at its best pushes the advocates of the arty eyebrows into back seats.

In the era of short skirts the passer-by saw legs before faces. The sisterhood consisted mainly of legs. The best place for eyes was to light was on the vivid lipstick display. Now legs are curtailed, lipsticks are doing a vanishing act, eyebrows get attention. It's a game. What will the next pair of them look like? They go up, they go down, they slant, they curve. They go every way that they shouldn't.

The worst of them is the eyebrow that drops at the inner corner of the eye, mounts in a high straight line and then has an inch or two of crayon added. It's Mephistophelian, that's what it is. Looks like sin. There's a great yawning open skin space between the lifted far end of the line and the eye lashes. If grin had been born that way what a lot of hollering would be going on.

Beatrice Fairfax Letters

Shall They Wait?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a young man eight months ago and we have been seeing each other steadily. He is twenty-three and I am twenty-one. He has serious intentions and whenever we are together we discuss plans for the future. In this case it is a matter of waiting a few years until he is substantially settled in business. He told me he would not marry until he could afford to support us both and live comfortably. Do you think I should wait? He is very ambitious.

F. S.

I like the things you tell me about this young man. He is ambitious, prudent, and has the right ideas of making a home. So many young people rush into matrimony without considering the future that it is very pleasing to hear of one with constructive plans. Indeed I should wait for him and good luck to you both.

They Quarrelled Over "A Silly Thing"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Two years ago I met a boy whom I liked very much. We went together for a year. One night we had a quarrel over a silly thing. Ever since he has not spoken to me except on a few occasions. But people have told me that he still likes me. Now, Miss Fairfax, we love this boy and I can't be content with anyone else. My girl friend told me that he was the same as alike. She said that we are both stubborn and neither of us will give in. Will you please tell me what to do, as I love him so much.

B. H.

Aren't you too foolish to indulge in a childish "spat" like this when you could both be happy? The next time you see the stubborn young man just give him your sweetest smile and say, "Don't you think that misunderstanding has gone far enough, and doesn't he? It is always the stronger, better balanced one who makes the first move toward a reconciliation in a case of this kind, when there is really no reason for being "mad."

Time is Money

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend and I have a pact that the person first to solve. We are juniors in High School and are fifteen years old. What would you suggest for a boy and girl? We are very fond of dancing, but are allowed to go to dances only occasionally. We have many chances to go out with boys but we realize that we are too young. Please advise us.

Molly and Polly

Now is the time for you girls to start the foundation for your future working and social life. You are young and energetic, and have plenty of time. If you like dancing perhaps you would be allowed occasionally to have a few friends at your home in the evenings, using the victrola or radio. Then you should take up tennis and swimming. Both are splendid for building strength, besides being great fun. The early part of the evening is a good time for both of these sports. I should also advise you to spend a few evenings at the Public Library, reading those books that your English and dramatic instructors advise you to take up during your vacation. Plan your days and evenings and you will be surprised how much you can accomplish in a summer.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

Just before we get into frocks that are really of the winter mode, we like to wear things that are new yet more summer-like in appearance. Along these lines, in an ensemble of dull blue satin with a small jacket trimmed with a huge collar of blue fox which extends into arm bracelets at the elbow sleeves.

Be dashing is the order of the day when buying hats, for never were hats more dashing and elegant than now. Take for instance this sophisticated model of black velvet with a small rippling brim cut into points at the back and between the ears is a huge black ostrich plume. A grand hat for a blonde, for one side shows so much of the head.

Old Fur Now is the use of muffs, for muffs are modernly allied with the fur trimming on frock or coat. A dress of green Lyons velvet has a trimming of kolinsky to give is the smart high neckline. There is a round muff also of the kolinsky. The frock simulates a two-piece model.

ONCE OVERS

(By J. J. Munay)

A SQUARE DEAL

Mr. Husband, if you give your wife a square deal, you may think that your men friends believe you to be rather crazy.

If you try to be on time at meals, insist upon getting home at a reasonable hour when you take an evening out, you may believe your friends think you a wet-nosed husband.

Deep in their hearts they admire you for it.

It takes courage to go home before the party breaks up, much more courage than to meet a displeased mob.

Men may taunt you but they wish they had enough will power to do the same.

They haven't the nerve to take a stand against the crowd even when convinced that their duty lies at home.

A round of jack pots is proposed, "and then we'll quit," they say.

But at the conclusion of the specified time someone proposes continuing the game, others join in the suggestion and soon the early morning hours arrive.

Haven't your conscience bother you when you reach home and find an anxious and alarmed wife?

If it does not, you are not willing to give your wife a fair fifty-fifty break.

RED LUCAS IS REAL WORKER ON HIS TEAM

CUBS STRIKE SNAG

Pirates Gain Full Game As Cubs Lose Twin Bill

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer).

Even though the Cubs and the Pirates are keeping the National league pennant race steamed up so that they almost monopolize the fans' attention, there still is time to consider the case of Charles Fred "Red" Lucas of Cincinnati. So far in seventh season with the Reds, Lucas appears to have reverted to the days, when a pitcher was expected to play almost as often as an outfielder and there was no big corps of relief hommes willing around the bullpen ready to go in the minutes he showed signs of faltering.

The hurler redhead, who has fallen below the .500 mark in games won and lost only once in his six seasons with a really weak club, may repeat in that respect again this year but he merited all he got to lead them all in the matter of finishing what he started.

Lucas has started 29 games so far and he has been in there at the end of 27 of them. He ran into a string of 18 complete games in a row, rolled twice in a short time in mid-July and since then has made a new string of eight. Unfortunately for his record, he has been only four times and still to lead them all in the matter of finishing what he started.

Lucas took it on the chin again yesterday although he buried a likely enough looking one against Giants. He had a 5-3 margin in the seventh inning then ran into a home run assault, that brought three runs and cost him the decision. Joe Moore, who made five strikeouts, hit started the frame with a homer and Mel Ott gave the Giants the lead with his 32nd of the season.

Cubs Lose Double.

The woes that usually greet the leading clubs of the west when they start their invasion trip of the season turned up on schedule time, Chicago's league-leading Cubs ran into grief in Boston and took a double defeat from the Braves, 6 to 5 and 7 to 0. Fred Frankhouse and Ben Cantwell gave Boston great pitching, while Pat Malone withered under a little run assault in the seventh innings of the opener and Guy Bush wasn't quite good enough to hold the tribe men in the nightcap.

The Pirates clipped one game off Chicago's lead by splitting a twin bill programme with Brooklyn. They had the trouble winning their fifth game 8 to 3 as they drove Van Mungo to cover in the first innings of the opener. Freddy Heimach's pitside burning proved a bit to much in the nightcap and Brooklyn won 4 to 2.

Heimach only served seven hits. Six of them divided between Pie Traynor and Tuny Piet.

Dizzy Dean, who had won his last four games for St. Louis, also felt the effects of going on the road and lost a 6 to 5 encounter to the Phillies. The Cards made more hits but homers by Bottomley and Manager Frank Frisch gave the Phillies off Jim Elliott.

There were no American League games scheduled.

NEW ATHLETIC DIRECTOR FOR U. OF T.

Warren Stevens, the forward pass artist who put Montreal on the football map, is going to try to do the same thing for Toronto University as Director of Athletics. Critics seem to be confident in his ability to turn out a well-coached team this season. Warren has shockingly cut from football and is about to take on a bigger and better job. In other words he is going to coach football this season and see the forward pass star mighty busy.

CURRENT SPORT
Knocks and Boosts

Official word was received by the local Victorias from the O.R.A.A. last night that they are to play the first game of the next round in Orono on Saturday afternoon next. The officials of the clubs are quite jubilant over the decision that was made at Oshawa when they wanted a Wednesday game at home next week. Coach Channey Brown will have the Vics out to a short batting practice tonight and then they will get until the game in Orono on Saturday. The Vics have been fortunate in numerous series during the past two or three weeks and a few days rest will do them the world of good.

In their series against the Peterboro intermediates the Orono team played by Peterboro, played their home game at Newcastle. Whether they will play Saturday's game there or in Orono is not known as yet, but from the two towns are but seven or eight miles apart, Orono being north of Newcastle. Manager Fanning will no doubt use Ralph Shey or perhaps Ed Holden on the hill for the first game reserving Archie Campbell for the home game on Wednesday.

We heard a rumor, while attending the Gananoque-Victoria game in Napanee on Tuesday, to the effect that Fay Dorey, ace hurler of the island Town team is thinking of moving to Peterboro. Fay is an electrician by trade and may procure employment in the Canadian General Company in the East Lock City. Personally we'd like to see the hurler left hander throwing to Belleville's own, Feeney Smith, (Shades of Freddie Coyne and Jack Williams).

So the Masked Marvel wasn't so keen on meeting Rod La Roque here in Belleville? Well, when Jack Corcoran matched him against Scotty McDougall for the coming bout at the Arena the Marvel has a real bee in his bonnet. Scotty is keen as he can be for the Marvel's scalp. (Notice his surname also so far as we can see). The fans will have a chance to cheer the unbeaten Red to victory when he meets Joe Mesnarine the same night Sherah. In the other bout it looks as though Frankie Hart is giving away a lot of weight when he matches strength with Jack Kroll. We'd say that Kegel was a pretty heavier than the genial Frankie. But then Hart is much faster of course.

The football season is near at hand and to usher it in properly Manager Chris Hallam of the Capitol Theatre has booked a swell football picture entitled "Gridiron Gertie" to be seen unless this article is a "row." In the story appears ex-Ameherst stars like Doug Prescott who played for the University of Southern California when they won the mythical football championship, and was two years ago at the Rose Bowl. Don Clarke, famous Stanford College "half-back" also appears and plays his usual position. It is a novel way to enter in the current football season.

Back to baseball again we'd like to point out that the Gananoque team didn't have the proverbial nigger's chance against the Vics. Why? Well, they were fagged. After winning from the Vics at home their team executive ordered now unKnown for the club. They were then in Belleville last Saturday for the first time and in Napanee again on Tuesday. What Mgrr Sex could befall a team than wearing a new set of uniforms in addition. Another unanswered question—who is the more superstitious a baseball player or a stage actor? Then again the Gananoque club won the toss in Napanee. There's an old saying: "win the toss and win the ball game." By the way that little proverb did not workout so well in the Kingston-Belleville series. In fact there are exceptions to all rules.

Today's question: What are the distances between home plate and second base, third base and first base, second base and third base, pitchers' plate to home plate?

From home plate to second base and from first base to first base the distance is 127 feet 3 3-8 inches, from second base to third base 90 feet, and from home plate to pitchers' plate, 60 feet six inches.

SORE FEET go cause other ills—Use Green Corn Salve. At all druggists.

The population of Cairo, Egypt, is over a million.

SWELL CARD IS ARRANGED

Masked Marvel Will Meet McDougall in Main Bout

The Masked Marvel is coming to town, but not to wrestle Rod (La Roccpe and the Marvel but the man with the mask wanted no less than $2500.00 to crawl through the ropes and grapple with the Frenchman. Matchmaker Jack did the next best thing and matched him with Scotty McDougal, who gave the Marvel a little more than he bargained for in the recent match here in Belleville. The bout is to be staged in the Belleville Arena next Wednesday and the fans will be able to give the Marvel and his irritable manager a swell ride for side-stepping the Roccpe match.

Two other high class preliminaries have also been arranged; the first being between Zeki Rogul, ex-Canadian champion, and Frankie Hart, Belleville's favorite "grappler". This is appearing in Peterboro as a head liner this week. He is a clean cut wrestler, and is always a favorite wherever he appears. Kegel is slightly heavier than Hart but the agile Frankie is much faster than Jack with the natural result the bout will be a match of speed against brute strength.

The semi-final bout of the evening brings Rod La Roccpe, Belleville's adopted heavyweight "grappler" up against a newcomer to these parts in the person of Joe Mesnarine, the Italian roughman. Mesnarine appeared in Buffalo last week and brought the wrath of the fans upon his head with his many rough and tough tactics. With a card the type of this the fans should see action aplenty in the three bouts. Matchmaker Corcoran has not announced as yet who he will send to Belleville to referee such a high class card. The Belleville Arena will be the seat of many such high class wrestling cards this fall; according to information handed out by Mr. Corcoran.

LOCAL OWNED HORSES TO RACE AT NAPANEE

Several horses owned by local owners left the city today for Napanee, when they will compete in the race to be held in that town during the next three days of the Napanee Fair.

Among those which have entered the races are the well known stallions belonging to Fred Mumford of this city which have so far this season distinguished themselves at the various fairs throughout the country. Lou Guest will also face the starter in the faster classes. This horse broke the track record at the Belleville Fair.

Brother And Wife of Paul Bern Meet in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Sept. 8—A conference between Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen actress, and Henry Bern, New Rochelle, N.Y., ended at 1 a.m., today without a statement concerning the apparent suicide of Paul Bern husband of the actress and brother of Henry.

Bern, who arrived by aeroplane last night after a dash across the continent, said there would be a statement "soon enough." He expressed a desire to confer first with relatives.

The conference was unattended by any other relatives, friends or police officers, who have been investigating the death of the 43-year-old film executive, who was found in his home Monday with a bullet wound in his head, a discharged pistol in his hand and nearby a note signed "Paul" addressed to "Dearest Dear" and confessing a "frightful weakness."

Bern's sealed medical and police records of the case, together with personal effects of his dead brother, before leaving the conference. He was to be one of the witnesses at the inquest scheduled to be held later today. Miss Harlow, who married the film executive two months ago, was subpoenaed, but on the report of her physician that she was in no condition to attend, was excused by Coroner Frank A. Nance.

Other witnesses will include Marcus Bello, Miss Harlow's stepfather, and Irving Thalberg, studio official.

HER MOANING KEPT HIM AWAKE

Arms and Legs Stiff with Rheumatism

NOW THEY BOTH TAKE KRUSCHEN

Something had to be done for this old couple. She could not sleep for pain, and he could not sleep for her moaning. He tells us how it all ended now:

"My wife, who is 67 years of age, has suffered for years with rheumatism in the joints. At times, the pain was so bad that she had to drop anything that she carried in her hands. In the night, I was often awakened by her moaning, on account of the pains in her arms and legs. She was so stiff she could not climb the stairs.

"About 18 months ago, she started taking Kruschen Salts, and after finishing the first bottle, she could see her fingers much better. So she continued to take it, and now she is so far recovered that she very seldom feels any pain. Now both take Kruschen and have resolved that we will never be without it as long as we live."—W. J. P.

What caused her rheumatic pains was the sharp-edged uric acid crystals getting into her joints. The combination of the six salts in Kruschen dissolved away those crystals, and prevented them from forming again. That is the way Kruschen works with rheumatism, and that is why rheumatism cannot exist in the system that gets its little daily dose of Kruschen.

ESPERANTO

The following is a lecture, in part, by Professor A. Kentgott, M.A., University of Texas, on the universal Language Esperanto:

The future, in part, is follows: Esperanto is not a mere project, nor even an experiment, it is an established fact, having long ago passed the cumbersome and trying stages of experimentation. It is now the living and actually functioning international language of the world, officially recognized as such in 1923 by the International Telegraphic Union. It is spoken by progressive people all over the world and its usefulness and practicability is demonstrated daily by the numerous international activities which bring the various nations constantly into closer and closer contact, establishing everywhere more amicable and peaceful relationships. It has become an essential factor in international life as a basis for communications in such common travel, aviation, telegraphy, and broadcasting. In every sound social life, as a medium for correct and rapid interpretation at international conferences and congresses, in international correspondence. Real activities in scientific endeavors and research work, as in all other fields of international intercourse.

Esperanto is the most powerful agency for international peace and tolerance, in fact the only sound basis on which peaceful intercourse among peoples of different nationality can ever be established. It is accepted by all nations as a strictly neutral international, non-national principle, and is therefore the only language suitable for international use since any national language would give its respective country such unlimited influence and political dominion that the very object of its function would be defeated and hatred and tyranny and oppression would be the inevitable results.

Esperanto is the creation of Dr. Lazaro Ludwika Zamenhof of Warsaw Poland, and was first given to the public in 1887. It is not intended to take the place of the existing national languages, but rather to supplement these in order to meet the urgent requirements of modern life which necessitate more and more a simple, practical and easily learned auxiliary language for all purposes pertaining to international reciprocity.

In the first years of its existence the progress of Esperanto was slow. History, it is said, repeats itself. How were the first beginnings of building a railroad ridiculed, decried, sneered at—at best, of course, ignored, pitied! The same, of course, happened to Esperanto, and also to Esperanto. There always have been such people, but in general Esperanto met with a better decreasa from day to day. Then came the war, and the workers for peace and universal brotherhood were silenced, and after the war came the awakening, the peoples of the earth found that they could not get along with each other without each other; modern intercourse established new international relationships; radio, better travelling facilities, aviation—and with that awakening Esperanto came into its own, and the years from the last two or three years it has gained ground with such accelerating rapidity that its opponents and critics are not competent teachers enough to give such instruction in the new language as may be compatible with the principles of logic and nevertheless scientific and delicate carrier of thought and messages.

Strictly speaking, Esperanto is not an artificial language for all its vocabulary, grammar, pronunciation, word formation—are taken, with few exceptions, from elements of the various national languages, always in their simplest form and the selection of such elements as, in actual usage, have proved most practical and most generally used. For example: while in other languages the plural is formed in various ways (German — masculine, feminine, neuter; French—masculine or feminine), Esperanto has in this respect followed the example of English, adopting only one gender and using only one article, "la," equal to the English "the".

There are no irregular verbs in Esperanto, no irregular plural forms of nouns, no irregular comparative and superlative forms of the adjective, no irregular endings for any class of words (compare Spanish: hablo, habla, but tuna, tuneris, for the same persons remain unchanged in Esperanto and can be recognized at a glance, even when occurring in multiple combinations.

The Esperanto grammar, consists of sixteen simple, fundamental rules without exceptions. The vocabulary learning is reduced to a minimum, since the majority of words are already known to the students, because most of them occur in English either in their original form or in derivations where they can be recognized readily, for example: birdo, bird, sinoro, as in English, bird, to help, sinoreco, or with some changes in spelling, though easily understood: telefono, klimato, pa (English telephone, climate, yes); other similar words are: tri (three), turbo (town, city), libro (book), may be found in certain longer English words as: tripo or tri-angle, linenbaum, library and thus help to clarify at once the combining the original meaning of certain words which otherwise have to be used mechanically again and again without being aware of the character. The vocabulary gives to the whole and which can be found in a similar manner in other combinations, domo (house)—domestic, domicile, una (one)—uniform, unity, union, unique, unitarian, etc.

Another device which greatly facilitates the vocabulary learning in Esperanto is that of a very practical and simple system of prefixes and suffixes, supplemented by the usual method of forming compounds. Having learned to handle the affixes with ease, the student can with the help of a few root words increase his vocabulary ten- and twenty-fold without learning actually new words. For example: help makes: helpo (help), helpa (auxiliary), helpanto (assistant), helpado (aid), kunhelpo (co-operation), malhelpi (to hinder), Nobice how the Esperanto stem remains always the same, while a variety of English stems are used for one and the same fundamental meaning.

Furthermore, if we have learned the one prefix or suffix, it can be used in innumerable combinations, provided that they convey a clear and definite idea—and here again we find that in English and in any other natural language we almost invariably need entirely different words, while in Esperanto the root remains the same. Example: mal (part) signifying the contrary or opposite)—bona, malbona (good, bad); amiko, malamiko (friend, enemy); ami, malami (to love, to hate); frue, malfrue (early, late); super, malsuper (above, below), etc.

While the foregoing may have given us an idea at least of how easy a matter the vocabulary learning is in Esperanto compared with the great amount of labor involved in the study of any other language, it should not be assumed, however, that the Esperanto vocabulary is less complete than that of other languages, or per sense defective. Quite to the contrary, the same system of prefixes and suffixes which simplifies the acquiring of the vocabulary, makes it also possible to create, at any time promptly and easily whatever word may be needed, and to express every conceivable shade of meaning, so that even new ideas which are brought out steadily in the progress of civilization, can be interpreted without any difficulty whenever such a demand may arise.

In addition to what has been said above, there are still other reasons why Esperanto is exceedingly easy to learn. One of these is that the pronunciation of Esperanto offers no difficulty whatever, because it is based on the most frequently occurring sounds found in the national languages.

Furthermore, every letter which is written, is pronounced, and every letter which is pronounced is written. The sound of a letter remains always the same in Esperanto and every sound used in this language is always represented by the same letter. Just thing of the difference in e, ea, i, ie, and-ewy, u, as in business, may all represent the same sound, or where one and the same letter is pronounced in as many different ways as the many definite rule as to its correct pronunciation according to given, positive rules. Is it any wild, wide, first; or the "a" in Esperanto, much like Italian, is beautiful and harmonious language. The beauty of a language depends largely upon the quality and quantity of its vowels, particularly upon the frequency of final vowels, as in Spanish, Portuguese, Italian. Beautiful vowels, pure and harmonious sounds are those we use the Italian standards; do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, si. You may well imagine a pretty, melody expressed only by vowels, but fancy a song consisting mostly of consonantsmb, t, k, p, r, n, f, etc., and you will immediately realize that it is unmelodious the frequency of vowels which makes a language musical, hence beautiful. Professor Gilbert Murray, professor of Greek at the Oxford University, England) describes Esperanto as "a delicate and beautiful language."

Esperanto Organisations

Esperanto is officially represented in all parts of the world by the "Universal Esperanto Association" with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland; (Universala Esperanto Asocio, 32 Boulevard du Theatre, Geneva), which has at present ten thousand members. It has official representatives called "Delegates", scattered in more than 1700 cities and towns of the five continents.

This organization is but one of those which merely collect dues from their members, but one which encourages by every means in its activity the spirit of real service. It publishes a monthly magazine called "Esperanto," a year-book with the addresses of all the delegates and a wealth of other information. It has local societies wherever it can to further the cause of Esperanto, it furnishes information and maintains a central office, arranges for annual congresses, which are held by thousands of people from thirty to forty different countries, for a meeting for a week or so the same language is used throughout, special differences—it arranges lectures, tourist service, a summer university, with instruction entirely in Esperanto, etc., but all that is excelled by the far-reaching service it renders through its delegates. These can be found almost everywhere and their function is to welcome the stranger who may come to their respective cities or towns, to help him to get located comfortably, to give him all the desired information a traveller usually needs, to get him acquainted with other Esperantists in the community, etc—in one word, to make him feel at home at once and to contribute in every possible way to the enjoyment of his visit. But this is not all. The delegates have their addresses published in the year-book for which each one per receives a copy and is entitled to write to them for information, ask them to help in obtaining Esperanto correspondents, secure their co-operation in all matters which true Esperantism may justify. The delegates are not paid for their services; inquiries must therefore be accompanied by return postage, and evidence of membership in the Universal Esperanto Association which amounts annually to $2.25 and entitles to all the privileges, publications of the society, and services rendered by the delegates.

There are also National Esperanto Associations in almost every country of the world. One of the best, most active and absolutely reliable organisations of this kind, which also renders valuable services to Americans, is the "British Esperanto Association, 142 High Holborn, London, W. C., England. It publishes the excellent and highly recommended monthly magazine, "International Language," which is partly written in English and partly in easy Esperanto. It is obtainable postage included, at a yearly subscription rate of 6S cents.

These national associations are often very efficiently supplemented by National Esperanto Institutes which give generally all kinds of useful and practical information in regard to Esperanto, carry a good stock of books and dictionaries at moderate prices, often conduct classes, and further the growth and popularity of Esperanto in many ways. Our address presents itself. Americans and Canadians desiring to address themselves to a national centre will make no mistake by writing to "Esperanto Institute, 904 Seventh St., Rock Island, Ill.

Not less importance are the often very strong and far-reaching organisations of international scope. Of these some of the most important ones may be mentioned here (we give the Esperanto designation in parenthesis):

International Radio Association (Verstehers, France).

Esperanto Physicians Association of the World (Warsaw, Poland).

International Esperanto Science Association (Paris, France).

Christian Esperanto International League (Quedlinburg, Germany).

Esperanto Sport League (London, England).

Her friend listened to her patiently. "Ruth dear, you are foolish to worry yourself over such things. Children will be children and accidents will happen, so why not make the best of things and enjoy life instead of worrying about it."

CONNIE BENNETT'S GREATEST ROLE

"Two Against the World" Gives Her Strong Emotional Role

The charming blonde Constance Bennett, or the Marjorie de la Mar of Made de la Courtney, as she is known in private life, is the attraction today and Friday, matinee daily at the Belle theatre, in a powerful dramatic story, "Two Against the World," produced by Warner Bros.

The story is a brilliant drama of high society with a dramatic court room scene, in which a beautiful society girl confesses to sins of which she is not guilty. She drags her honor in the dust, in order to save her brother from the electric chair and her married sister from scandal.

There is an unusually strong cast with Miss Bennett supported by Neil Hamilton, who although he is in love with her, is forced to prosecute her brother for a murder charge and compelled to listen to the story of her dishonor from her own lips.

The picture is taken from the popular novel by Marion Dix and Jerry Horwin and deals with a rich and proud family whose name is dragged through the mire of a scandalous criminal court trial.

Miss Bennett is particularly charming, as is said, as a society miss full of mischief and devil-may-care daring, but such a good sport that she heightens the disgrace of the family at the expense of her own honor.

The background and settings are particularly lavish, representing wealthy homes, magnificently furnished apartments of wealthy clubmen and dramatic scenes of the elite social set. There is a wealth of beautiful gowns, the heroine herself having twenty-two complete changes.

The full bill is:

Sunday and Monday only about "Big City Blues," which opens at the Belle Saturday, that assures an enjoyable evening's entertainment for everyone who witnesses it.

It is one of the most vivid and intimate dramas of a great city that has yet reached the screen. It is a story truly in keeping with the new season slogan that Warner Brothers have prepared for the pleasure of movie audiences.

Playing a cowboy who loves a fight but never gets over hating the fellow who doesn't fight, Eric McCoy has a riding, fighting and shooting role in "Daring Daughters," the second feature offering on the same program, which is packed with mystery swiftly and thrillingly.

A delightful little romance between Tom and the rancher's spunky daughter, played brightly and engagingly by Alberta Vaughn, gives proper sweetening to the plot which is one of grim justice from start to finish.

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"Well, I think we're pretty tired of each other. We're on each others nerves—don't we? We'd be much happier if we didn't see each other for a while."

Mary Faith closed her eyes.... Happy? Why, she had been as happy in her life as she had been at five o'clock that afternoon walking along the corner of the Spring Street on her way to his office!

"Besides, I can't support you," she heard him say. "You know, darling, that it's going to take every nickel I have to keep myself from starving to death for the next few months—and my advice to you is to go back to your parents' home in Westhill, and ask him for your old job. He'll probably be more than glad to give it to you when you tell him you've left me."

Kim stood on the stairs at him.

CHAPTER XXIII

There wasn't a shadow in his eyes or a line of worry in his face. His stock there, standing on the street; ives to pieces as if no were a willful child, looking down at the lower of building blocks.

"The most unlucky thing that ever happened to me was seeing you again that night in Armbruster's store with Chris," he was saying. "Come now to go out of the kitchen. 'I'll have that damned everything probably would have turned out all right. You'd have gone back to Westhill and Ted Lane back to Janet."

"Janet." Mary Faith had formed the word with her lips, but made no sound. Janet...The "loyal little kid" whom she had known since McIntires and Westover when they had let Kim go—who had taken care of him in his own tiny office in the Towers Building.

"You're leaving me for that girl, Kim. You think you should have married her instead of me, don't you?"

"I shouldn't have married anybody," he said violently. "And don't try to hang all the blame on me, Mary Faith. I've been a fool and a flop all along and you know it as well as I do. What do I get out of it, I'd like to know? I sit all day in a two-by-four office, waiting for a lot of clients who never come. I sit all evening in this flat, starring at the four walls. It's a great life for a man, isn't it!"

He swung round and started down the narrow hall that led to the sleeping rooms at the back of the apartment.

Mary Faith followed him. "Kim, don't be discouraged tonight—you're just discouraged tonight—"

"I'm just through," he called back. "I'm all through. And I'm getting out now while the getting's good. See?"

He pulled his Gladstone bag down from the shelf of his closet and opened it on the bed. Then he began to take his clothes out of the drawers of the dresser—shirts, underwear, socks, handkerchiefs. He went into the bathroom and came back with his tooth brush and his shaving brush in his hands.

"Kim, you're not going out tonight! You're not going now?"

"I sure am. I'm going to get it all over and done with before I weaken...I know it's the thing to do and I'm going to do it headlong—it's the twenty-eighth of the month. You and my mother and Dave to step lively if you're going to be out of this place by the first. It's only three days off."

He had a bill on the top of the dresser. "There's fifty dollars," he said. "Make it go as far as you can, will you? When you need more you know my phone number downtown. And tomorrow will pack up the rest of my clothes and send them over to the Maldens'? They're going to let me sleep on their davenport for a few nights until I find a room. I talked to them about it tonight."

He was picking out some ties from the drawers and dozens that hung on the inside of his closet door. Mary Faith watched him from the doorway. She wondered if he remembered that he had worn that plain dark green satin one on their wedding day?

"Kim, don't you remember the day we were married?" she asked him suddenly. "Don't you remember the first supper we cooked down in Aunt Kim's kitchen? And remember how we woke up on New Year's Eve and listened to the bells? You can't say that our married life was a flop, Kim. We married life was a flop, Kim. We were terribly happy, weren't we?"

His shoulders lifted and fell in a careless shrug. "That wasn't our married life—that was our honeymoon," he said. "And listen to me, Mary Faith, why drag up the past? Why be sentimental? Why be sentimental about something that's all finished? Face the music, kid, and get over it. We made a mistake. Admit it and forget it. Let's wipe it off the slate."

After that she did not argue with him.

She slipped out of the house and sat down on the top step of the back porch. The stars were out thick as water lilies on the vast black pool of the night sky. The air around her was cool and sweet and somewhere close at hand a bird twittered sleepily.

She found herself wondering how the world could be so beautiful and so peaceful when he could be so bitterly cruel.

"I'm sorry, Mary Faith—" Kim's voice came to her through the door way behind her. Turning her head she could see him standing in the lighted kitchen by the sink.

Gladstone bag in his hand and his new light coat over his arm. He was peering out into the darkness.

"Aren't you coming to say good-bye?" he asked.

"No—I'm not. I'm not leaving you."

Kim: You're going away from me, and I can't stand much more—that's all."

She watched him as he turned and walked out of the bright little room without another word. She heard the front door shut, the sound of his car as it started. When the murmur of its engine had died away in the distance she got up and went back into the kitchen.

Mrs. Farrell was sitting at the table in the dining room, her head bent over it and her eyes were red and swollen. She gave Mary Faith a wild dazed look as she came into the room and sat down across the table from her.

"Well, what are we going to do?" she asked. "I guess there isn't anything to do but what Kimberley told us to do, is there?—To think of my son living in this home and going down to Garrettsville—She began to cry again, her face drawn and her bread shoulders began to shake with her sobbing.

"I won't going to give up your home," Mary Faith heard her. She raised her face from her hands and stared at her.

"You're going to stay right here, and I'm going to stay right here with you. That was what Kimberley told us to do, is there?—It hadn't occurred to me that I'd go home and leave you alone. I'm not going to Garrettsville—" She took a deep breath, her tears dried and her bread shoulders began to shake with her sobbing.

Country Ideal For Making Forced Landings if Necessary

Cormorant, Lake, Man., Sept. 8 — Secrets of the behaviour of the mystic cosmic ray are being wrested from the chilly areas of the upper atmosphere at this lonely northern station. Today the flying laboratory the super-powered aeroplane of Flying Officer G. A. Gordon of the Royal Canadian Air Force, is ready for its second ascension to dizzy heights at more than 20,000 feet.

The aeroplane is loaded with sensitive recording electroscopes which were brought here by Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology. Dr. Millikan, one of the world's greatest physicists is studying the effects of the magnetic forces of the earth on the cosmic ray and has enlisted the aid of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Flying Officer Gordon made the first of two flights Tuesday and was forced to land 300 miles from his base when he ran out of gasoline. The flight however, was pronounced a decided success by Dr. Millikan, when Gordon returned after being missing for 30 hours.

To test the full effect of magnetic forces it is necessary to get high enough to be out of range of the continually changing conditions in the lower atmosphere. Gordon reached 21,000 feet on his first descent and may be able to go higher today.

Data collected here, close to the north magnetic pole, will be compared by Dr. Millikan with results obtained in other latitudes, and the results announced at the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in December.

The scores of lakes which dot the timbered country around here offer easy landings for seaplanes and other flights of the hilly flights. Landings can be made anywhere if the gasoline supply is exhausted in the long climb.

TIME AND DATE MAY BE CHANGED

Proposals Likely to Meet With Favor by British Officials

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 8.—The detailed British challenger for the Harmsworth Trophy — Miss Englland III. and her pilot, Kaye Don — sped over the course while race officials here discussed proposals of changes in the date, time and course for next year's race.

The steel-hulled British hydroplane is being flown by rail to Montreal, where she will be put aboard the Duchess of York, sailing September 9. Don left by aeroplane from Mercy Field, Detroit.

The changes for next year's race are proposed by Otto F. Barthel, United States member of the Harmsworth commission, who, with other members of the group, will sail aboard the Duchess of York. Instead of Labor Day, Barthel suggested the race be run in mid-August, instead of early September, to take advantage of quieter water.

Concurrence of British members of the commission would be necessary to move the course, he explained, but the present cup race committee has exclusive jurisdiction over the time.

Meanwhile, Car Wood, who has held the trophy since 1926, piled his pilot on the straightaway course on the St. Clair River at Algonac, over which the 1931 race was run. Don's world record of 112.81 miles an hour, set a month ago on Scotland. He hopes to make the run within ten days.

WAR LOOMS IN SO. AMERICA

Government Has Ordered Mobilization of Part

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 8 (AP). —The government has ordered the mobilization of its extraordinary army reserves, it was announced to all citizens between the ages of 23 and 40, as a result of recent developments in the dispute with Bolivia over the Chaco territory.

Unofficial reports said a Bolivian force attacked an outpost belonging to Fort Toledo in the Chaco but was repulsed, fleeing at least leaving behind a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The Cabinet held an extraordinary session last night with the chiefs of the army and navy. It was announced afterward no important decisions were reached.

Chain canning is an old and well-established industry in New Brunswick, particularly along the Bay of Fundy shore south of Saint John.

Derelict Sailboat is Hint That Three Are Drowned

Men Sailed Last Friday to Witness Boat Race at Detroit

Sarnia, Ont., Sept. 8 (CP).—Further search from the air continued today as hope steadily diminished for the safety of three young men from London, Ont., who sailed Friday in their Bayfield to witness the Harmsworth Trophy races at Detroit. Sight of their derelict craft two miles west of Hillsboro Beach late yesterday by Captain Al Brown of the London Flying Club almost removed the last vestige of hope that they might be alive.

There was no trace of the trio, Eric N. Chapman, Reginald A. Appleyard and Douglas Miller of the boat. The mast of the 30-foot craft was broken off near the level of the deck, with the tattered remnants of a black sail and jib still clinging to it. Forward, the motor and rudder were apparently in good condition.

Condition of the boat led to the belief the vessel had struck a sand bar in the shallow waters of its compants into the water. Search of the vicinity where the boat was found was made from the air yesterday by Captain Brown without result. Despite non-success he will make a further flight today in an effort to locate the bodies.

Captain Brown on his return yesterday stated the boat had been cast two-thirds out of the water. There was little water in her, he said, but some may have leaked out after she was beached. A farmer nearby told him the boat was not there on Sunday.

Mrs. Appleyard, at home in London with her three months old baby, learned the news of the finding of the boat and collapsed. She was taken to her parents at Aylmer.

BELIEVES PROVIDENCE CAST HIM FOR LEADER

Munich Germany, Sept. 8—Adolph Hitler, fiery leader of German Fascism, believes that Providence cast him for the role of government leadership, he declared in a deeply passioned speech last night before a capacity crowd at the Circus Krone.

"I'm convinced," he shouted, "that nothing can happen to me. He who commands must have willingness to "let events take their course."

"I'm 43 years old and completely healthy," he said. "My great rival, Von Hindenburg, is now 85. Providence will long be kind when I am 85."

YOUNG READY RACES NELSON

Accepts Challenge For Five Mile Swim on Saturday

Toronto, Sept. 8.—George Young, Catalina conqueror and winner of the 1931 Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim last night accepted the challenge to a five mile race of five miles tossed to him by Marvin Nelson, 1930 marathon champion.

The race will be staged over the Canadian aquatic course Saturday afternoon, and will be under the auspices of Howard Hughes, sports director of the Exhibition, and his staff of officials. The time of the race had not been definitely set last night, but it is expected that it will start about 5 o'clock. It will take about two hours 20 minutes to complete the distance.

Young accepted last night when he met the Exhibition officials would be willing to have the race staged as part of its Saturday program. He met Nelson in the offices of the Administration Building, with Johnny Walker, F. A. MacLeod, Elwood Hughes and Percy Smith, Nelson's business manager. A suitable purse was arranged—although neither would quibbled on this point, their feud ten years ago when both were members together.

The agreement is that the winner will take all the purse. Young will be accompanied by the veteran Johnny Walker, who has been favorable to such a meeting ever since Young crawled out of the water after the marathon to hurl his challenge at Young. The latter has refrained until now from answering Nelson's demand for a race, largely because his finance, Margaret Havlor, was averse to the contest.

Last night, however, Young flatly declared that he is ready to let son's claim that he could beat Young at five miles, it was stated.

AGED MAN WAS STRUCK BY CAR

Hit And Run Motorist Left Dying Man on Road

Kemptville, Ont., Sept. 8—After an all day investigation by the provincial authorities into the death of Patrick MacKey, 70-year-old resident of this village, whose body was found on the Ottawa-Prescott highway yesterday it was discovered that the deceased had been struck by an automobile or truck.

When opening the investigation the officers were of the opinion there had been foul play. As the only mark visible on the body was a bad fracture of the skull above the left eye.

An attorney by Dr. O. P. Beamish of Kemptville disclosed that there were severe internal injuries such as would be caused by some extremely moving vehicle. Mr. MacKay was walking along the road Tuesday night when he was evidently struck.

The inquest will be continued later.

FERRY BOILER EXPLODES KILLING 37

Bodies Catapulted Into Water Left Dying and Injured as Boiler on Ferry Explodes in New York Harbor

Boat Blown to Bits, Dozens Killed, Many Injured in Worst River Tragedy of Many Years

DEAD PLACED AT 37

Iron Workers Were Being Transported to Rickers Island Penitentiary Job When Fatality Occurred

New York, Sept. 9—A ferry carrying some 200 iron workmen from the Bronx to their job on the new Rikers Island Penitentiary in the East River was blown to bits by a boiler explosion today, killing dozens and injuring many more.

Within an hour 25 bodies had been recovered and an hour later the number had risen to 37. Half a hundred were still unaccounted for and practically all the rest were injured.

The ferry, the 92-foot wooden steamer "Observation," had already made one trip to the island from 125th St. dock and had just started with its second load when the explosion occurred.

The Observation, which was built in 1888, was about 28 feet from the pier, when people ashore were stunned by a terrific roar. The ferry disappeared in a dense cloud of smoke from which catapulted bodies and fragments of wood and iron.

Police, Coast Guard and commercial boats flocked to the scene and joined in saving the injured and transporting the dead to shore.

Priests came to the ferry house and kneeling among the rows of dead administered the last rites to the dying.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and Bronx District Attorney Charles McLaughlin were early on the scene and directed the rescue work.

One workman, Ted Maurasa, was saved by tardiness. He arrived at the dock just a minute too late to make the ferry and was standing on the pier watching when it exploded. He helped in the rescue of his fellow workers.

Eye-witness Tells Story

Captain Alfred Rogers, of the municipal ferry Greenwich Village, gave a graphic account of the explosion.

"I heard a blast and saw the boat blown to smithereens," he said. "When the clouds of smoke and the steam had cleared away we could see the passengers struggling in the water over a large area. The ferryboat was in its slip at east 134th Street at the time, just two blocks from the pier where the 'Observation' had backed out from the west-waterfront.

"We lowered the lifeboats on our ferry and rushed about the wreckage. We picked up four bodies and ten injured persons. Other people were putting out in small boats and they also picked up bodies and the injured."

It was the worst river tragedy here since 1926 when 58 men were drowned as a work launch was crushed in the ice-choked Hudson.

Commissioner Mulrooney conducted the investigation. A similar ferry dock that in 1904 he arrested the captain of the excursion steamer General Slocum, which sank in Hell Gate with a loss of 1021 lives.

All witnesses of the explosion of the "Observation" were taken to nearby police stations for questioning. Among them was George Forgerty, captain of the ferry and son of its owner.

"The boilers exploded," he repeated over and over and that was the only explanation he had to offer.

Timers 10 Feet in Air

When the explosion occurred the body of one workman was tossed fifty feet into the air and landed on the roof of a building near the waterfront. Another body was hurled a similar distance to the roof of a building of the New York Edison Company.

Tardiness saved the life of one workman. He missed the boat by two minutes and stood watching it pull away when the blast occurred. He was presided into service by hauling the bodies from the water and identifying those known to him.

Three Burned to Death as Plane Hits Side of Mountain

Tightened Safety Belt Probably Saved Life of One

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 9—Tightening of his safety belt saved George A. Davidson's life, while his three companions on an airplane trip were burned to death when the ship struck a cliff side of mountain.

Pilot W. J. (Bryant) Robbins of the American Airways, his co-pilot, Francis Briggs, and Victor Elkman of St. Louis, a passenger, as was Davidson, were killed when the plane, wrecked yesterday morning, was found early today by two other American Airways pilots.

Two Miles from Plane

The searchers found him about two miles from the plane. He had stopped to build a fire because he could not find his way out in the darkness and needed warmth against the chill air of the Franklin Mountains where the ship crashed.

Davidson said he was nervous as Robbins tried to pilot the plane over the Guadalupe Gulch in foggy weather. As a precaution, he tightened his safety belt. When the plane hit the mountainside, the other three were thrown forward and probably stunned. Davidson's belt kept him in his seat and prevented him from being thrown from the plane an instant before it took fire. Almost a month before other men were burned to death before his eyes.

MARRIAGE is NO SEDATIVE

So Far as its Effects on Cases of "Nerves" is Concerned

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor)

Ithaca, N.Y., Sept. 9—So far as its effects on cases of "nerves" is concerned, marriage is no sedative.

Instead, it speeds up the process so much that 33 married couples described to the American Psychological Association meeting here rate distinctly more nerves than colleagues who are single.

The effect of having children is peculiar. The arrival of the first baby has a "calming" effect on the husband and just the reverse on the wife. But couples with three or more children both seem to have conquered their nerves more effectively than other married groups.

Such results are being reported Royce Willoughby, of Clark University, under the heading Neurelitism in Marriage. Neuroticism means any nervous maladjustment or disorder, and Neurelitism the opposite.

Shell shock is the most shining example of neurelitism.

Women, said Dr. Willoughby, have more of this kind of nervous upset than men but the differences are not great and sex is only a minor cause.

SAYS BEATEN AT HOSPITAL

Grave Charge Laid as Man Has Broken Ribs

Pittsburg, Sept. 9—Death-bed charges that he was beaten cruelly, last Thursday to a Coroner's conference on the death of David McClinton, aged 53, patient in a Negro psychiatric ward.

Just before he died Clinton accused several attendants of maltreating him. The charges were denied.

Dr. J. McKenna, Coroner's surgeon, said an autopsy disclosed seven broken ribs, a crushed breast bone and a ruptured liver. Hospital records showed pneumonia as the cause of death.

Dr. McManis held up his report pending a conference today with the Coroner.

SAFETY OF DRY LEADERFEARED

Nothing Has Been Heard of Col. Robins Since Last Week

Washington, Sept. 9—The strange disappearance of Colonel Frederick Robins, outspoken prohibitionist, has been kept secret in New York for a week, it was disclosed today.

Tuesday, anxiety and concern for his safety deepened when Mrs. Robins in Maine, expressed fear her husband had been killed by "Florida bootleggers."

Shortly after White House officials declared conferences planned by President Hoover—at the failure of efforts to locate Colonel Robins, chief of the social economist and prominent prohibitionist telephoned Secretary Lamont. Lamont had received numerous threats of death if he stopped his profitable prohibition efforts.

A close friend of President Hoover, Colonel Robins had accepted an invitation to call on the chief executive at the White House on Tuesday when he planned to come here from New York.

POLICE SEEK OTHER WOMAN

Complications in Bern's Death, Which Have Not Been Told

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 9 — The "other woman" in the life of Paul Bern, brilliant film studio executive and husband of blonde Jean Harlow, one of the stars sought today by police in hope she might throw some light on Bern's death.

Authorities expressed belief the "other woman" is a Southern California and may have figured in events immediately preceding the death of Bern last week end when he shot himself to death in the bedroom of the home they occupied during his two months of married life to Miss Harlow.

Miss D. Millette, identified by the Los Angeles Examiner as the "other woman," checked out of a San Francisco Hotel Thursday, a day after Bern's body was found. She had been registered at the hotel since May 4.

Seek Mystery Woman

For years the mystery woman was known as "Mrs. Paul Bern." She received a letter recently from the director. The last check, according to officials of the studio, for which she worked, being mailed to her in San Francisco.

An inquest was failed to reveal a motive for the suicide, although several "suicide notes" found in the 42 year old film producer was subject of handwriting experts from a physical state which would tend to prevent a happy marriage.

Bern's estate increased when Henry Bern, a brother, announced last night that certain complications caused him to continue his silence. He refused to make a statement which he had promised since arriving here from New York Wednesday night.

"Certain complications which have come to my attention make it impossible for me to give out a statement," he said. "I cannot do not ask me what those complications are. Let's just say that they have been straightened out I will tell all."

GREAT KICK OUT OF AIRRIDE AT NINETY ONE

Toronto, Sept. 8—All her life, Miss Anna Dow of Lakefield, Ont., has been "delicate". She was the invalid member of her family, always, and yet at the age of 91 she would think pleasant, goes for daily walks by herself and travels alone by bus and by train. Today she got a real aeroplane ride and got a "great kick out of it." Miss Dow celebrating her 91st birthday, was born in Peterboro and still lives in that city. She is visiting relatives in Toronto.

Effort to Pin Third Degree Killing on Them Fails

Mineola, N.Y., Sept. 9— The prosecution's attempt to pin the "third degree" killing of Wynn Rank, former gambler, upon a suspended police chief and two detectives ended in a defeat today.

A weary jury acquitted the three men on a manslaughter charge today after deliberating since 3.19 p.m. yesterday. Their first trial ended in a jury disagreement on August 28.

The defendants, Deputy Chief P. J. Tappen and Detectives Leslie Pease and Angelo Sander, sat white-faced as the jury filed in. For long minutes after the foreman said "not guilty" they remained motionless, unsmiling. Then they were cheered surrounded by a congratulating crowd of friends.

OFFICER FIRES WHEN AID IS SOUGHT OF HIM

Montreal, Sept. 9—Leopold Leonard lies near death in the Montreal General Hospital, officials said, as constable's report the young man was shot accidentally by Const. Edward Lemieux, 23, a constable on duty in a burglary attempt. Lemieux said he shot Leonard on the hip as he drove away after making the attempted burglary.

Gagnon reported Leonard and a companion came up to him on his beat and asked him to aid them to break into a store. He refused, he said, stepped on the running board of the car and ordered the men to drive to the police station. When they drove the opposite way the car's jolting causing him to wound Leonard with what he thought was a blank shell.

Leonard's companion escaped as the car was being halted.

BABE RUTH TO PLAY IN SERIES

Appendix Operation Not Needed Till After Fall Classic

New York, Sept. 9—All's not well with Babe Ruth's appendix but baseball's $75,000-a-year performer probably will be able to play the remainder of the baseball season until after the world series at least.

An examination revealed symptoms of appendicitis but the Babe's personal physician, Dr. Edward King, said his preliminary diagnosis indicated there was no necessity for an immediate operation.

Marring a change for the worse in the New York Yankee slugger's condition, it appeared likely Ruth would be fully recovered in a few days and certainly in time to participate in his 10th world series, assuming the Yankees win the American League pennant.

WILL GERMANY MEET HER OBLIGATIONS?

Washington, Sept. 9— Silence met recurring reports at the treasury today that Germany had finally notified this government she would be unable to meet the December 15 payments on the cost of the army of occupation and missing claims.

Germany is due to pay $3,000,000 on December 15 on account of the installment on the army of occupation assessment which would be automatic upon notification. The total is approximately 29 cents.

RAINS RETARD THE HARVEST

In One District Rain Fell For Four Hours

Saskatoon, Sept. 9—Rain, archenemy of farmers once the world over, has struck in the central and northern areas of Saskatchewan, where harvesting is heavy and threshing just getting under way.

Starting about nine o'clock last night in this district the rain fell steadily for four hours. It was preceded by heavy lightning and thunderstorms. Battleford and Moose Jaw sections, 35 miles north of here, had fell for several minutes. No damage was believed slight.

Northern Saskatchewan this year has had more than its share of rain, particularly in those regions north of the Canadian National Railroad, reaching from Saskatoon to Battleford. It was in this area that the rain fell immediately available it would be a safe bet that it has reached the same districts on four days since that occasion.

The harvest in the area northeast of this city has been considerably delayed by persistent rains.

Ohio Tourist Speeds Home Without Grey Wolf Pup Who Jumps from Car

Somewhere along the road between Ohio and Shannonville a wanderer a bewildered half-grown grey wolf-pup, a former native of the rolling hills of the Ottawa River district, was homeless. He had been captured in a cave some months ago, when but a tiny pup and sold to a tourist from whom he escaped early Thursday morning, and who passed on his home without him.

He jumped from the rumble seat of the large grey coupe, while the party sped over the road to Belleville. Where he left the car is not known but he had been in the car at Shannonville, because the gas tank had been filled at that latter village and the snapping pup had growled at the garage man when he approached too close to the car.

Around his neck he wears a brass-studded dog collar with a few feet of braided leather thong, which he had chewed in half to make his break for liberty from the moving car.

Described as a stand-offish little beast, he had been bought at a gas station near Pembroke where the tourist had seen him on their fourth country tour. During the trip from there he had steadfastly refused to make friends, but on being taken back to Ohio anyhow as a Canadian souvenir.

After the party pulled into the dining room of an East Dundas Street gasoline station they had missed the pup. A return trip over the road failed to locate him and later they left on their return trip to Toledo.

It is believed that instinct will prompt the little animal to seek shelter in the uplands of Prince-ss, probably to join forces with a sheep raising boy and recently reported from that district.

Premier Henry Against Wine and Beer Parlors

System of Serving Wine And Beer in Hotels Might Be Worked Out, Henry

Deputation Was so Informed by Premier Today

NO BEER PARLORS

If Sold in Hotels, Rigid Inspection Would be Insisted Upon

Toronto, Sept. 9—(By Canadian Press)—There will be no beer parlors in Ontario, but a system of service wine and beer in hotels might be worked out, Premier George S. Henry of Ontario told a deputation of hotel proprietors today.

Speaking frankly and definitely, the Premier stated the Government would not accede to requests for the immediate opening of beer and wine parlors. At two elections, he said, the people of the Province had given a verdict in favor of Government Control and were not prepared to make the hotel-keepers their agents for selling liquor.

"I agree with quite a few of what you have said," Premier Henry said in reply to the representations of the hotel business, "and with what you propose to do, but I fail to appreciate the argument that because you have a losing business you should be engaged by the province to sell liquor.

Legislation would be brought down affecting tourist houses in order to eliminate unfair competition, he said. The question had been studied by the Attorney-General and the government was looking forward to the possibility of licensing and controlling all accommodation provided for the traveller. On March 31 the Canada Health also has favored sanitary inspection of such places he continued.

As far as competition between standard hotels or other classes of accommodation, the Premier said the government purposes giving something in the way of legislation that would relieve the situation.

COUNTY GIRLS HAVE NOTHING ON CITY GIRLS

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9 — The country girls have more curves and are heavier, but the city girls are healthier.

So said one of a dozen physicians who aided in examining 40 Minnesota farm girls, competing for the health championship at the State Fair here.

Other Factors Noted Which Are Helping Along the Dollar

Toronto, Aug. 9—Heavy buying of Canadian securities by United States investors is especially favorable virtue of the Canadian dollar in New York, lending support on Thursday night. "Americans have been purchasing Canadian bonds and stocks on accounts for the strength of our dollar," says Mr. Logan, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

"There are other factors of little importance," commented A. E. Phillips, Vice President of the Imperial Bank of Canada. "The fact that we have the volume of American buying, which has been heavy, and the attractive accounts for the strength of our dollar," says Mr. Logan, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS QUIET YEAR

Members of the local fire department are this summer experiencing one of the quietest seasons they have had in years. Not for months has there been a call to a fire, which has assumed, straight so called major proportions. Even grass fires this year have been so scarce that their absence has been commented upon. Fire prevention work, which has been carried out by members of the department during the past season has contributed largely to the decline in number of alarms.

LEMONS ARE UP EIGHT CENTS DOZ.

Lemonade for residents of the city and district will come a little higher starting today. Lemons, the chief ingredient of that popular drink have taken an upward jump in price and threaten to go higher before very long. Thursday the price advanced overnight without warning in down town stores just eight cents per dozen, and is the last point they have reached in 10 years. At present they are retailing at between fifty and fifty-five cents per dozen.

The reason given by local grocers is that lemons this year are a remarkably low crop and that the demand is greater than the supply. In many cases orders are going unfilled, although locally no trouble has yet been experienced.

PRIZE WINNERS AT FAIR CONTESTS

Contests seem to be the order of the day and over three thousand people guessed on how many peanuts were in a glass jar displayed in the booth of T. M. Palmer, Jeweller, at Belleville Fair. The correct number was 9,274 and first prize was won by Mrs. George A. Reid, 76 Queen Street, Belleville, the prize being a wrist watch. Mrs. Reid's guess was 9221. TONNAGE INCREASED BY CARGO OF COAL

Once more load of coke destined for the Ontario Shore Cox Company of this city was unloaded at the harbor Friday from the "Glen Elk," lake freighter, out of Oswego, N.Y., The cargo comprised about one thousand tons. This makes the second lake freighter to call at Belleville harbor within the past thirty-six hours. In each case large cargoes than ever before have been unloaded from the boats, which are creating record shipments for this port, exceeding tonnage records never before achieved by this city for years.

TOMATO CROP IS NOT HEAVY ONE

Canning factories in the city and throughout the district are humming with activity following the final ripening of the later crops, which are now being tinned. This year, however, sees a lessening in the amount of goods canned in at least three factories, which have reported. Tomatoes this year are said to be a poor crop by officials of the factory and not so many of that vegetables are finding their way to the unloading platform. Corn is fairly good and will probably be better than the more last year's production. Other vegetables are reported to run from an average of fair to very good.

FEE SYSTEM IS MOST SATISFACTORY

Any lingering doubts the Board of Education members might have entertained regarding the success of the new Fee System recently inaugurated in the four public schools of the city were dispelled Friday with the reports of the principals of the schools who were questioned regarding it. A unanimous response from the staff of all schools was to the effect that nearly all fees from parents have been paid in, and that books and supplies have been distributed and are now in use with the minimum amount of disturbance and trouble being experienced.

Out of an approximate number of over five hundred pupils in Queen Mary School, only three or four fees in lower class rooms have not been paid. Other schools report like success.

TO THE PEOPLE OF BELLEVILLE

I wish to express my appreciation of the way the people of this city and surrounding country received me during my stay here. In particular I wish to mention the kindness and courtesy of civic officials.

I am leaving your city with the kindest of remembrances.

Thanking you one and all, believe me to be

Ackerman, Belleville.

A final executive session on the Tuesday morning will deal with work of the Missionary and Maintenance Funds.

Vital Addresses

A vital programme of public speaking has been arranged and a large attendance is assured in the more public sessions. Principal John T. Tucker, who has just returned from West Central Africa after distinguished service in founding the Christian Church in Angola, is head of the central training institution of the Canadian Mission at Dondi. He is delegated by the United Church to initiate work among some of the strongest tribes in the dark continent. On his recent visit to two great tribes of 250,000 and 350,000 people each, Dr. Tucker was urged by their high chiefs to bring missionaries and teachers. In a few months Dr. Tucker will return to this place in the heart of the continental evangelistic work. He is a noted author and a vigorous speaker.

Visiting the work of British Columbia's northern mission fields Dr. Ridout, Rev. Mr. Ridout secured material for his illustrated travelogue entitled, "1200 miles along the Pacific Coast with our Marine Missionaries." The tremendous scenery of Canada's farthest west and the pioneering courage of her people are well depicted in lantern slides and vivid narrative by a noted traveller and lecturer who is also a mission worker.

Dr. Bryce is one of the strongest leaders in the United Church. As secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund he has lately visited all the Conferences in Western Canada, making an intimate study of the situation in the relief and home mission areas as well as in the cities, hospitals and social settlements. He brings a message of well-considered facts in relation to the general work of the United Church.

Representatives and the public are assured of stirring experiences at the meeting.

MORE NEED OF EXTRA CARE

Motorists Should be Careful Driving on Streets

School days are here. And with that announcement comes a gentle reminder from teachers of schools throughout the city pointing out the need for a little extra caution on the part of the man or woman behind the wheel of the motor car.

Nearly three thousand children of the city will crowd the streets three times a day, five days a week. A whooping, care-free throng, they will dart and play along the roads, forgetful of the swift moving vehicles, which with by them only a hare 'ew feet away.

Many of them are little toddlers just starting out to kindergarten or the first book unaccompanied, and sometimes even forgotten by their older brothers and sisters who have been charged to look after them. They are too busy to think for themselves the consequences which may follow a sudden dart to the middle of the travelled road after an elusive ball which might have stopped their hand. Older boys and girls also have their moments when play will attract their attention and bring momentary forgetfulness which might be disastrous. It is then that the driver of the car moving at speed be too slow with the brakes to avoid a fatal accident. Sometimes not even the chance to apply brakes is given.

'IS is only a reminder from local teachers, but it might help to save a little life.

NO LUCK TO THIS PITCHER

Everett Woods Struck on Shin Bone by Horse-shoe

Horseshoes and luck. They have long been synonymous, but it is all but an unpardonable sin to Everett Woods of this city.

In company with a friend, Everett delighted the time, Thursday evening, on the courts behind the Arena, by tossing horseshoes at the iron pegs. He was throwing "ringers" and "leaners" and all manner of shoes in a very enthusiastic manner. His mate was losing them back in no less spirited fashion.

Then Everett, for some reason best over the pin, lost as a shoe from the hand of his friend came sailing through the air. It landed with a dull thud against the shin bone, below the left knee of Mr. Woods, but at the latter end ceased cessfully pulled his head back out of the road.

These are tragic figures!

They are especially deplorable because every death and injury was a needless sacrifice to human error.

It is time the people of Ontario realized the necessity for thoughtful co-operation between walkers and drivers.

A TOTAL OF 525 PERSONS were killed by carelessness on the streets and highways of Ontario last year.

SPURIOUS COINS ARE GIVEN TO TAXI MEN

A local taxi driver can also be counted among the fry down town merchants, who have been mulcted within the past few days by an unknown artist who has been shoving "queer money" in twenty five cent pieces across the counters. Owing to the fact that the man, whose description is hazy, deals only in small purchases and includes rea. money among the spurious pieces, work of police in locating the man has been hindered.

The money is an almost perfect specimen of the work, according to metal workers, who have seen some of the quarters. The coins are believed to be composed of brittle alloy, cast in dies under pressure. Characters and figures stand out in sharp relief and milling on the edge of the coins is realistic. When tested they break in two with very little pressure.

Accused of Murdering Prisoner Found Hanging in Cell

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 9.—Deputy Sheriff O. O. Skinner charged with murder of a prisoner found hanged in the county jail was released Thursday under $20,000 bond. A crowd of 300 persons gathered about the jail here after Skinner's arrest on Tuesday, and authorities took him to Peoria. Two deputies who brought Skinner to Pekin wet no interference.

Medical examiners decided that the prisoner, Martin Vorant did not die from hanging.

NEWFOUNDLAND TRIAL CEASED

Allowed to Proceed After Magistrate Reads Riot Act

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 9.—Practically the entire police force of St. John's arrived at the town of Carbonear Thursday night to find that the work they were called had stayed the hands of unemployed rioters.

The trial of a rioter, interrupted when sympathizers threatened violence, was allowed to proceed after Magistrate John Casey had caused the Riot Act to be read. Thirty police remained in Carbonear over night in distinguishances today.

The trouble had its beginning last week when a crowd of 600 protesting against a cut in the dole relief to unemployed, out on a demonstration at the court house. One of their number, W. Clarke, was charged with assaulting a police-sergeant.

But when, on Tuesday, police went to Perry's Cove with a warrant for Clarke's arrest, his friends refused to turn him over to the court. They promised to deliver him Thursday, but threatened that he would be released by force if punishment was meted out on the assault charge.

Yesterday a crowd of about 200 from Victoria Village and Perry's Cove, nearby settlements, interrupted the court proceedings. Magistrate Casey was unable to give judgment and an emergency call was sent to St. John's. From the capital 125 police left by special train for Carbonear, on the other side of Conception Bay. Meanwhile, the magistrate had instructed a justice of the peace to read the Riot Act. Word of the police reached Carbonear. The trial was resumed.

SOME PERTINENT FACTS ON FRUIT INDUSTRY

May we suggest at this time, that a good word needs to be said for Ontario-grown fruits and vegetables as they fight their way in competition with imported goods. Present reports would indicate that in practically the whole area of this Province the yield will be particularly heavy in all of the various fruits and vegetables.

At present much imported fruit is being served every morning, as part of the breakfast fare throughout Ontario and it might be interested that during the season, fruits of Canadian origin should be used to profit and furtherance of Canadian producers. Tomato juice can also be suggested as part of the daily diet.

Unfortunately many shoppers do not consider the source of the fruit they buy or take the trouble to analyze the virtues of articles picked fresh from the tree or vine yesterday, and not brought two or three thousand miles by train, after being picked quite green and allowed to ripen en route. Ontario tomatoes, for example, contain more vitamins than do oranges, while as to our celery it sweeps the board in international competitions.

Having noted the difficulties under which those engaged in this industry are labouring, it has occurred to this Committee to suggest the inauguration of a movement that might in some measure augment the consumption of the fruits and produce of our own country.

May we enlist your support in a disinterested effort to assist the men upon the land through this very trying time.

TOMATOES

Research has shown that tomatoes, sun-ripened, as are all Ontario supplies now reaching the market, are a richer source of vitamins than oranges.

In addition to containing valuable and mysterious food factors, the juice of the tomato is one of the most healthful substances known, because the sugar and acid are more perfectly balanced than in the juice of any other fruit.

Just now, it is to your advantage to make your own tomato juice at home from the fresh, sun-ripened tomato, which is so plentiful.

Tomatoes fresh picked from the vine yesterday are more nutritious than fruit brought two or three thousand miles and allowed to ripen en route.

Serve Canadian fruit at breakfast.

PUTTING PINS IN MOUTH IS DEATH CAUSE

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 8.—Word reached here from Burnt River yesterday that Carman Pocock, two, died Saturday from the child-ish habit of putting things in his mouth.

He died during the night of convulsions after being put to bed in apparent good health. Doctors said he had swallowed poison. No inquest will be held.

DUCKS APPEAR MUCH EARLIER

Flocks Seen Near Bay Bridge, Rosamore And Massassaga

A flock of over a dozen black ducks pumped into the still waters near the marsh at Zwick's Island, early Thursday evening, and swam about in search of food oblivious to the fact that pedestrians and motor cars on the road passed within a few yards of them. Other ducks have been sighted in the water near the Rosamore side, and at Massassaga. Old timers of the district declare this the earliest season in years for them to appear. They point to the sign as indicating an early winter, and reflections of the bay, where they have been coming previously but after year are this year deserted so far.

Several Canada Geese have also been seen near the corn fields of Prince Rawson, but the wary birds have been too shy to approach.

Arras, France, Sept. 9 (G.P. Cable) —Raising the end of a great crane, a nine-ton stone was poised last night over the summit of Canada's memorial at Vimy Ridge, while mayors of neighboring towns and other notables are wondering why the ceremony of completion was interrupted.

At the last moment, Brig.-Gen. Henry H. Hughes, after conferring with the builders, decided the stone should not be laid yesterday. Apologies were tendered to the French guests, who accepted them with graceful gestures and puzzled glances at "The Last Stone" still hanging far above them.

It was explained afterwards an employee of the Canadian authorities had circulated the news of the memorial's completion with misplaced zeal, causing a party of eminent visitors to attend. Brig.-Gen. Hughes, whose home is in Victoria, B.C., directed the construction work, and included the ceremony of completion to be private.

Actual completion of the memorial is not expected until the latter part of 1934, as sculptured figures of bronze and stone are to be carved on the higher levels. The topmost figure, weighing 70 tons, will be the main platform. One figure on the lower level, representing the soul of Canada, is already finished.

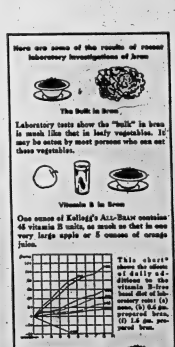
Laboratory discoveries prove value of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here's why ALL-BRAN belongs on your table

IN THE past few months, many new scientific findings indicate that ALL-BRAN is a valuable addition to the daily diet. These laboratory investigations show that ALL-BRAN is an important source of two things needed to overcome constipation. "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. (You will be interested in reading some of the results of these tests in the panel on the right.)

"Bulk" and vitamin B will help protect you from constipation and its effects—the headaches, the loss of energy, the poor appetite, the sleeplessness, the backaches, the wrinkles that so frequently result.



Now, in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you have both "bulk" and vitamin B in one delicious cereal. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Moreover, ALL-BRAN furnishes iron for the blood. Tests prove that this famous health-cereal provides twice as much assimilable iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Isn't it much pleasanter to enjoy this appetizing cereal than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful and habit-forming?

Try two tablespoonfuls daily—usually sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If you suffer from a severe intestinal trouble, we suggest you consult your physician.

Special cooking and flavoring processes make ALL-BRAN particularly healthful. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

THE SUN

Of what materials does the sun consist? Slowly but surely modern scientists are effecting an entrance to the treasure houses of the sun, point upon point, are lifting its secrets, albeit the process has been compared to observations made of sap rising in the springtime trees. The secrets of the sun include those light messages which proceed from external nature in all her vastness, and modernist new learning that takes form of the chemistry of space is gradually reducing to cipher the solar hieroglyphic immeasurably more ancient and vast than any Egyptian code, and already an alphabet of this heliograph has been formulated, though there are yet unexplored depths of the solar atmosphere that impress the velocity of forces, and it may take many generations ere anything like a complete schedule of the gamut of light is framed. Today much better instruments are to hand for this purpose. We have the accumulated labors of men like Young, Cornu, Hennessey, Secchi, Draper and Lockyer for reference, the comparison of notes from many quarters and from a long list of eclipses, is of great advantage. It is possible, by the whole range of the surface of the sun. Its color scheme has been immensely developed as a result of these researches. The spectroscope has wrought an astounding change in human knowledge of matters hellotropic, and has made possible the mapping out of the solar lines and metallic vapors which can be compared upon a very large scale. The sun has been called our only variable, whilst air, water and earth are said to be contestants. But seeing that the sunbeam weaves in the leaf, strikes in the axe, and warms in the blood, it is quite understandable that a more intimate and accurate knowledge of its contents has the most potent and direct bearing upon human welfare in all its activities.

The inquiry divides itself into three branches: First, the determination of what is happening in the sun. The sun-spots protuberances and faculae, and where, of the event of an eclipse gives opportunity to study and of which the solar rosette, or corona, is noted. It may be termed the agent general; secondly, the study of these sun changes which meteorologists and magneticians agree have their corresponding changes in our own atmosphere, and according to the verdict of many experts stand in the relation of cause and effect. Thirdly, there is the more difficult and complex study of the chemistry of the sun. Suffice to say that in this matter great strides have already been made, and men like Sir Norman Lockyer and Captain Abney, who succeeded in producing a spectrum three hundred and fifteen feet long, the greater practical spectrum gratings running 17,300 lines to the inch for the purpose of solar analysis — surely a good chart for the detection of those metallic vapors which go to build lie in three distinctive strata of the sun's chromosphere, the lowest or that nearest the surface of the sun, consisting of iron, manganese, copper, cobalt, zinc, and in all forty-one metals in the sun, out of the fifty-odd metals with which we are acquainted on earth. A clearer determination of the yet more elusive vapors, such as carbon, iodine, and the like, is an essay of investigation that still awaits a new method for the explorer. To quote the statement of Dr. Norman Lockyer, made fifty-four years ago, "It is possible that some great change which takes place on the sun down to a region so small that changes under one second of angular magnitude in the centre of the disk could be faithfully recorded and watched from hour to hour. In other words, changes in cloud regions ten miles square in a body ninety-two million miles away can be chronicled." All of which shows that some day it may be possible to get past the glorious gates of the Solar Palace which shine upon the planets, and explore those interior lucent pillars of which the rosette cycle is the eternally flaming lamp.—Montreal Gazette.

JULY CRASH RATE HIGH

The downward trend in the number and seriousness of motor accidents which held during April, May and June, came to an abrupt end in July, the figures for this month being extremely disappointing. Accidents reported numbered 908, an increase of 54 per cent. over the July 1931 total. Fatalities numbered 61, which exceeded those for the corresponding month of last year by 13. There was also an increase of 39 in the number of persons injured. Property damage reported amounted to $109,842 or $6,284 less than that of July, 1931.

Life can not always be a thing so fair
As that our hearts desire to see;
But every shadow makes what light is there
Shine forth with brighter fire.

If with each morn a wealth of bloom and song
Should flood the whole wide Earth,
And gladness dwelt among us all year long,
How should we gauge their worth?

But when for you and me the course is set
Through days of constant change,
When Promise, side by side with pale Regret,
Treads pathways new and strange.

We know at last what once was but surmised
Of how life's web is spun;
At last we glimpse the wisdom that devised
The shadow and the sun.

GREAT WEALTH IS A GREAT TRUST, but it also must be great fun, just spending money like a glorified drunken sailor. As the old expression has it, or just spreading it around in great thick parcels like the Rockefeller millions, promoting culture, and all that kind of thing, don't you know, giving much work where there was no work before and generally changing the map and disposition of localities. Williamsburg, in Virginia, is the oldest city in America with a wealth of historical background, which was fast being swept away by the march of progress and the disintegrating effects of time. Then up stepped the benefit of the multi-millionaire, who set at the behest of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who proposes to spend some ten million dollars of the Standard Oil money to make Williamsburg over into its ancient form, and after five more years of plotting, planning and experimenting the wayfarer who ventures down that ancient road called Duke of Gloucester Street will be surprised to find a city which has gone back a hundred years for it is the Rockefeller determination to make Williamsburg a natural museum of United States history. Williamsburg had the first theatre in America, the first printing office in the South, a college which numbered among its students George Washington, Monroe, Tyler, Benjamin, Harrison and other notable figures in United States history. Mary Johnston's novel "Audrey" tells of the Williamsburg of 1727, "A town of taverns, taprooms, and ordinaries, houses of red brick, houses of white wood; the long wide dusty Duke of Gloucester Street; kranked mulberry trees broadleafed against September sky, the passionately blue-gray glimpses of wood and field — all seemed remote without distance, still without stillness, the unchanging and invisible will to be done to recreate the past, a great deal of trouble having been taken to make brick after the old fashioned way, to assemble the English and framing brick used in the original houses, to mention just one phase of the reconstruction.

AN APPRECIATION of SIR GILBERT PARKER
(Contributed)

One who won fame in literature and in public life has gone to his rest. A man whose ties with Belleville have throughout his life been young manhood he was been the strongest of local ties, Sir Gilbert Parker. He was born in this his formative years while associated with St. Thomas Church. It was from this city he went to Brockville to win fame and glory in the heart of the Empire. Belleville he had been writing over forty years and his many friends have been pleased to and it will abide. In the midst of success Albert College gave him an occasion to visit Belleville to renew his old friendships. In the life of Sir Gilbert Parker has many points from which it may be viewed. He was a poet, a man of poetry and journalism and there found his way into the realms of romance and fiction. How hard was the battle was one told by his delightful address on a visit to Albert College Convocation in 1902, where he referred to his struggles and to indicated how difficult is the road to literary fame. Many have been then about forty years of age and the author of such novels as "Pierre and His People," "Trail of the Sword," "When Valmond Came to Pontiac," "The Right of Way," "The Mighty," "The Battle of the Strong," "The Lane That Had No Turning" and "The Right of Way." He had published fifty books and was a member of the British House of Commons. His message to Albert on occasion was one calculated to inspire the youths of Albert College and the lives of every student for any other profession or to public life.

Parker's contribution to literature may not be immediately somewhat be estimated, but it is safe to say, the great novelist, failed to achieve—his ambition in literary and public careers. Parker was so highly thought of in public life that he was once thought to be as a possible minister of the British government.

Sir Gilbert when on visits to Belleville was the quiet, modest man the people had known as a young man. He never courted popularity, but he enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens. But he did not fail to declare himself in Belleville on several speeches he delivered on a visit here when he spoke in the armouries and to Hotel Quinte. He was the prophet of a greater Canada. His address to Belleville Presbyterians at the Pemple drew visit being a masterpiece of prophesy of Canada's place in the developments of the Empire.

Troubles weighed heavily upon Sir Gilbert Parker. He was a bereft of his life companion, Lady Parker, for whom he built a tomb in Belleville Cemetery. In this tomb sometimes he would visit and sleep the sleep of the ages. Then he married for a second accident while on a visit to the United States.

Parker touched many callings and adorned them all. He was early a school teacher, then a curate in the Church of England, a journalist, then a novelist, a playwright and a Parliamentarian. To church, state and art he made his gifts. As a private citizen his was the sterling type of worth, marked by abiding loyalty to friends and to his followers.

Sir Gilbert was a man of the people. He was a master of a well rounded sympathetic nature. He was a man of culture. He was the polish of a diamond he was a gem.

He loved to be called as of Belleville. Though a native of Canada, he called Belleville home. His parents he buried in Belleville cemetery. He was also born here in life here. He went into the world and in spite of trials he met with those he loved. Of him and his life with homecoming, no lines seem more appropriate than those of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Requiem":

"Home, is the sailor home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

He was, as far as fame and reputation go, the most famous person with whom Belleville has been associated and the city rightfully honored in being the home of the illustrious Empire dead; one who as a citizen of Belleville, Ontario, saw a greater Empire which is now being realized. The weary pen has rested, the pen that drew immortal figures and sketched the course of high romance, that wrote immurable dramatic stories of the moving panorama of life to the last. The hand is still but the writing will not be effaced.

IS DEFECT IN MENTAL GIFT WITHOUT HOPE
Modern Thought Does Not Subscribe to Spartan View

BY LOUIS E. RISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

The ancient Spartans believed in the destruction of all children crippled or diseased, because they were bound to become a burden upon their immediate families and the state as well as a misery unto themselves.

LOUIS E. RISCH

And nowadays one hears every now and then of a child, mentally deformed child has been born and always there arises the question whether it would not actually be an act of mercy to let such a child die.

Aside from normal or religious dictates, this question is a very personal and logical point of view, one really must feel that such a creature—for that is what an individual of that type amounts to—is really not a human. All in all, no affection, with human attributes, would feel that such a child was alive for all concerned. Yes, even a tender-hearted person must become to such a conclusion.

And yet modern thought, especially that part of it which comprises the medical profession, does not subscribe to this view.

The medical men hold that no body has a right to destroy a physician and with the full consent and sympathy of the parents or relatives—to terminate the life of a child, or of any person, no matter what the circumstances, or how torturing, nor how hopeless in personal development. Therefore, every doctor feels it to be his bounden duty to use every means available and as long as can be, any baby or adult, even if such an individual be a hopeless misuse in some cases. More important still however, is the fact that medical science has made such rapid advances, especially of late years, that no one can safely predict with absolute certainty that any child mentally defective or badly off, will really remain hopelessly defective.

In other words, who knows but what the day may yet come when the child's condition may be improved.

More startling things than this have, of course, happened in the realm of medicine. Already now a days, there are many defectives, known as Cretinism, and once considered quite unimprovable, can be greatly benefited by the proper administration of thyroid extract. In fact, other types of mental mindedness are improvable through medical methods these days.

Which proves, to be sure, that we can't tell what the future holds in store. Tomorrow even more wonderful finds may be made than by-hit. Who knows but what the time may come when mental defectiveness may be a thing of the past. Who knows but what the time may come when mental defectiveness will be looked upon as a disease, something to be treated and sometimes, they refrain from seeking medical advice, they are more or less ashamed of admitting such. Yet, a broken limb and blood is defective mentality.

But parents should not accuse themselves. Even if an hereditary taint is responsible they are really not to blame. And all the while poor unfortunate mentally defective is afflicted is not getting all the attention he deserves.

Let us be sensible and scientific whenever a case of feeble mindedness is found. Let us be sensible and we must hold our emotions in check. Remember, a child's condition can no matter how futile it seems.

PRESS COMMENTS ON LIFE AND WORKS OF SIR GILBERT PARKER

Toronto Star

The death of Sir Gilbert Parker is a reminder that "The Right of the Mighty" was published thirty-five years ago and is still in strong demand. For many years he was out of time in that way. Of the multitude of others turned in 1897, how many are remembered? Even Conan Doyle's "Dark Days of the Guard," Kipling's "Captain Courageous", published at that time, have somewhat faded from view.

Woodstock Sentinel Review

Sir Gilbert Parker, who died in London was better known to Canadians as a prolific writer than as a Parliamentarian. The Trail of the Sword," "Seats of the Mighty," "The Right of Way" and other novels of adventure still hold a place in the affections of this country. Educated in Ottawa and at Trinity College, he travelled extensively in Northern Canada, and many of his stories portray pioneer life in that setting.

Toronto Globe

Honors came rapidly to Sir Gilbert Parker in the heyday of his career. Some of the most distinctions which fell to the "story" writer's lot during the years of his life is said to have taken greatest pride lay in the general recognition of the fact that his contribution to literary effort in Canada had gained really enhanced value in the field of international letters. In the early days Sir Gilbert in the town of London, in his seventieth year, Canada and the Empire lose a distinguished son who served them well in two spheres of endeavor, as the author of "The Right of the Mighty" and "The Right of Way", and as a statesman who demonstrated that literature and politics are not incompatible. An accomplished writer, Parker also served for eighteen years in the British House of Commons, gaining recognition in his vigorous advocacy of tariff reform.

Hamilton Spectator

Though Sir Gilbert Parker whose death occurred Tuesday in his 70th year, in London, embarked on his career as a novelist after short-story writer in England and Australia, he never ceased to be a Canadian and never forgot the country where he had been recognised as this Dominion's outstanding contribution to the field of literature. Sir Gilbert Parker, born in Camden East, Ontario, and educated at Ottawa public and normal schools and Trinity College, began his career teacher, curate, teacher again and newspaperman before he applied his talents to fiction writing. Widely travelled, he was ideally equipped to make a successful career of fiction and when he settled down to England, with occasional visits to Canada, it was only because he found greater opportunities there itself in him there. The expatriate, however, was enamored of the Canadian scene, as a host of volumes of short stories, which added luster to his fame, bear witness. Eastern Canada and the Canadian North-West provided the background, too, were When Valmond Came to Pontiac, Seats of the Mighty, The Right of Way, The Trail of The Power and the Glory, all of which Sir Gilbert loved so well that he was willing to stake his assertion made by Dr. Lorne Pierce five years ago to An Outline of Canadian Literature that Parker produced no novelist to challenge this area as his peculiar settlement." Canada will ever owe a debt to Sir as for as Parker, who, though he quitted its shores, was ever loyal to its interests and to tens of thousands of readers of his works the world over and, we have no doubt, considered it a privilege to visit the Dominion of which he was a notable pen.

Montreal Star

Few of the popular authors of today have had such a varied career as that of Sir Gilbert Parker, who died in London on Tuesday. On the record of the best known Canadian writer of fiction, born in Ontario man by birth, he was destined to be a clergyman. He began to earn his livelihood early as a school teacher at Holloway, south of Belleville. He became in succession curate at Trenton, and afterwards took up duties in Dominion Square, Toronto, paying his fees from money earned as a school teacher. Parker was not until he had experienced life in Australia as associate editor of the great Sydney Morning Herald in Australia, however, that he felt the urge to write for publication.

It was only natural that he should turn to his native land, but it is a question how he decided to write of French Canada rather than of his own Province of Ontario. Both with a series of short stories entitled "Pierre and His People" published in 1892, Parker began the literary progress which eventually won for him high place in fortune. Yet he did nearly all of his writing in England, settling down and spent very little time in Canada, though he paid frequent visits there up to ten years ago. Looking held him in its thrall, and he settled down there to live, though he loved to travel and did so widely from time to time. Such books as "When Valmond Came to Pontiac" and "The Seats of the Mighty" made his name known all around the world, and his income from royalties grew bigger and bigger.

Then the game of politics intervened. Parker became a staunch and active member of the Unionist Party, working with zest both in and outside of Parliament. Honors came his way, and for many years he was vivid and popular figure in English public life. Yet his thoughts turned always towards Canada, and he kept on writing of Old Canada, one of them. "The Right of Way", vieing with "The Seats of the Mighty" in popularity. Naturally of an affable disposition, Sir Gilbert was not spoiled by success. He was always ready and willing to help younger men with his advice and encouragement in practical ways, and he was a man of many generous instincts.

His last public appearance in Canada was on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue to Evangeline at Grand Pre during the visit of the Imperial Press Conference delegates to Canada in 1923. At that time he made a series of novels which would deal with the great development of the Dominion of Canada and bring the story right up to the present time, but for some reason he did not proceed with his idea. Abstinent in his habits, for instance, Sir Gilbert was none the less a lover of the good things of life and never missed an opportunity to extol the attractions of his native land and to urge young Britishers to emigrate to Canada. He was a man with many friends who was greatly liked. The world of fiction is distinctly the poorer from his passing.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was around to my sister Gladis's room last night after I went to bed at supper she said to pop, Wilburn, I think you have had enough, and the more I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that Wilburn that he's not naturely neet.

Morning Hide Willie, and pop said, Gladis don't oppose to be naturelly neet, they're oppose to have naturelly curly hair.

Well that's what I did think after, because I was trying to him a tactful little lesson in the art of politeness, and I thought that it might be taken them off instead of drawing them about the floor like waves before a storm, and said, Gladis had send him upstairs to wash his hands for supper, and a little later I followed him to the bath my self satisfied, and sure enough there was Willie standing looking at his little pink hammers, with all his clothes scattered peil reil over the floor just like I often do when I have been stepped out of them, as the case may be, and I thought that the intelligent little lamb while I gave him a lesson in politeness in the ways of neetness and the growing boy's duty to himself, I will show by picking up all his things myself and arranging them neatly on chairs and the bed, but I was sometime singing merrily to myself to another like piece, when I heard a pleasant sensation it is to be really heard to sing.

And did he get the point? pop asked me later. Yes indeed, he watched me with the most intelligent pair of eyes and said, Grandmuddy having a fit, isn't she? Why no indeed, Willie, nothing is more fun than to have a little boy to help you, and I'd carefully folded his last garment and put it on a chair and layed it on the chair and then with a loud cry of delight he brushed them all of onto the floor again, shouting joyously, Now grandmuddy you have to do it all over again, I'll show her I know how to help.

Well, I thought, on straight ways, and the cars involved are almost always in the business section, I guess.

It may be, as some people claim, that the average motorist has little or no regard for the rights of the other fellow, but still it should not be difficult for the habitually careless driver to see his danger, or later he is bound to be "the other fellow" himself.

4,016 Motor Vehicles Collided in 1931

This information in furnished by J. F. Lyons, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Ontario Department of Highways. The figures are startling, for, official. And surely they are not disquieting upon the driving habits of the citizens and automotists of the province.

Occasionally, perhaps, there may be a legitimate excuse for the collision of two automobiles, but according to official information the great majority of accidents occur on the open road, on straight roads and the cars involved are almost always in the same direction. Rear ends.

At Brampton in their own home, the wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, Sept. 3rd, between Muriel Kathleen, daughter of Mr. W J. Pratley, of Brampton, Ont., and Thomas C. Hobson, of Brampton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. J. Hobson, of Belleville, Ont.

The home had been effectively decorated with banks of flowers and a floral arch under which the bridal couple were united by the Pastor of the Baptist Church, in Brampton.

The bride in pale pink taffeta embroidered with silver, orange wreath and white veil—the latter having been the bridal veil of the bride's grandmother over sixty years before—and carrying a lovely bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley was given away by her father Mr. W. J. Pratley. Miss Violet Hobson of Belleville, sister of the groom, in pale green georgette, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, was bridesmaid.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Fred Pratley, the bride's brother, in the capacity of best man.

The marriage took place in the presence of over sixty invited guests relations and friends of the young couple. Mrs. Train, bride's aunt, Mrs. Coates presided at the piano playing the wedding march as the bride entered the room.

At the luncheon following the ceremony fifty-five guests sat down each one of whom signed their names on the wedding certificate as it was passed round during the meal after which the bridal couple left for a motor trip to points west.

Belleville representatives at the wedding were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. J. Hobson, Misses Violet and Ruth, sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Chris J. Lewis uncle and aunt of the groom.

Choosing The Right Powder

Materials there are aplenty to create the blushing cheek, cherry lips, dreamy, dewy eyes. You buy them at the cosmetic counter, and they don't put the bank balance perceptibly far. What's lacking is knowledge in the relationship of facial contour to eye paint. How to put on the bulk to best advantage. How to highlight the best features, shadow down the poor ones. Where to place rouge, what tint to use for the lips, what shade of powder to select. There's a list of problems as long as your arm. But the average beauty searcher seldom bothers her pretty head about them. She fluffs on the powder, dabs on the rouge, flourishes the lipstick. It's all done in a jiffy.

When the complexion is fair and hair dark, powder must be darker than the skin, a blend of ochre and rose impart radiance of color, the rouge selected a medium shade that is congenial with the rosy tint of the powder. A pale skin has vitality when there is more of the rose tint than ochre in the powder. But the brunette hue imparting that lovely creamy porcelain effect that we are all after.

Do you know that a florid skin, one that is too red, and ruddy to some anywhere near beauty par, is the only complexion that responds agreeably to green powder? The combination sounds terrible, but the effect of this partnership is satisfactory. No rouge should be used with green powder. The too roseate face should have its cheeks lightly powdered, nose and chin well covered, ears and neck touched only with the slightest film.

x x x

Light powder, tea-rose or natural, is the worst possible selection for a complexion that is coated with tan. It creates the effect of a rough surface. The bronzed complexion takes more kindly to ochre brown or dark rachet. As tan shuffles off, takes its departure as the suns's rays are less direct, a bit of white powder can be added to the dark tint until the contents of the box are depleted.

To have included in the beauty kit two boxes of powder is a luxurious indulgence, a lighter tone for evening, a darker one for daytime use. It all comes to the same amount of expenditure in the end. Only the white-haired, blue-eyed sister can find any possible use for mauve powder, but for her it is a perfect beauty aid. Mauve comes in deep and light tints, the deeper ones designed for the brown-eyed girls with silvered domes.

x x x

A dark shade of powder makes a large nose less obtrusive and a light powder gives the small nose an air of distinction. The blonde baby-doll type with the small impertinent nose should blend rose and white powder, apply it to her little nose which will put up a presentable appearance. Rose powder is to be used on the rest of the cutaneous area.

There's a trick too in putting on powder. It is not to be accented into the flesh with vigorous strokes but applied lightly—have plenty of powder on the puff—and then to be removed with a camel's hair brush. The surface of the skin is a delicate structure, with dead scales ever present no matter how smooth it may seem to be. And violent flogging with the powder pad is a disfiguring influence, makes the skin sensitive.

WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I expect to get married in about two months. I would like an informal wedding but not private wedding.

We would like to be married in a small church and have our friends and relatives.

1—I would like to wear a blue, not a navy blue suit, with deep squirrel cuffs, purse, gloves and shoes and so forth to match in gray, I would like to wear a corsage, and not carry a bouquet.

2—My sister will be my only attendant. What would be most appropriate for her to wear? Should she wear a corsage also, or carry a bouquet?

3—Would seven o'clock be the proper time? I would like it about that time, or may be six o'clock.

4—Is it necessary to march down the aisle on Father's arm to a familiar tune?

5—Does this sort of wedding require a soloist, either a man or woman?

6—If the wedding is informal without reception, would engraved invitations be in order? We are planning to have about one hundred and twenty-five guests, or perhaps more.

7—Can you think if any other plan in which we must have the wedding in perfect order?

I'd like to take this opportunity of telling you how I enjoy your column immensely. It solves so many problems and the variety you have makes it so much more interesting. My day isn't complete until I've read it.

H.

And am I proud of your good words about my column!

How late are about these plans for your wedding.

1.—For an early fall wedding I think that your plans for your ensemble are excellent. Blue is evidently becoming to you, since you chose it for such an important occasion, and blue will be an excellent shade for Fall, I understand, by the prophecies concerning shades. Evidently too you have a good sense of ensembling, to plan to carry out the shade of the squirrel in your accessories.

Squirrel is such a light-in-shade and-texture-and-appearance fur that it lends itself to wearing on an early Fall suit, and I too am will find this suit of great use for your "engagement journey" and for post-wedding-journey wear.

Only one warning I would like to give. I'm a bit afraid that your costume may look too unaccended... that is, there is only perhaps, too much gray. Is your hat to be of the same shade of blue or darker than that of your suit? I hope so for this would I think be better than gray. Perhaps the gray might be echoed in your hat in some small accessories.

Also you will have to be very careful about gray shoes to see that they are of really the right shade, and that they are of the right texture. Very dark blue shoes, which, will be very good for this fall, might be the best choice for your shoes.

Yes, I like the idea of your wearing a corsage, but I'm sure fancies you will be able to get a beautiful accent to the shade of your suit.

2.—Your sister should wear a suit, of a shade to harmonize with your suit, but she should be more consistent if she too wears a corsage, rather than carrying a bouquet.

3.—Six o'clock, or even an earlier hour would be better than a later hour for your costume is so essentially a daytime costume.

4—You should plan to come down the aisle with your father, for the processional. The traditional Lohengrin "Here Comes the Bride" music is the most appropriate.

5.—It is not necessary to have a soloist, and in the ceremony not to have one.....but you may, of course, if you wish. An informal wedding, sometimes the soloist sings the Processional music.

6—For an informal wedding, and especially one without a reception, it is appropriate and perhaps more in order to have written invitations. The invitations are usually written by the mother of the bride, of course if this isn't convenient (although I hope it will be), the bride may write them in the name of her mother, who is the hostess on the occasion.

7.—For this number of guests it would be necessary to have ushers, and I suggest that you have perhaps two ushers. These can precede your party, come first, walking together. Then your sister, alone. Then your father and your father.

BRIDGE PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

A friend of mine was married last June, and went to Florida to live. She is now visiting in the old home town and I am planning a evening bridge party in her honor, just some of her old-time friends, to get together and talk over old times, and so forth.

I will have the usual prizes, that is, first, second and consolation and I am wondering if it is proper, or necessary, to give the guest of honor a prize, or gift.

As the party is not in the nature of a shower, I have been wondering just what is the proper thing to do, and I would appreciate your advice.

PARTY FOR A BRIDE-TO-BE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Are there any clever plans one can make for a bride-to-be besides a shower and a pre-nuptial party? I have invitations in both of these to be held for a bride-to-be and as I know so very little about these affect. Place cards too can be very interesting for this kind of party ....but not over done.

If you wish to invite both girls and men, why not plan to have a Sunday evening buffet party? Every one likes these, and perhaps no one will plan this kind of party. Here again, your formal generations of your buffet table may be of white or white-and-pink flowers.

If you wish to invite only girls to your party, a luncheon in honor of the bride-to-be is a charming and distinguished kind of party to give. The table can be set with a "bridal" appearance.....your central decorations of all-white or white-and-pink flowers, and the corsages at each place carrying out the same gala effect. Place cards too can be very ....but not over done.

Yes, I like the idea of your wearing a corsage, but I'm sure fancies you will be able to get a beautiful accent to the shade of your suit.

Teach Your Child to Be a Friend

By Constance Cameron

Friendship is a sharing proposition, a sharing not only of material possessions but of the mental, social standing and tolerance.

A mother, who had provided her small boy with complete play equipment in the back yard was puzzled to find that children did not come to play once didn't return, in spite of all the attractions her child had to offer them.

Then mother had supplied her son with concrete things to tempt friendships, but she had failed to teach him understand what constitutes a friendship. She had forgotten that we all must learn how to get along with people! No one comes by that naturally. Some of us never acquire it at all, but it can be learned.

It's each of us was the only individual on earth life would be simple. We should never have to give up anything or even share anything. But we could have no friendships, and these are indeed precious.

A child must have more to offer other children, than slides, sandboxes, swings, dolls and cool lemonade. He must have the spirit of give-and-take, the knowledge of tolerance, the ability to follow as well as lead, the habit of sharing playing his guest's game, rather than always his own.

The only way I know to teach this to a child is by example. If Mother gives up a shopping expedition to join Dad on an afternoon's fishing trip; if Dad foregoes his comfortable slippers some evening to dress up and play bridge, the child sees this spirit of give-and-take demonstrated. He sees good sportsmanship blossoming at his right hand, and he too, will acquire the feeling that it is only fair to give once in a while — to share his pleasures—with other fellow.

He can, through the relationship of Dad and Mother, learn friendship, for I believe that friendship is the foundation upon which any happy marriage is founded, and his ability to be a good friend will attract to the child happy friendships.

But the child must possess that something within him that welcomes people. Toys and tea-parties won't do it.

A'S LOST GROUND

Chicago Gained Half Game, When They Divided

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Back in the long lean years, those four seasons from 1927 thru' 1930, when the National League champions couldn't win a world series and seldom could win a game in the great October classic, the explanation was often advanced that the class was in the senior circuit the class was in the junior circuit took too much out of the champion left them exhausted for the American Leaguers, who won by big margins.

The same contrast comes up again this year as the National League race goes down the homestretch with seven teams still mathematically in the running, while only three are left in the American, two of them with so little hope of a chance to overtake the New York Yankees.

Yanks Nearly In

After checking in with a 14-inning victory and a seven-inning tie in a long day's work, Wednesday, the Yanks reached the point where they need only four victories for clinch themselves, four defeats for Philadelphia and Washington, any combination that figure will clinch the pennant. At the same time the diamond rivals, leading Pittsburgh by 5½ games with 18 to go, have to win 13 each to tie and 14 to make it a certainty.

The parlay of the season's last road trip affected the leaders in both circuits yesterday. The Yanks had to go five extra innings in the first game before they put over two runs to defeat the Browns 5 to 3 and darkness stopped them in the seventh inning of the second clash with the score tied at seven-all.

Philadelphia's Athletics lost a precious game as Clint Brown held them to four hits to get a 2 to 1 decision over Lefty Grove. Another four-hit performance, with Monte Weaver doing the pitching to rind up his 20th victory of the season enabled Washington to turn back the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 0, and keep pace with the Yanks.

National League

A divided double-header with Boston added a half game to the Cubs' lead as Pittsburgh took another one on the side with Frank Brahma Bessey's Rook's six-hit hurling and a big eighth inning batting attack 4-1 victory in the opener, but Bob Brovey thrashed the six-hit Braves for Boston in the nightcap and a homer by Wally Berger led to a 3-2 triumph.

Pittsburgh couldn't approach Brooklyn's hitting feats and was buried under by a 12 to 2 score. The Bucs knocked Watson Clark's only eight times while the Dodgers made 17 blows, including two homers and two singles by Frank O'Doul.

A circuit drive by Don Hurst with two on beat in the first inning gave the Phillies a 3 to 0 victory over the Cardinals in the remaining National League game as Hurst limited the 1931 champions to three hits. New York and Cincinnati decided the weather was too cold for a meeting of the tail-enders and postponed it.

Softball Tourney Won By Tweed

Tweed, (Special) —The Softball Tournament and Community picnic sponsored by the Parks Commission on Labor Day attracted a good crowd at the Memorial Park. Four teams representing Arden, Flinton, Northbrook and Tweed, entertained the crowd to three hours of softball.

Flinton and Northbrook clashed in the first round. After the second inning when Northbrook scored 6 runs, Flinton was never in the picture. Loose fielding on the part of Flinton permitted Northbrook to take commanding lead of 9 to 1 in the second inning. They added eight additional runs in the fifth, the final score being 18 to 2. C. Hughes, Northbrook southpaw hurler displayed more than average ability and made the opposition look pretty weak at times.

The Teams:

Flinton—Casey, c; Juby, 1b; Marlin, 1b; Davidson, cf; Loyst, 3b; Yanch, 2b; Wagor, cf; York, p; Jerome, rf.

Tweed and Arden took the field at the conclusion of the first game and a nip-and-tuck battle occurred which left the result in doubt until the final inning when with two down and the score tied 12 to 12, Tweed pushed over the winning run a hit by Casey Rashotte, scoring Harper, who had previously singled. McClure pitching for Tweed was continually in trouble. His generosity with free transportation to first base enabling the visitors to make things rather more than interesting—for the homesters. He redeemed himself in the ninth when he rapped out a home run with the bases loaded. Meraw also rapped out a four base hit in the fifth. K. Alexander and C. Alexander of Arden fielded creditably as did Meraw, Harper and Montgomery of Tweed, the last named making some nice running catches. F. Steele pitching for Arden was in splendid form, limiting only two walks. An unfortunate accident occurred in the second inning when the ball flew from Terry's hands, striking Mr. Gordon Steele of Arden, on the forehead. Four stitches were required to close the wound.

The Teams:

Arden—H. Steele, lf; H. McCutcheon, ss; C. Steele, 1b; J. Scott, 2b; M. Scott, rf; C. Alexander, cf; K. Alexander 2b; F. Steele, p; R. Cronk, c.

Tweed—C. Rashotte, 1b; D. Merora, 2b; R. Lucas, cf; R. McGuire, p and c; A. Montgomery, lf; D. Shannard, rf; K. Lindsay, rf; H. Terry, c and ss; J. Orr, 2b; L. Merora, ss and p.

Playoff Not Good.

The playoff between Northbrook and Tweed will not prove as interesting to the spectators as the previous games. McGuire who essayed to pitch the second game for Tweed was erratic, issuing seven bases on balls against four by C. Hughes of Northbrook, who is famed as a pitcher. Three of McGuire's charities were issued to D. Boyd who scored three runs. The O'Reilly brothers and Atkins furnished the fielding features.

The lineups for this game were the same as for the previous contests in which Tweed and Northbrook figured.

Score by innings:

Northbrook ..... 053 100 x—8 8 0
Tweed ..... .200 002 0—4 6 2

Knocks and Boosts

Manager Bert Fanning of the Belleville Waterloo was advised yesterday that the first game of the Belleville-Dreher series would be played in Newcastle on Saturday afternoon. Originally the coached clan have been playing their home games in Newcastle lately as it is only a few miles from Belleville, the home of most of Orme's players.

Coach Chummy Gerow had his proteges out to a short ball practice last evening which was followed by ten minutes of infield workout. All the players reported but the Fair Grounds boy Jimmy Campbell, who is resting after having three gems for the Waterside of six days, Rosh Ed. Hudson, the only right hand pitcher, and Ralph Ibey, who tosses them from the port side, were warming up in the ball park. The Vics leave early Saturday morning for Newcastle and a large delegation of baseball fans will follow the Vics westward.

At next winter's annual meeting of the International Baseball Leagues "Shag" Shaughnessy of the Montreal Royals intends proposing a play-off system to be introduced into the International loop next year. All hands are expected to throw up their hands in dismay at the mere suggestion of a play-off being mentioned. They are filled with disfavour at the present playoff system in the I.A.A.U. and the other hand however the club owners and the players are more than satisfied when the extra pay check comes around from these off-season post season games. The addition of a play-off series into the International League would lean to have more interest supplied by the players as more folks would flock to the fact that perhaps three or four clubs would be effected and the league race would not be over by the first of September as it was this year. "Shag" may turn the heads of the International loop moguls with his persuasive arguments at that.

Although we tried to find out just how best weekly baseball broil should be staged at the Arena, we failed completely. At the last show, which was the first one held in the local "ice palace", the ring was placed at the north end of the arena. The fans are much closer to the scene of action when the ring is placed in this position. But then they may more the "squared circle" to the centre of the floor. In this case, however, the spectators on the south side of the Arena he need not be afraid of getting hit with a flying chair like time. Understand us, we are wholeheartedly against such actions as were seen at the Belle Gerowan Saturday evening, when a choir was thrown out of the audience at the Marvel's manager. The unfortunate should have been arrested on the spot.

There are more athletic stars in the picture "Huddle" which is playing at the Capitol theatre this week, than have ever been garnered in one production before, we see. Even Johnnie Burger, the world's amateur boxing champion of 1924, is appearing in this talkie. Johnnie won his laurels at the 1924 Olympic games in Paris. Sam Wood, who directed that great football story "One Minute to Play" is also responsible for the scenes in "Huddle".

The big fight for the coming Schmeling-Walker fight has started already. Here Max Schmeling said that he will fight the same kind of a scrap that the "Toy Bulldog" took. Well, if Mickey Walker continues to fight with that dash-ing, daring style he will be some battle between Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker should be worth going many miles to see.

For the following little article we are indebted to the Oshawa Times Sport's Editor. Evidently he must have either guessed the outcome of the Gananoque-Belleville series completely wrong or taken altogether too much for granted. Anyhow he comes to the fore with this statement. "Orme Gaunsby and his Ramblers are cutting a great swath in the intermediate play-offs, their South Ecas. joint triumph being against Peterborough C.G.E. whom they took into camp for the second time on Saturday. Saranac proved to be a real mystery to the Littlecokers and they couldn't get by them. The Orome team as a whole played good ball in the field and their hitting against three pitchers was consistent and garnered them eleven hits. The Orangeville will meet Gananoque in the next round of the playoffs, which will be played this week."

"BIG CITY BLUES" AT BELLE THEATRE

Double Feature Bill With Tim McCoy in "Western Thriller

As fast-moving as a subway express train, as kaleidoscopic as a New Year's Eve crowd milling along Broadway, "Big City Blues," the Warner Bros.' production starring Joan Blondell, promises lovers of the unusual in entertainment something more than satisfying when it comes to the Belle Theatre Saturday and Monday, matinee daily.

The experiences of a country boy and a city-wise chorus girl, thrown together by chance in the whirlpool of the metropolis, constitute the chief pattern of the drama. Everything that happens to these two—and almost everything imaginable does happen to them—takes place within the compass of three days. Before the boy from Indiana has been in town twenty-four hours, he finds himself a horrified witness to a murder, and a few hours later finds himself suspected as the murderer and on the trail of the killer of the law's bloodhounds.

The girl meanwhile—likewise a member of the party at which the killing takes place—is in a scarcely more enviable predicament. She, too, is wanted by the police.

As you, the happy-go-lucky chorus girl, who hails originally from Dublin, New York, Joan Blondell is in her element. Eric Linden, Sally Eilers, Guy Kibbee and Inez Courtney contributes one of his portrayals of modern youth that have made him a favorite of the younger actors on the screen.

The McCoy Western Drama "Daring Danger," Tim McCoy's new Columbia picture, is a real second feature offering on the same program.

As usual, plays a fast-riding, hard-fighting, two-gun role in a story about a dangerous gang of cattle rustlers. When Tim McCoy learns that the man he has to settle an account with is a member of the gang that's rustling the cattle from his sweetheart's ranch he dares anything and everything to get them. He throws himself into a desperate battle against the gang and the other and eventually secures the proof he is after.

Shakespeare had the gift of normality in the drawing of his characters and in the nature of his descriptions, and does not wander far away from actual life into the realms of fantasy and eccentricity.

Magistrates Urge Whipping in Dealing with Juvenile Offenders

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 8—(By The Canadian Press)—Ontario magistrates in convention here have unanimously adopted a resolution urging amendment of the criminal code to permit whipping in dealing with offenders under the age of 21 years.

Text of the resolution, which will be forwarded to the Department of Justice at Ottawa read:

"That section 82 of the Criminal Code which allows a parent, guardian or master to use reasonable force be amended by adding the following clause: "In dealing with offenders under the age of 21 years of age, notwithstanding any existing law or penalty, it shall be lawful for any court to order whipping by means of a strap and such punishment may be in addition to or in substitution of any other existing penalty."

The question then arose, who should administer the spanking of juvenile offenders. It was agreed the duty belonged to the office of the sheriff.

The association today decided to hold its next annual convention at Muskoka on the shores of Lamp Bay if arrangements can be made for accommodation.

May Meet in Muskoka

Invitation to Muskoka was extended today's session of the convention by Magistrate E. R. Tucker of Cochrane, and accepted unanimously.

Magistrates Alfred Jones, of Brantford was named President of the association by acclamation for the coming year. There was a contest for the office of Vice President, the names of H. A. Burbidge of Hamilton and D. McCaughrin of Orillia being submitted. A vote was taken and Magistrate Burbidge was elected.

Acclamations were accorded to Magistrate Howard Grover of Goderich, as Secretary Treasurer and Magistrate Dr. Margaret Patterson of Toronto as Librarian.

Executive committee was elected by acclamation.

Dr. J. J. Wilson, Burk's Falls; Frederick Wood, K.C., Guelph; J. H. Campbell, K.C., St. Catharines; F. W. Walker, Walkerton; Dr. Mc-Neil, Goderich; Wm. C. Mikel, K.C., Belleville and G. A. Langley, K.C., Peterborough.

Japan to Continue as Advisor In Manchuria Finding to League

Recognition of China's Sovereignty to be Fulfilled

Tokyo, Sept. 9—Continuation of the Japanese advisorship in Manchuria, in an advisory capacity, has been recommended by the League of Nations' Inquiry Commission in its report to the League, official sources here said today.

The information, they said, came from Japanese representatives at Peiping, where the report was signed last week.

These advisors, which contained a purported summary of the contents of the report, however, the sources declined, are to be arranged in agreement recognizing China's sovereignty in Manchuria but establishing the autonomy of the territory under Japanese influence.

This, it said, should be worked out by negotiations between China and Japan, with representatives of Manchuria and observers representing the League.

The report of the commission, it is understood this week will be without being published. Arrangements were made, Lord Lytton, the chairman, said at the time, for publication simultaneously in Nanking and Tokyo later this month.

According to the purported summary, the commission's recommendations also included complete demilitarization of Manchuria and the establishment of a native police force under foreign supervision.

Nonchalant Attitude of Chorus Girls Probably Prevented Serious Panic

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 9—The nonchalant attitude of the chorus girls who continued to dress their part on the stage even as the boards under their feet grew hot and smoke appeared upward, was credited today with having averted a panic when fire broke out in the theatre here.

The patrons, warned by the manager that a serious fire had broken out in the basement, moved calmly through the exit last night as the orchestra played the part assigned in the heart of Chicago's rialto.

Meanwhile, the show went on. The musicians remained at their posts and the chorines went on with their dances. The prima donna of the chorus, Lolita Lopez, sang "Dancing in the Dark" as firemen arrived.

40 MILLION DOLLARS MORE FOR CROP THIS YR

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 9—Even at present low prices, Saskatchewan grain will bring in approximately $40,000,000 more than was available last year, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan stated in an interview here. Last year's crop will be exceeded by 100,000,000 bushels, he declared, and there will be proportionate increase in other grains.

MARKET TURNS NOSE UPWARD

Selling Soon Diminished And All Losses Are Regained

New York, Sept. 9—The Stock Market again found enough buyers awaiting a setback to check the latest decline today.

The sale of the previous session was carried over into the early trading today, when coppers were conspicuously absent, but selling soon diminished, and the market turned sympathetically upward before midday. It had soon regained numerous gains of 1 to 3 points. Coalton, which broke $9 yesterday stiffened and recovered a little.

Buying started in some of the industrial specialties, and rails spurted to steals and rails issued up 2 to 3 points included Amerada, Bethlehem Steel, Steel, Johns Manville, Case, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Pacific Pa. and others, while Coca Cola jumped 4. Issues up 1 or more included U. S. Steel, Youngstown Steel, Corn Products, General Electric, International Harvester, Consolidated Gas, Loews, and New York Central.

VOLUME LOWER ACROSS BOARD

Market Lacked Spectacular Feature of Thursday's Opening

Toronto, Sept. 9 — (Toronto stocks)—The morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange lacked something of the spectacular that featured Thursday's opening. With the exception of Brazilian volume was considerably lower all across the board and the trend was distinctly irregular.

Leaders showed fractional changes only at midday International Nickel was off 1-8; Brazilian Traction up 1-8; C.P.R. up 5-8; and Ford of Canada 1-8 up.

Consolidated Smelters recovered two points of previous loss at 90, selling as high as 91.

Oils were irregularly lower, with one gain and three fractional losses. Utilities were down 1-8 to 2 points by Bell Telephone and 1 by B. C.

The most striking incident in the forenoon session was a gain of 1 1-2 by Abitibi preferred following application for a receiver for the company. Banks stocks were firmer with Royal up 3 and Commerce 2.

local "jungle."

Reid is said to have admitted to the police that he had stabbed Thomas, but declared that this action had been taken in self-defence following an attack made by the dead man when Reid refused to lend him a hold-up.

"It was Thomas," he declared, according to police, who planned the hold-up of the local man, and it was time my friends got busy with it. Thomas got mad. We began to fight. He started for me reaching for the Knife, grabbed it too, and stabbed him. It was all over."

He stated police claim that Thomas lived for three days following the fatal stabbing. The police, however, say that the accidents was in the boathouse at the time Reid is said to have arrived.

"If Yank" went out for a doctor but the police declare Reid said. "I waited for 'Yank' to bring back the doctor, and they did come and Thomas had passed out, I beat it."

Reid will be arraigned formally in Peterborough police court on a charge of murder. Magistrate Langley is out of the city attending the Police Magistrates' convention in Hamilton so that Reid will appear before Police Magistrate Wm. Ross, K.C.

FERRY BOILER EXPLODES

Peter Collins, a lifeguard at a summer resort on the island pier and saw the explosion. He called workers from the mainland and they returned to the waterfront to give aid.

Today was the workers' regularly weekly pay day and many had expected for duty early.

Divers Dispatched

Three divers were despatched from the Brooklyn navy yard to assist in the search for bodies.

More than three hours after the explosion police said that investigation so far indicated that there were 165 men on the "Observation" when the blast occurred. He said a number of dead was still listed at 165 at that time.

The "Observation" was at one time in sight-seeing service for carrying visitors around Manhattan Island. It sank at its pier at Kearney, N.J., almost a year ago but was raised and recommissioned.

Another Story of Explosion

William Donoghue, 38, of Long Island, one of the survivors, said:

"When the last excursion went high in the air and then sank deep into the water. When I came up again I was hit by a body coming down and went down by the second time. Upon coming up again I could hear the hiss of fire above and saw fragments of the boat floating all around me. I had sufficient strength in my mind to swim under the water until I was sure I was clear of the wreckage."

Max Monheit, a truckman, who was driving near the waterfront, said he saw the boiler of the boat shoot high into the air after the explosion.

"It looked like a balloon rocket," he said, "and then it hit the water and exploded and sent up a column of spray and debris."

Dr. Herman Rothman, of Lincoln Hospital, one of the first physicians to reach the scene, said he found the injured groaning and screaming. He said he ignored the apparently lifeless and administered to those who seemed in the most pain.

After surveying the situation at the scene District Attorney Mic Laughlin ordered all witnesses to his office, where he said would be headquarters for the inquiry.

WHEN TONY AMATTO WENT TO YALE

Ramon Navarro Plays "Tough" Role in "Huddle"

Ramon Novarro attempts a radically different type of role in his new starring picture, "Huddle," now at the Capitol Theatre.

His portrayal as Tony Amatto, tough Italian mill hand who enters Yale University, gives him an opportunity for some of the most aggressive and virile action of his career. He spent weeks with a coach to learn football technique. The scenes of Navarro gaining honors in the lineup with many famous all-Americans and noted stars, including Ernie Pinckert, Jess Hibbs, Dale-Van Sickel, Tom Lieb and others.

"Swagger Boy" Depicted

Many actual campus scenes at Yale University were used as an authentic background for the production which contains many of the old traditions of this famous institution. The celebrated Derby Day and various social activities are used as atmospheric details of the story.

Tony Amatto, portrayed by Novarro, is luckily proud and free blooded with the fervor of the Italian race. He wins a scholarship while working in a steel mill and attends Yale against his fellows' wishes. His pride makes things very difficult for him until he becomes a football hero and wins athletic honors. He is accepted by many students, but is still lonely socially. Rosalie, daughter of the president of the mill in which Tony worked, is still his ideal, but his hopeless love becomes impossible to bear.

The number in which contact and experiences help Tony to find himself form a gripping theme for the picture, which was adapted by Francis Wallace's story. The strong supporting cast includes such well known players as Madge Evans, Una Merkel, Ralph Graves, John Eldredge, Frank Albertson, Kane Richmond, Martha Sleeper, Henry Armetta, Pricilla Dorne, Rockcliffe Fellowes and Joe Sauers. Sam Wood directed.

Owing to the length of "Huddle" time on the programme only permits of a cartoon and the popular Pathe Sound News to be shown in addition.

ANDERSON NOT OPPOSED TO A COALITION

Saskatchewan May Take Leap Into Union Government

GARDINER RETICENT

Former Liberal Leader Has Heard Nothing of Union

Regina, Sept. 9—Long-standing rumors of the formation of a coalition government in Saskatchewan were firebybned last night as a result of the endorsation of the coalition idea by Premier J. T. Anderson in an interview at Winnipeg. Dr. Anderson was commenting on the recent announcement of Premier S. F. Tuimie of British Columbia favoring a union government in that province.

Premier Anderson's statement set political circles buzzing with speculation and D. M. Gardiner, leader of the L'beral party and former premier, from his farm at Lemberg, said no union proposals of any kind had been made to him. Until he heard from Premier Anderson he did not want to say anything as to the merits or demerits of political parties.

Prom the Liberal Coldwell, leader of the newly formed Farmer-Labor party, came a declaration his party would collaborate with either of the old parties whose aim was "the best financial interests," which have placed mankind in its present poverty."

FLIER REACHES 22,000 FEET

Equals Record Set at Last Montreal Year

Cormorant Lake, Man., Sept. 9 (By R. K. Taylor, Canadian Press Special Correspondent) — After scouring the skies of Northern Manitoba in his search for data on the cosmic ray, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, world famous physicist, back-tracked his detailed instruments this morning and made ready to leave for the east. His next observations will be made shortly at Tacoma, Washington. He will follow the same method there as here sending his sensitive electroscopes and recording cameras into the upper atmosphere in aeroplanes.

Flying Officer C. A. Gordon, who commanded the Royal Canadian Air Force station here, made two flights for Dr. Millikan. The second yesterday carried him to a height of 22,000 feet where he equalled the Canadian altitude record set last year at Montreal by Captain Roy Wehlman. His first flight, Thursday, carried him to 21,000 feet and he landed 300 miles from his base, out of gasoline.

Dr. Millikan will stop in Winnipeg where he will deliver a lecture Sunday on "Science and Religion" in one of the city's leading churches.

"MARY FAITH"

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"I didn't have to go domestic,' Jean. I was always domestic." Mary Faith let the way to the clean little kitchen. "This sort of thing always appealed to me more than office work ever did. You have no idea what a good time I have running the floor and sweeping the house and peeling the potatoes. But I'm getting sick of doing other work again. That's what I wanted to talk to you about.

"Don't you start working, Mary Faith Farrell!" Jean shook her head solemnly. "As soon as a married woman starts working her husband loses all his ambition. Just look at what happened to my sister, Florence, soon as she started that public-stenographer business down here. Burr stopped selling cars. He'd been a mighty grand husband until that time. Now he spends most of his time at the golf links. As a good provider he's through."

Mary Faith knew Burr and Jean's sister, Florence Bond, and Burr, her husband, for years past had regaled her with stories of their violent quarrels and with the stories of the adventures of Florence's company—known as the Write-Quick Secretarial Service.

"I have to go to work, Jean," she said slowly. "I've got to support myself from now on. And I've been wondering if Florrie would let me work for her for a few months—until October, say? I might get into a quiet place like her office if I could. Then I'm sure I'd have a baby pretty soon...."

And then she was in Jean's arms with her head on her shoulder and the two of them were crying together in the silly but comforting way that women to cry sometimes. The five months of almost total misunderstanding were swept away in an instant, and the two of them were good friends once more.

CHAPTER XXV

"Of course, Florrie will give you a job," Jean said. "She knows what slick work you do, and she'll be mighty glad to get you. I'll fix it for you first thing tomorrow morning. ... What happened between you and Kim, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith put her head to one side, thinking. "Well, for one thing he was bored, Jean, and I didn't know it. I didn't mind staying at home nights or going to a picture show with him. As long as he was with me I didn't need anybody else. But he got tired of it all, I guess.

"Tired of you, huh!" cried Jean with flashing scorn for her voice. "He marries the best-looking girl and the nicest girl in the whole world and get tired of her in five months! He didn't have sense enough to appreciate you, that's what! I've known you for five years and I've never been bored by you. It's too bad you didn't marry Mart Reade, Mary Faith, when you had the chance. And you did have it. Everybody at the office knew that he was absolutely batty over you."

She took a vanity case out of her lap silk bag and powdered her face before she finished what she had to say: "The trouble with Kim Farrell is that he has a heart as big as a hotel. He falls for every girl he meets. I never told you at the time but he even had the nerve to up while you were engaged to him; and I was always bumping into him when he was out stepping with other girls. Remember I warned you to urge you to marry him before he left you high and dry?...What are you going to do about Kim, Mary Faith?"

Divorce.. .The very word was paralyzing to Mary Faith. She stood staring blankly at Jean for a full minute before she answered her.

"Oh, no, I'd never divorce Kim, Jean. What makes you ask me if I wouldn't? You've seen him lately with some girl, haven't you?"

"No, I haven't, but he's left you, hasn't he? And, so far as I can make out, he's left you without a cent to keep yourself with. I should think you'd want to be free from a man like that—after baby comes, of course. It's just possible that, in the course of human events, you might want to marry again some-time, you know. Such things have happened."

"No. I'd never want to marry again. No matter what happens there never will be anybody but Kim for me, Jean—and there's just a chance that he'll come back here to me if he knows that I want him."

Jean's lips, painted the bright red of sealing wax, curled in a smile that was half tenderness and half contempt. She shrugged her shoulders once more.

"I must go," she said. "I have a date with a man from Phoenix, Arizona. Burr sold him a car the other day and brought him out to the house last night to play cards with us. He's a white—all sand tanned and blue-eyed. You ought to see him, Mary Faith, and you ought to hear him talk about his ranch down in the Salt River Valley. He grows everything on it from cantaloupes to cotton. Well, I hope you'll enjoy working for Florrie. I think you will. I'll work for her myself but I'm afraid that relatives ever get along in business. So don't tell her I even said a word to keep her engagement with the ranchman from Arizona."

On the first Monday in June Mary Faith started work as stenographer for the Write-O Stenographic Service at twenty-five dollars a week. The office was a big, up-to-date one on the ground floor of the Arcade Building on Spring Street a few blocks away from the Towers Building where Kim had his law office.

The Arcade Building was the largest building in town. It had its own restaurant in the center court, shop and beauty shop on the second floor, and a fine reference library with its own circulating library. It was a busy place at noon.

Florrie Bond employed two girls besides Mary Faith and she herself was busy all day long answering the telephone and making appointments or arranging conferences or bringing work into the office. She was a pretty, vivacious-looking girl with black hair and eyes and a tall slender figure. She never wore anything but black—lustrous clinging black—and a string of pearls.

"I'm going to let you stay in the office all the time, Mrs. Farrell," she said to Mary Faith when she came to work that first hot June morning. "Sometimes one of the girls go out to take dictation or do typing in the other offices of the building, but sometimes we fill in as stenotypes when the regular stenographers are in the hospital. But Jean tells me that you want to be a quiet sort of person."

She gave Mary Faith a desk near the big windows that looked out on the busy Spring Street below. And there Mary Faith sat sight after sight at the day's lawyers' briefs, manuscripts, letters, anything that came her way.

Once again her days were filled with the click of the typewriter keys, the ringing of the telephone, the slam and rattle of filing cabinet drawers, the sound of the downtown traffic outside the front windows of the office.

Every morning she packed her lunch in the cool little kitchen of the flat—usually two tomato sandwiches and a thermos bottle of the coffee that was left over from breakfast. She ate it, sitting at her desk, with a book from the library lying open on her typewriter before her.

Every night she walked part of the way home, because Dr. Tisdale her had told her that she ought to take plenty of exercise. She and Kim's mother usually got supper together, and afterwards, when the dishes were done they would stroll around Hallnorth Park or go to the moving picture theater, a block from home.

"For a couple of deserted women we get along very well, don't we?" Mary Faith sometimes asked cheerfully when they were walking along side by side through the warm breathing darkness of the summer night. "I wonder what Kim would think if he knew that we were still living in the flat."

They never heard from him.

"That's because we've had the telephone taken out," Mrs. Farrell decided. "He's probably tried to call our number, and because he can't get it he undoubtedly thinks we've moved out."

"He could find out by telephoning Arlyn Kile or Mrs. Tyrrell," Mary Faith reminded her. "We'll hear from him pretty soon. Certainly he'll begin to wonder where you are and whether you're all right or not."

But the June roses withered and died in Hallnorth Park, and July came in bringing with it midsummer heat that was like the breath of a blast furnace and still they did not hear from him.

One night they came home from the picture show and found him sitting in his roadster in the street outside the apartment.

Where he saw them he got out of it and came across the sidewalk to them. In the fan of light from the vestibule he looked very big and handsome in a pale gray suit that Mary Faith had never seen before. At first she thought he had come back to her and her knees turned to water and her heart beat like a trip-hammer.

"Why, Kim!" she said simply.

"I want to talk to you, Mary Faith". He gave her a cold, level look from his gray eyes, and turned to his mother. "How are you, Mother, and what are you doing here? Until tonight I thought you were safe and sound in Garrettsville with Aunt Ella."

"No, I'm safe and sound right here where I belong," said his mo., her voice flat and I thought we'd be more comfortable here, so after you left we shipped out."

"How do you manage it?" He followed them into the flat and settled while they turned on the lights in the little sitting room. Then he sat down on the arm of the Turkish leather rocker just inside the door, balancing his gray hat on one knee.

It was Mary Faith who answered him. "I got a job, Kim," she said, "and we cut down expenses here. We had the telephone taken out; and we stopped eating meat and doing a lot of other things that mean spending money. We get along very nicely, don't we Mrs. Farrell.

"We certainly do. We may not have all the luxuries of life," admitted Kim's mother, "but at least we're not accepting charity from anybody and we're not stuck in a boarding house or an miserable country town...."

Kim wasn't listening to her. His eyes were on Mary Faith's face.

"Did you send fifty dollars to McIntires at Westerly about a month ago?" he asked her.

"I did, Kim. I knew that you wanted to send it yourself, in all probability, but that you were too stiff-necked ever to do it, and so I sent it for you. Why do you want to know about it, Kim? Have you heard from Mr. McIntyre?"

"I have. I got a letter this handsome head. "He sent for me last Friday," he said. "He told me that he admired the spirit that prompted me to return that money, and pulled a lot of that sort of talk on me. I didn't know what he was driving at but I had brains enough to keep my mouth shut. He told me he thought I'd learned my lesson, and then he told me I could come back to work for him if I wanted to."

"And did you?"

"Of course. I was starving to death down there in the Towers Building. I hadn't gotten back to him it'd have had to get a job somewhere else. For a week I've been wondering about that money, and tonight I suddenly got to me that you might have sent it to him. I knew that you and Jack Maldon were the only two people who knew that I never had turned it in at the office. I telephoned Mrs. Purdett's but she told me that she hadn't seen you in weeks. So I came down here."

CHAPTER XXVI

"And are you going to stay here now, Kimberley?" his mother asked him.

"No." His lips came together with a snap. "No—I'm more sure than ever that it was a mistake for Mary Faith and me to be married. I came here tonight because I wanted to talk to her about clearing up—it's not right for us to be tied up to each other when we're stopped caring for each other. You feel that way about it yourself, don't you, Mary Faith?"

Her dark blue eyes were very big in her white face and there were faint shadows under them. Her lips scarcely moved as she spoke.

"I don't know, Kim."

"You don't know? He was exasperated. "What do you mean you don't know?"

"Well, I don't believe in divorce, Kim. And don't you remember what we promised each other the day we were married—To live together all our lives."

"Look here, Mary Faith, I'm not going to sit here and argue the fine points of the marriage service with you," said Kim, thumping his marriage vows with a wave of his hand. "I came here to talk about you to divorce me. I don't care about you the way, I did, and I'm not going to be getting along fairly well without me. You have my no., and tonight I expect to hear from you might have sent it to him. I know that you and Jack Maldon were the only two people who knew that I never had turned it in at the office. I telephoned Mrs. Purdett's but she told me that she hadn't seen you in weeks. So I came down here."

"Look here, Mary Faith, I'm not going to sit here and argue the fine points of the marriage service with you," said Kim, thumping his marriage vows with a wave of his hand. "I came here to talk about you to divorce me. I don't care about you the way I did, and I'm not going to be getting along fairly well without me. You have my no., and you can put it in your pipe and smoke it.

"You talk as if I were your enemy, and I'm not," Mary Faith interrupted him quietly. "I love you, Kim, and I'm not going to give up to that Janet-woman without a struggle, last year when you came to me and told me you couldn't live without her I gave you up—and three months later you married me. Now you want to give me up, and marry her, I suppose. But I think you ought to wait a while and find out how you really feel about her and about me. Time can settle a lot of things that nothing else on earth can settle, Kim."

His hot his temper then. "You talk like a fool," he said, furious with anger. "You talk to me as if I were a child that didn't know its own mind. Now see here,. I'm going through with this thing—"

"All right," Mary Faith broke in upon him once more. "You'll have to do it, Kim. I can't see you too much to give you up, and besides, I know you'll not be happy with that girl. You don't love her..... You just think that you do because she follows you around and it flatters you to have her do it. If you really loved her the way you think you do you would have married her way last fall when you were at free as air. Kim Farrell, I'm sorry. She got up and started out of the room, and he looked after her, wondering how creature yielding and gentle by nature, could be so stubborn and determined all at once. At the door she turned and faced him once more. "If you feel like this about just six months I'll listen to you, Kim," she said. "It's July now. You come to see me in January."

In February the baby would be a month old.

The months of the summer dragged by, heat shimmered above the pavements of Spring Street every day in a parched haze. The long days were all alike to Mary Faith except that one day she might have lettuce and rye bread sandwiches in her lunch and the next day might be devilled egg and while bread. One week she might be reading "Green Gatsby" said the next one she might have "Jeanne Goddard" open on her typewriter while she ate her lunch.

On the first Monday in September Labor Day—it rained as it always does on holidays, and Mary Farrell went down to Garrettsville on the bus to spend a week with Aunt Ella.

She came back to town on the following Monday with yards and yards of white cloth of different kinds—tarsiefze for the baby's night gowns, sheer muslin for the tiny dresses, and soft cotton for the underthings.

Warning Lights Blink Along Gale Swept Coast And Ships Seek Shelter

Tropical Disturbance Strikes With Fearful Force

90 MILE GALE

Ships Buffeted by Storm But Ride it Out Successfully

The white light between two red warning of heavy gales at sea burned brightly through the night along a gale-swept coast and ships seeking sanctuary in Bermuda harbor as 90-mile winds thundered across the high seas. Coastal communities suffered many thousands of dollars damage as wind of lesser velocity beat along the eastern shore line before passing out to sea.

The winds were born of tropical disturbance whose centre struck the northern portion of Abaco Island on the Bahamas group on Monday. Communications with Abaco have been cut since, and government officials feared there may have been loss of life on the island.

A government steamer, carrying doctors, nurses and medical supplies left Nassau last night for the island community.

Steamer Held up

From the high seas, the Canadian National steamship Prince Henry bound from Bermuda to Boston, wirelessed that she was hove to off Cape Hatteras in a 80-mile wind but that she was in no danger. The Prince Henry was due in Boston early today with 132 passengers, but there was little likelihood of her arriving before dark.

Another ship of the same line, The Lady Hawkins, made Boston from Bermuda late last night with a load of seasick passengers, whose discomfiture was laid to a 24-hour storm encountered off Nantucket. A sister ship of the Hawkins, the Lady Nelson, came into Boston harbor from Halifax, N.S., and left for Bermuda after a strong wind had scrapped her line and broken her gangway as she swung into her berth at Commonwealth Pier.

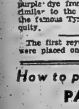
Fishermen lost thousands of dollars as scallops thrown up on the beaches and lobster cars were torn from their moorings to be broken in the surf.

Today the gale was subsiding along the Massachusetts coast. It was passing swiftly out to sea to the northeastward and shipping in Boston harbor, anchored off the quarantine station during the night, awaited the hailing down of storm signals before putting out.

DISTINCTLY BETTER TREND

Confidence Prevails in Companies Displaying in C. N. E.

Toronto, Sept. 8—Exhibitors at the Canadian National Exhibition are convinced there is a distinctly better trend in business. This year's sales are better than last year's in many instances. "Everybody is satisfied and some have expressed surprise that things have picked up," was the declaration of one.



G. H. Stanford, superintendent of manufactures, said nothing but good reports had come from space-buyers and that many were experiencing a remarkable pick-up in business. Many firms have already requested space for next year's exhibition.

The office of the federation of British Industries, reports entire satisfaction of its representatives with trade contacts made and already requests for more space for next year have been made.

CABBAGE SUSPECTED AS CAUSE OF GOITRE

Winnipeg, Sept. 8—Cabbage is under medical suspicion as a cause of goitre.

In his opening address to the Manitoba Medical Association in convention here, Dr. A. C. Abbott, Winnipeg, cited experiments carried out at Johns Hopkins University, by which showed winter cabbage caused goitre in rabbits in the short space of three weeks. He told a survey he has recently completed among Winnipeg school children in which his findings bore out this theory.

LACK OF UNIFORMITY CAUSE OF CRITICISM

Hamilton, Sept. 8—Uniformity of sentences was urged by William Morrison, K.C., for East Hamilton, in an address to members of the Ontario Police Magistrate's Association at their annual meeting yesterday.

Mr. Morrison said that the Magistrate should strive to approach uniformity in his sentences, as often there was too great a difference in the penalties imposed for crimes comparatively same type of offense.

The public was quick to observe such lack of uniformity, and resented to criticism of the bench when such instances occurred, he said.

FRANCE REFUSES EUROPE LOANS

Delegate Announces New Policy at Economic Conference

Stresa, Italy, Sept. 9—(AP)— A suggestion of a renewal of certain phases of French international policy was voiced today by Robert Coulondre, the French delegate to the Economic Conference in session here.

M. Coulondre served notice that his nation would lend further money to the central European nations, if the conference on reconstruction must come in some other way. The conference was called here to consider the rehabilitation of the Danubian countries.

France offered a detailed scheme for agrarian relief through the substitution of grain preferences by industrial countries and the creation of a special fund to assist in marketing importing nations in commodities proportionally would contribute with a mixed committee to administer funds and fix import quotas.

Italy proposed a scheme, termed temporary, rejecting preferences but also providing for organized marketing. In return was sought a general lowering of tariffs by the Agrarian states.

BOMBERS WRECK TWO PLAY HOUSES IN N. Y.

New Racket in New York When Bombers Wreck Entrances to Theatres

Believe Dispute on Between Two Unions of Picture Industry

MEN DRIVE AWAY

Families Thrown From Beds And Many Windows Broken

New York, Sept. 10—Terrific bomb explosions wrecked the entrances to two movie houses early today, tossed sleeping people from their beds and spread terror throughout two widely separated neighborhoods.

Hundreds of panes of glass crashed to sidewalks as a blast in front of Loew's 46th Street theatre in Brooklyn was followed quickly by another explosion in the entrance to Loew's Canal theatre on Manhattan's lower east side.

Detectives said there has been conflict between two unions of Motion Picture workers but no evidence was made public connecting this dispute with the bomb plots. Three men in a sedan were seen speeding away from the Brooklyn Theatre about the time of the blast.

The blast that shook the lower east side tossed the ticket booth into the street, twisted heavy doors open, and shattered glass in many stores and tenement houses. When Brooklyn explosion tore a hole in the theatre's tiled entrance, wrecked its glass vestibule and filled windows in buildings nearby. Huge crowds gathered and sleepy people stumbled out of their homes in fright.

The theatres were empty at the time and no one was injured. Edward Brown, night watchman in the Canal Street theatre was thrown down in fright of what he thought explosion, but escaped injury.

Slivers and fragments found in the neighborhood were turned over the explosive experts who began an attempt to reconstruct the bombs.

YIELDS MUCH HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

Estimated Crop This Year Placed at 446 Million Bushels

AVERAGE 17 BUS.

Year on Whole Was Suitable for Growing Crop

Winnipeg, Sept. 10 (CP) — The wheat crop of the three prairie provinces is forecasted at 446,000,000 bushels compared with 284,000,000 in 1931. Compared with last year yields are much higher, especially in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Alberta's crop also has yielded per acre. The yield per acre for the entire west is nearly 17 bushels, which is somewhat greater than the long-time average.

According to the bureau, the spring season was the most favorable for germination and early growth of any year since 1928. Plentiful and well-distributed rains continued throughout June, but early in July, drought and extreme heat became extremely troublesome over wide areas. The ravages of drought were increased considerably by damage from cutworms, grasshoppers and wire worms. Other pests also destructive particularly to late crops. Rust damage was generally less severe than usual.

Season Early

"The season is still early, declares the bulletin, and a week of good weather would mark the completion of cutting operations. Markettings are fully a week ahead of last year and have shown high gradings although the amounts involved are too small

Co-ordinate Work of Provincial Universities Aims of Conference

Maintain Same Efficiency But Cut Down Expenses

Edmonton, Sept. 10 (CP) —Steps to co-ordinate the work of the four Provincial Universities in the Western Canada with a view to maintaining the efficiency of higher education in the west and at the same time cutting down expenses are to be undertaken, it was announced by R. Brownlee, of Alberta, has invited the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to go into the question with him and each has readily accepted.

The step marks the first time in the history of Canada that any form of education has been taken out of the purely provincial sphere of government. Under the consultation the universities will be divested in the Provincial governments and Alberta each province has decided with it in its own way without regard to the action of the others. Mr. Brownlee's letter revealed the subject has already received some consideration. President J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan was not surprised and said he would place the Alberta proposal before the Senate of the University of Saskatchewan at once.

President J. A. MacLean of the University of Manitoba, said the question had been studied by a committee of the Canadian Universities.

Elderly Couple Ride Inside Coach Insist on Tipping Driver in Topper

Toronto, Sept. 10—All through the Exhibition days Harry Sifton has been plying a brisk trade driving his tour-in-hand—at 50 cents per passenger—and from the number of fares the Toronto Humane Society gets the money.

Yesterday afternoon when Mr. Sifton appeared and made ready for another trip soon, he was pleased to find an elderly and well-dressed lady and gentleman comfortably within the coach, instead of on top, where these passengers had often ridden in previous journeys. It isn't good form to ride inside a four-in-hand.

Glorious in grey top hat, frock coat and silky tie hand, Mr. Sifton approached the rear of the coach, opened the door and addressed the two inside passengers.

"Wouldn't you rather drive outside, sir," he asked. "The air is much better and you will have a splendid view to the city."

The old lady answered with acerbity.

"No thank you! We're quite comfortable here."

"Really" pursued the gentleman who, "I think you're making a mistake."

The old lady regarded him acidly.

"Will you please shut that door immediately?" she demanded.

And Mr. Sifton shut the door. When the hack arrived at the Exhibition grounds the outside passengers disembarked down the ladder.

There, the smiling Mr. Sifton opened the door for his inside passengers.

When they had foot on earth, each of them solemnly presented him with a quarter.

"For yourself" said the old lady.

Nine Million Feet Lumber Highly Valued is Burned At Crane Lumber Yard

Worst Fire in History of North Country Now Under Control

SOUGHT AID

Started Near Siding Where Locomotive Had Been Standing

Thessalon, Ont., Sept. 10 (CP)—More than 9,000,000 feet of lumber, valued at between $250,000 and $300,000 was destroyed today by fire which is still sweeping the yards of the Crane Lumber Company here.

After fighting for hours, numerous paid and volunteer rangers believed they had the fire under control shortly before noon today but the fire started about 2.30 this morning from an unknown cause and is still burning. The Thessalon fire department, members of the Ontario Forestry Department stationed here, and a pumper from the Sault Ste. Marie fire department, took part in the fight.

A new mill constructed by the Crane Company recently is now believed to be safe from the spread of the flames, and officials believe it will also be possible to prevent the fire from reaching the rest of the lumber.

Started in Pile

"The fire started in some of our best lumber" said F. R. Day, president of the Crane Company, "But it spread into the other piles and the loss will be pretty well minimized. It is impossible at this stage to make any accurate estimate of the value of the timber destroyed."

Most of the destroyed lumber was white pine. The fire, it is revealed, started near a pile of slabs on which a locomotive had been standing for some time last night.

Asked Aid

Shortly after the blaze was discovered, appeals for aid were sent to Blind River and Sault Ste. Marie while all available men in this district were called in. Six men, in charge of a pumper, left the latter place and rushed to Thessalon immediately. From Blind River 20 more members of the Ontario Forestry Department's forces.

More than 18,000,000 feet of lumber were in the yards when the fire broke out. In addition there is a recently constructed mill. This, however, was saved, as was the entire west wing of the yard in which most of the remaining lumber was stored. Millions of feet of lumber, piled in high piles, were set ablaze by the intense heat.

Thessalon is fifty miles southeast of Sault Ste. Marie, and is situated on the shore of Lake Huron, and is a lumbering centre. Hundreds of lumbermen are annually paid here and head into the bush to work. Several hundred more are employed in the yards, stacking, grading and handling the cut lumber.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK RECORD NEXT SATURDAY

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 10 — Miss Enid Wood, who recently defended the Harmsworth trophy this week from Kaye Don, announced today that she will attempt next Saturday, September 17, to break the world speedboat record of 119.81 miles per hour held by Don.

The attempt will be made early in the day over a straightaway course between here and Algonac.

Miss Wood's latest Harmsworth defender, Miss X, is now in Wood's boat works in Algonac being prepared for the speed run.

COVERED 40 MLS. IN 19 HRS. FORCED OUT

Deal, England, Sept. 10 (AP). —After bobbing about in the Channel all night in choppy seas chipped up by a rising wind, Charles Leppan, professional swimmer of Long Beach, Calif., abandoned an attempt to swim to France. He was taken out of the water today. In 19 hours he had covered 40 miles and was only 8 miles off Calais when he left.

The weather was good when he started out, but later the Channel became choppy and Jimmy got sick every time he swallowed a mouthful of water. This and the coldness of the water were down his endurance. He said he would try again.

CREW ORDERED TO LIFEBOATS

Coal Carrier Watford Grounded at Cape Percy

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 10 (CP)—The steamer Watford, inbound for Sydney from St. Lawrence ports, grounded bottom at Cape Percy, two miles off Gilas Bay at 10 o'clock, Atlantic standard time, this morning and sent out an S.O.S. Her crew had left the vessel in the lifeboats, according to the message, picked up here by the East Coast Radio Patrol Service.

Half an hour earlier the Watford had reported her position as "very dangerous." She was then taking water in No. 2 hold.

The Watford, a steamer of over 5,000 gross tons, is under charter as a coal carrier to the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation. She arrived at Quebec from Sydney on August 27.

A heavy northeaster was blowing off the coast and fog prevailed at Glace Bay.

Quebec, Sept. 10—The steamer Watford, which grounded off Cape Percy this morning cleared from Montreal and passed Quebec bound for Sydney at about 2 p.m. She is a coal carrier and was travelling light.

RAPIDS CLAIM LIFE OF GUELPH STUDENT

Montreal, Sept. 10—George Prevette, 25 years old, a student at the Guelph Ontario Agricultural College, was drowned here last night, when a canoe struck a rock in the rapids at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, in the St. Lawrence River, and upset. Two companions were saved in a 1 oic rescue by George Dalrymple, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalrymple. The two men saved are Edward Bailey and Ernest Hall, students at MacDonald College. All three were born in England.

Dalrymple, whose home is in Truro, N.C., saw the accident from the deck of the yacht, which was anchored at the foot of the rapids. He immediately swam to the spot, and succeeded in bringing Price and Bacon to shore. He returned for Prevette, but the latter had disappeared. His body has not been found last night.

ACTIVITY OF N. YORK BANK IS PROTESTED

Hint United States is Preparing For War With Japan

CONFERENCE HELD

Newspapers Allege Many Acts of States Not in Best Interest

Tokyo, Sept. 10.—The storm of protest which has been gathering the last two days over the photographing of a number of Japanese business and industrial buildings by the National City Bank of New York assumed a more serious aspect today and led to diplomatic action.

Delegations from several Japanese patriotic societies visited the branch of the Bank of Osaka and attempted to intimidate its Japanese employees. Osaka newspapers came out again with full pages devoted to protests against the photographing and printed a number of other reports to hint the United States was making other preparations for possible war.

Ambassador Joseph C. Grew immediately arranged for an interview with Japanese Foreign Minister, Count Uchida, and called on him at his official home this afternoon.

The newspaper charges, which included a long list of activities, such as the presence of the United States fleet in the Pacific, an alleged cruise of three aeroplane carriers through the Kurile Islands, and establishment of new air bases on the Aleutian Islands, also were broadcast over the semi-official radio station Osaka.

The charge, that the bank's photographs were to aid in the bombing of the United States War Department for use in mapping targets for air bombing raids was reiterated.

Manifestations

The newspaper Kokumin Shimbun, which led the criticism, said there were many "manifestations of serious intentions of America against Japan."

An American woman whose name has not given, paid a mysterious visit to the Kurile Islands recently, the newspaper said, and added, that many United States air bases "which cannot be considered purely commercial" are established in the Aleutian Islands. It admitted, however, that Japanese naval officials "add all these facts to their knowledge."

It also published prominently a report, that exercises were made today manning bombing planes to Hangchow, China, to assist the Chinese army in establishing an air base.

Officials of the branch bank already have the photograph, which were taken in accordance with instructions from the bank at New York, were to be used in photographic records of Japanese business and industrial developments in the far east.

MISSING SOCIAL SERVICE WORKER IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 10—Belief was growing among Chicagoans today that Mrs. Dorothy Robbins, missing prohibition and social service leader, is somewhere in Chicago following a statement by W. W. Haupt that he saw Robins here last Thursday. Haupt, Chicago hotel man, said he exchanged greetings with Robins. He was the second person reporting having seen Robins in Chicago since his disappearance.

Chicago friends of Mr. Robins felt that Haupt's report added considerable weight to a previous assertion made by Mrs. W. E. Gus Bryant of Evanston, who said she saw Robins in the Chicago loop on Thursday.

Calgary Council not to Support Men Who Refuse to Work in Wheat Fields

Calgary, Sept. 10 (CP) — With numerous clamoring for harvest help, the city fathers of Calgary have decided they will no longer support men who refuse to work on relief.

Farm work or jail is the alternative now confronting the jobless and those of them have taken the hint and moved out of the city in the cars of farmers who came to looking for men.

Almost the same situation prevails at Saskatoon and government employment agency officials there who had hard time rounding up men enough to meet the demand for harvest labor. There the municipal officials issued a warning "to those who spurned farm work early tonight it is expected the city will be practically empty of single men and will have been receiving unemployment relief.

Death of Bern Deepened by Possible Suicide of Woman

Suicide of Bern Further Deepened by Suicide Of Woman from Boat

POLITICAL UPHEAVAL IN MANITOBA IS EXPECTED

Winnipeg, Sept. 10 (CP)—Possibility of political repercussion resulting from the tangled affairs of the University of Manitoba from whose endowment funds nearly a million dollars is missing arose today. Significance was attached to the declaration of Thomas Flye, labor member of the city council that the Manitoba government and the governors of the university should be impeached for "flagrant dereliction of duty."

Speculation over the rôle to be played by Premier John Bracken if he would be taken up by the labor members of the legislature. If it should be, hot times can be expected, when the legislature meets, if not before?

Stated Bern Threatened His Wife Before Shooting Self

PROBABLE FAKE

Film Executive Cares For Other Woman For Years

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 10 — Newspaper assertion Paul Bern threatened his wife, Jean Harlow, of the films, the night before he killed himself, complicated the mystery of his suicide today as authorities searched for the "other woman"—dead or alive.

From various sources close to the actress, the newspaper said "it was declared Bern threatened to kill Miss Harlow and scrammed "get out and leave me alone. If you don't, I'll kill you."

The report was unverified from other sources and contradictory testimony given at the inquest.

Further Mystery

Further mystery came in the reported disappearance of Miss Dorothy Millette, once known as "Mrs. Paul Bern," from a Sacramento River stagnor, while en route from San Francisco to Sacramento Calif. the day after Bern's body was found.

Her luggage was left aboard. An empty bathing suit was found in her stateroom.

Efforts to locate credence to the theory she may have faked a suicide.

In a statement concerning the mystery woman Henry Bern of New Rochelle, N.Y., a brother, said Paul Bern was infatuated with Miss Millette many years ago in Canada, while they were with a theatrical company. They fell in love and went to New York.

Miss Millette Cared for Woman

The woman was stricken with a mental ailment and for years following, up to the time of his death. Bern cared for her, paying her approximately $350 a month.

The brother said he had found no record of her, but left by the film executive in which he mentioned a "spiritual marriage" to Miss Harlow, and said in his brief interview with Miss Harlow she had mentioned none.

FAIR MAY FINISH ON RIGHT SIDE

"A little early yet to know exactly just how much of a success, financially, the Belleville Fair was," declared officials of the Fair Board when questioned Friday. There was an optimistic note expressed, however, by the majority of those who were asked.

Since last year closed the following days have been busy ones for Mr. Ambrose Dafoe, Treasurer of the board, who has been making out lengthy itemized accounts and expenditures. These are expected to be available within a few days.

$50.00 DAMAGE IN SMALL BLAZE

Being a fireman, and taught to respond promptly to emergencies at any time of the day or night, Mr. Jack Thompson, member of the local fire department for the past several years, acted quickly when an emergency presented itself in the shape of a small fire in the corner of his bedroom, in the Fisher apartments, 99 Victoria Avenue, late Friday evening. He awoke in time to see the room full of smoke and the small blaze rapidly gaining headway. Reaching for the nearby phone he at once sent a call in to fellow members of the fire brigade, dressed, and then helped to extinguish the blaze, which had followed the partition up the side of the room. Damage estimated to have been caused by the fire, whose origin has not been learned, will be in the neighborhood of fifty dollars.

TRY TO KEEP WEEDS UNDER CONTROL

While residents of the city "Ashcoe" and helplessly weep because of a particularly virulent form of hay fever which is making itself noticeable about the district, heroic measures are being taken by the department of public works to keep under control the ragweed, mustard, mullin and other weeds which send off their tiny irritants to bother the sensitive nostrils of local sufferers.

"But it's almost a hopeless job," declares Mr. Jack Henderson, foreman of public works under whose jurisdiction the work falls. "This summer," continues Mr. Henderson, "we had to mow the weeds three and four times. Today (Saturday) we have another few men out going over them again."

However, on the authority of those who know, hay fever season is practically over. In a week or so it will be practically a thing of the past, declare those veterans of the district who annually order a new supply of "handies" in order to last out the prolonged achrymose weeks.

THRESHING RECORD BELIEVED MADE

Make hay while the sun shines is a sterling saying but fresh wheat when it should be threshed was heard on all Prince Edward county farms when Mr. Lake and Mr. Faulkner of that neighborhood disposed of 636 bushels of wheat in 3 hours and 15 minutes. And this for threshing this is some record. The sound of the threshers, country correspondents have been remarking of late, was heard throughout the land. But if the record of the Lake-Faulkner combination is attempted to be beaten by many threshing outfits this particular hum of agricultural supply of "handies" in order to last out the prolonged achrymose weeks.

TRANSPORT STALLS ON MURNEY HILL

A giant motor lorry, with trailer attached, belonging to the Motor ways Transport Company, came to grief on Murney Hill, West Bridge Street, late Friday evening, when the propeller shaft on the truck dropped, stalling both vehicles in the middle of the traffic lane on the hill. Up to a late hour Saturday morning driver and helper had been working frantically to replace the shaft with a new one which had been hurriedly secured. The truck and trailer were loaded with part of goods destined for western points.

WATER AT LOW LEVEL IN BAY

Waters of the local harbour, which had reached record levels this year, to sustain that height during most of the season, have now dropped to a new low levels, coinciding with the drop in the lakes, which has been reported. From the car bridge at the park almost to the Upper Bridge block, heavy weed growths have almost choked the river except for a small channel on the west side of the river, which is practically free. In the harbour many of the waterfront docks have been left high and dry and taking the weeds out at their shoreward ends, the slow boats to come and go unhindered.

LITTLE RABBIT CHASED BY DOG

A frightened domestic rabbit which escaped from a box in which a number of them had been placed for sale, excited through the Market Square, just after seven o'clock Saturday morning, with a local hound in full cry after it. The bunt raged through the lines of parked cars, which for nearly only one jump ahead of the irritated hound. Spectators who temporarily deserted their stands and baskets applauded both participants in the chase. The rabbit was finally run down under a truck and was captured by a number of people who returned it to its owner. Business of buying and selling was resumed.

TAIL BOARD OPENS PUMPKINS DROP

Bright, yellow pumpkins mixed with the wheels of passing motor cars, on McAnnany street, Saturday morning, was the tail end of a small truck which had been hauling them to market, some unfastened and deposited a load onto the road, much to the delight of numerous small boys, who had observed the incident. Several minutes or fast work on the part of the farmer and some helpers who had been hastily recruited elapsed before most of the load had been salvaged. Several of them were returned in the shape of cow feed.

ALLEY CAT IS HIT BY CAR

A large black cat lost most of its nine lives on Dundas' street late Saturday morning when the wheels of a larger sedan almost ended its short career. The bewildered feline which tried to cross the road made a sudden dart in front of the sedan, barely missing a car ahead, and managed to get struck with the front wheels of the latter car which apparently passed over the cat's body. The creature dragged itself down a nearby yard with a series of pitiful caterwauls, badly in need of spotty repair.

EMPLOYMENT PLAN WORKING

Departments Soon to Submit Estimates of Projects

Washington, Sept. 10—(CP)—President Hoover acted Friday to speed up the $2,000,000,000 federal construction program with the hope of bringing employment to thousands this winter.

He called for the department heads to submit estimates of building projects in their departments. Based on treasury department estimates, the expenditure of $200,000,000 should provide work for about 500,000

Mr. Hoover said Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills had advised him money now was available for the construction program.

It is the hope of the administration that the placing by way of $500,000 men will channel the benefits down to others because of increased purchasing power. It is felt such a dent in the ranks of the unemployed might serve to start a return to better times by sending a stream of money down through the intricate social fabric.

The President pointed out in a statement issued that conditions since the depression and up to next July $2,500,000,000 will have been spent on construction That he said, is double the normal rate.

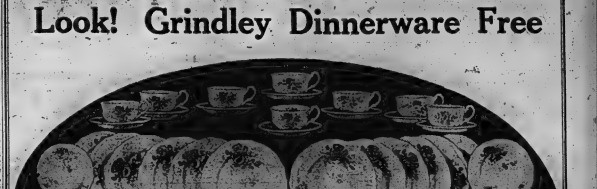
MAN DRIVING STOLEN CAR

Joseph Limelin, Montreal to be Taken East For Trial



After being arrested last Saturday night on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of liquor, Joseph Limelin of Montreal was held by the local police for further investigation.

When arrested by Constable Taylor, Limelin was driving a Chevrolet coach bearing local markers or licence plates. Previously the car was seen in Belleville bearing one Quebec licence plate. The curiosity of the police was aroused and they investigated the case, finding that Limelin also had two driver's permits on his person. After informing the Montreal police they found that the car in possession of Limelin had been stolen from Montreal some time ago.

Limelin will face the charge of driving a car while under the influence of liquor, in the local police court after which he will be taken to Montreal to face a charge of car theft.

ALCOHOL NO AID TO DIGESTION

Research Proves it a Narcotic When Absorbed by The Blood

Ithaca, N.Y., Sept. 10 — The "traditional assumption" that alcohol stimulates digestion was challenged by some psychic investigators reported to American psychological Association today.

Sudden stimulation of digestion followed quickly by prolonged interference was found by Dr. A. L. Winsor of Cornell University, when he measured the flow of saliva after drinking. Today's report is his final statement of a preliminary finding given to the American Association for the Advancement of Science a few months ago.

It would appear from our results," he said, "that the traditional assumption that alcohol stimulates digestion should be re-examined. Apparently the stimulating effect would characterize the influence of alcohol in the stomach, but once it is absorbed into the blood, its action would retard digestion.

"In general, our results support the findings of other physiologists and physicologists who have shown that alcohol retards and inhibits, rather than stimulates behaviour. It should on longer be listed as a stimulant, but preferably as a narcotic or a depresent."

COOLIDGE OUT FOR HOOVER

Republicans Will Try to Win East And Democrats West

(By Byron Price, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, D.C., Sept. 8—Battle lines for the presidential campaign still are far from complete, but the presence of Coolidge in the ranks of their foes is definitely toward the east, while the Democrats incline a little more decisively toward the west.

Neither side has abandoned hope or endeavor in either east or west, but the present figures of the opposite, coincidental alone, show three interesting developments:

Former President Coolidge, ra lying support for the Republican ticket, speaking at Boston, in the heart of the New England east.

The Democratic trouble in New York City have intensified Republican effort to capture the Empire State.

Long Western Tour

Governor Roosevelt's plans for his first long speaking trip, beginning Monday, forecast a campaign swing unequalled by any Democratic nominee since William Jennings Bryan.

For the moment, the most talked-of of the developments probably is the Coolidge appeal, though it was by no means a surprise. In a copyrighted article in a periodical, Mr. Coolidge has gone the whole way of endorsing Mr. Hoover's acts collectively and in detail, of praising Vice-President Curtis and of upholding the Republican prohibition plank.

Mr. Coolidge's pronouncement — as much hoped for by Hoover leaders as would the former president's traditional popularity—is reckoned by the political wise as a strong trump to be played since the controversion. There seems good reason, for believing that Al. Smith will support the production of a Democratic trump by a statement more directly defining his support of his party ticket. Whatever his intentions, however, remain inscrutable locked in the silent back of New York Democratic politics stirred up by the Roosevelt-Walker incident.

MADOC DELIGHTED AT CHAUTAUQUA

Madoc—The ever-popular Canadian Chautauqua is holding out at the Empire Theatre in Madoc this week. It is hoped that the sale of season's tickets and the growing crowds will make it possible to meet the financial guarantee of Madoc in enterprising local committee.

The programme opened on Tuesday, evening with the play "Stew Brooms" which took well with a very responsive audience.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening the Vocalion Singers gave a wonderful programme of vocal and instrumental music which delighted all music lovers and gave an excellent variety in male, soprano and guitar music. Augustine presents a programme of singular charm and the vocal solos presented won much well-deserved applause.

Mr. A. Franklin Caverly, the "Lightning Artist" gave a splendid and very entertaining exhibition of colorful pictures and caricatures.

The evening performances were also given by the Venetian Strollers with an entirely different program and Mr. Caverly was also invited to repeat and demonstrate his unique ability.

CELTIC BARDS HOLD MEETING

(By The Canadian Press)

TRURO, Sept. 10—Truro, country town of Cornwall, will be the meeting place of men of Celtic descent and students of Celtic history and legend from September 6 to 10. At this Celtic Congress Cornishmen greet and talk with Bretons from Brittany and Welshmen from Wales. Old songs are sung at a Celtic concert.

Appropriately, the Gorsedd or Assembly of the Bards will be held during the meeting of the Congress on September 9. This is a festival of poetry and music similar to the Eisteddfod of Wales. The "Merry Maidens," a famous circle of stones in Barras Parish near Pendeen, has been chosen as the gathering place of the bards. Members of the Celtic Congress will attend.

Around the "Dawns-Meen"; or the Stanza Stones, as the "Merry Maidens" are called in the ancient Cornish language, there will be more to be told. Onlookers will say that these were maidens who danced on the Sabbath and were turned to stone, with their attendant pipers represented by two adjacent menhir on Long-stone. Antiquarians will reply that the story is a Christian fable imposed upon a pre-historic monument, for the stone circle dates back far beyond the era when dancing on Sunday became a crime and is more probably associated with early pagan rites and ceremonies.

BEER, WINE, PROPERTY OF THE GUESTS

Hotel Would Only Keep Stuff to be Used at Convenience

VARIED COMMENTS

Announcement is Greeted With Different View Points

Toronto, Sept. 10 (CP)— Premier George S. Henry last night declared he is pleased with the announcement that Ontario hotel men ask that liquor regulations be changed so that guests may drink beer and wine in hotel dining rooms as they now do in hotel bedrooms.

The Premier, explaining reforms he made to a delegation of hotel men yesterday. Refusing a request for drinking rooms, Mr. Henry said there was some room for argument in the matter of guests drinking beer and wine with meals. This was interpreted to mean the government had some such scheme under consideration when Premier Henry said last night such was not the case.

Hotel to Keep Supplies

"If such a change was made in the Liquor Act," Mr. Henry said, would guests be allowed to have beer and wine for their meals in the hotel or would they be compelled to bring their supplies into the dining room?

"I see no objection to the hotel keeping supplies for the guests' meals, and wine in hotel dining rooms was received with varying comments today.

At Hamilton, Argus Martin, M.L.A., for the Liquor Control declared: "I am in favor of it. I don't know what the plans are but if it is beer by the glass I am strongly in support of the policy."

On the other hand, Rev. Dr. J. E. Hughson, of First United Church opposed the sale of beer and wine in hotels under any conditions. "It would be a backward fatal step for Ontario," he said, "it means the return to the old bar."

Mixed Views in London

Mixed views appeared in London, Ontario, on announcement of Premier Henry's statement. To the Moderation League, which opposed, Mr. Moses S. Percival, organizer for the Ontario Temperance Federation, said: "It is a natural consequence of the changing tide of public opinion."

Mrs. L. McCallister, speaking as an officer of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said: "We absolutely opposed to any such change. We don't think that any Premier Henry for giving encouragement to the beer and wine business."

Hotelkeepers everywhere expressed gratification at the reports of the Premier's statement.

INQUESTS TO BE CUT DOWN

Should Only be Held When Testimony is Incomplete

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 10.—Ontario magistrates today held the assurance that the Ontario Attorney-General's office would curtail them. Hon W. H. Price, Attorney-General for the Province, gave this assurance in urging upon the magistrates the importance of their office.

Col. Price, in his address to the Ontario magistrate's annual convention, suggested the number of coroners' inquests held might be reduced. When all evidence was available, he said, a charge could be laid and the preliminary hearing proceeded with leaving inquest to be held only when there was doubt or incomplete testimony.

Regarding the growing tendency to use police courts as collective agencies, Col. Price requested the magistrates to discourage the practice. Such cases belong to the civic courts.

Nassau, Bahamas, Sept. 10 — (AP)—A relief expedition was on its way to Abaco Island of the Bahamas group when it was learned yesterday 13 persons were killed and many injured in a hurricane that laid waste last August 15.

The expedition, headed by Dr. H. M. Quarrenbush and including several Abaco members of the Bahama legislature, has started for the island.

The discovery of the disastrous effect of the storm was made by government officials who visited the island by an aeroplane. There was great need for food, water and supplies, they said.

Leicester has 6,000 enthusiastic players, who have 170 public and 200 private courts on which to play. Portsmouth and Southsea provide literally for their players—6,000 a week during the season. Five more courts are to be laid out. Cardiff's charges are as low as four cents per person. Torquay charges 40 cents an hour for doubles and 30 cents for singles. LONDON MAY HAVE MOVIE UNIVERSITY

London, Sept. 10—London will have a movie university if plans under consideration go through. The proposed university would deal with all aspects of knowledge capable of pictorial treatment, such as science, history travel, hygiene and even literature.

The design for the university building has been drawn by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, who designed the new Liverpool Cathedral. Sir Oswald Stoll and Rev. Sir James Marchant are the main sponsors and have an option of some crown lands near Oxford Street.

ATHENIAN LEISURE AND OURS

Dr. Henson, Bishop of Durham, refers to Lord Bryce's description of the difference between Athenian voters and those of the present day. Bryce said that the Athenians, who ate loitering all day to the tragedies of Euripides, were better fitted for civic functions than most of the voters in modern democracies. Dr. Henson thinks that talking and listening to speeches, after the Athenian fashion, was a better training for the mind than reading newspapers; but he is speaking of a particular kind of cheap newspaper, which the Canadian editor will say is not like his at all. He says that the ample leisure of the free Athenian rested upon the foundation of slave labour, and he adds, "I have in mind a future when the free European also will have amplitude of leisure, not now for a few but for many days as an impersonal and tireless machine."

The whole level of public life will be raised when it reflects, not the greatness and vacuity of undirected mass-energy labour and brutalized by leisure, but the habit of a genuinely educated population. Politics will cease to be a sordid strife of sectional interests and individual ambitions, and will take rank as the serious concern of informed and responsible citizens. The deadening uniformity of democratic society will give place to an abounding wealth of individual varieties. Boredom and discontent, which it breeds will vanish from lives which are relieved and enriched by wholesome hobbies.

He looks to education for the development of human faculties required in the quoted paragraph. Boys and girls leaving school at 18 instead of 14 will pass into the world with natural faculties so disciplined and developed as will make society a cultured habit. "The accumulated treasure of human achievement, which we sum up in the word 'culture,' will cease to be the privilege of a leisured minority carried on the shoulders of the excluded multitude, and will become the common heritage of all intelligent citizens."

Some hopes are too good to be true. But if it were not that our perceptions are dulled by custom, we might say that the present situation is too bad to be true. With intelligent planning, there would be the absurdity of child labor accompanied by the enforced idleness of millions of men. Into that position society has drifted because economic and social science has not kept pace with the science that gives us labor-saving machines and because tradition is far more powerful in the human mind than in the latter. The motor cars and old machinery are scrapped without hesitation by men who in other matters cherish and cling to prejudices that are centuries old, whose mentality is that of the believers in witchcraft and the Popish plot invented by Titus Oates. Even education of a sort, resembling varnish, was not proof against the epidemic. But education will help — if it is kept free from the narrow-minded meddlers and increases intellectual vigor.—London Advertiser.

THE VANISHING BLONDE

Blondes who can not acquire that seashore coat of tan — blue-eyed, fair-skinned women who burn and peel under the strongest sun — need not worry about their daughters' ability to get that life-guard complexion.

For the women of the future will be a brunette, taller and plumper, with dark, firm skin and no sunburn worries, says Dr. Charles F. Pabst, of Brooklyn, chief dermatologist at Greenpoint Hospital. Says the New York Journal:

"Outdoor life and indulgence in athletics, together with the intermingling of the dark-skinned races of this country, will be responsible for this change in beauty standards. He gives you thoughts no other preacher ever suggested —you never read them in a book, either.

District of Columbia: News item from the eminent Washington News:

Traffic lights will be installed along K street immediately, if the housewives along that thoroughfare have any influence with Traffic Director Howland. He is being importuned daily to speed the work. It seems that the interval of three green lights and three red ones with their intermediate ambers, is exactly the time for cogking soft-boiled eggs. Therefore, the matrons are piqued at the delay in providing them with the accurate and sory enjoyed by housewives on other light-controlled highways.

WHEN GOD IS NEAR
By Aline Michaelis

Sometimes the rapture and the mystery
Upon my heart descend,
Peace laps me 'round, peace deeper than the sea,
And sorrow has an end.

Sometimes it is as though a hand were laid
In tenderness on mine,
As though a whisper said: "Be not afraid,"
A still voice, and divine.

It is a fleeting thing, an instant's time,
And yet for many days
The lingering echo of that tone sublime
Along my pathway strays.

My cares are put aside, my doubts are stilled,
My faith grows sure and clear
And all my being is with rapture filled
For God is very near.

THIS IS THE SEASON of the year when the air is filled with delightful aroma, when the housewives are putting up pickles, peaches and tomatoes, and the last season of ketchup—it would be sacrilege to call it a smell because it is not a smell, that word suggests something unpleasant, and there is none in the world worthy of applying to ketchup in the making, suggesting many pleasant a nd satisfying meals later on, good honest, satisfactory, roast beef, or the round steak or porterhouse, or even a T-bone steak smothered in ketchup. Soon the frost will be on the pumpkin and there will be sharper and home-made ketchup will be at its best, for, like good wine, ketchup improves with age.

ROOM IS NOW IN NORWAY

Smoking Room of Empress of Britain is in Hotel

MONTREAL—"Skail!" has taken the place of "Skoal" in the smoking room of the old transatlantic liner Montreal, formerly the Empress of Britain, in new surroundings. The timbered oak smoking room of the old liner which made 190 round trips across the Atlantic between Englis and Canadian ports, no longer roams the seas but has found a sanctuary ashore.

If you ever cross the threshold of the Sola Strand Hotel, in Stavanger, Norway, you'll think you're in again.

This was the story told by Rupert Cross when he returned to Canada from a cruise. "Many of my Atlantic passages," he said, "were on the first Empress of Britain, which was later renamed the Montroyal. It was almost like losing a home when the famous old ship was broken up two years ago. But I found again my amusement when I entered the Sola Strand Hotel near Stavanger, Norway, a few weeks ago and found myself again in the timbered oak smoking room of the Montroyal."

Cooping American millionaires who have transgulfated famous old English rooms to grace a cell of their America, the Norwegian hotelman bought both smoking room and gymnasium from the Montreal. They were sold by the Canadian Pacific Steamships, her owners. The gymnasium he made one more trip, this time not as far as Norway, for trophies, pictures, but in the holds of a tramp.

THROWN INTO AIR BY CAR, CARRYING PLACE MAN HURT

Carrying Place—Misses Maisie and Daisy Dafoe have left the community to reside in Trenton where they will attend Trenton Collegiate Institute. Fgon the last year's entrance class of the local school. Misses Dorothy Bell and Jim Green are also attending.

A considerable number from hbis attended Belleville Fair during its recent record-breaking week's session. All report a bigger and better show and are more than pleased with its growth.

Mrs. W. G. LaTour returned from Toronto last week after a pleasant stay at the home of relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gay, of Detroit, also returned with her, driving on as far as Kingston before resuming journey.

School is open again. Coming back last Thursday to the school months holiday, pupils and teachers found a very different atmosphere within doors as well as without. Also the entire interior was redecorated. Misses Dafoe, Bell and Green have contributed toward an appreciance of which the pupils have manifestly proud. The work of redecorating was done by Mr. Harold Herrington.

Mr. Charlie Westfall is still in a very poor state of health, being very weak and run down. He contemplates a possible visit to Toronto or Toronto soon unless sings of recovery are noted.

Escaping serious injury by what seems a miracle when a large sedan struck him and threw him into the air, Mr. Frank Harris sustained only bumps and bruises as he came up at the foot of the cemetery hill last Sunday. As he and a number of others stood talking near the side of the road, a car bearing Pat American license plate was noticed coming toward the group. Frank stepped back to look at the car and close but apparently did not retreat far enough, for he was struck squarely. The occupants of the car were greatly concerned over the accident, but after a few experimental wigglings, he pronounced everything in fact. No bones were broken and in the matter.

Although the schools of Murray township received schedules and time lists announcing that the new school fair would be held at Wooler on Thursday, it was decided by the Wooler Agricultural Fair, a change of arrangements has been made, and the fair will be held next Friday of the current week. The school fair will be held in connection with the Wooler Fair, and an interesting prize program is announced has been prepared. The local school children expect to attend, travelling by a specially arranged conveyance.

Many inquiries have been made regarding the distance covered by Miss Ethel Bell in her long water swim at the C.N.E. two weeks ago. Miss Hodge, a daughter of Mrs. Hodge, bridge tender at the Smithfield bridge has been interested in long distance swimming for several years, having competed in Trenton and different communities. She stated at last, Miss Hodge with her father left to act as judges and timekeepers, made the journey to the Exhibition to enter the 10 mile event for women. Some mention of the accidental was made on the women's page of the Toronto Star, issue of August 27. However, after going better than seven miles of the course, she was taken with attack of cramps, which had rendered her unable to swim further. Efforts to resquered her resolution, and Miss Hodge may still find a place for herself in the money.

Mr. A. A. Martin of Brighton, Inspector of Public Schools, was a visitor at the local school on Monday morning for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bungley of Cornwall, the latter a former Miss Mrs. R. Bingley are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell for a short time, arrived Sunday for a short visit.

Miss Edith Carmitle, who for the past two years has lived with her grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Wannamaker, and has attended Trenton High School, returned to reside at Presqu'ile Point with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Carmitle. Mr. Carmitle is light-keeper at the point and since it is necessary for him to remain at the light until the close of navigation each year, it was impossible for Edith to remain with her parents. Recently, however, a boy has come to live service to take the children of the family to Brighton public school each day.

A great deal of curiosity was evidenced during the partial eclipse of the sun last Wednesday, if the plentitude of smoked glass is any indication. Many residents stood in their doorways with the darkened glass to gloom steal over the fields and buildings.

The Women's Association of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Hutchinson last Wednesday for their regular meeting.

Miss Marjorie Hutchinson has accepted a position in Belleville and left to take up duties a few days ago.

Misses Margaret and Lucille Weldon are spending a month with their aunt and grandmother in Cornwall, returned home last Wednesday to the Mountain View.

Victoria succeeded at last in getting the members of the band harnessed so long when they took the Redpenvillle team into camp at the Belleville Fair last week and captured the trophy. Next season will probably be productive of even keener competition.

PRAYING MANTIS EXCITES CROWD OF NEW YORKERS

New York —(By The Canadian Press)— An insect with an overall length of about four inches came to a perfect landing on the southwest corner of the Grand Central Chambers streets here and was immediately surrounded by a crowd of awed but admiring New Yorkers.

It was identified by a zoo mantis, according to a visitor from Massachusetts, as a praying mantis. "They call it that," he said, "because of the peculiar attitude it assumes sometimes, with its two front legs in an attitude of supplication."

The flying visitor did just that, then dropped to the sidewalk, raising up its front legs—or hands—in a prayerful appeal to the ring of spectators. Then it folded its wings and then made a perfect take-off in the direction of Wall Street and the top of Manhattan.

NEW YORK PREPARES FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING TRADE

New York—(By The Canadian Press)—Christmas shopping season is a long way off, but a lot of things have been done in this city as it ever since the last Christmas trade was counted.

The National Art Ware show now being held here has attracted buyers from the nation's gift shops who are selecting the class of specialty ware which they think the people will buy for Christmas presents this year.

And this year, apparently, the vogue is going to be for articles made from unfamiliar materials. Manufacturers in search of novelties have developed many new materials that fit just as if they were made for them, and beers and other brie-a-brac has just been made.

Picture frames, vases, coasters and the like are made of glitter-ing crystalline substances, used extensively to plate copper vessels and table ware. And the finish is dazzling in sheen—cellulose materials make lovely ornaments as dollies and table covers which can be used indefinitely and cleaned readily, while many lovely vases are being given a metal finish, reversing the now commonplace fashion of having metal articles, notably furniture, that look like wood.

That's quite all rite, I dont expect to sell a policy to every prospect, only in a very manner of cases, Mr. Wick said. I'm so intirsted in insurants that I just love to talk about it. How old are you, Mr. Poo? he said.

My age? Why, just passed 40, or to be more p=cise, I'll soon be 42, in fact I have had my last birthday, how time flies, people gennelly take me for about 30 or 32 I would say. Mr. Wick raid Ye, indeed, at the very most, but I am surprised to be intirsted in actual herth records rather than facial indications, and if you're really 42 instead of 30 I'm sure you having a medical examination anyway, because Mr. Spiley he said mind for you is a very special low rate arrangement for men in real perfect risks, and not one man in a hundred at the age of 42 could pass the examination with a perfect mark I really wouldent bother to send any application in, Mr. Wick said.

O, as far as that goes, I wouldn't be afraid of the examining, and the contrary, poo said, in fact, just to prove it to you right now I'm consuiting to let the docter examine me right now, I'm obligate me in any way, he said, and I'll pay for it. Not in the slightest, but I fear you are misunderstanding me, ever, I'll be very pleased to accept your offer, and will come to your house for examination, Ar- you home every day after lunch.

Practically, poo said, and Mr. Wick said, Good, he'll drop in tomorrow evening, about 8 o'clock, he said.

And he quick went, and poo sat down again with a doubtful expression on his face, and the more she was doing the crossword puzzle in the paper, herself.

"CROWD ROARS" LOVERS IN "BIG CITY BLUES"

Joan Blondell And Eric Linden in Vivid Drama

The teaming of Joan Blondell and Eric Linden in "Big City Blues," which is opening today at the Belle Theatre, is a combination that has the acclaim with which these two players have been received in the second when they appeared together in the first film, "The Crowd Roars" with James Cagney.

Their performances attention was bestowed by critics all over the country on Eric Linden, as the amusing, wise-cracking kid brother, and Joan Blondell, as the boy's sister, Lucy Fletcher, who immediately made preparations to "take" Eddie again.

"Big City Blues," is the first offered both Blondell and Linden even though they have written other than the previous picture had given them the opportunity. The story of "Big City Blues" is the story of a wayward adventuring city boy and girl from the country, and together in the maelstrom of New York.

Through the stormy, terrifying experiences of the Chicago gangster's moll and the Ohio farm boy, everything that happens to them is motivated by the interest of Bud and Vida in each other.

A cast of experienced Broadway players surrounds Miss Blondell, the two juveniles, Eric Linden and Walter Catlett, Lyle Talbot, Inez Courtney, Guy Kibbee, Johnna Howland, Ned Sparks, Humphrey Bogart, Frankie Darro, Thelma Jackson, Sibella Terry, Grace Mitchell and Clarence Muse.

Starting on Monday, "Darling Darling" Tim McCoy's new picture for Columbia, a romantic feature offering on the same program.

Playing a cowboy who loves to fight, he never gets over hating the fellow who doesn't fight fair. McCoy has a riding, fighting role that is thrillingly.

A clever Mickey Mouse Cartoon and the popular Fox News will also be presented on the same program.

ARTICLE NO. 36

Just the other day, a merchant told me that he was saving money by not advertising and was going to continue to do so. Going over his store, I noticed those things and that long his store. This merchant is like the farmer who says he is saving money by not planting a crop. If he does not plant it and cultivate and reap the harvest he will not come into the territory and sell his old customers.

This attitude on the part of many merchants is having a drastic effect on their business. It may be absolutely true that in not spending money you are saving it, but it is not, during those times and will bring more business into your store you are losing a vastly greater amount.

Merchants who are wide awake in their efforts of advertising and merchandising are getting a great deal of the present business today, and only those merchants who are willing to keep up with the trend of buying are the ones who have hope to hold their own and increase their scope.

Everything you do or don't do advertises your store either in a favorable light or in a detrimental way. If you neglect to look for opportunities to increase your business you actually turn business away from your store by your attitude.

An office is not efficient that uses only the methods of even 15 years ago — a plant is inefficient if it operates in all over 20 years old — a farm using only the old methods is not producing the best results — nor is a store in which is not, during those times and will bring more business into your store you are losing a vastly greater amount.

EGGLETON—CUMMINGS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Cummings, Trent Road, was the scene of an interesting wedding at noon, clock today when their daughter, Myrtle Geraldine, became the bride of Mr. Wilbert Aston Eggleton, son of Mrs. W.H. Salsbury and the late Wilbert C. Eggleton, Rev. Harold E. Neal officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a smart frock of ruby Jerkin crepe, trimmed with tourmaline white fur and matching accessories. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and baby's breath.

Miss Bessie Bleecker, Halloway, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a pretty frock of green georgette, with mad hat and dahsa. Her bouquet was of Heart of France asters.

Mr. Aubrey Eggleton, brother of the groom, was best man, and the bridal attendants included two tiny flower girls, Misses Evelyn and Marjorie Bleecker, who were dainty in shell pink.

The ceremony was performed beneath a lovely arch of autumn flowers and the bridal couple took their places before Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mrs. Gordon Walker of Lonsdale. During the signing of the register Miss Beatrice Moynes sang most effectively, "I Love You Truly".

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. Autumn blossoms, in profusion, were used to decorate the home and the bride's table was artistic with pink and white flowers and candles. Later Mr. and Mrs. Eggleton left on a honeymoon trip to Georgian Bay, the bride travelling in a pretty suit of sand and brown with matching accessories. Lengthened the field of afternoon dresses in stunning models, fur trimmed, Swagger coats are excellent for between season. Leg o'mutton sleeves and dainty trimmings touch up afternoon dresses and evening gowns are more regal than ever.

The Beauty Box

Pass your fingers over your eye lamberquin. It should rightly follow along the crest of the bone that edges the eye socket. Nature designed eyebrows not alone for the purpose of decoration but to protect the eyes from beads of perspiration that roll down the forehead and from atmospheric dust, which eyebrows catch to a considerable degree.

No sensible person can register an objection to eyebrow weeding. Eyebrows shouldn't cry to hold hands, bridge over or unite. They must be given articles of separation. Wild hairs are disfiguring, those that wander outside the corral; plucked they must be. And a pretty arch does add to the appearance of the forehead. Why indulge in cubistic specs?

If some of these extremities will gaze upon their facial reflections in a magnifying mirror they will see plainly enough that where any considerable amount of hirsute growth has been demolished, the skin is paler than the surrounding cuticle. Also, there are times when persistent new hairs are popping out in the devastated territory. Too short for the tweezers to grasp they have the appearance of a disfiguring shadow.

The young and beautiful can get away with almost any beauty crime —their eyebrows sins are pardonable; but when the faded femme tortures and prunes her brows she only calls attention to eye tissues that have taken on a crepelike surface or to forehead furrows. When middle age arrives a woman should understand that by trying to make herself look too young she is likely to overshoot the mark, make herself look older.

The eccentric eyebrow will pass. All fads do. Something else in the way of a frenzy will come along to pain the attention of the security. Even now the normal line is coming into its own again. You see it where gather women of distinction, women who carry the banners in the fashion parade, those who know how to make the most of beautiful eyes.

Beatrice Fairfax Letters

THEY DON'T LIKE THE LOCAL PRODUCT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are three girls living in a small town, where, as in all small villages, everyone knows everyone else's business. We like three boys from a different town, and people talk and wonder why our folks will not let us go with them. The boys are thoroughly respectable and creditable, as we are ourselves. We would like your advice, as you have helped many in need.

THREE MAIDENS.

Your preference for three boys from an adjoining town rather than the home product, seems innocent enough to me as you've stated it in your letter. To have three travelers from another township is certainly a tribute to your charms and I don't wonder the local boys get jealous and talk begins. You'll just have to win your folks over to these "foreign conquests."

NOW HE HAS SWITCHED TO SATURDAYS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm greatly puzzled over something. For over a year now I have been going "steady" with a young man. We always saw each other two or three times a week, and sometimes oftener, and we never missed spending every Sunday together, but now he insists on seeing me only on Saturday evenings. As I care for him very much, do you think this is his method of drifting away from me? Please be frank.

M. K. M.

When a young man drops his calling rain from three to one and then and the night, it begins to look as if something has interfered. But these days of economy, stress and strain, when everyone is worried over the ever more slippery dollar, and this young man, together with many another, may feel he has no right to do what in plain language is called "wasting a girl's time." I believe it might be well to try and find out what it all means. This you can do if you're skillful in directing your conversation to the point of finding out where he spends his Sundays. You might tell him what you did last Sunday and ask him if he, too, had a good time. You'll have to be as adroit as an acrobat on a trapeze to do this successfully, but it can be done. Good luck to you.

AFRAID HE WON'T SEE HER AGAIN

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was graduated in June from high school and know now that I'm in love with a girl who was in my class. At first I thought it was just infatuation, but now that school is over I can hardly stand the loneliness of not seeing her. I never invited her anywhere when we went to the old High; I don't even know if she likes me, and I've very little money to spend. I attend to my aunt's garden and orchard for which she pays me $6.00 a week, and I pay $4.00 a week to my mother for board. Not a very cheerful carful is it?

MATT Mcd.

You're mistaken, Matt. It is a cheerful carful—very indeed. Any boy who has just been graduated from high school, has even a small job, lives home and is in love, has plenty to be thankful for. Don't wait till you're an old gentleman before you realize how splendid it is. If you haven't saved a couple of dollars just say to Mamma you'd like to borrow them till pay day. Ask the girl to the movies, and suggest you see each other sometimes. There's nothing for keeping a young man steady like knowing and respecting a nice girl, particularly the one he went to school with. And go to the nearest public library and read up about gardens and orchards. Your job-a-week job may develop into something profitable.

Beauty.....

Complexion Packs Serve Beauty's Cause

For the girl who would do her complexion coddling with the least possible effort, a pack of cream, a face pack is her special beauty dish. There has been a lot of packing going on this summer in the beauty-toriums where ladies congregate and the beauty culture specialists having conceived the idea that massage is not stimulating when the skin has been subjected to strong sunlight, that the pack accomplishes the summer-worn complexion, sends it into a beauty trance.

A beauty and icebox offer materials for complexion masks. The cost is practically nothing, effort almost nil. Whatever mixture is used, it should be the consistency of whipped cream, thin enough to spread, thick enough to hang on. The squeeze with the pack should be a secret rite, since the newspaper looks for something that has been dug up and brought to life again by the ladies, and the material is smeared over with a beauty paste.

Brown faces or those that have been sunburned and pinkish are the commonest complaint at this season.

For this condition is offered a pack consisting of thick cold cream and oatmeal. Apply evenly with a stiff brush, and when drying back the hair with a small towel. Spread over the neck down to the collar bones.

The longer the pack remains on the skin the better, but when it dries and begins to flake there's no such thing as enduring it. Then comes the laving with tepid water, a gentle drying, a brisk tapping of the epidermis with cold cream.

x x x

An astringent treatment is the white of egg lay-on. It is used for tissues that have sagged, for enlarged pores, for an occasional oily condition. The egg white is given a few flips with a fork, beaten just enough to make it convenient to handle. There should be a facial tissue ready for each pack is applied, but there's no need of telling that fast to the beauty class.

Flesh draws tight as the egg white dries. Once a week is often enough for this treatment. When the pack is removed with tepid water, the skin dried, over the surface with a bit of cotton that has been dipped in witch hazel, then get busy with the ice cube.

Witch hazelenda there is kaolin which you buy at the drug store. It is Fuller's earth, that powdered clay agent with which we are familiar. It has been sterilized. Mix with water, spread on, rinse in thirty minutes, massage with a cream.

Also recommended for clearing pores of blemishes and dark spots are applications of yeast, an effective cleansing medium. A cake of yeast is dissolved in a little cool but sufficient amount of hot water. It is to be allowed to stand, then patted in a small quantity at a time. Use generously over the neck down the shoulderblends, have their favorite pick-me places.

While the yeast remains on, place over the face and around the neck towels that have been wrung out of water fairly hot. Follow with cold compresses. Wait half an hour after any face pack before putting on war paint.

Nice diversions for the evening when there are no notations on the social calendar.

ROBERTSON CUP TO THE KNIGHTS

Defeat Firemen in Final Game by Score of 22-20

In the third and final game of the play-off series between the Belleville and the Firemen for the 1932 fraternal league for the Dr. Robertson trophy the winners had to come from behind in the ninth inning to score 8 runs after the Firemen had scored 12 runs each out by the score of 22 to 20.

It was without doubt one of the best games that these two teams have played to date with the firemen having a nice lead all the way through until the final inning when Gallagher who had been pitching a masterful game weakened somewhat and coupled with some costly errors from his team mates the Knights were able to shove over eight runs to get a lead of four runs in their half of the ninth the Firemen made a strong bid to overcome the four run lead but fell short by two runs.

5 MILE SWIM TO BE BATTLE

Young and Nelson Ready For Grudge Affair on Sept. 15th

Toronto, Sept. 10.—(By The Canadian Press)—Three swimming contests, a match race at five miles a ten-mile one-mile event and a three-mile professional invitation event feature the aquatic program at the Canadian National Exhibition today.

Headlining the bill is the George Young-Marvin Nelson match swim for $500, winner-take-all, reports of a feud between Toronto's Canada Hill and the Fort Dodge, Iowa youth have steamed up interest.

A close second in point of favor is the three-mile event. Entrance of Evelyn Armstrong, Detroit matron, in this event's ranks has stimulated public interest and she is expected to give such stars as George Blagden, Clarence Rose, Frank Pritchard and Jack Sigsbee a real battle at the shorter distance.

Knocks and Boosts

The Belleville Victories left early Saturday morning for their game in Brownsville against the fast Orono Intermediate team in the O.B.A.A. semi finals. The entire Victories team, coach and the Manager Fanning had the boys in high spirits before their departure. Coach Chummy Grow announced that either Syd Bishop or Ralph Hoy would assume the pitching duties in catcher Art Downey's place. Lionel Bisher and Dearnes Dunlop Flagler and Johnnie Kerr at second baseman's position. Outfield Nig Rose, Will Latchford, Stub Palmer, Harrison and Lee. Lee will make up the outfield, Cy Dell Osborne and Glen Gerow. The Belleville were named as the two officials for the day.

Accordin to information handed out by Bobby Samson, Jack Corcoran's local representative, Lloyd Donacher may referee the wrestling bouts Wednesday night. Cancher started to the "roasting" game this spring but is at present laid up with a bad neck. Cancher will well remember Belleville. His last appearance in the Quinte City was marked when he played baseball here with the old Hillcrest baseball team and took the mound not in vain, to lick the entire crowd. We have had the privilege of conversing with the ex-Hillcrest slugger since that local day and he still gets a laugh out of the scrap which followed the ball game in Belleville in 1923. Lionel always be able to handle the Masked Marvel and his antagonistic manager like nobody's business, we'd say.

The stocks of the New York Yankees may fall considerably if they lose the services of their boone ran slugger, Babe Ruth, in baseball's classic, the world's series. What a battle there be in the Yankee local loop to see which team gets in the "big money" series. The Chicago Cubs are set in front just at present but are being closely tagged by Pittsburg while Mack Carey's Dodgers still have an outside chance. It's anybody's pennant right now. Take your pick.

Following Friday's exhibition game when the Belleville traveled to Napanee Fair and trimmed the Napanee baseballers 13 to 4, Percy Mills, who played provincial ball at Napanee for a few years, said that next year the team would not have to worry about the final points of sheep dog being taken care of. Manager Gerow returned to the game for a day and looked pretty well and Percy said helped himself to a hit and later laid down a perfect bunt to advance a base runner. Allan Meagher was in his place back at his old position on second and although he looked a little rusty, the veteran played bang-up ball. It is six years since Meagher covered this bag.

Of late the Oshawa Times comes out to the fore taking exception to statements published in this column. Decide Golf Prize On Roof of World

THE Prince of Wales Trophy, one of golfdom's most envied possessions, has been decided on the spectacular links of the Banff Springs Golf Course, a mile above sea level, in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. This year the trophy went overseas to an Englishman, down from Oxford University, a newcomer to the ranks of champions who made the long trip a week ahead of play. He is W. A. Cox, Bedfordshire Golf Club, Bedford, England, who is seen shaking hands, with the runner-up, Gordon MacWilliams, Rosedale Golf Club, Calgary, one time Alberta champion. Mr. Sinclair was the final, four up and three to play, and the games was refereed by "Bill" Thompson, genial pro of the Banff course, who is seen standing between the pair. A large gallery followed the play.

The Brewster Cup championship was decided at the same time over the Banff Springs course. It was a woman's championship and was taken by Mrs G. F. Dewolf (right in photograph) of Vernon, B.C., who defeated Miss Jean McMillan of Calgary, Alta, in a close fight that was only decided on the 18th hole by one up.

Both winners and champions being congratulated by their opponents; and the Prince of Wales Trophy and the Banff Springs Hotel in the background.

Explanation of Explosion Vary Which Takes Heavy Toll

Dead Numbered at 37 Injured 64 And 25 Missing

New York, Sept. 10—The counted at 37 dead by the end of the little wooden steamer "Observation"—the 44-year-old "Observation" which went up like a firecracker in the East River yesterday.

Eleven are missing. Marine police grappled in the waters of 134th Street throughout the night for their bodies.

The injured numbered 64 in the re-check by police. Thirty-six of these remained in hospitals, their injuries in some cases critical. A guard stood at the hospital door of one victim Alexander Forsythe, Captain of the boat. He was too seriously hurt to permit questioning. All he could say was "I can't remember." We were just backing out, when the boiler blew."

25 May Be Missing

There was a strong possibility, marine police said, that the number of missing might be as high as 25. The one map, who was in a position to know exactly how many were aboard—the man who collected the dime fares of the workmen—is missing.

There was no explanation of the explosion, but four investigations hunted its cause today.

"It might have been dynamite for all we know about it yet," said the 60,000 members at the big exhibition at Toronto. 845

Though the "Princess Royal," veteran of the Canadian Pacific Pacific B. C. Coast steamship fleet has been scrapped and is now in the limbo of departed ships, her forecastle bell remains on the air at Ocean Falls, B.C., where it has been installed at the Ocean Falls United Church mission, which ministers to the spiritual welfare of Japanese children.

Medalle, conducting a separate investigation, subpoenaed the inspectors, who examined the boilers last April and who reported them safe.

A third enquiry was being conducted jointly by police and fire departments, and a fourth was in charge of District Attorney McLaughlin.

Ottawa, Sept. 10—The date for the opening of the Canadian parliament will be fixed early next week after the return of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett from Western Canada.

Resulting from recent interProvincial communications, the impression is that it will be decided to convene the Canadian parliament about the middle of October. However, or within the week preceding. It is learned, will be the date chosen.

FINANCIAL NEWS

CLOSING TONE WAS STEADY

Losses of One to Two Points Were Soon Regained

New York, Sept. 10— The stock market backed and filled irresolutely today, until publication of the weekly freight car loadings report gave the list a slight boost in the late dealings.

Losses of 1 to 2 points registered early in the second hour were largely regained, and several issues closed with gains of a point or two.

The closing tone was steady, with net changes largely narrow. The turnover was only about 1,300,000 shares, the smallest for any session in the week.

Trading were naturally hesitant, in advance of the monthly report of U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage, which did not appear until after the market had closed.

LARGEST MART OF SEASON

Prices Remain Same as Last Week's Close

Ever increasing until market vendors were forced to display their wares on the west side of Pinnacle Street, both above and below the present site, the Belleville market on Saturday was the largest in many years.

The sharp increase in the price of butter was the feature of the trading, however, when the price advanced until it was 30c per pound for a pound. So was the prevailing price. Eggs sold at 19 and 20c a dozen; chickens brought 20 to 25c. Young broilers were selling at 65c to a pair, while ducks were 75c each. Home cooking was also offered.

The outside market was very largely attended. No great difference was noted in the price of fruit or vegetables, of which there was a great display. Watermelons sold from 10c upwards according to size, while muskmelons sold at 5c.

Ground cherries or strawberry tomatoes, as they are sometimes called, were offered at 25c a basket. Fine looking plums of many varieties sold at about 25c a basket. Apples, such as Duchess and St. Lawrence sold for 60c and 80c a bushel; pears were offered at $1.00 a bushel while peaches sold at 50c and 60c a basket. Grapes were 3c a box. Many beautiful cut flowers were offered.

In the vegetable line, there was an abundance. Corn sold very well as the quantity speaks well for the conditions of the crop in the surrounding district. Tomatoes sold at 35c a basket; potatoes at the same basket. Green corn, of the Evergreen variety, sold at 10c dozen ears, while Golden Bantam was offered at the same price. Cabbage and cauliflower sold for 5c each; beets, carrots, parsnips and onions were 5c bunch; cucumbers 5c and pie pumpkins were offered at 10c. Other seasonable vegetables were also in evidence.

On the south side of the market many little booths were seen and sold for $2.00 apiece.

SLIGHT DAMAGE BUT FINE IS IMPOSED

Following an automobile accident, when Norman A. Brand, of Silverbunch Ave., Toronto struck the truck driven by Harold Wheeler, 278 Front St. with the car which he was driving in a southerly direction on Bridge Street, about 6.40 p.m. Friday evening, Brand paid $ 10.00 fine for reckless driving.

Mr. Wheeler was driving north on Coleman St. with his truck and as he approached his own private driveway, he put out his hand indicating that he was about to make a left hand turn. As he started to make the turn the Brand car was coming from Coleman St. in a southward direction later hitting the rear right end of the Wheeler truck damaging the car.

Constable Evans investigated the accident and took Brand to the police station, where he paid a fine for reckless driving, proceeding on to Toronto.

PRICE TREND IS DOWNWARD

Losses in Base Metals And Gold Sections Seen

Toronto, Sept. 10— Trend was downward in short session on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market. Losses predominated in both Base Metal and Gold sections at noon. Number of issues to cover was fairly heavy and showed a tendency to increase, when a fairly rallied reduced some of the early recession.

Nickel and Noranda recovered the ground lost in the first hour to finish unchanged. Hudson Bay was off 25 and Lindsley, Falconbridge, Sherritt Gordon and Ventures dropped upwards of 3 cents each. Eldorado was firm throughout.

Wright Hargreaves features the gold group, establishing a gain of 5 cents in brisk trading. Howey regained 5 and Ariell and Noble were up 2 cents. Minda Corporation fell 10, Dome 5 and Teck Hughes, Kirkland, Lake Shore, Sylvanite and Big Missouri one to three cents, apiece.

GENERAL LIST STAYS FIRM

Outstanding Leaders Dipped Fractionally to Start Day

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 10— Price movements were irregular in today's short session at the market. Outstanding leaders dipped fractionally to start the day but the general list was firm. KIWANIS CLUB HOLDS CARNIVAL SEPT. 20-24
At a special meeting of the directors of the Kiwanis Club it was definitely decided to hold the annual Kiwanis Carnival and the Arrangements again discussed as to location. The dates were fixed from Sept. 20-24 inclusive and George A. Lee, past president of the club, was chosen as general chairman. Plans are being formulated for the entertainment features which will be on the same high place as in years past. New features will be added and there is no doubt the patronage accorded the Karnival in the past will again be given this year. There has been a balance left on the treasury to take care of the Karnival and the success of the carnival is the only way the club has to replenish those funds.

to indicate the run of the crop.

The estimate of the Bureau exceeds other estimates published with the exception of that of the United States Farm Bureau which placed the figure of 475,000,000 bushels on the Canadian wheat crop. Advices to the Bureau of Statistics were that about 20,000,000 bushels or new wheat had been brought in to the elevators since the crop year began on August 1. The exports for the same period were approximately 6,000,000 bushels brought in. The carry-over estimated as July 31 was 130,948,901 bushels.

When the Frost is on the Pumpkin and the Cream is on the Pie

Men have become famous in the business and professional world through various channels, in fact one wise man, who lived before the days of real advertising, said that if a man made a better mousetrap than his neighbor, even though he lived in the depths of the woods, the world would treat a beaten path to his door. We of this generation know that is all rot, if that mousetrap was not advertised and manufactured on a mass scale the mousetrap maker would never have attained a national prominence at all. However, the ladder of fame is not always made of the same material, and this story is to tell of a man whose claim to fame rests on a ladder of pies, metaphorically speaking. Pumpkin Pies, Mince Pies, Apples Pies, and other kinds of pies, better than Mother used to make, and then some. Sprung's the name, Sprung the Baker, proprietor of the "Home" Bakery," baker of super pies. Mr. Sprung has had wide experience as a baker in Canadian cities and has been a member of pie societies in a comparatively short time, long enough, however, to gain a reputation for the making of delicious pastry, and especially for making delicious pies, any choice being pumpkin pie of the goldenest, tastiest, most delicious kind imaginable.

Sprung's Home Bakery is located at No. 8 Bridge Street East, near the lower bridge and enjoys a large trade as a result of the excellent quality of its product. The purity and quality of the baked goods sold are carefully guarded and nothing is offered to the buying public which is not absolutely fresh and first class in every respect. Only the purest of ingredients are used; no substitutes of any kind are utilized in order to lessen the cost of manufacture.

A large variety of pies, cakes, cookies, buns and bread is daily offered for sale in the neat and clean shop of this bakery and their popularity is shown by the ready sale obtained. The prices are not the most reasonable and many ladies in Belleville have asked us to point out how they can save time, energy and fuel, and incur expense by using Sprung's pies instead of baking them, as they can obtain what they want — when they want it and of such delicious quality at reasonable prices that Sprung's.

If a pie is desired for dinner and the order is given by eleven o'clock in the morning it will be delivered by noon. No charge is made for delivery. The pies or cakes delivered are nicely packed and wrapped.

Just now the popular pies at Sprung's are lemon, apple and pumpkin and a trial order of one of these pies will result in a customer being made when pies are wanted.

Later on when the season arrives for mince pies, a sample of Sprung's Mince Pies should be obtained. They make their own mince meat and the mince pie which can not be surpassed.

The name "HOME BAKERY" is lived up to by SPRUNG'S — a trial order, telephoned to 199 will convince you that the name is justified.

"BEST MAN"

By Marian Heath

Robert Charles Dowling was wandering around the grounds of the Warrington estate. He had been invited to come down early—two days before the wedding. This was not only because he was Bob Warrington's closest friend and was to be the best man, but also because people knew he was a handy person, to have around.

That's just the trouble!" He was thinking savagely, as he turned into an isolated section of the rock garden. "I'm useful. Always invited to be a fourth at bridge. Always someone to fall back on, in case a dinner guest can't come at the last minute. A good, safe guy to be called upon when somebody's sister-in-law or young niece or maiden aunt has to be escorted somewhere. Best man! Degree it, is that all I'm good for —to be best 'man?'"

Was there something really lacking in his make-up, he wondered, or was it just because he was shy and reticent that he was always called upon to play secondary role?

"Wonder what it would feel like to be the headliner—just for once!" he mused. "the big guy, the one that all the fuss is being made about."

And then he vowed to himself, as he had least a hundred times before, that he must be more aggressive, have more swagger, more nerve make people realize he had had more to him than merely the ability to look handsome in evening clothes.

"They seem to forget that I'm not doing so badly at the office", he thought, with a whimsical smile. The truth was, that he was being slowly being forced to recognize his outstanding ability and, in spite of his quiet personality, he was steadily making headway in his work.

A lot of people think I'm sort of—well, sort of a duffer, when I'm not," he accused himself. "Perhaps it's because I can't jabber away about nothing for hours, the way most of them can."

He stopped suddenly, surprised to find that he was not alone. A girl was moving slowly down the path toward him....slim...hair a lovely golden red that glinted in the sunshine, big, soft, wistful dark-brown eyes, set rather far apart so that she had a candid, childlike gaze.

"It must be Rose Pinley," he thought, "What a beautiful bride she will make!"

He had heard at breakfast that Hugh's fiancee would be down during the morning. She was a girl from a small middle western town. Robert had never met Rose, and always wondered what she would be like. Of course, Hugh had described her in the most glowing terms—as a perfect goddess of beauty and goodness.

"And she certainly lives up to the description," Robert conceded.

He could feel his face flushing slightly as she turned her calm, steadfast gaze upon him. He was never quite at his ease with women, especially when they were young, and as charming, as this one.

Her lips parted in a slow smile, in which there was something frank and sincere. He returned her slight nod, and mumbled "Good morning."

Before he could say anything else she spoke. Her voice, like the rest of her was cool—clear.

"I know you're Bob Darling," she said. "I've heard so much about you."

She held out her hand, with a graceful, free gesture and for a moment, he felt the touch of her soft, cool palm.

"And I've heard a great deal about you, too," he managed to reply.

She laughed and fell into step beside him.

"Isn't this the most beautiful garden you've ever been in?" she asked, with youthful enthusiasm. "It's like a garden in a book of fairy tales, isn't it—fantastic and even a little eerie."

He agreed by merely nodding. He did not want to interrupt the flow of her lovely voice.

"Just Hugh's luck!" he was thinking with what was almost envy, as he looked down on the bright head that did not quite reach to his shoulder. "Of course she'd fall in love with a grand guy like Hugh. Because she's a grand girl."

A little further on, they stopped under a flowering tree, heavy laden with the perfume of spring. The play of the sun through its blossoms threw a pattern of light and shadow on her translucent little head.

They stood there silently, and the silence lengthened into a rather long interval. Then she looked up at him, with a ghost of a smile, and her eyebrows puckered into a tiny frown.

"Strange," she said, "we've just met, and yet I'm not afraid of being silent with you. With most people you know, I always feel I must fill the void, no matter what it is I am saying. Just now I was listening to that funny little breeze in the tree...It seems to be creeping around from branch to branch, as if it were afraid of something, or being naughty....Did you notice?" As he nodded, he felt a lump in his throat.

"What a fool I am!" he thought, "feeling this way about a girl I've only seen for about ten minutes."

But the harmony between this girl and himself had struck him forcefully during her last words, struck him with the impact of a blow.

"I'm afraids too, sometimes," she went on softly, "to the altar." Are you ever?"

He nodded again not trusting himself to speak.

"Would you pick just one spray of blossoms for me?" she asked.

He did so and, as he handed it to her, he pushed the pale pink of the flowers just matched the soft color of her cheeks.

"You ought to carry those flowers when you go to the altar," he said, "They're just right for you."

She gave a silver little laugh. "I don't know when that will be. Perhaps never."

He stared at her. "You mean—you mean you're not—Hugh's fiancee?" he inquired stupidly.

It was her turn to stare at him "Why, no. I'm Ruth—Hugh's cousin, Ruth Pinley. I thought you knew."

"Ruth", he repeated, "Ruth". And suddenly he knew it was his favorite name.

She was laughing now, but a little shakily.

"Suppose I should consider it a great compliment to be mistaken for the bride," she said. "You see, I'm just one of the bridesmaids. All the weddings I've been to, I've always been one- of the brides maids....."

She was talking on a little rapidly and incoherently now, to hide her embarrassment. But the singing in Robert's heart was drowning out her words. He was just looking down at her, radiantly, and thinking that now, now....he would ask him to be best man!

ELMAN TO PLAY WITH BACKHOUSE

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON — Mischa Elman, the violinist, and Backhaus will play together for the first time in England when they will give a Sonata recital at the Queen's Hall, London, on September afternoon, November 26. Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata will be one of the works performed. Elman will also broadcast for the first time when he will appear before the Radio microphone on October 26.

Aviation in all its forms is popular in Germany, particularly gliding; 317 gliding certificates were issued, and 54 airmen trained for their pilots or officates to fly acroplanes, last year.

SPECIAL RELIGIOUS SERVICES TO MARK COURT OPENINGS

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON — Monday, October 17, is the day fixed for the re-opening of the Law Courts for the "Michaelmas Law Sitting" in London, according to ancient custom the judges and counsel will attend special religious service at Westminster Abbey, afterwards pasading in procession from the Abbey to the House of Lords where the Lord Chancellor holds a reception. A "Red Mass" will be said for members of the Bar of the Catholic faith at Westminster Cathedral.

The procession from the Abbey to the House of Lords is one of London's many annual picturesque events. The judges, in their full-bottomed wigs, ermine capes and scarlet gowns, leave the Abbey by the Poet's Corner and walk in single file across the broad roadway to the Lords. First comes the usher in court dress, sword by side. Then borne on cushions by gentlemen of the Lord Chancellor's staff, the Mace of Lords, the Seal of the Great House of Lords, and the Purse.

Now comes the Lord Chancellor, clad in the full dress robes of "The Keeper of the King's Conscience". The Lord Chancellor wears a long, "3. 3." collar, the Master of the Rolls, the six Lord Justices of Appeal, in black and gold silk robes, and finally their Lordships, the puisne judges of Chancery and the King's Bench, in their scarlet and ermine. That night the latter will travel to open the autumn sessions in the county capitals of the country where they will be received in state by the uniformed high sheriffs with their outriders and trumpeters.

Established just a century ago, with a strength of one hundred, the City of London Police Force now comprises 1,200 and has its own wireless receiving station and "flying squad."

Vacant plots of land, said to be worth altogether some $25,000 in with a frontage of 1,200 feet, have been known. The local council has opened action in parting in the form of those sites.

"MARY FAITH"

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"I bought it down there for half what we'd have to pay for it up here in town," she said as she showed it to Mary Faith. "We'll make it all up by taking a few days out-say? I do like to see dainty little stitches in hand-work."

On the first day of October Mary Faith gave up her position with Florrie Bennett and Mrs. Farrell spent the rest of that blue-and-russet month cleaning house and painting a small white bed that they found in a second hand store on River Street.

In November they settled down to make the clothes for the baby. they ate their meals in the kitchen and the dining room became a temporary sewing room filled with white garments that made Mary Faith fairly ache with their heart-rending littleness. Little bibs, little jackets, little bibs, little gowns.

Aunt Ella sent a pair of pink blankets and Mrs. Cartwright at Christmas-pale blue with white fur Rabbits running all over them. Jean brought a pair of baby-size soft woolen shoes, and Mrs. Hall sent a "napkins that her ranchman had sent to her from Arizona-gay pictures of proper trees on a white street in Phoenix of the camel-back mountains, and a cactus with a big ranch house with wide shady porches.

"That's where little Jeanie is going to live one of these days," she said as she took them back from Mary Faith. "I'm in love with the first time in my life, and isn't it just my luck to fall for a farmer? That's what I get for living in Mary Faith. Can you imagine me living out there for the rest of a thousand acres with nothing to do all day but watch alfalfa grow?"

"You can look at the palm trees and the camel-back mountains," said Mary Faith gravely. "And you'll have your husband-that is if you really intend to marry this man. I'd live on a ranch with him for the next twenty years, without seeing anybody else, if I had to, and enjoy it."

Jean gazed at her, and both puzzlement and awe were in her face. "You are still crazy about that wax smack you're married to, aren't you?" she asked. "Why you ever picked him in the first place is miles beyond me. You could have had most anybody. Whatever it takes to catch a husband, you've got it, Mary Faith. Looks and brains and a grand disposition-and if you don't divorce Kim Farrell after this baby arrives I'm going to stop seeing you. I'm disgusted with you, as it is."

And with that she kissed Mary Faith with great affection and went on her way to deliver the rest of her Christmas packages.

CHAPTER XXVII

It snowed all day on Tuesday, the last of December. The ground was covered with a blanket several inches thick, and there were powder-puffs of fluffy snow on the electric light globe that hung on either side of the entrance to the apartment house.

All day Mary Faith had felt tired and drowsy. All day, in obedience to some blind law of nature, she had taken little naps, sitting in her chair beside the dining-room table, as if she were preparing herself for some great ordeal.

"Well, everything is in order now for the baby," Mrs. Farrell said to her late that afternoon when the street lamps were beginning to flash their light out into the peaceful winter dusk. "I think the little bed's all made up, isn't it?"

"A year ago today Kim and I were down in Chatterville," Mary Faith murmured. "I remember we took a walk in the afternoon and there were a lot of little kids coasting down the hill near Aunt Ella's house. I didn't dream then that I'd be having a little baby of my own so soon."

She stopped, and a look of amazement and pain swept across her face. Hanging on to the edge of the table she pulled herself to her feet. She was halfway to the door of the room when another pain ran over her body like a sheet of flame....

She heard Mrs. Farrell's voice behind her. "Where are you going Mary Faith?"

She tried to answer her but she couldn't make a sound. She knew where she was going. She was going to telephone to Kim to come and tell him that he must come to her just as soon as he could....

Then she saw the marks on the wall of the hallway where the telephone bor had been. The black twisted wires still stuck out from the plaster, like the roots of burned trees...She had forgotten that the telephone had been taken away.

"You're in pain, aren't you?" she heard Mrs. Farrell's voice above the sound in her ears that was like a great flood of waters rushing past her. "I'll run in next door and call Dr. Thatcher -Oh my dear Lord!-"

Darkness closed over Mary Faith. She knew vaguely that some one tried to do a bad presently, and later on she heard a voice, hoarse with agony, shrieking over Kim and never knew that it was her own voice. She only knew that the woman who was calling was in terrible agony. Then, a little while after ending seemed to her months, she knew t thing more....

A light shining in her eyes when she opened them. At first she could see only the straight line of the sun, and then she saw that it was her own little bed-shade with its own lining in her own bed. She closed her eyes again. She tried to move or speak.

"Then all at once, someone was standing over her. A young deep voice was saying, "Are you awake, Mrs. Farrell?"

She looked up. Dr. Thatcher was bending over her and beside him was Mrs. Farrell, who was holding a small white bundle in her arms and as Mary Faith looked at it herself from her pillows, Mrs. Farrell laid it down beside her.

Turning her head, Mary Faith looked at the baby. Here was her love for Kim in the flesh-the little soft body, tender as flower petals and warm as life itself. One hand was curled up tight against the face, like a tiny pink sea-shell.

"Well, there's your son, Mrs. Farrell-born just as the bells were ringing in the New Year. And you think of him, don't you?" she asked in his brisk hearty way. He looked down at the baby and then around him in the shadowy doorway at Mary Faith and Kim.

Kim!..He came toward her and there was a white agony look on his face. He had been out and on suddenly she saw tears spring into his eyes.

"Don't Kim." She held her hand out to him. "Don't! I'm all right. Everything's all right."

He knelt down beside her, burying his face in the pillows close to hers. So close that she could smell the faint dry scent of his bushy hair.

"Your hair-it always smells like birch bark," she murmured weakly and foolishly, and began to cry because she was so happy.

By the middle of February Mary Faith was on her feet again-and not only on her feet but on the merry tip of her toes, more eager for life and work and happiness than she had ever been before.

The days were all too short now although she got up at six o'clock every morning when the baby stirred in his little bed and began to clamor for his bottle in a voice that to her was the most beautiful sound that was ever heard.

"Listen to our son and his little hunger-song," she would say to Kim as she slipped out of bed and hurried into the kitchen to-warm the first little precious bottle of the day. "He's going to be a grand opera singer some day, and don't I know it!"

"Or a radio announcer, at least," Kim, would answer drowsily and good-naturedly. He was as proud of the baby as Mary Faith was. Sometimes when she came back with the bottle she found him bending over the little bed, touching the baby-till NEED SEE when YOU'RE ELECTED MAYOR. his fingers and talking to him in a gruff man-to-man way.

"Shut up or I'll bust you one on the beezer-beak and me!" he would say. "You make as much noise as a fire whistle. Cut it out."

Every night Kim came home between five and six so that he could see Mary Faith before the boy and tuck him into the warm blankets of his bed.

On Easter Saturday he brought home a chocolate rabbit for him, and the enormous amusements of Mary Faith and the horror of Mrs. Farrell. And he bundled him up and took him for an airing on the seat of his car.

"Our life is just the way I always pictured it," Mary Faith said to him that night as they sat in the living room waiting for the Malones to come over and play bridge with them. "Long before we were married I used to dream of the time when we'd have a house and a baby and friends to come in to spend the evening with us once in a while-and now it's all come true...."

"You'd better rap on wood," Mrs. Farrell piped up from her chair be side the window. "I always think it's tempting Providence to tell yourself how lucky you are."

Mary Faith laughed. "You're worse than a rainy day, Mother Farrell," she said cheerfully. "Kim and I have had all our bad luck."

She got up and sat on the arm of his chair, rumpling up his hair and twisting it somehow so that he looked utterly unlike himself for a second.

"Haven't we had all our bad luck and all our bad temper?" she asked him, her arms around him. "Haven't we come out on the sunny side, and aren't we most-terribly-frightfully happy?" She kissed him between each word and he looked as if he liked it.

They were as much in love with each other these days as they had been during the first year of their engagement, when Kim had wanted no one but her.

He wanted no one but her now. Sometimes the Maidons called up and said that they were coming over to play a few hands of bridge and he would frown and look gloomy when Mary Faith announced the news to him.

"Why don't they stay at home once in a while?" he would ask. "Gosh, I never saw such a pair as those two birds!-In all the time I stayed at their house I never knew them to spend a quiet evening. They were always dressed up somebody up to come over and make whoopee with them. Always dressed to go to somebody's house for the evening. Always some place and dance and have dinner. ...It was Aurie's fault. She's pretty quiet and steady. She drags him around after her like a kid with a Teddy bear."

The Maidons never made much "whoopie" when they came to the flat to spend the evening. For one thing the baby was always put to bed to keep quiet. And for another Mrs. Farrell always sat in the room and dozed over the evening paper while the other four played

CANADA RANKS SECOND FOR GOLD OUTPUT

Great Advance in Industry in Past Seventy Five Years

FOUND ALL OVER

Province of Ontario is Heaviest Producer in Dominion

By C. B. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA — "Gold is where you find it"—and Canadians have been finding it in such increasing quantity in the last seventy-five years that the Dominion now ranks as second greatest producer of the precious metal among the countries of the world.

A booklet prepared by A. H. A. Robinson and issued by the department of mines chief of the section taken by this industry, one that did not in the beginning and even now fails to find a market for its product.

In cold figure and prosaic observations that reflect nothing of the hysteria "gold fever" in the heart-breaking travel of the pioneers of the Klondike or the thrill of the mining camp, the record tells of the increase in Canada's production from 34,000 fine ounces valued at $706,000 in 1858 to 2,865,000 ounces valued at nearly $60,000,000 in 1931.

In 1920, after a steady increase from 1858, Canada stepped into a new place among the world producers, surpassing the United States, which in that year produced 1,102,068 fine ounces against the United States a claim at 3,100,386.

South Africa, leader among world gold producing countries since 1886, has forged ahead with only slight occasional check until 1931 when it was 10,718,331 in 1930.

In 1931 Canada took a better grip on second place with 2,865,319 fine ounces. The United States produced 2,181,584 ounces and South Africa still increasing its output, 10,874,-345.

In Every Province

Gold is found in every province of Canada except Prince Edward Island, but the province of Ontario is now the heaviest producer. Of the 1931 production, Ontario accounted for 78 per cent., principally from the mines at Porcupine and Kirkland Lake. Quebec produced 11 per cent. of the total, British Columbia six per cent., Manitoba four per cent., and the balance from Yukon Territory, Nova Scotia and Alberta.

Thanking with gold as the two most important mineral products of the Dominion, they took the lead in 1931, when the value of the yellow metal produced in this country exceeded the value of coal for the first time since Confederation.

Changing conditions, and changed methods have brought the history of gold mining in Canada, its rise and decline and second rise to even greater heights.

Placer or alluvial deposit mining which produced $23,000,000 worth of gold in 1900, has given way to ore mining, the main source of the present day. At present the average production from alluvial sands is over $1,000,000 per year.

At the present time companies working alluvial deposits are located as follows: Alberta one; British Columbia 35; Yukon Territory 12. Companies working gold ore mines: Nova Scotia eight; New Brunswick 30; Quebec 32; Manitoba 5; Saskatchewan 1; British Columbia 45.

In a brief history of the use of gold the booklet tells of the bloody yet romantic place the metal has played in the life of mankind as far back as history reveals. The search of man's stupidity from the earliest times, gold has been perhaps more influential than any other metal in shaping the course of human history," says the introductory paragraph. "The lure of gold has drawn men to the most remote corners of the earth and has thus paved the way for settlement and development in new countries. It has been a fruitful cause of war and of many of other of the strenuous activities, both good and evil, of the human race."

Of little commercial value, except for ornamental purposes, gold has at no time been valued for the industrial uses to which it may be put. Valued at first as an ornamental substance of some rarity it quickly became a medium of exchange, first passing at first with silver, copper, iron, for various articles of value or shells. But all these other mediums gave way to gold when gold prevailed, always and everywhere held in high esteem until finally it became the accepted standard of value throughout the greater part of the civilized world.

Market Never Glutted

While gold is found nearly everywhere it is not an abundant metal and its presence in many instances is too expensive to make it a profitable undertaking. Scarcity may be envisioned when it is realized that if the entire gold production since Columbus discovered America in 1492, were cast in a solid cube, an edge would measure only 58 feet.

Canadian gold discoveries date back to 1823 or 1824 when "placer gold was found in the valley of the Chaudiere river in Quebec. But no real attempt to find gold was made until twenty-six years later. When gold was discovered in the bed of the old sections to California in 1848 and in Australia in 1851, Canada became "gold conscious" and important discoveries were made in British Columbia. This was followed by similar discoveries in Nova Scotia in 1862, but up to 1885 the principal output came from British Columbia. "The Chaudiere placer mines in Quebec were estimated to have yielded $2,000,000 between 1860 and 1876.

In 1896 the discovery of rich gravels in the Klondike river in Yukon territory brought a period of intensive gold mining in Canada. Between 1896 and 1900 the gold production was more than $100,000,000 from the Yukon alone. At the same time the industry underwent great stimulation in British Columbia and Ontario. The peak of this development was reached in 1900 when the Canadian gold output was 1,360,007 fine ounces of gold, the largest amount recorded for any one year up to that time.

Then production fell off until 1907 when it was only 307,317 fine ounces.

Successful Enterprises

Discoveries at Porcupine and Kirkland Lake brought on the greatest production the country had ever known. These were in 1909 and 1911 respectively. The success of these enterprises led other provinces to seek their home territories for similar resources with the result that Manitoba and Quebec came into the picture. The discovery of gold at Flourin, Quebec, and development there made Quebec the second largest producer among the provinces. Flin Flon, Manitoba, more formed what was previously looked upon as a purely agricultural area, has also become a producer of importumbia as a source of minerals.

Porcupine, Kirkland Lake and Flin Flon main the most important sources of gold-yet found in Canada and the gold production is the predominating factors influencing the trend of production for years to come.

In 1930, the last year for which complete statistics of world production are available, the Union of South Africa, contributed almost 53.5 per cent. of the world's total gold production. Canada, the United States 10.42 per cent., Russia 6.5 per cent., and Australia about 6.3 per cent.

Leading producers of gold in Canada, in order of importance, are as follows:

Lake Shore Mines, Limited, Kirkland Lake; Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Limited, Porcupine; Wright-Hargreaves Mines, Limited, Kirkland Lake; Noranda Mines, Limited, Noranda; Dome Mines, Limited, Porcupine; Dome Extension, Limited, Porcupine; Preston East Dome Mines, Limited, Kirkland Lake; Premier Gold Mining, Limited, Salmon River, B.C.; Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Limited, Flin Flon, Man.; Sylvanite Gold Mines, Limited, Kirkland Lake; Howey Gold Mines, Limited, Red Lake, Ont.; Yukon Consolidated Gold Corporation, Limited, Yukon; Canadian Mines, Limited, Porcupine; Shaoe Gold Mines, Limited, Harrington River, Que.; Pioneer Gold Mines, Limited, Bridge River, B.C.; Kirkland Lake Gold Mining Company; Limited, Kirkland Lake; Vipond Consolidated Kirkland Lake; Aunor, Porcupine; International Nickel Company, Sudbury, Ont.; Central Manitoba Mines, Limited, Manitoba.

HUNTING IN CANADA

WIDE VARIETY OF BIG AND SMALL GAME

HUNTING GROUNDS EASILY REACHED

SEASONS OF GENEROUS LENGTH

DURING recent years there has been an exceptional increase in the number of people of this country who enjoy the sport of hunting and shooting. Game is killed yearly, with rifle or shotgun. No other section of the world can offer the sportsman the same favourable conditions as prevail in Canada with its numerous areas of virgin territory within rapid and comfortable reach of centres.

Vast Hunting Areas

This country possesses over 1,000,000 square miles of forest, which shelters game animals ranging from the smallest species to the huge and dangerous grizzly bear. Moose, caribou, elk, deer, antelopers, sheep, mountain goat, timber wolf and bear are plentiful and may be hunted during open seasons of generous length.

Wild Fowl Abundant

The numerous lakes and ponds of northern Canada are the breeding grounds for the main waterfowl population of the American continent, principally wild duck and other waterfowl are plentiful, in normal years. The ruffled grouse or partridge is the most important upland bird and is common to practically every province, while woodcock, prairie chicken, Hungarian partridge and pheasant provide good sport, in certain districts.

Hunting Grounds Easy of Access

Accessibility is an outstanding feature of much of Canada's hunting territory. The country is well served by roads, railways and steamboat routes which the sportsman may travel in comfort, to the "going in" points. Many previously inaccessible areas are now reached by aircraft, also now be reached by aircraft, also now be reached by air-plane in a few hours' flight to the "going in" points. These points are numerous throughout game areas and at these will be found reliable outfitters and qualified guides, who are prepared to look after the sportsman's every need and guidance while in the hunting territory. In several of the provinces it is compulsory for the hunter to be accompanied by a guide but, even in those provinces where it is not compulsory, it is often advisable to engage guides. These men, being familiar with the territory in which they operate, are able to add greatly to the enjoyment and success of the trip.

Conservation of Game

In Canada a practical form of conservation is found in the setting aside of tracts of public lands, as game reserves, and in the protection of game in the ordinance national and provincial parks. In these areas the game multiplies rapidly, under protection, and spreads into the surrounding country. This favourable condition, coupled with sound provincial legislation regulating the open seasons, bag limits, issuing of licences, etc., assures continuance of a supply of game animals and birds in their native habitat. Canada's hunting fields to offer the hunter exceptional opportunities for sport in season.

Hunting with Camera

To the camera-hunter and the student of wild life, the Canadian Provinces offer unusual opportunities for interesting experiences and records. There is no closed season on game, to the camera-hunter and, throughout the year, he will find favourable conditions to study the habits of game animals and birds and to photograph them in their natural surroundings.

Game Laws of the Provinces

The game laws of the different provinces are drafted by the provincial Governments with a view to meeting local conditions; consequently there is no uniform game law for the Dominion as a whole. As these game laws are subject to revision from year to year, persons contemplating a hunting trip are advised to write to the Canadian National and provincial parties. In these areas the game multiplies rapidly, under protection, and spreads into the surrounding country. This favourable condition, coupled with sound provincial legislation regulating the open seasons, bag limits, issuing of licences, etc., all tell a story of their own, of long lives of devotion to art and education. Jeffreys "Western Sunlight" shows the Toronto painter at his best, under the spell of the vast open spaces on the prairies. And Walter Phillips, of Winnipeg, impresses us with his exotic treatment in water color woodcuts "Japanese Lanterns" "The Work Boats on Lake Winnipeg" and "Kashkawan" Indian Village on British Columbia. Whereas the others lean towards France he does towards the Orient, and the result is intriguing.

ART EXHIBIT AT OTTAWA DRAWS PUBLICATTENTION

Written For The Canadian Press by Dr. Marius Barbeau

Written for the Canadian Press by Dr. Marius Barbeau.

Ottawa, Sept. 10—No retrospective art exhibit has ever been as comprehensive in Canada as the show for the Imperial Conference at the National Gallery at Ottawa. None has commanded more attention. Here was the modernist there the academists and ancients. The story of painting in our country is rather short; its two main phases, in the past and the present, follow so close on each other's heels that direction often results from encounters on the same ground. It is an encouraging sign that performers at times should become vociferous; art controversies spread the news abroad that something is really happening. Public interest as a consequence is awakened. The whole of Canada indeed is beginning to delight in the knowledge of its own growth, not only as a vibrant-producing land but also as a country able to bring forth painters of genius like Paul Peel, Morrice and Tanner. The Dominion is becoming artminded, as Hon. Vincent Massey has said. Art in this is fast growing into an asset in our national life.

In a first article I spoke of Canadian painters as a group and dealt with them are mainly responsible for the modernist movement, the lack of space forbade even a mention of painters who deserve credit on other grounds. Some of them were the pioneers of art for art's sake and the artisans of progress. They were talented and gifted personalities in their day, for instance Blair, Bruce and Paul Peel. But they lived and plodded abroad, and their influence at home was not vital, perhaps because their art was not based on sophisticated figure painting can be advantageously taught in the permanent collections of the National Gallery. In the Ottawa show we are reminded of their existence by a dreary sweet sunset of Bruce Home's, a Blair "Fisherman" in oils and a "Venetian Bather" by Peel. Both these painters belong to Montreal and the first half of the 19th century; their brush-work is well-tilled their colors soft, and their themes academically trained and domiciled in Paris, they lost touch with the Canada they knew when they were from Ontario, and became exponents of the best traditions of European art. Their harbor now is in our pious reminiscences of yesteryear.

Through them and a few others the modernists might have given a sense of direction to Canadian art, but they did not. Their painting did not really bear fruit. Perhaps it was the lack of the stimulus of the kodak and the arrival upon the scene of Hollywood, which fluttered the imagination so effectively. Looking around the walls of the National Gallery we do not find many figure pictures in the style of Peel's "Lady Godiva's Aphrodite's Realm," a nude model in the midst of a pool of the goddess of phosphorescent waters, Studio work is not popular in Canada and the nude art has not found a ready theme. Art has taken to the woods and to the landscape.

The growth of landscape painting in Canada is a matter of record although if was French rather than Canadian in its affiliations and family's roots.

The first Canadian painter trained in France to become an active educator at home, in Montreal, was William Brymner, who was headmaster of the Montreal Art Association Schools for many years.

Belonging spiritually to the Barbizon School, Brymner became to be selected in the Quebec scenery which he painted with considerable effect; a la millet or a la Rousseau. His sympathies were for those still redolent of the charm of Normandy and Brittany. His "Early Moonrise in September" or his "Evening."

With the rugged scenery of Canada did not appeal to Brymner, who felt the overwhelming grandeur of what is truly native. He could not have painted the Rockies or Labrador, for he trained many brilliant pupils, who have headed their mark and are glad to call themselves Canadian painters. Mabel May, Robinson, Kathleen Morris, Horton, Lilian Newton, Holgate, Mabel Lockerby, Sarah Robertson, Prudence Heward and others. Some of these have studied under Cullen and another talented group in the same school.

The work of other well-known Canadians, R. C. Webb, for instance, on is also redolent of France, but is redolent none of individuality, for instance, Horatio Walker's "Ones Drinking," and Cullen's "Evening Quebec" and "Ten Harvest." The first is Millet like in spirit, but the last painter well established on the New York art market. He was born in Ontario and has his home in the province in the heart of Quebec. Cullen's pictures remind us of his spiritual descent from the French through Morrice and Brymner, and of the valiant struggle of his earlier years towards self-expression. "The Settlement on the Hillside," by Blair Cote is impressionistic, even a facile brush that never quite found its own stroke. Maurice Cullen, A. Y. Jackson, Brownwell's "The Beach, St. Kits" and George Reid's "Vacant Lots" and the grasmophone 771,681, Loretta Young and George Brent in "Week-End Marriage," commencing Monday at Capitol Theatre.

LORETTA YOUNG AND NORMAN FOSTER IN NOVEL PLAY

Whether or not age agrees with the intimated settlement of the problem of marriage and the press as presented in "Week-End Marriage," the First National Picture which comes to the Capitol Theatre Monday offers a lot in novelty and entertainment, and with the return of screenland's newest team, Loretta Young and Norman Foster. The star in "Play Girl" that this pair showed promise of combining in comedy and drama, and now First National has wisely tipped them together again as the husband and wife of "Week End Marriage."

The story which is based on the novel by Faith Baldwin and was adapted for the screen by Gerald Geraldson and Gilbney, starts with Lola and Ken, the two lovers, working for their respective livings in offices. When Ken is offered a fine position in the home town, Lola's sister helps her in tricking Ken into a marriage. Immediately, of course, keeps him from going to Smith Mountain. But Ken is sincerely in love, and so is Lola, and for the first flush of their marriage they are very happy, but as they both work and have their ordinary interests, there is no competition enters. Through a series of events in the next few years, Lola has the better position and Ken is jealous of her success. Ken not help the husband's vanity very much. He turns to another woman. It is her dog, Pooka, that is the final breaking up of their happiness. Ken finds himself in utterly in love, and so is Lola, and for the first time in their married life

HON. W. GORDON ADDRESSES LABOR MEETING

Minister of Labor Tells Labor Not to Waste the Work of Years of Union

Direct Warning Is Sounded by Hon. Wesley Gordon

300 DELEGATES

Tom Moore Says Canada Must Not Be Tail Wagging the Dog

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 12 (By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—With a direct warning to organized labor not to waste the work of years by listening to the hysterical outbursts of those who seek the overthrow of governments and the destruction of civilization, Hon. Wesley Gordon, Minister of Labor, and Hon. J. D. Monteith, Ontario minister, today addressed the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada here.

Both Federal and Provincial governments were heartily in support of labor's request that the cabinet ministers agreed, even though at this time none of the requests could not be fulfilled.

In difficult times, such as those through which Canada was now passing, Mr. Gordon said, there was a common tendency to attack governments and civilization. In the past, the Trades and Labor Congress had unanimously opposed Communism and Bolshevism. This was the proper course, he maintained unanimous as all the good that had been done would be undone by rabid attacks on the present system.

The 48th annual convention of the Congress opened with a sleighty speaking programme this morning. More than 300 delegates from all parts of Canada were present. Wm. J. Burr, president of the District Trades and Labor Council of Hamilton, at last turning the gavel over to Tom Moore, of Ottawa, veteran president of the association.

Mayor Welcomes All

Mayor John Peebles welcomed delegates to the city, and incidentally outlined the problems which confronted Hamilton as a result of unemployment. Touching on "pulling up" of the present economic depression was not sufficient, he declared. Some permanent means of preventing such depressions must be sought.

Hon. Dr. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Labor, assured the Congress of the Provincial government's sympathy with the labor movement and declared the courageous and reasonable expression of resolutions to the government was very helpful.

Tom Moore declared the willingness of the Congress to co-operate with governments or anyone else who will co-operate with us for members of the organization, he said, had a closer knowledge of existing conditions than perhaps anyone else since unemployment was brought closer home. Because of this particular knowledge the Congress had formulated a list of many plans for increased benefits, and had been successful in some cases.

He continued, "though it is true the world is getting smaller we must take cognizance of other countries' problems and Canada must not continue to be the tail wagging the dog."

CANED DIRECTOR AND GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Milan, Italy, Sept. 12 (CP)—The opera tenor, Giacomo Caligari, has been sentenced to three months in jail, for caning the musical director, Bastiano Bavagnoli. TWO KILLED WHEN 2 AMBULANCES COLLIDE

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 12 (CP)—Attempting to avoid a motorist, who apparently was confused by screeching sirens, two ambulances speeding to emergency calls, crashed head-on in the downtown district killing a physician in one ambulance and a pedestrian. KIDDED BEST FRIEND NOW A CASUALTY

Newark, N.J., Sept. 12.—The reason Herbert McCaffery is dead, detectives said today, is because he "kidded" his best friend, a rookie policeman.

McCaffery and another man were sitting in a cafe last night, joshing the policeman, Joseph Carnaghi, 26, because he carried his gun while off duty. "I bet you wouldn't know how to use it anyway. Suddenly he grabbed McCaffery's 38 calibre gun and fired the gun against his chest.

"I'm only holding man and I'm going to show you how I use my gun," he said with a laugh as he pulled the trigger once and nothing happened. He pulled it again, and McCaffery fell dead with a bullet near his heart.

"I thought I had all six bullets out," said Cavanaugh as they locked him up pending a formal decision as to what action to take.

CREW TAKEN ABOARD SHIP

Their Boat Wrecked at Entrance to Straits Weeks Ago

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—(CP)—Word was received here S.S. Usher, now on its return trip from the annual voyage of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts in the Eastern Arctic, had taken aboard Fred Burwell and the shipwrecked crew of the motorschooner Nova Z., was received at headquarters here today. Royal Mounted today. Details were lacking but the information conveyed that Captain Myra, master of the Nova Z., and his crew presumably four or five men, had been picked up when the Usher put in to Port Burwell on Saturday.

The motor schooner was wrecked off the Labrador coast near the eastern entrance to Hudson Straits some weeks ago.

STATEMENT TO BE GIVEN AFTER CABINET MEETING

Winnipeg, Sept. 13—Some statement regarding investigation of the University of Manitoba endowment fund shortages may be expected following a meeting of cabinet ministers, Premier John Bracken announced here today. An executive council meeting was held this afternoon. Shortages in university endowment funds resulted in the arrest of J. A. Machray, former university bursar, and his discharge with the theft of more than $900,000.

WINS APPEAL FROM TEN YEAR SENTENCE

Toronto, Sept. 12 (CP)—Kenneth Thorpesplon, sentenced to Windsor two years ago today to ten years imprisonment for shooting Police Constable Webster in Windsor, has had his sentence reduced to three months in jail, for caning the musical director, Bastiano Bavagnoli. Opera circles, regarded the police court decision as important, as it upheld the right of a director to choose the trials under him with a free hand The caning allegedly was administered, when Caligari learned he had not been signed for the Carlo Felice theatre season at Genoa.

Thorpesplon based his appeal on the imagination he did not know who was in the police car and intended merely to dissuade his pursuers of whom he was afraid.

SOCONSTABLE HIT ON HEAD BY UNKNOWN

Found Unconscious And Wandering About the City

FOLLOWED MAN

Fell Into Water and With Difficulty Saved Self

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 12 (CP)—Constable W. Cairney lay in hospital today suffering from concussion of the brain after being struck on the head by an unidentified man in a boot though to have been a rum runner.

Cairney was found wandering about the street in a dazed condition by Constables Rowsell and Lickiater after he was discovered missing from his regular beat.

Cairney told a confused story of having followed a man whose conduct he thought was suspicious, to the dock at the foot of Bay street in the Algoma Central Railway station.

He approached the boat he said, and was knocked unconscious by a blow delivered from behind. He fell in the water, he added, and partially recovered consciousness, drifting himself from the river.

The boat had gone.

Communists Promoted a March and Incited Men, Alleged

Washington, D.C., Sept. 12.—(AP)—A report from Attorney General William D. Mitchell that Federal troops summoned during last summer's encampment of the bonus army here were "necessary to and did prevent further disorder and bloodshed," today was before President Hoover.

"In their absence, further rioting could have occurred with further bloodshed among the veterans and police and possibly innocent bystanders," Mitchell advised the President after an investigation of police and other official records.

"It is probable the bonus army brought into the city at Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that has ever been assembled in the city at any one time," his report said.

The 4,000 word document covering findings in the investigation ordered by President Hoover was made public by the chief executive with a short statement that is "should correct the many misstatements of fact as to this incident with which the country has been flooded".

Mitchell reported that 807 of the first 2,856 men named on the bonus expeditionary force roster could not be identified and ex-soldiers and that of the 4,733 applying for transportation, 1,969, had police records and 839 of these had been convicted. Communists, he said, promoted the March on Washington and then proceeded to incite the marchers to disorders.

Lord Wakefield Quits Motor Boat Speed Trials

London, Sept. 12 — (Canadian Press Cable) — Lord Wakefield, owner of Miss England III., fastest speed boat in the world announced today he would take no further part in motor boat speed.

British sport circles viewed the announcement with keen disappointment in view of determination of Sir Malcolm Campbell to go after the world speed record held by Kaye Don, British driving ace, who failed on his challenge against Wood at Lake Maggiore, Italy.

Lord Wakefield has for years acted as "angel" for British mechanical speed sprints and has sponsored numerous record attempts for automobiles and motor boats and has also backed several long distance aeroplane flights.

Mute Evidence of Terrier's Effort To Escape Death Chamber Found

Some time ago Bob Chadwick, 185 Charles street advertised for a fox terrier stolen from the residence of his mother. Some two months ago Mrs. Chas. Lyall, who lives next door, left for Scotland, and her cat was consigned to Bob to put away for her return. Bob put the effects in the city Sunday and today when he wanted the cat, the fox terrier was found dead inside it.

Evidently in putting the car away, the little fellow had got inside and the doors closed not knowing of this. The upholstery and linings of the car were torn to ribbons in the frantic endeavors of the dog to make his escape. As the garage is not used for the storing of cars in distance from dwellings, the cries of the dog were not heard by neighbours.

REICHSTAG IS FACED WITH A NEW PROBLEM

Non Confidence Vote is Carried by 513-32 Votes

OTHER MOTIONS

Exact Status of Reichstag is Uncertain by Complications

Berlin, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Caught napping by the Reichstag opposition, which passed a motion of non-confidence before he could promulgate a decree of dissolution, Chancellor von Papen found himself today in a position of great uncertainty.

He still remain in charge of the government for at least several weeks longer, however, for the supreme court will be asked to decide the constitutionality of the events which made today's session of the Reichstag one of the most dramatic in a long time.

A single dissenting voice could have prevented consideration of a communist motion coupling a declaration of non-confidence with a demand that the government's state of emergency decree be rescinded. But the government had not expected this turn of events and there was no objection to the motion.

Sprang to Rostrum.

Realizing too late what was going on, Hans Oberfohren sprang to the rostrum with his decree of dissolution, but the speaker turned him aside, asserting that the vote on the motion to which the non-confidence clause was taken up. It carried was 513 to 32, with 50 members abstaining.

The Chancellor maintained, still that the vote was the act of a parliament already dissolved, and therefore ineffective. Hermann Goering, the National Socialist speaker, said the decree would be ignored and the Reichstag would be reconvened for tomorrow.

Then he reconsidered and agreed to submit the issue to the supreme court.

It was understood that several States would contest the legality of the dissolution, probably Brunswick, Mecklenburg and Oldenburg, inasmuch as the Reichstag itself passed appeal while its existence is questioned.

Berlin, Sept. 12 (AP)—A Communists record attempt for sabotage in the cabinet of Chancellor Franz von Papen failed today in the Reichstag today 513 to 32, with 50 members abstaining.

The motion was carried after the Chancellor had promulgated a decree on state expenditures and by Hermann Wilhelm Goering, National Socialist speaker, had declared to enforce the decree pending action on a technicality before the house.

Coupled with the non-confidence motion was a demand that the state of emergency decree by which President Von Hindenburg assumed virtual economic programme of Chancellor Von Papen be rescinded.

This dramatic turn in events left parliamentarians uncertain regarding the status of the cabinet and the Chancellor.

The confusion was increased by a Speaker Goering, who declared that the chancellor's decree of dissolution would be ignored in view of the fact that the government had already been overthrown.

In an almost here that was most unusual, Goering, Nazi leader appeared on the dais holding in his hand the decree of dissolution which had been signed a week ago by President Hindenburg for just such an emergency.

Von Papen conferred with speaker Goering who gesticulated, shook his hand and refused to listen.

Mystery of Bern's Death Unfathomed As Police Seek for Possible Motive

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. Sept 12. —The suicide of Paul Bern was still a mystery today as officers strove to fill in missing chapters leading up to the death of the motion picture producer husband of Jean Harlow, screen actress.

Letters from Bern to Dorothy Millette, "mystery woman" in his life, were found in her effects here yesterday but filled only a few pages.

More was expected from Los Angeles, where Bern shot himself a week ago today, with the probable opening of his last will and the promise of a statement from Resident Silberberg, attorney for Miss Harlow.

Authorities of Sacramento and San Francisco sought Miss Millette or her body. She was believed drowned either in the muddy Sacramento River between the two cities herself a suicide, or if still living fleeing from possible recognition.

Spring Grains Are Now All Harvested and Good Progress in Threshing

Fall Wheat To Be Sown Late This Year

PASTURES GOOD

Total Acreage This Year About the Same As Last

Toronto, Sept. 13 (CP)—Harvesting of spring grain has been practically completed and good progress has been made in threshing, according to a summary of crop conditions issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. More than the ordinary amount of stook threshing was done this year but the weather was not too favorable for this activity, it is later stated. A considerable amount of after harvest cultivation has been done and some fields of fall wheat have been sown but generally speaking, farmers are aiming to sow their fall wheat somewhat later than usual in order to reduce the likelihood of injury from Hessian fly. Buckwheat and corn crops have made good growth during the month and excellent fields have been secured from second cutting of alfalfa. Pastures are in good shape in Western Ontario but under average in Eastern and Northern Ontario.

The estimated acreage yields of spring wheat, oats and barley for the Province this year show little variation from the figures for last year. Oats and barley give rather disappointing yield in southwestern Ontario and slightly higher yields than last year in other districts. For acre yields of flax and beans show some decrease over last year while the yield of peas is considerably higher.

Acreage About Same

The total acreage of field crops sown in Ontario in 1932 is practically the same as last year. The most important changes in individual acreages occurred in barley, buckwheat, fodder corn and alfalfa which showed increases, and hay and clover, beans and potatoes which show large reductions in acreage.

The total production of both beans and buckwheat will show considerable decrease from last year in addition to reduction in acreage, but barley and oats are lower owing to less favorable growing conditions.

Laborer Returns from Harvest Fields After Being Identified as Drowned

Calgary, Sept. 13—The lie direct was tossed by John T. Gillespie to four of his neighbors in a Calgary apartment house.

Saturday a body was recovered from the Bow River. A friend of Gillespie's viewed the body and said emphatically John Gillespie is dead. Three other neighbors of Gillespie's said the body and agreed.

But yesterday John Gillespie returned from working with a harvest gang on a farm near Calgary. He told police he was still very much alive and interlocked starting out again on another harvesting job in the Dauphin district.

All efforts to identify the body have failed so far, and it is being held at the morgue pending further police investigation.

SOME WELLS ARE IN NEED OF RAIN

Dried up wells and parched fields in many sections of the county have followed in the wake of weeks of prolonged drought, however only now and then by a few scattered showers. In many cases water has had to be drawn from the Bay of Quinte, particularly among those farmers along the section roads west of this city. Rain is needed badly before actual damage is done to the late crops, which are maturing.

BAD AIR PUMP CAUSE OF DELAY

A defective air pump on the engine of train No. 34 of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was said to have been responsible for the delay on that line when the train stopped for some time at the Bridge Street, at 3.49 Saturday afternoon. An emergency call to Trenton was necessary in order to secure a new engine to replace the disabled one before the run could be completed.

16 POUND CHANNEL CAT WAS LANDED

Fishing is still good in the Bay of Quinte, as two local residents, keen disciples of the art, can testify.

Casting from a boat off Mill's Bar, Sunday afternoon, Mr. Robt. Hamilton, who was accompanied by Mr. Beverley Gribble, managed to snag something, which fell like an overgrown sturgeon. At the risk of losing pole and tackle, Mr. Hamilton managed to hang to the fish, which refused to come to the top of the water to be identified. After he had landed with it for some time, Mr. Hamilton handed the pole to Mr. Gribble, who finally landed the creature. It was a sixteen pound channel cat, now reposing on ice at Black's fish store, South Front street.

LUMBER TOWN WILL MEET OBLIGATIONS

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 12 —Town Clerk Merrill of Byng Inlet, Blind River, today told the Canadian Press he thought that lumber town would be able to pay interest its present financial difficulties without aid from the Ontario or Dominion governments.

The town must make a payment of an instalment of $2,800 principle and interest falling due November 1 on $41,000 debentures, and has besides an overdraft at the banks on deposits of $39,000.

Tax collections, Mr. Dyke said, would probably take care of the overdraft and may enable the town to meet the debentures installment as well.

BOILER LEAKED FOR SOME TIME

Fireman on Observation Testifies at The Inquiry

New York, Sept. 12— Victor R. Michaelson, former fireman on the steamboat Observation, which exploded in the East River Friday with a loss of 44 lives, testified today at an inquiry by the Federal Steamboat Inspection Service that the Observation's boiler had been leaking for several months, sometimes so badly that it spilled over the ashpan into the fire room.

Michaelson said he was discharged two months ago for having failed to report for work, but that he worked one day on the boat, September 5.

Michaelson said he could hear steam hissing off whenever he had steam up in the boiler.

Edward J. Lee, who worked as fireman on the boat from July 4 to September 5, corroborated Michaelson's testimony about the leak.

Both men testified they had assisted in making repairs on the boiler. David Thompson, former chief engineer, testified that these minor repairs were made without notifying the inspection service. He said he had not known it was required.

States where primary elections will be held tomorrow are: Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington and South Carolina.

In none of tomorrow's voting national issues and national figures are involved. Interest concentrates upon state affairs. All eyes are being watched by Republican and Democratic leaders to see if they may not give some indication of what November holds.

BRIDGE ST. W. M. S.

On Friday, September 8th, the members of the Bridge Street W.M.S.G. met for the first time since the June session. There was a good attendance and the President, Mrs. Bishop extended a cordial welcome to all. The meeting was opened with the use of Watts' hymn "Come Holy Spirit", after which the members joined in a prayer of thanksgiving for renewed vigor of body and mind during the summer and for the coming months.

After receiving the minutes of the June meeting, the Treasurer's report and correspondence with some of the secretaries, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. Ayers were named as the delegates to our Sectional Rally on October the fourth.

The Auxiliary, during the next few months will be studying about Korea, using the text-book "Land of the Dawn" and the introduction to this study was in the hands of Mrs. May and her group, who were responsible for the September program. Mrs. O'Flynn gave the Scripture lesson choosing the 15th Chapter of John's Gospel and closed with prayer.

Mrs. May gave a brief outline of the life of the author of "The Land of the Dawn", James Scott Van Buskirk M.D. In 1908 he was sent to Korea by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. After five years of medical work, language study and church work, he was appointed professor of physiology at Severance Union Medical College, Seoul, and since 1923 has been its vice-president. Throughout his years of service in Korea, Dr. Van Buskirk has taken part in many activities outside his college duties. Korea or Chosen, as it was originally called, has a history dating back more than two thousand years before the Christian era and today, geographically, it occupies a strategic position in the development of north-eastern Asia.

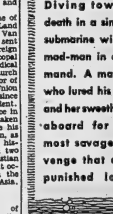
Special Interest

The remarkable progress of Christianity in Korea within the last fifty years has given it a special interest. In this period "there has developed a Christian Church of 500,000 Koreans —a church that is almost unequaled in mission lands for the degree to which it is self-supporting, self-governing and self-governing. The author of this book is convinced that the political economic and social problems of Korea and of all lands are spiritual problems and can never be solved aright until Jesus Christ has His way in the hearts of men everywhere. Mrs. Pearsall gave in brief outline the circumstances of Korean today because of their inability to earn enough to keep their families from starvation and a consequent drift of the people to Manchuria. With a civilization that ran into antiquity, Korea had guarded her borders against contact with the western world but in 1882 she was forced to open her door to foreign trade.

Her relationship with Japan has not been a happy one and the economic distress of the people to day is blamed in large measure on her alien rulers. The fact that the corruption of their own government had a big part in the loss of their independence does not help matters.

Reading Given

Mrs. Fred Sprague contributed a much appreciated reading. Lingering traced the religious development of the Korean people from Buddhism and Confucianism, the height of Christianity with persecutions following. Since the ban on Christian teaching has been lifted, the progress of Christianity has been phenomenal.



The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Bishop after which a social hour was enjoyed, the group in charge being hostesses.

PrinceEdwardFactoryReceives Requests for Tomato Samples

As a result of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, last July, a canning factory in Prince Edward County recently received a request for samples of canned tomatoes from a firm in England. The factory executives had never had such a request before, nor had they ever heard of the English Corporation. Presumably the factory's all sample, and hope their attempts to negotiate with the Prince Edward factory.

The English company in making the request wrote, that heretofore they had purchased canned goods from a foreign country, but that the present Imperial Conference had brought forcefully to their mind the question the necessity of trade within the Empire where at all possible, and hence their attempts to negotiate with the Prince Edward factory.

Rescue Vessels Searched Without Hope for 'Flying Family' Down at Sea

S.O.S. Sent Then Ceased And Whole Crew Believed Dead

SEARCH COASTLINE

Plane Only Had Pontoons Which Would Break In Crash

Angmagssalik, Greenland, Sept. 13 —(AP)—Amid ice floes that smashed ominously, rescue vessels searched, without much hope today for six adults and two small girls—the "flying family" of George B. Hutchinson.

They fight from New York toward Europe culminated yesterday in frantic S.O.S. calls—and then silence. Hutchinson reported his plane had been forced down on Eastern Greenland on the edge here from Julianehaab, near the southern tip of Greenland. He said he feared all eight perished in the ice water.

The Hutchinson family, father, mother and two daughters, with a crew of four, left New York on August 23 on a flight by easy stages over the northern transatlantic route to Europe. They hoped to be the first family to cross the Atlantic in a plane.

S.O.S. Sent Out

The British steam trawler, Lord Talbot, was 2 miles astern when she picked up the S.O.S. signal about 10 a.m. (Eastern Standard time). She raced for the location given out, when she got there two hours later found nothing but ice in sight. The signals kept coming for about an hour as she sped from the floes. Then they ceased.

The governor of Greenland, Knud Oldendow, set rescue forces to work immediately and the Lord Talbot joined in her searchlight over the ice for several hours but could see nothing of the plane. A fleet of boats was sent out from her during the night with orders to search the coastline area.

The floats of the floes against the pontoons would be hard for it to stand, it was said to some quarters here and there was a disposition to fear the plane had sunk.

Hutchinson's wife and two little daughters, Kathryn, 8, and Janet Lee, 6, were aboard the plane, the "City of Richmond." They carried their dolls and were the first child passengers on a trans-Atlantic flight attempted.

Besides Hutchinson, the four men aboard were Peter Redpath, navigator; Gerald Archibald, radio operator; Joseph Ruff, mechanic and Norman Alley, news reel cameraman. The plane is an amphibian. Its landing gear was designed at Saint John, N.B., and sent on ahead to Europe to be used when flying over land again.

Left N.Y. Aug. 23

The party flew to Saint John after taking off from New York on August 23. The next day they went 330 miles to Port Menier, on Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. On August 30 they flew 470 miles to Cartwright, Labrador, and September 2, 626 miles to Godthaab, Greenland.

The Danish government, fearing danger to the fliers, declined to assume responsibility for Hutchinson's next proposed flight, which was to have taken them 431 miles across the interior ice cape to Ragnagsalik, so he changed his route and followed the coastline, flying along the west coast to Julienhaab which he left yesterday for Cape Race.

After leaving here the Hutchinsons planned to fly leisurely to London, Paris and other European cities.

BRITAIN MUST PROVE TITLE

Valera Insists on Open Tribunal For Discussion

Kilkenny, Ireland, Sept. 13—President Eamon de Valera reaffirmed his stand on the question of the payment of land annuities to the United Kingdom, in a speech here Sunday.

"Britain will have to prove title to the annuities in fair court," the president declared. "We are prepared to agree to arbitration, but there is to be no restriction whatever upon the choice of our nominees. The choice of nominees by each party and of the chairman should be without restriction."

"We are going to fight and will be declared. "We must be prepared to make sacrifices, for it is not easy to bargain with Britain."

The Irish Free State President said he thought the present plight of Irish farmers was not entirely due to the "Thomas duties," but also to the fact that the purchasing power of the people of the United Kingdom was steadily dwindling and they were forced to buy chiefly instead of fresh meat.

Mr. de Valera denied that any limitation existed in the Free State or that the government was contemplating such a measure. The government did not welcome the formation of the "white army" because it was unnecessary, as the government itself was the arrangements for a volunteer army throughout the country under the strict control of the government, and no other would be tolerated.

"If we wanted 50,000 men tomorrow, we could have them," asserted Mr. de Valera.

"There are people across the water willing patiently for anything to destroy the freedom the Irish Free States which will get them out of their present difficulties. We have no fear on that account."

CANCEL DEBTS BENEFIT TO U.S.

Th's Would be Greater Advantage Than Trying to Collect

New York, Sept. 13—The American people would benefit more by reduction or cancellation than by attempts to collect the war debts which Europe owes the United States, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler declared in a statement issued on Sunday by the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

In a similar statement, Senator William E. Borah expressed the opinion that cancellation of debts as part of a program providing for settlement of other war problems, presumably such as political, territorial and disarmament controversies against Europe, would bring as equal or greater benefit to the United States than could be gained by collection.

The statements head a collection of declarations by prominent American and European authorities arguing for governmental action by the United States for revision of the debt settlements in co-operation with the 19 nations which signed the reparations settlements at Lausanne.

ADVISED NOT TO PAY TAXES

Miss McPhail Urges They Wait For Revenue From Land

Kincardine, Sept. 13—Miss Agnes Macphail, Progressive M.P. for South-East Grey, is on record as an advocate of a moratorium on farmers' taxes. She advised a meeting of farmers here Saturday night that they should say, "We will not pay taxes until we earn the taxes out of the land."

Criticizing the advice given by farm experts, Miss Macphail said if they must give advice it should be on where and how to market produce—and how to produce it. A means of processing farm products and distributing them must be found, she contended, before the farmer would be prosperous.

Sleepin' graduated income tax with the greatest burden on the wealthy, and a heavy inheritance tax were advocated by the woman legislator. She said the Dominion Government should pay $300,000,000 interest on investments if economic conditions are relieved.

Miss Macphail charged that special interests governed Canada. "In the past they governed through the government, now they are the government," she said.

Welcomed to Scotland

Six hundred Canadians who call Glasgow home, were greeted on their arrival in the Clyde city by Sir Thomas Kelly, LL.D., Lord Provost, and the magistrates of the city, when they arrived recently in the Canadian Pacific liner "Duchess of Bedford" for a re-union.

Gathered together from all parts of Canada, and transported by special train to Montreal, the Glaswegians are making a two-months stay, during which they are being entertained by the City of Glasgow, its manufacturers, and their friends. Proceedings opened Tuesday, July 26th, when the Lord Provost, magistrates and councillors held a reception in the Art Galleries at Kelvingrove.

The party, which left Montreal in the Duchess of Bedford, July 8, returns from Glasgow Saturday, August 20, in the same 20,000-ton liner.

Canadians got a fairly recently when Captain A. J. Mollison, intrepid trans-Atlantic solo flyer, spoke over the air, which he has conquered, from the Mayfair Lounge of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, Captain Mollison was heard on 24 radio stations from Halifax to Victoria over a network arranged by the Canadian Pacific Department of Communications. Loud speakers installed in the lounge to 50,000 visitors at the big exhibition at Toronto.

Though the "Princess Royal," veteran of the Canadian Pacific Railway R. C. Coast steamship fleet has been scrapped, and is now in the limbo of departed ships, her favourite bell remains on the air at Ocean Falls, B.C., where it has been installed at the Ocean Falls United Church mission, which belongs to the spiritual welfare of Japanese citizens.

Official and unofficial delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference want it understood that August 12th to the 14th. Two tows from Ottawa were arranged, both leaving the capital in special Canadian Pacific trains late Friday night, August 12. Shawinigan Falls and Three Rivers were visited by one party, while the other members were cruising down the St. Lawrence from Montreal to Montreal and spending Saturday evening in the municipality. Some of the United Kingdom, Canadian, Australian, New Zealand or Newfoundland or Irish government ministers were able to spend themselves from Conference deliberations, but their delegations were well-represented. Ministers enjoying the trips were Hon. N. C. Havenga and Hon. A. P. J. Fourie, South Africa, and Hon. E. W. Moffatt, Southern Rhodesia. The Canadian Government was represented by Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. Maurice Dupre, with the Shawinigan party and Hon. Alfred Duranleau and Hon. R. Hermant, with the other party.

HIGH SPEED BLAMED

Accidents occurring on the County and Township roads in Ontario, which include main and trunk roads in Northern Ontario, indicate high speed as a definite contributory cause according to July reports. Lack of police control and less dense traffic conditions, undoubtedly cause many drivers on these roads to operate at speeds which leave their vehicles quite out of control in the event of an emergency. Too much speed for the time, place, condition of highway or condition of driver is responsible for the majority of these accidents.

Of the vehicles involved in accidents in July, 91.8 per cent. were passenger cars. Over 91 per cent. of the vehicles involved were reported as in "Apparent good condition". Of these involved shown to have mechanical defects, 23.1 per cent. had defective brakes 28.6 per cent. had defective light, 19.8 per cent. had a puncture or blow-out.

Of the 51 persons killed, 14 were pedestrians, this was a decrease of 3 from the number killed in July, 1931. Of the remaining 37 victims, 32 were occupants of motor vehicles (13 drivers and 19 passengers), 4 were bicyclists and 1 was a passenger on a horse-drawn vehicle. There were 38 males and 13 females killed.

Of the 935 persons injured by motor vehicles, 540 were male and 395 were female. Two hundred and eight pedestrians suffered injury; 117 of these were under 15 years of age (29 under 4 years, 38 between 5 and 9 years). The 727 remaining victims included 180 drivers, 458 passengers, 11 occupants of horse-drawn vehicles, 49 bicyclists, 22 motorcycle drivers and 7 motorcycle passengers.

There were 1,334 drivers involved during the month and of these 108 or 8.1 per cent. were female, the percentage for July, 1931 was 7.9. Ten female drivers were involved in fatal accidents in July, 1931 and 8 in July, 1932.

Of the 1,334 drivers, 14 were reported as intoxicated and 19 as driving while extremely fatigued, 97.5 per cent. were considered normal. Twenty and five tenths per cent (20.5%) of drivers were under 25 years of age, 54.5 per cent. were stated to have more than five years' driving experience. Two hundred and sixteen drivers (of whom 21 were non-residents) were arrested or summoned as the result of accident. Fifty-eight drivers, 4 of whom were involved in fatal accidents, had no driving license. Over 90 per cent. of the drivers were residents of Ontario. 8.9 per cent. were residents of the United States.

FIFTEEN MILES AN HOUR

"Speed" in a motor car is a comparative term. Traffic rules in Toronto call for a maximum speed of twenty miles an hour. Few people observe it. The average speed on the less congested thoroughfares is at least twenty-five miles and hour, unless a motorist is exceeding that rate considerably he is not liable to be molested. The speed limit in the country is thirty-five miles an hour, and the average motorist if he has a clear right of way is more apt to be travelling between forty and forty-five.

Dangerous speed depends on a number of factors—the condition of the car, the condition of the road, and sometimes the condition of the driver.

It will interest Toronto motorists to know that a little over twenty-five years ago, Dr. Winnett, well-known Toronto medical man, was fined for speeding in his Packard car—probably the first of its kind known here—and the charge read that he was travelling at a rate of "fifteen miles an hour." He protested that the car would not go that fast. The officers of the Crown took the car out and under a severe test they reached the maximum speed of fifteen miles and he was accordingly fined.

A short time ago, he inadvertently passed a red light and was duly summoned for doing so. He reported to the nearest police station and told the officer that the only previous occasion on which he had been accused of violating the traffic laws was when he had driven his car fifteen miles an hour. The surprise the police sergeant informed him that he was the man who laid the charge.

Today in a similar make of car on the permanent highways which now thread the province it would not be difficult to travel 75 miles an hour with comparative safety and in greater comfort than when the doctor was speeding fifteen miles an hour over the old gravel roads.—Toronto Telegram.

A doctor was called in to attend an ailing farmer.

"I can do nothing for you," said the doctor. "Change of climate is what you need."

"Change of climate!" repeated the farmer. "Goodness, doctor, I've lived in England all my life."

THE HUSTLER

Bill's out early and stays out late,
Hustling just as though times were good;
Doesn't lose heart when customers state
They'd gladly buy from him if they could,
Sort of discouraging keepin' on
When scarcely a dollar's in sight to earn,
But he says to me, "I want to be
First on hand when the tide shall turn.

"I've figured it out, and it seems to me
That nobody knows when this thing will end,
But first at the door, I want to be
When the man with money wants to spend.
So I keep on working night and day,
And I keep on trying from eight to five;
For when clears the sky and they start to buy
At least they'll know that I'm still alive.

"You can't just tell them a boom will start
And they'll need the goods that I have to sell,
But if I grow weary and faint of heart
And I crawl into my hiding shell,
They may all get going a month or two
Before what's up in in the world I learn;
So just watch me, on the job I'll be
All ready to go when the tide shall turn"

WOMEN TAXI DRIVERS OF WINNIPEG have been vindicated in the quashing of a bylaw forbidding women to act in that capacity. The reason for the verboten was that women might be contaminated by contact with the underworld in driving taxicabs. Mr. Justice Donovan in quashing the bylaw thought that the underworld might be benefitted by contact with woman taxi drivers, and that, in any event some people would prefer women to men taxicab drivers.

Have you been awakened in the middle of the night by a hideous blast of a giant whistle, loud enough to belong to the Steamship Leviathan, a nerve-destroying, sleep shattering sound which brings the light sleepers up standing in a cold sweat? Several nights recently has the quietness been disturbed by this hideous noise and enquiries are coming into the office, asking what it all means. At first folks thought that some large lake boat was whistling for the bridge tender to open the draw, but when the noise was repeated a night or two later that theory went out. It is said that the noise comes from a new locomotive whistle now being tried out, presumably to frighten motor car drivers away from railway crossings while the railway is using the rails in that particular locality, or somefin. However, there is a possibility of some nervous person, wakened from sleep in the middle of the night, at home or in the hospital, dying of fright which would make that particular whistle too expensive. Talk about foghorns at sea, and other loud noise creators, this noise demon of the night has everything stopped that moderns have experienced thus far, the sound being particularly peace destroying and appalling in the middle of the night when it carries a long distance through the quietness.

PORT INTERESTS AGAINST TREATY

Enquiry Reveals This Condition Along New England Coast

Boston, Mass., Sept. 13 (CP) — Among business organizations in New England, the State Manufacturers' Associations of Massachusetts and Connecticut are the leading supporters of the proposed development of the St. Lawrence River for power and navigation purposes, a treaty for which was recently signed by the United States and Canada and will be submitted to the United States Senate for ratification next December.

Port interests, on the other hand, in Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts intend to oppose the development of the St. Lawrence as a seaway to the Great Lakes.

These are the outstanding conclusions drawn from an inquiry by the New England Council, addressed to the Industrial Associations and leading Chambers of Commerce of the New England States, results of which were made public by the council today.

More and more the basic industries are finding that the most economical production requires large scale organization.—Sir Arthur Salter.

CANADA'S Permanent Character

There is iron and rock in the veins of Canada, as well as gold and silver. The stern and heroic qualities that conquered a wilderness and built a Dominion, united from Ocean to Ocean, still predominate in Canadian character. There is a permanency in this country that grows out of that character. It is expressed in institutions as well as individual craftsmanship and frugal industry.

The Bank of Montreal was the first permanent Bank in Canada. Having successfully co-operated with this country's people and business through the ups and downs of 115 years, the Bank today faces the future firm in its faith in the permanency of Canada's progress, and the character and resourcefulness of the Canadian people.

continues her education

You know Mrs. Davis—the little bride. Two weeks before her marriage she graduated from college with high honors. But in one respect her education has been neglected.

Yesterday, for instance, she picked up the telephone and called the grocer. "I would like," she said politely, "to have some things sent up. A bag of flour — three packages of breakfast food — one can of baking-powder — six bottles of ginger ale — a pound of coffee — a package of — what's that? Oh. Why, I'm sure I don't know what brand. Just any kind, I guess!"

No wonder the storekeeper interrupted her. He gets few orders like that nowadays. For wise housewives buy things by name. Not merely groceries, but kitchenware and piece-goods and household appliances; shoes and shirts and garden seeds; all the thousand and one things they need.

Mrs. Davis will complete her education. She will learn to study the advertisements in the daily paper, and to keep herself informed as to qualities and prices. She will take her place alongside thousands of other women as the efficient purchasing agent of her home.

Read the advertising columns of this paper regularly. They are your guide-posts to safe buying.

UNION MISSION MEETING HELD

WEST HUNTINGDON. —A most successful gathering of missionary workers was held at the home of Mrs. George Cooke, on Thursday afternoon, September 8th. The occasion was the monthly meeting of the United Church Woman's Missionary Society and took the form of an open meeting, ladies being present from eight societies of the district. These were Rawdon, Anglican; St. Andrews' Presbyterian and Moira, Holloway, Zion, of the Plainfield district, Bethel, Foxboro, and W. Huntingdon. Mrs. George Cooke presided, and after the opening hymn had been sung, called upon Rev. C. A. Sales, to offer prayer. An address of welcome was very fittingly given to the visiting ladies by Mrs. George Peet, in the name of the Society. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. Mrs. Sweet of Rawdon Anglican Society, gave a reading upon "Beautiful Things" and this was followed by a solo by Miss Morton "Love Lifteth me". Mrs. H. M. Hutton of Foxboro, was heard in a solo with guitar accompaniment by herself, headings followed by Mrs. Casey of Zion and Mrs. Samuel Kilpatrick of Beulah, also Mrs. S. Dunham of St. Andrews. The last item on the programme was a short address by Mrs. Denyes of Zion. A few words were added by Rev. C. A. Sales at the invitation of the chair. Auld Lang Syne was sung and a closing prayer offered by Mrs. Ketcheson of Zion. Refreshments were served on the lawn, where the meeting had been held, and before the friends dispersed a vote of thanks was accorded the hostess of the day and the local society for arranging for the outing and entertainment.

Rev. C. Armstrong Sales and Mrs. Sales returned from their vacation on Wednesday last, after a very enjoyable trip to Toronto and Montreal, visiting their daughters residing in these cities. During the pastor's absence the services in the West Huntingdon charge were efficiently conducted by lay preachers of the appointment, of whom there are five.

EVEN FIRE DEPARTMENT ANSWERED THE CALL

A trivial argument between three youths in a midtown cafe, Saturday afternoon, grew to such proportions that an impressive proposition whose efforts to stem the ebb and flow of the rising battle proved futile, suddenly started calling for the police. Some misguided helper or patron whose identity has still not been learned, immediately called the fire brigade. The department arrived with loud clangings and shrieking of siren, unloaded several lengths of hose and invaded the cafe in search of the blaze. Police stood in front and kept the crowd back. However, when the real reason for the call was learned, firemen called it a day, police stepped into the breach and restored order and business along Front Street went back to normal.

AVIATORS AGAIN TRY FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 12 — Unanounced in their first attempt to break the world's endurance refueling record for airplanes, two local aviators, Fred Hurtle and John Hressey, were in the air again today. They took off yesterday at 3.16 p.m. in the hope of bettering the 647-hour mark set up by Forest O'Brine and the late Dale Jackson.

A broken oil line forced them down last week after they had been in the air nearly 100 hours.

Correct Manners

THE BRIDE'S GOWN

Dear Mrs. Beechman:
Will you kindly tell me if the groom pays for the wedding gown, or if the bride pays for it? My friend and I have been arguing over the question.

B.

There is no cause for argument about this question, dear friend, for the rule is of the most definite kind. The bride or her family pays for the wedding gown. For the groom to do so—well, he just must not.

THE CHAPERON

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1.—If a group of young people were in a room and the parents appear, should the girls, as well as the boys, rise?

2.—If a girl asks a boy to accompany her to a dance, should she pay the admission fee?

3.—When a boy escorts a girl home, should she invite him in?

4.—When a chaperon invites a group of couples to attend a dance, should the chaperon pay the admission fee for all?

—E. G. The Crest

1—Yes, the girls rise to pay respect and compliment to the girl's mother, the hostess of the home and an older woman.

2—Yes, the girl should buy the tickets to complete her hospitable invitation.

3—This depends on the time. If, for instance it is after a dance or the theatre in the evening and an hour is too late for such an invitation.

4—The "chaperon" is usually not the "hostess". But, if in any case she is the hostess also, then she probably will wish to carry out the responsibility of her invitation by supplying the tickets also.

(And oh, dear E. G. The Great, can't I please persuade you to change your habits of letter paper and ink? The lurid red margin on your letter-paper is not the work of taste, and to "complete" the red-pens with red ink is just too terrible. I do hope that you did not just as a stunt for once, and that it isn't your habit to be such a "red" correspondent. The effect is frightening!)

SECRET WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1—I am to be married secretly. What would be the best to wear, a suit, street dress, or an informal afternoon dress?

2.—We intend to keep our marriage secret only a short time. What would be a good way to announce it?

My mother is not very able to entertain and I will have to do it myself. We will have a small apartment when we start housekeeping and there will not be much room for entertaining. Perhaps a small family dinner.

M.

1—This choice is just as you wish my dear girl, and as you find convenient. If you are leaving at once for your wedding trip, the suit would probably be the most convenient, and probably very useful for traveling, and undoubtedly extremely smart for your return.

2.—If you are to keep your marriage a secret really only a very short time..... a few days or two at the most, then you could send out the formal, engraved announcement. This is the dignified thing to do, and very fine to make the announcement to your lists of friends.

If the announcement is to be published in the papers with such an announcement, seems a bit awkward, then perhaps you could wait and have a housewarming as a form of announcement. Or you could tell your friends that you have enough to tell, and write notes telling those friends when you can for word-of-mouth announcement.

A FRIENDLY LETTER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:
I am fifteen years old and I would like very much to know what sort of letter to write to a boy-friend when I go away to the mountains for a vacation?

F

"Chatty" and "friendly" are the words for the letters that you write to the young man when you are a-holidaying. Don't be too—personal or too-colorful, but write in a natural way about the daily happenings of the days where you are, about the different people, about the friends that you are making, and the books that you are reading, and the thousand and one things that make holidays happy and charming.

They say Mrs. Beechman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.)

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

Very much sheltered are shoulders in the new frocks, even the formal ones. Nearly every frock has its jacket or there is a scarf. A lovely jacketed frock is done in heavy white crepe with a white satin spray like a fog feather encrusted at the waist and hip. There is a wide-sleeved coat.

Keep warm beneath the demure little capes that are all the go for evening. A new and charming conceit is of black satin with a ruffle round the edge of black chiffon. The collar is in let form and is made of white satin lilies.

A rush for ruchings is indicated by many of the new frocks. An evening ensemble of black chiffon has a ruching of moire taffeta at the hem and the matching chiffon jacket has the moire taffeta ruchings at the shoulder line and edging the short wide sleeves.

Other days had other modes but many of these fashions are back again. In the spirit of the Nineties is a wrap of ruby velvet with wide, leg o' mutton sleeves. The sleeves are finished with long, tight cuffs of snowy ermine and there is a scarf-cravat of the same precious fur.

A sure winner for Autumn is the dress coat of beige. A new model is done in beige wool velvet and has a wide, standing collar of wonderful kolinsky, the skins worked vertically. The line is simple, with a wrap-round skirt effect.

A brisk walk in the country in Autumn is a grand tonic and just the thing for the complexion after the sanning of the summer. Wear a knit suit. A new model is handsome in a gray homespun. Beckoned with blue and brown. The sweater is blue with a boy motif and there is a scarf of blue, yellow and white.

FILTHY PAPERS SHOULD BE BARRED FROM HOMES

GODERICH, Ont., Sept. 12.—(By the Canadian Press) Warning to parents of the pernicious and insidious influence on child life of pornographic and animoralistic books and papers has been issued by Rev. J. T. Judd, B.A., B.D., Rector of Goderich. The warning was voiced during the course of a confirmation service at St. Peter's Church yesterday.

"Keep them out of your homes. Keep your children away from them," said the Bishop. "You would not allow a filthy animal into your home; just so should you bar these filthy papers and magazines, which are procurable on our news stands today."

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Putting Shiny Noses Under Restraint

Freckles come and freckles go, fat cells take lodgings and then are gone again, plenty or beauty plants aren't chronic, but the shiny nose —mean, defiant, persistent— lives its own life. Its aim is to be beamish, to cast its bright rays into everybody's eye. But there are ways of tricking it, bringing it to time.

The powder pad isn't a weapon against it; it is an ally, though it dims radiance for the time being. If the pad is loaded with a creamy, heavy powder the application unites with the exudations of the pores, forms a pasty mass which shortly assumes a glimmer. It is by giving the surface of the feminine face a conditioning treatment before putting on make up that bits it where it lives.

Soap and water are to be used freely, but every particle of soap suds must be rinsed away. Cream is creamed, applied with vigorous friction start, oil ducts to flushing. Creams can be used, zapped on, wiped away thoroughly with cleansing tissues but they are not to remain over night nor are they to be pummeled into the pores. When the complexion is oily, it is best to rejhove makeup with cream, lather the skin with soap suds, rinse with cold water and dry. Then get in a final lick by moistening a small piece of coarse fabric with bay rum, eau de cologne, or any toilet liquid that contains alcohol, using the cloth as a dry cleansing agent. Observe the cloth afterwards! There will be yellow greasy spots, showing that it has done its work thoroughly and well.

There is another way to undermining the ambitions of a shiny nose. Diet. Develop a fervent appetite from green salads, fresh fruits, vegetables. Drink plenty of water. Take orange juice before breakfast. Pass by rich gravy, pastries containing a considerable amount of shortening, salad dressings containing olive oil, butter. The more fats and oils that are taken into the system, the more the sebaceous glands speed up on the spouting job. The skin is an eliminating organ. Mustn't forget that.

Only the dryest, friend, softest complexion powders should be used. Since the sun tan craze tufted pads into gyrate, there has been no abiding interest in heavy powders of adhesive qualities. They are of the oily character. Make a soft Roll powder between finger and thumb. If it has that look of sherbet, take dough just before liquid is added. It is not for the skin that gushes forth a film of grease.

Compresses of cold witch hazel will bring an oily nose to its senses. Dip a fair sized piece of cotton in ice cold witch hazel, slap over, cover with a bit of waxed paper. Use a compress that will cover the nose completely and extend well over the cheeks; it is just as well to include some of the surrounding cutaneous area. To keep the waxed paper snug and clear, it will be necessary to hold the compress in place. But what's that both in the cause of pulchritude?

The purpose of the compress is to close the pores, make circulation march, subdue oil ducts. The time for this beauty rite is after the face has been washed and pat to bed at night. Fifteen minutes a week are sufficient. Within one month's time—if you pat, your mind on it—there will be satisfactory results.

CHILDREN LIKE CERTO-MADE JAM MUCH BETTER

"I USE CERTO in all my jams and jellies," writes Mrs. F. Fentiman, Ottawa West, Ont., "and find it very good. Too, the children like jam made the Certo way much better."

Acts Like Magic

Certo—the easy, modern, "short-boil" method has many advantages. You boil for just a few minutes and if directions are carefully followed you can always rely on a perfect set, 90% more jam-or jelly from a given amount of fruit—no failure—no waste.

Think of the variety Certo provides. Use any fruit you like—fresh, canned or dried —or fruit juice. Results are always perfect.

The Certo recipe booklet is under the label of every Certo bottle. These home-tested recipes show how to use any fruit with sure success including fruits that never before would jell.

Don't be perplexed by any problem of jam or jelly making. Should you desire any information whatsoever, write to the Consumer Service Department, General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ontario.

YANKEES, CUBS CAN COP FLAGS COMING WEEK

Chicago Will Have The Hardest Time to Make Grade

6 GAME LEAD

Yanks Made No Progress as Wes. Ferrell Tames Them

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major league finish line still is 14 days away but, with a little luck, both pennant races may be decided this week.

The New York Yankees are almost certain of clinching the American League flag within the next few days. They need only two victories to eliminate the sole remaining contenders, the Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators. In the National League, the Chicago Cubs are confronted with a harder task. They need ten victories to eliminate the Pittsburgh Pirates, or any combination of victories, which coupled with Pittsburgh defeats totals ten. The odds are against any definite decision in the National League this week but it could be done if the Pirates hit the slide.

Ahead Six Games

The Cubs stretched their lead over the idle Pirates to six full games yesterday by trimming the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-1, behind Guy Bush's eight-hit pitching. Gabby Hartnett's home run with Manager Charley Grimm on the paths, gave the Cubs their winning margin in the fourth inning. The defeat all but eliminated the Dodgers from the race. They automatically will be out of it as soon as the Cubs win four games or when any combination of Cubs' victories and Dodger defeats total four. You can't beat a team with a mathematical chance to win, as the Philadelphia Phillies, but they will go out as soon as the Cubs win three games.

Braves Tie

The Boston Braves beat the Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a double bill, 13-3 and 10-1, and drew to within a game a half of the fourth place Phillies. Tom Zachary and Ben Cantwell pitched good ball for the Braves and they had the benefit of some high-powered hitting by Dutch Holland, Wally Berger and Randy Moore. The St. Louis Cardinals shoved their bold on sixth place by beating the New York Giants, 3-2 in the second game of a double header after taking a 7-3 beating in the opener.

American League

The Yankees made no progress in their march to the American League flag for they were stopped by Wes Ferrell and the Cleveland Indians, 5-4. Ferrell making his first appearance after a 10 day absence, held the Yankees to eight hits and won his 21st. game of the season.

Jimmie Foxx broke a batting slump with one on was the margin by which the Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers, 3-2. Washington made it 23 victories in 34 games by tripping the Chicago White Sox twice, 3-1 and 5-3, and moved to within one game of the Athletics.

The St. Louis Browns, after breaking an eight game losing streak in the first game, 7-1, dropped the second to the Boston Red Sox 5-2. Dale Alexander poled a home run with the bases filled and two doubles in the second game.

CURRENT SPORT
Knocks and Boosts

Although the local Victorias got a real bad game out of their system at Newcastle on Saturday afternoon they pulled through with a last minute rally to win the game 12 to 11 from Orme Gamsby's Orono club. To say the least the game was most exciting as first the locals would go on a batting rampage and then the other club would start on a rampage to gain an advantage. To Johnnie Kerr and Lloyd Blakey, however, goes the lion's share of the glory. They both hit for letter with the bases well populated, Flagler and Latchford also hit well.

The return game, which is scheduled to be played in Bellville next Wednesday afternoon should see action aplenty. According to information received we hear that the Orono coached club are a tough team to beat away from home. They took Ray Rose's Peterboro intermediates one game right in the tail Lock City last week after having a close game at home. Gamsby has been piloting baseball teams, in and around Orono for years but next Wednesday will be the first appearance in Orono's John J. McGraw to pilot a ball club on a Belleville diamond. Orme is a second Jake Solomon, if we remember Jake.

Both teams were forced to use two pitchers again on Saturday, Haley they started on the hilltop for the Vics but the latter was afforded a disorganized left hander was nothing to rave about. While they was in the box the Vics bombed, kicked and threw the ball around like a bunch of school boys. When Archie Campbell assumed the pitching assignment, however, the team settled away and played a little better. Bowman started on the hilltop for the Orono nine and buried Haley good ball until he literally fell to pieces in the seventh. Osborne, who relieved him, was quite wild and the Vics took advantage of his wildness by waiting him out.

No doubt Archie Campbell will draw the pitching duties on Wednesday while Manager Gamsby may send Bowman right back at the Vics.

It looks as though the local pressboxers are trying to get Ned Mitchells of Peterboro a trimming. The Peterboro boxer gave George Seabrook a swell passing about three weeks ago and now he has again matched him with Scotty Kline. If per gues is as at all right Kline must be about eight or nine pounds heavier than the Lift Lock City scrapper. Of course Minicola may have put on some weight lately. (?) Kline beat George Semark over at Picton on Saturday night when the Ind La Rouge took two falls from Jack Rogue. Matchmaker Corcoran announced this morning that the Masked Marvel would not be able to appear in Belleville on Wednesday night in order to give the patrons something for their money Mr. Corcoran has substituted either Tiny Ruff of Oklahoma, or Dr. Ralph Wilson of Philadelphia to meet Scotty McDougal in place of the Marvel. Personally we hope that Doc. Wilson gets the call. He is a "dig tiger" having been matched with Sonnenberg and Londos last spring. Both Wilson and Ruff are better wrestlers than have ever appeared in a local ring before, therefore the patrons are gaining a little by the substitution.

According to a recent Canadian Press dispatch the Toronto Maple Leafs, world's hockey champions, have not definitely decided whether or not the Belleville or Kingston-Belleville can give the Leafs everything that Kingston can in the line of training facilities. Some interested person should get busy immediately on the subject. Although there have been current rumors about town regarding the Belleville Arena we might add here that now that the Belleville Arena will undoubtedly be opened as per usual this year.

Today's question: C. W. M. seeks the following information: When and where was Ty Cobb born? Who was the major league record for sacrifice hits in a season? Has any regular outfielder in the majors completed a season without making an error?

Cobb was born at Narrows, Bank County, Ga., December 17, 1886. Ray Chapman holds the sacrifice record in majors with 67, made in 1917. No outfielder has ever played more than 100 games in a season in the majors without making at least one error.

CAR IS HIDDEN BEHIND BUSH

Police On Information Find Abandoned Car in Huntingdon

Hidden behind a large clump of cedar bushes and well secluded an abandoned sedan was found by the Provincial Police late Sunday afternoon, on the ninth concession of Huntingdon.

When found the car was minus the usual license plates which leads the police to believe that the automobile had been stolen. No keys were found in or around the car but the starting device had been wired so as to be able to start the machine without the use of the ignition key.

Neighbors in the vicinity saw the car hidden in the bushes and informed the police. It took the combined efforts of the officers and some neighbors to get the car from the field as it had settled behind some large rocks. Just how the car got into the position it was in when found is a mystery to the police, as it was necessary to lift the sedan clear of some of the large rocks in order to get it out.

The car is at present in the possession of the provincial police and its serial number will be sent to the Department of Highways in Toronto to try and ascertain the rightful owner.

The barn was totally destroyed. The body was found in the ruins.

Victorias Wage Uphill Battle To Defeat Orono in 1st Game Of Third Round by 12-11 Count

Game Played at Newcastle Tied No Less Than Four Times

HEAVY HITTING

Kerr, Blaker and Flagler Apply Willow to Horschide

In a game, which saw both teams enjoy a batting orgy, the locals won from the Belleville Victorias noses out a 13 to 11 victory over the Orono intermediates at Newcastle on Saturday afternoon. The series is the third round for the Victorias as they have swept all opposition before them in the previous intermediate O.B.A.A. play-downs.

The game at Newcastle was the first of a home and home series with the second game being played at Belleville on Wednesday afternoon. Although the Victorias pulled out a win by counting seven runs in the ninth innings, they have not a sound ball club out for themselves to take the Orme Gamsby-coached-club into camp at the finish of the series.

Ralph Ibey was Manager Pannell's choice as starting hurler although the elongated left hander began well, he was relieved by Archie Campbell in the seventh innings with the score standing 4 to 7 in favor of the locals. The game was all knotted up four different times during the nine innings and the large crowd of fans simply howled with delight when the homesters forged ahead in the deciding round.

Mound Ace Relieved.

Bowman was Manager Gamsby's choice for mound duty and although he held the locals helpless for the first half of the game, he faltered badly in the fifth and was later replaced in the sixth by Osborne, a speed ball artist. The Orono nine opened auspiciously by scoring in the initial frame and added two more runs in the fifth innings. In the fourth, the Vics, realizing an early comfort lead in their half of the fifth, they tied it up. Not to be outdone, the Vics came back with a vengeance and crossed the plate five times to forge ahead in the sixth by the count. There was no more scoring in evidence until the eighth, when Belleville scored two and the peaky and determined Orono batters staged a rally to score nine runs and take the lead by the score of 11 to 10. The Vics' big hitters of Blaker, Kerr and Flagler all connected at opportune moments with the result that the Vics pushed two runs across the platter to win the game, 12 to 11. In the last half of the ninth Campbell set the Orono hitters down in order.

Kerr Hits Well.

Once again Jonnie Kerr's big bat sounded defeat for the opposing nine, he singled with the bases filled and a double also hit for a triple play. Blaker also doubled while Flagler also had well in the pinches as he did himself. Ross and Beurgoyne fielded well while Latchford replaced Darrah at second in the eighth inning. Ross and Beurgoyne also starred in the field for the locals settled away to bring victory to the Vics.

In all probability Archie Campbell will oppose Osborne on the hilltop in the return intended game to be played in Belleville on Wednesday. On the other hand coach Chummy Gerow may use Ralph Ibey right back at the Orono nine or he may start Ed. Hutton on the hill. Manager Gamsby, the Orono John J. McGraw, may use Bowman his curve ball artist right back at the Vics.

The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Belleville .. 000 125 022—12	11	6
Orono .. 100 250 003—11	15	2

Batteries: Belleville Vics. —Ibey, Campbell and Seeney. Orono: Bowman, Osborne and Hutton.

Umpires—Colling of Belleville at the plate and Dell of Oshawa on bases.

The fire started before men were to work and assumed such proportions within half an hour that it appeared obvious nothing could be done to save the mill.

Firemen concentrated their efforts on saving the summer's cut of timber and succeeded in confining the blaze to the mill itself which was levelled to the ground with all machinery inside ruined.

Search Continuing Along Southeast Coast of Greenland

Copenhagen, Sept. 13 (AP) — A motor boat party from the Danish-American East Greenland expedition and a naval plane from a Danish exploration ship joined today in search for the "Flying Hutchinsons" along the southeast Greenland coast radio dispatches said.

The British trawler Lord Talbot had failed today to find any trace of George R. Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and four other members of his party when it raced to the point where they flashed distress signals early today.

The naval flying machine No. 84, from the Danish scientific expedition, headed by Dr. Knud Rasmussen, took off from Julianehaad, near the southern tip of Greenland to follow the route taken by the Hutchinsons.

The Hutchinsons had left Julianehaab, bound for Angmagsalik, on another stage of their projected flight from New York to London.

It was not known whether or not Dr. Rasmussen was aboard the Danish naval plane.

Man Charged with Murder was Formerly Ward of Marchmont Home in Belleville 20 Yrs Ago

Worked For John Junior Farmer in Brighton Township

SERVED OVERSEAS

All Speak Highly of Qualities of Young Man Charged

Campbellford, Sept. 12.—"A decent, industrious man." "Handy about the farm."

That remarked John Junior, bachelor farmer of Brighton Township, was the general impression he had of a former "hired man", whom he had first known over twenty years ago as a "home boy newly arrived in this country from England."

Today the "home boy" now in his early forties is held in custody at Peterborough. He is Henry Reid, 42, known locally as "Shorty," alias "The Michigan Kid", who is charged with murder of John Henry Thomas, unemployed Belleville war veteran.

It is one of those strange coincidences of fate that both "Shorty" and the dead man are associated with Belleville. It was to the old Marchmont Home in the Quinte City that accused came direct from his homeland and it was from there he was "hired out" to Mr. Junior for whom he worked for several years.

As a boy "Shorty" attended Myersburg School and was a frequent worshipper at Sunday School also. But like most normal high spirited boys he occasionally played "hookey" and would wander off sometimes for a day or two at a stretch.

It was for that one reason that his farmer employer, who was responsible to the Home authorities for the boy's conduct decided to let him go; at the end of the first three years. "Shorty" returned to the Home and it was some years before he was again seen in the Brighton district.

Evidently mindful of the kindly treatment he had received while with Mr. Junior, "Shorty" returned to see him. But it was a different "Shorty" he found. "I hardly knew him. He was bald and looked a great deal older than his years," remarked the kindly old farmer as he leaned on his hay fork and looked at his labours to chat with a reporter.

In Bantam Battalion

The war period had intervened and "Shorty" like so many thousands of other men the world over had answered the call of duty. He enlisted, so it is learned, with a Bantam battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. His diminutive stature, however, prevented his entry into any other unit. Yet, he managed to get transferred while in England to the Royal Engineers Imperial Forces, and saw active service on the French and Russian fronts.

It is not definitely known whether or not "Shorty" was wounded, but he has been heard to remark that he received a head injury when kicked by an army horse. At all events the man who had previously held a reputation as being of a mild inoffensive disposition had now become subject to occasional bursts of violent temper, followed by long spells of sobbing.

Mr. Junior could not remember the old hands as having been anything but a quiet even-tempered fellow. "He had a head pain sometimes. I never even heard him swear. You could jaw at him and he would never answer back. He would not imagine Henry doing anything like that," the farmer gasped expressing his surprise at hearing of Reid's arrest for murder.

Worked at Harvest

Since "Shorty" left Mr. Junior to return to the Home at Belleville, now some seventeen years ago, he has been back the odd time or two to help at threshing. The last occasion on which he worked for Mr. Junior was about ten years back, when he helped for a month at harvest time.

The farmer also recalled another time when he had paid "Shorty" two dollars a day for threshing. That was the only time he had seen him dressed up, he smiled, as he recalled how proud he was then almost his entire pay on a mail order suit of clothes and other articles of wearing apparel.

Following the coroner's inquest meeting with the little man now under arrest, Mr. Junior stated, "Shorty" came to the farm one night last March. The snow was on the ground and he had stayed overnight. The next morning I went to the barn and on my return found "Shorty" partaking breakfast. Later he swept up around the house after which he left without saying where he was going."

Worked For Fred S. Keller

It is probable that "Shorty's" visit to the old farm at the Bridge was largely followed upon his leaving the employ of Fred S. Keller proprietor of Bridge Lake summer resort, where he had worked all last winter and in the early summer of the year previous.

Mr. Keller, the proprietor of the Gibson Hotel, Campbellford, stated that Reid had worked intermittently for him for the past twelve years. He was employed as handyman at the hotel for the last three years immediately prior to Mr. Keller's retirement. He was a steady, easy going fellow, never drank to excess. Reid had occasionally worked at Healy Falls resort.

There was no doubt at all that the man held by Peterborough City Police on the capital charge, in the opinion of his employer, correctly described him to the reporter exactly, as being an unsophisticated, harmless little man, who was going bald. His age would be about 40 to 50 years, he judged.

Of Reid's temperament and disposition Mr. Keller, spoke of him as being "handy around the house". He stated that Reid loved dogs, and kept things clean and was generally industrious.

There was one failing, however, to which Mr. Keller referred as being the reason why he had to let Reid go last March. That was the little man's violent temper.

Mrs. Keller also spoke of Reid's periodic outbursts of temper and described the fits of sobbing that would invariably follow. "It was very hard to get along with at such times," Mrs. Keller stated, "and it often led us to believe that he was not in his right mind on such occasions. He used to tell us that he had received an injury to his head, I believe he was kicked by a horse at some time."

"Henry worked for us off and on for twelve or thirteen years," Mrs. Keller also remarked. "And I am sorry to hear he has ended up like this."

Known as "Hank"

While in Belleville the way to Mr. Junior's farm which is located at lot 34, concession 10, Brighton Township, the Examiner was also called at Myersburg general store, kept by Mrs. Sarah Buchanan.

Mrs. Buchanan, who is a sister of Mr. Junior's, in answer to a question said, "I knew "Hank" Reid he used to work for my brother." She had also been reading of the man's arrest in The Examiner she stated. Asked what kind of a man she regarded Reid as having been, Mrs. Buchanan replied, "He was a good little fellow—a smart little fellow to work and do chores."

"Did you regard him as normal?" she was asked. "Not after he came from overseas," was the reply.—The Peterboro Examiner.

Bandit Raids and Battles Take Terrific Toll on Manchurian Railway Line

Golfers Attacked Who Fight Clear With Clubs

MANY KILLED

Japanese Clash With Chinese All Along Railway

HARBIN, Manchuria, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-four persons were killed, upwards of 70 injured, and an undetermined number kidnapped and 100 robbed in a series of three combination bandit raids and train wrecks near here within 24 hours, it was learned today.

In addition to these casualties more than 200 were killed and several wounded in a battle between Japanese troops and Chinese bandits 30 miles farther south than Taying. The Japanese clashed with the bandits, who were raiding part of the Chinese Eastern railway on which the three wrecks occurred.

Twelve passengers were killed, 67 injured, and 600 robbed in the first wreck when the bandits derailed the regular Changchun-Harbin train at Shuangchengpu, 70 miles north of Harbin late Saturday night.

Six passengers were killed, 11 injured and 100 kidnapped in a second wreck of a passenger train bound for Harbin in the neighborhood of Chengkutun, in the Eastern Chinese Railway Zone.

Said Golf Course

In another bandit raid on a golf course here, a party of British and United States golfers fought their way out to safety with golf clubs after a machine gun battle in which two of the British contingent were wounded seriously.

The British Consul-General sent a vigorous protest to the Japanese advisors of the native police over the attack on the golfing party.

Five bandits, the victims said, swooped down upon them with sawed-off revolvers. The two British wounded reviewers were shot in the stomach, it was reported.

Mr. Mehlin, manager of the Shanghai and Hong Kong Bank in Harbin, and his assistant, a Mr. Hansel.

The bandits escaped in an automobile.

U. S. Citizen Robbed

Henry Haviland Garland, son of a New York publisher, was a passenger on the train that was attacked, and looted last night. He saved his money and passport by concealing them under his shirt. But all his baggage was stolen and his clothes torn to shreds.

The holdup occurred in the dead of night 40 miles from Harbin when a desperadoes, having ripped up fifty desperadoes, having ripped up fifty feet of railroad, derailed the train at the Pails, attacked when the train struck the gap in the track.

They began looting immediately, ignoring the groans of the dying. The injured lay in the wreckage until daylight. Those who escaped all owe their lives to the fact that they were in the second class cars instead of the terrific impact of the derailment.

The Soviet Consul at Dairen and the Soviet trade representative there were among those who were robbed.

TWO ACCIDENTS NEITHER SERIOUS

One May Result in Driver Being Hailed Into Court

Two minor motor car accidents were reported to the traffic officers over the week-end. About 9.20 p.m. Sunday evening a rather severe accident happened at what is considered a dangerous corner. Mr. Bert Laughlin, 29 College street was driving his car southward and after just making the corner, the steering mechanism of the steering knuckle broke with the result, that the car got out of control and went into the ditch.

No serious injuries were reported to have befallen the occupants of the car although little Gerald Laughlin son of the driver of the car, received a nasty cut on the forehead, which Dr. Blakelee treated. No serious damage was reported to have happened to the car.

The second accident happened about 10.15 p.m. on the curve about one mile south of Foxboro on highway No. 14. Alex. Johnson, of R.R. No. 1, Tweed was driving north, when the left portion of the car at this point and ran into the gasoline station situated on the east side of the highway at the above mentioned curve. The accident was investigated by the provincial police and after thoroughly probing the matter Johnson was exonerated and it is alleged will appear in the police court Monday morning charged with reckless driving.

60 MILE WIND IS CAUSE OF ONE DEATH

London, Sept. 13—A 60 mile wind whipped the North Sea and nearby water into fury yesterday, harassing shipping, and causing at least one death.

A French steamer rescued a man from a sinking motorboat near Shourvn, while another passenger in the small craft was drowned.

The steamer Collier Golfer was driven ashore in the storm. Her anchor cable broke up, but the crew reached safety.

FEELING RUNS HIGH ABOUT DEPORTATION

Kamrack, Sask., Sept. 12 (CP)—Rumors that deportation papers had been served upon their leader, Peter Verigin, titular head of the Doukhobors in Canada, have caused unusual interest in this community and feeling is running higher than at any time since the christain of the Christian community of universal brotherhood was sentenced to serve 18 months for perjury. But no disorders occurred here as hundreds of Doukhobors discussed the situation over the week end.

Especially are the Sons of Freedom, insurgent group of the Doukhobors, incensed at the fate, which is said to be awaiting Verigin.

NOSE DIVED TO HIS DEATH

Controls Jammed When Plane 200 Feet Above Earth

Toronto, Sept. 12.—Leonard Train, 25, Toronto, is dead today as the result of a nose dive by a one-seater plane in which he was flying. The accident occurred yesterday at Nobleton, north of Toronto, in full view of his wife and nine year old son, Buddy.

Train, visiting his wife at the farm of her father, had taken off for a short trip, after refusing his wife's request to be allowed to go with him. He had reached a height of 200 feet when the controls refused to jam, and the craft nose-dived, crashing in a burst of flames to a field a short distance away.

Only last Saturday Train received his pilot's license from Ottawa. He had been flying, however, for several years.

167 CLAIMS ARE RECORDED

Gold Rush in 3 Townships Assuming Major Proportions

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 12 (CP)—Located in five townships within a radius of 25 miles of the Dayone gold area, 167 claims have been recorded in the first three days of activity since September 1, according to mining engineers in charge of the field.

Recently reports of gold finds in Lansey, Denzyes and Falconer townships touched off the rush, which is steadily gaining momentum and assuming major proportions. Most details from the field of activity state the gold is in low grade ore, many claims staked but not recorded as have mining engineers gone.

Aeroplane services are operating over the field using Champlain and Dayone Lakes as bases for, staking has been confined mostly to professional prospectors working for syndicates or by field parties out for established mining companies.

British Seamen Met Test of Winds at Hurricane Strength

CARRIED LINE

Second Officer Swam to Shore and Fixed Line on Rock

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 13 (CP)—Winds of hurricane strength, driving rain, fog, and the sea churned to a cauldron of crashing surf in Canso harbor met the test again Saturday. Two men died, Thirty-eight came through 200 yards of furious water to safety on the awaiting lifesaf of a three-inch rope—slender enough in that welter of sea and wind—the entire Watford crew were drawn gasping to shore. All but two, in the afternoon of the abandoned freighter lay John Johnson's body. The West Indian sailor died of shock and exposure as the Watford sank.

The first officer William Knight, second last man to leave the ship was swept out of the breeches' buoy last as he started the hazardous journey 37 men had taken before. Commander ashore wept openly as they saw the officer lose his grip, and fall to his death.

The crew was swept away from the steamer before another could be attached and hauled. Mann joined the rescuers, who lay on Kidd's Island, a fifty-foot cliff and made the rope fast to a giant tree as powerful lines were aloft ashore by rockets.

POLICE DOG BITES CHILD

Necessary For Medical Attention to be Given

Although there have been many reports of police dogs biting children and adults throughout Ontario, Saturday was the first day for such reports to be brought to the police in Belleville.

Mr. Frank Miller, 68 Cedar St., reported to the police that his son Allen, aged 11 years, had been bitten twice by a police dog in the back. The local police investigated the case and found that the boy had been bitten and it was necessary to take the boy to a local physician's office for medical treatment, following the canine's outbreak of viciousness. After receiving the attentions of a doctor the Miller boy was taken to his home.

The police spoke to the owner of the dog and informed him that the canine was either to be kept locked up or they would have to dispose of it.

Costly Vessel Confiscated Large Seizure of Liquor Made

Boston, Mass., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The largest liquor seizure made in New England on a boat took place in Dorchester Bay Sunday as customs men discovered 1,000 barrels and sacks of contraband in the 122-foot yacht Prudence, and arrested its captain and crew of seven.

The vessel, registered to Mason Dilloway of New York, was obviously equipped. The craft, customs men said, left the Bay of Fundy last Wednesday, stopped a day later at South Bay Harbor, Me., and put into Boston. It was about to depart for New York when customs men discovered the liquor.

At first a thorough search of the vessel revealed nothing, when the customs men had about give up examination of the craft, one of their number, found a peculiar electric light fixture in the main cabin. When he touched it, the bulb fell in his hand and disclosed a hidden cache.

A log at the cords, officers said, caused a panel, eight by five feet, to open on a hatchway. The customs men entered the secret passage, which, they said, led them to forward hold, where they found the liquor valued at $250,000. A similar valuation was placed on the boat.

Captain Norman McWilliams of Boston was held in $10,000, while members of the crew were held in $5,000 each. The yacht was escorted to the authorities' stores where a heavy guard was placed over the cargo.

Query Every Candidate on Attitude Toward School Question Language

Toronto, Sept. 12.—(By the Canadian Press)—Orangemen of Ontario considered today a proposal to query every candidate in the next provincial election on his attitude toward the school language question.

Rev. F. C. Ward White, Vicar of St. Alban's Cathedral here and County Chaplain of the Orange Order, told the Scarlet Council of the Loyal Orange Association yesterday, that the only way to assert the teaching of English in Ontario schools—and English only—is to present every candidate at the next general election with a questionnaire to determine his attitude.

Commenting on the present unemployment situation, the Vicar declared that if he had the power he would conscript individual wealth in Canada to alleviate unemployment, particularly among war veterans.

CAPITOL OFFERS MARRIAGE MIXUP

Careers Hindrance to Happy Wedded Lives

Putting novelty and entertainment into the statement of a domestic problem is one of the tough problems that has always confronted playwrights and stage and screen directors. The way in which it was handled in "Week-End Marriage," the Fox National picture which opened today at the Capitol Theatre, deserves a bit of notice.

This story of an almost ill-fated marriage strikes a happy medium between its problem and entertainment aspects through the combination of good writing, fine acting and splendid direction. It also provides winsome Loretta Young with one of the finest vehicles of her career. Can two people make a go of marriage while both are busy carving out careers for themselves in the business world? This is the question the picture propounds, and then it goes ahead and weaves a delightful plot around this question. The picture definitely proves, as far as its story is concerned, that marriage is a full-time career for women, and not a matter of week-ends only.

The husband and wife team of Loretta Young and Norman Foster, which scored so strongly in "Play Girl," again proves intriguingly effective. These two players add quite a fine sparkle to their performances.

Aline MacMahon, as the older sister, gives an outstanding, piece of acting. Her sharp-tongued levity and dry humor, effectively displayed in "Five Star Final" and "The Mouthpiece," find an excellent outlet in "Week-End Marriage." George Brent, Hollywood's latest male "rave," plays the part of the "other man."

The story is based on a novel by Faith Baldwin that was adapted by Sheridan Gibney.

"Week-End Marriage" is sincere and very pleasing screen entertainment. See it for a genuinely pleasing evening!

WAR VETERANS SUPPORT GOV'T

Calls Upon Von Hindenburg to Exercise All His Power

Berlin, Sept. 12 (AP) — The support of Germany's organized war veterans, through the executive committee of the Stahlhelm (Steelhelm) was offered to President Von Hindenburg today as the government-sponsored fight to battle with Adolf Hitler and his allies in the Reichstag, which was scheduled to meet at 3.00 p.m.

"The past 14 years have proved that an independent responsible government cannot be obtained by elections," the veterans' statement to the president said. "Therefore, away with effete parliamentarianism! We demand that this government march forward and act, now!"

In this way it will gain the confidence of the whole nation."

While Chancellor Franz Papen planned to lay before the Reichstag his complete program, including the far-reaching plan for economic rehabilitation and re-employment of millions of jobless, Hitler, his chief opponent, was leaving his home city turned to bolster his strength for the expected battle.

Reigning upon the situation created by Germany's demand for arms equality and France's recent, note referring the matter to the League of Nations, Hitler announced he had created a special defense department and a department of economics in his Nazi organization. There have also been recent German demands for a return of some of the colonies lost through the World War.

MISS BANKHEAD STARS IN ROMANCE OF THE SEA

"Devil and the Deep," Tallulah Bankhead's new starring vehicle which is the feature offering at the Belle Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee daily, serves two outstanding purposes: It gives the glamorous star a dramatic story worthy of her talents, and it introduces, in Charles Laughton, a new character actor who looks like the first genuine successor to Lon Chaney.

Miss Bankhead's Pauline Sturm is far and away the best characterization the star has contributed to pictures. As the tortured wife of the half-mad submarine commander she gives a sustained performance of great depth and richness and rises to extraordinary heights in the exciting climax scene in which she holds at bay the crew of a sinking submarine and tries to convince them of her husband's madness. Her voice has never recorded so well; nor has she ever been photographed to better advantage.

For his performance as the jealous, cruel commander, Charles Laughton's name will go down in picture history. He creates a half-pathetic, half-terrifying portrait of the depraved submarine commander, the soul of kindness and geniality in public but a raging, jealous fiend when he and his wife are left alone. It is a character that might easily have been ruined by overacting, if the role had been placed in inexperienced hands, but Laughton's characterization is devastating in its credibility.

The film, which takes place in a north African port where Sturm's submarine is stationed, is based on the commander's insane jealousy of his young wife. Up to the time of the story's opening, Pauline has never given him a thought but her husband, and he, himself, has been responsible for most of the gossip about her that have been circulated among the English colony in Algiers. On this one night, terrorized by her husband's threats to kill her, she slips out into the streets of the city and is caught in a mob of natives who are celebrating a religious festival. She is rescued from the press of the crowd by a young Spaniard, Gonsalvo, and, riding out into the desert with him, learns to love him. He induces out to be the new lieutenant on her husband's ship. As soon as Sturm discovers that Gonsalvo has left his post, he orders the submarine to sail, and plans to wreck the ship and cut off all means of escape for all of them. Once the fleet maneuvers, the submarine are packed with swift action and melodrama, and the film moves quickly to a dramatic denouement.

Gary Cooper gives an excellent performance in the role of Lieutenant Gonsalvo, and the supporting cast is more than adequate.

"MARY FAITH"

By Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

He began to laugh. "Well, I'll be doggoned," he said. "You've got me with the goods this time, haven't you?—Let me tell you both what happened; I was walking down Bloor street, on the other side from whom should I run into but Claire. She was on her way to the City Whistle to get a bite of lunch and so was I. So we went there together, or, as I afterwards found out, looking into Arruthnaiter's window and we saw this little cupid. She must have gone in after I left her and bought it.

He picked it up and put it back into the box.

"I suppose I ought to have said something about it," he woke ran on, "but I forgot all about it. After all it wasn't anything to remember was it?—Having lunch with the wife of one of your friends? We thought Jack might join us there. He eats lunch there himself almost every day."

He raised his eyes and looked across the table at Mary Faith.

"You aren't angry are you Kim?"

"Why of course not, Kim. Why would I be angry? I'm not the perfect right to have lunch with Claire if I want to."

And then they began to talk about something else and the matter of the cupid was forgotten.

But the next morning Mrs. Farrell brought it up. While she was watched Mary Faith wasting out the baby's hair and putting him in the bathroom bowl.

"I wouldn't trust that Mrs. Maldon any further than I could throw an elephant by the tail," she remarked from her seat on the him of the bathtub. "I wouldn't be surprised to find out that she had asked Kimberley to take her to lunch. You take a woman like that, who has a lot of time on her hands and piles them out of to she's just the kind that goes around having love affairs with her husband's friends or with any other good-looking man that she takes a fancy to."

Mary Faith shook her dark glossy head as she wrung the baby's little nightgowns out of the fluffy soap suds.

"I'm not worrying about Claire Maldon, Mother Farrell," she answered, "or about any other woman these days. Why Kim's home before six almost every night and he's as settled and as sober as a judge lately. I don't believe he has anything but business on his mind."

On the first of April the firm gave him a salary raise of ten dollars a week.

"Seventy smackers now for you two to throw around every week of your lives!" he told his mother and Mary Faith when he came home with the news. "That ought to buy the baby shoes every now and then, eh what?" He twinkled with satisfaction and pride.

"Or some new clothes for me and Mary Faith," said his mother. "We're like a couple of scarecrows."

"Yes, but we hardly ever go out, and when we do we go in the car and nobody sees us. It's Kim who needs new clothes right now. His spring overcoat is faded and worn around the cuffs and pocket—and appearance is everything to a man. He must look successful or he never gets anywhere in his work." Mary Faith put in. "So I think Kim ought to get himself a new overcoat before the rest of us even think of new clothes."

But the next week Mrs. Farrell went downtown on a shopping trip and came home with a new hat of bright blue felt that brought out all the hollows and shadows of her face.

"I took five dollars out of the housekeeping money and bought myself this hat," she confessed to Mary Faith when she came home. "I had to go up to see Dr. Thatcher and I hated to go in that gray hat of mine. I've worn that hat every time I've gone up there for the last three years."

She went downtown once every three or four weeks, and Mary Faith had noticed that when she came home she always spoke of having seen Dr. Thatcher. And yet, so far as she knew, he never sent her a bill. Moreover she had no illness that she ever spoke of.

"Don't you think it's high time that Dr. Thatcher sent us a bill, Mother Farrell?" she asked now. "The baby is almost four months old. Next time you go down to his office perhaps you ought to say something to him about it."

Her mother-in-law shook her head in its gay new hat.

"No. He'll send it when he gets ready to," she replied. "He's an old friends of ours as well as our doctor, Mary Faith. And sometimes he doesn't send us a bill for a whole year. We must owe him money for years back. Every now and again I send him a little on account."

CHAPTER XXIX

The chilly weeks of April passed and May was there with its green banners and its warm sunshine.

Mary Faith bought a little white go-cart and took the baby for long slow rides through Balmoral Park and down River Street to see Mrs. Puckett.

Everything in the River Street house was as it always had been.

Mr. McClintock still sat in the parlor all day, smoking cigars and reading endless newspapers and magazines. Agnes, the waitress, was still there to answer the doorbell and exclaim over the beauty of Mary Faith's baby. Everything was changed except the color of Mrs. Puckett's hair. She had had it dyed a bright red instead of the familiar mahogany-brown.

On her way home Mary Faith would stop in at the Old Home circulating library on Terrace Road opposite the park and pick out two or three books for Mother Farrell to Kim and love stories or "problem" novels for herself and Mrs. Farrell.

The Library was at the back of the Old Home Book and Stationery Store where Mary Faith had bought writing paper and magazines ever since she had come to live in the neighborhood years before; and it had always been in charge of a faded blond woman of uncertain age whose name was Miss Mehlabel Mather.

A name that for some mysterious reason always made Mary Faith think of New England in the days of witch burning and stocks and whirligig.

But one Saturday afternoon when she strolled down to the library to return an armful of books and pick out some new ones there was another woman in charge—not a woman really but a very pretty girl with ash-colored hair wound around her head and a pair of very bright brown eyes.

"Miss Mather has gone away on a month's vacation, and I'll be here until she comes back," she told Mary Faith. "I'm her niece. My name is Mather, too."

She was very friendly and helpful, and she took down book after book from the shelves for Mary Faith's inspection.

"I can just pretty of books for myself," Mary Faith told her at last. "What I'm hunting for is a good western story or a mystery for my husband. You have so few, I think he's read almost every one you have here."

"How about a good sea story?" asked the girl, handing Mary Faith a dark blue book with the title "Captain Macedonia's Daughter" on it in large yellow letters.

"This looks all right. I'll take it," said Mary Faith. "Thanks for helping me, Miss Mather."

That night she and Kim went for a drive in the little car and stopped on the way home for a chocolate soda. They sat at the black counter in the drug store, sipping the sweet, cold liquid through long straws and smiling at each other in the wide mirror behind the counter.

Kim had no hat and coat on, and Mary Faith thought she never had seen him look so well as he did that night, with his hair rumpled by the wind and the collar of his shirt open, showing a triangle of skin that was several shades lighter than his ruddy sunburned face.

In the mirror she saw him turn his head and look at someone who had just come into the store—a tall slender girl with ash-blond hair braided around her head.

His eyes followed her as she walked to the back of the store and went into the telephone booth. And until the door had closed behind her did he take them from her. There was an intent eager look in them.

"Good-looking girl," he said briefly, setting his empty glass down upon the counter.

"Yes, I know her," answered Mary Faith. "She works in the circulating library in the bookstore—she's Miss Mather's niece. Kim, I don't understand you. I know you love me, but you're always picking out pretty girls and looking them over. Are all men like that:— I never think of noticing a man. I never look at any man in the world but you."

"Don't you?" His engaging grin flashed out at her and he patted her hand as it lay on the counter. "Then you're a good girl, and I'm for you."

And that was the only answer she got to her question.

CALLING HIS BLUFF

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR —No. 28

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

It was many marches from Opar to the Waziri country, but at last came the hour when Tarzan and the Belgian, following the trail of the warriors, topped the last rise and saw before them the broad plains, the winding river and forest of Tarzan's estates. Some distance before them the line of warriors was creeping like a giant caterpillar through the tall grasses of the plain. Grazing herds of zebra, hartebeest, and topi dotted the level landscape.

Tarzan looked out across the familiar vista with no faintest gleam of recognition in his eyes. Werper, however, did. A puzzled expression entered his eyes. He shaded them with his palms and gazed long and earnestly toward the spot where the bungalow had been. He could not credit his senses—there was no bungalow—no barns nor corals! All were gone. What could it mean? And then, slowly, Werper found the explanation—Achmet Zek had been there! The Waziri warriors, too, had noted the devastation. They hastened on talking excitedly until they stood before the ruins of their master's home. And there among the charred bodies and prowling hyenas, the frightful story was made clear to them and they rent the air with piercing yells of rage. "The Arabs did this!" cried Basuli, their leader, as his men clustered about him. "They have taken our woman and lady!" (They had always called Lady Greystoke.)

From the shelter of the reeds along the river, Tarzan and Werper watched the blacks. They saw them dig a trench with their knives and fingers; then lay their yellow burden in it and scoop the earth over the buried gold. Tagzan seemed little interested after Werper assured him that that which they buried was not gold to eat, but Werper gloated as if this buried treasure were already his. And now if he could but gain possession of Tarzan's jewels. HE MUST! HE WOULD!

FLYING HUTCHINSONS SAFE AT ITERUSAK

"Flying Family" All Safe On Land Near Iterusak But Machine is Wrecked

Fishing Schooner Lord Talbot Picks up Party

TAKEN ABOARD

No Details of Crash is Available Until Boat Docks

New York, Sept. 13.—In a wireless message received here today, by Henri Malherbe, manager of the Flying Hutchinson Family, whose airplane is wrecked near Angmagsalik, Greenland, George Hutchinson added his party had been afloat in the icy waters for two days. Hutchinson said the ship had been swamped but that much of it was being salvaged and taken aboard the British trawler Lord Talbot, which came to the rescue of Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and the four men flying with him from New York to London.

Malherbe said the flight probably crossed to Iceland and return by boat from there. He said Hutchinson announced in his message from the Lord Talbot this morning, that he expected to return to the United States Sept. 30.

None of the members of the group suffered any ill effects from the accident, Hutchinson told Malherbe.

Angmagsalik, Greenland, Sept. 13 (AP)—Wrecked on the beach here than 40 miles below George Hutchinson and the seven who were flying with him from New York to London, were rescued today by the British trawler Lord Talbot.

A leaking gasoline tank forced them down in the water of Greenland Fjord but the plane was wrecked on one of the reefs which make navigation of the little bay dangerous.

Hutchinson, his wife, their two children and the crew of four men waded ashore and reached the Eskimo village of Ikter, whose few inhabitants would have abandoned the place returned to Angmagsalik for the winter in a few more weeks.

MONEY PAID IN SHOULD BE PLACED IN BANK

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press Cable)—President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State in a communication received at the Dominion's office today it is understood suggests that the payment the Free State has been paying into a surprise account following the discontinuance of the detailed payments of land annuities to the United Kingdom, should be placed in the hands of the Bank of International Settlements. It is expected this action be taken pending reference of the matter to arbitration.

The communication follows reports yesterday that the Executive Council of the Free State was considering the setting of a date, when the offer to arbitrate the question should be withdrawn.

TWO MURDER CASES ON BRANT DOCKET

BRANTFORD, Ont. Sept. 13.—(By the Canadian Press)—For the first time in more than a quarter of a century two murder cases are on the docket for the Brant County Fall Assizes over which Chief Justice Rose will preside next week.

R. Bruce Robertson, a Burford Township farmer, is charged with the murder of his wife and Joseph Bomberry, 38-year-old Indian of the Six Nations reserve, is charged with the murder of a 40-year-old Indian woman.

Striking similarity is shown between the two cases now on the docket and the only previous time in the county's history when two cases were tried in the same assizes, in the 1905 Felix cyle, Burford Township, when Felix was charged with the murder of his mother and Joseph Bennett, Six Nations Indian, was tried for the murder of a woman on the reserve.

OSHAWA, Ont., Sept. 13. —(By the Canadian Press)—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, today opened the South Ontario Agricultural Society's Fair.

Mr. Ferguson was introduced to one of the largest fair day crowds in the history of the fair by his erstwhile political foe, W. J. Sinclair, Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, who is president of the Society.

Mr. Sinclair said there was a time, when he would have regarded a visit by the former Ontario Premier with fear and trembling, but today under changed circumstances he was delighted to welcome his former rival.

Previous to the opening Mr. Ferguson addressed a luncheon of representatives of the City of Oshawa, the surrounding municipalities of Ontario and Durham Counties.

CANADA NEEDS REDUCTION IN ALL TAXATION

Canadian Chamber of Commerce Now in Session

MEET AT HALIFAX

Unemployment Situation Could Be Alleviated By Reduction

Halifax Sept. 13 (CP)—Declaring that Canada is "on the threshold of the upswing," President W. McGregor of Windsor Ont., gave keynote of optimism at the seventh annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which opened here today.

"I am glad to be able to state that it is beyond opinion but the opinon of many leaders that we are on the threshold of the upswing" he said "My own reason for so thinking is that reduced inventories are beginning to exist in many spheres and in others are being considered for immediate replenishment.

"It is this evidence of readjustment which is so encouraging in the world today and which is almost striking contrast with the situation a year ago so.

Mr. Colonel McGregor wished to make it clear he was not suggesting that the corner had been reached the warning counsel that we should even better attuned to face the facts and voice candid opinions rather than to "veer wildly" deliberately from those ghouls of the night we prefer not to see."

Halifax, Sept. 13 (CP)—A clearing house of business opinion on unemployment questions, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce met in session today.

The president, Col. W. L. McGregor of Hamilton, opened the seventh annual convention this morning, when more than 100 delegates, representing the leading cities of Canada's nine provinces, were welcomed to this historic commercial centre by Lieutenant Governor W. H. Covert, Premier Gordon S. Harrington and Mayor A. A. Thompson.

The programme indicated that Empire trade and economy in general would form the basis of discussions.

The problem of government financing was injected almost at the start when A. C. Rankin of Montreal, chairman of the Chamber executive declared that the Canadian banks at the present time is a reduction in taxation—Dominion, Provincial and Municipal.

Mr. Dawson, who is president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and a director of the Bank of Montreal, declared that the present unemployment situation would be much alleviated by lessening the tax burden now resting heavily upon the shoulders of industry.

Can't Operate at Profit

Business men, he said, are finding it impossible or difficult to operate at a profit and in many cases, after taxes have been provided for "nothing is left for renewals, depreciation or for the building up of tension of enterprise."

Following Mr. Dawson's address the annual report of the executive was tabled and committees were appointed. The delegates were the guests at a luncheon tendered by the city of Halifax, Colonel McGregor was the principal speaker at this function, at which Mayor A. A. Thompson presided.

Tonight the delegates will attend a banquet tendered by the Halifax Board of Trade.

R. N. Stronach, president of the Halifax Board, will preside, and the speakers will include Col. McGregor, Lord Elibank, chairman of the Federation of British Industries, president of the British Empire, and Sir Newton Moore, president of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Campers Turn Soil and Find Relics Of Pre-historic American Tribe

Hirama, Pa., Sept. 13.—When campers turned the soil on a neighboring hillside little did they realize that they would reveal evidence of the roaming of a pre-historic American tribe in Southwestern Pennsylvania perhaps 10,000 and 25,000 years ago.

Queer looking objects at which they gazed in amazement turned out to be the skeletons of prehistoric dwellers together with flint knives, stone tomahawks, bear tusk drills, shell ornament, mortar and pestles, work stones and their implements.

Investigation was undertaken by State Archaeologist G. S. Fisher of Pinleyville.

The bodies were buried about five feet above the ground level in a sitting position, with children enclosed.

The bones, Fisher said, reveal the aborigines possessed more intelligence than the Indians, being slimmer, longer skulls and heavy primitive jaws.

At the time Hollands' original action was dismissed, Mr. Justice Raney also dismissed a counter claim for $2,000 damages by Riddolls, who alleged the woman was driving negligently.

MAY FINISH ROAD BEFORE FREEZE-UP

Better progress than at first anticipated by the men in charge of construction work on highway No. 37, known as the Tweed Road, has led to the belief of the contractor, that nearly all the road will be finished as far as Roslin before the winter freeze-up appears. A large number of men and considerable heavy equipment, which has been steadily at work during the past few months has led to a transformation on the highway. Around Thrasher's Corner's and at the big hill near O'Brien's Bridge, the change has been especially noticeable. The road has been kept fairly free open throughout the course of construction.

BLACK SQUIRREL HAS ACQUIRED HOME

Residents and shopkeepers of the upper end of Front street have been afforded considerable amusement during the past week or so over the antics of large black squirrel, which has recently taken up residence in one of the large maple trees near the Upper Bridge. The little creature which has been using the bridge as a playground for some time has become quite tame and easily approached by those he has come to know. In between times he makes occasional trips to nearby stores to obtain some delicacies, which have been left for him.

ANOTHER NEW LEAD IS LAID

One more waterworks service lead leak, which has been discovered under the road bed of upper Front street has given waterworks department engineers another job of digging up the pavement to install new sections of pipe. The old service, which were laid down many years ago, when the first main was put down have been steadily corroding throughout the years and are being replaced as the leaks are found discovered by the men, who accept the job as routine work.

TRAFFIC LANES ARE REPAINTED

Repainting of traffic safety lines at the principal cross streets in the city was carried out early Tuesday morning by a number of men, who worked until daybreak. The lines which had become badly effaced and worn by the steady traffic over them needed only a watering and a brush to make them as new and white as ever.

FLAG POLE ROPE IS REPLACED

One of the shortest lived pieces of city-owned equipment is the new rope on the flag pole on top of the city hall tower. Monday morning after eighteen continuous months of service to the breeze and rain, the old rope was taken down and a new one replaced by caretaker Gene Harris. Apparently which is the best quality sash cord, has to be weatherproofed in order to have it replaced before it breaks. If the rope breaks it becomes necessary to take down the flag pole in order to run it through the top pulley, a job which entails much expense and considerable labor.

HEAVY FROST IS SEEN AT ELDORADO

While effects of frost in this immediate section of the county have not as yet been observed, one resident of the city, who spent some time in the district near Eldorado during the early part of the week reports a belt or farm produce several miles wide and reaching from that latter village to Bannockburn, in which the effects of a severe frost is plainly evident. In this belt a number of fields of corn and pumpkin vines have turned black and in some cases have withered to the effects of it. Further south no trace of the frost have been sighted.

BATTLE BETWEEN OWL AND PUP DRAW

A small brown owl, which suddenly appeared from nowhere, to flutter in bewildered fashion in the bright sun on East Bridge Street, just before one o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and a small mongrel pup provided a few moments excitement on that street when the dog finally backed the owl into a nearby doorway and stood vigorously barking it. Although in a corner the owl put up a good scrap with the dog before a pedestrian finally stopped the fight, rescued the dazed creature and released it in the middle of a hedge in the post office yard.

The funeral services will be choral. Superintendent Peterby of the O.S.D. will line up the boys and girls of the Provincial School, where Sir Gilbert formerly was a teacher, as the cortege passes. The remains will be deposited in the private Mausoleum there rests the remains of Lady Parker. A semi-public service is being held in London, England. Bay of Quinte Lodge, Toronto, of which he was a life member, and the Argyll Light Infantry, will also be represented.

High Commissioner Ferguson, in his letter to Colonel Ponton, pays a warm tribute to the deceased, saying: "He was an enthusiastic Imperialist, but retained all his old affection for and memories of Canada, and frequently talked to me about Belleville and the people there."

BUGLE BAND TO BE FORMED

Sgt. Harry Fenn to Have Charge of New Complement

Under the leadership of Sergeant Harry Fenn, a bugle band is being formed as a new adjunct to the Argyll Light Infantry, and will be part of that unit during the coming training season.

Monday night some twenty buglers and drummers were in attendance at the Armouries for their first practice,who had already handled bugles or drums in junior corps or bands and there is every indication that under Sergeant Fenn's experienced handling the band will be a valuable acquisition to the local battalion.

At different periods in the Argyll's history creditably bugle bands have been formed and won fame throughout the province, and from the composition of the present nucleus expectations are that again the battalion will have a bugle band that will out-rival its predecessors.

COURT MILLER IS INSTALLED

Y's Men's Club Open Fall Season With Enthusiasm

F. Courland Miller was inducted into the office of president of the local Y's Men's Club along with the other new members of the board of officers of the Club by Past President Newton Thompson, for the Men's International at the club's first meeting of the fall semester held in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium Monday evening.

Previous to the installation of officers Past President Thompson spoke briefly on the many fine qualities of President-elect Miller and sincerely asked the hearty cooperation of the members for the coming semester on his behalf. The officers installed last evening were: Past President, Mel Blanchard; President, F. Courland Miller; Secretary, Johnnie O'Gorman; Treasurer, Harry Poste; Directors, Wm. McPeak, Jas. Boyd and Vic White.

Monday night's meeting was the first meeting to be held following the summer vacation and was fairly well attended, three new members were added to the club during the installation Mr. Thompson gave a short report of the recent Y's Men's International meeting which was held in Detroit, Mich, late this summer. He also thanked the members of the local club for the beautiful Past President's pin which had been presented to him by the Canadian clubs. He also thanked the members for the Y Men's pendant which was given his wife while attending the International meeting.

Remember Four Fs

While inducting the officers for 1932 Mr. Thompson brought forcibly to the minds of the Y's Men's Men's work, namely, Idealism, Interest, Initiative and Industry. He pointed out that each item mentioned had a significance pertaining to the goals which the club endeavored.

Upon being received into office Mr. Miller thanked the club and extended the members for their past support and asked that they give him their untiring co-operation during the coming year. He at once went into the business of the meeting for the year. The directors had met the previous week and had arranged a program for the Y's Men's Club of Belleville will have four dances instead of two this year. They will also produce their annual play and are also savouring to foster a new and extensive musical festival which will include many of the finest talent in the community. Other projects are also on the minute book of the club for consideration during the year. President Miller pointed out that there was considerable expense attached with their Knot Hole Gang. However, for fiddlers, the music class and their social work in the Y.M.C.A. The president especially mentioned the ever-increasing musical class of youthful boys sponsored by the club and conducted by Bert Houston and Harold Howard.

Director Bill Bennett then announced the floor and as chairman of the membership committee he called the members present to look for the co-operation of the absent members rather than a widespread campaign for new club members. "What is wanted this year is quality in our members, rather than quantity," said Bennett. Secretary J. E. Sherrit of the Y.M.C.A. told the club details of the coming membership drive for the Y.M.C.A. and asked their support in that project as well as other work to be done in connection with the organization.

Dr. Zorato Ono of Japan, while in Canada again representing on this occasion the church of his choice in the foreign field at the General Council of the United Church is due to be in Hamilton, Ont., soon is also participating in the Missionary and Maintenance Congress for this Bay of Quinte Conference at Trenton yesterday and today.

The reverend doctor originally intended to study medicine but became interested especially in evangelistic endeavours. He is a nephew of one of the chief justices of Japan. His conversion to Christianity is attributed to former Belleville folk, viz. Rev. Dr. Meacham and wife, who were missionaries to the western or sunrise kingdom of the east.

Last Sunday morning in company with Rev. Dr. Bell of Bridge St. United Church, he paid a visit to the grave of Mrs. Meacham in the Belleville cemetery as a tribute to the past associations and memories. Later on, addressed the morning congregation in Bridge Street Church. Dr. Ono in characteristic emphatic manner and with careful English, and emphasis gave vivid accounts of successful accomplishments and toil in Christian endeavours. During the month of August he assisted with Japanese mission work in British Columbia and recited now out of 375 special cases of conversion to Christianity thus achieved.

GO-GETTERS MEET TO FISH AND TALK AT MINAKI INN

Belleville Man High Up in Insurance Business Production

Mr. S. R. Burrows C.L.U. has just returned from Minaki, famous hunting and fishing lodge resort on the Canadian Northern Railway in the Lake Superior region, where the Quarter Million Dollar Club of the Mutual Life Assurance Company convened to discuss insurance bettes but principally to have a good time as guests of the Company. This honored because of their leadership in the field of business salesmanship. Each member of this unique club must sell one quarter of a million dollars worth of insurance in the year to qualify for membership. It is worthy of note that Mr. Burrows (Sandy) heads the list for July as the largest producer of business in all Canada for his company, and for the first six months of the year was the fifth largest business producer.

Mr. Stephen Burrows, father of "Sandy" has represented the Mutual Life Company for fifty-seven years, in Belleville and became widely known for business circles as "Burrows of Belleville" while Sandy, the son, wrote his first application twenty-five years ago.

Returning from Minaki Mr. Burrows spent a week at Windsor, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hunter.

These times are the best times that the world has seen in many years—they are leaving us something—Henry Ford.

Money has never yet formed an investment for anything; only genius or talent, or whatever the name you can do that.— Mary Garden.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT AT ALBERT

After a lengthy interval of quietness and apparent desertion throughout the summer months the campus on the grounds of Albert College will once again take on an air of activity and bustle Wednesday morning, September 26th, with the return of students from all sections of the country. On Wednesday afternoon will take place, although classes will not resume until Thursday.

Indications so far point to an even larger registration of students this year than attendance of last year. Prospects this year look particularly bright, declared Dr. Chas. W. Bishop, principal of the college, when questioned, "We all feel quite encouraged over the interest so far displayed by old and new students," he stated.

"FLYING FAMILY" SAFE NEAR ITERUSAK

them to Iceland or some European point. It would be necessary for them to spend the winter at Angmagalik.

That would not only be trying for the fliers, particularly for the two children, but actually might involve hardship for the inhabitants of Angmagalik, who never have much more than enough food for their own needs during the long winter.

The Lord Talbot is one of the biggest and best equipped of the Aberdeen trawler fleet, but accommodations aboard the vessel are restricted.

Not for Little Girls

Before word of their rescue reached here the wife of Captain Dollan, commenting on the flight, asserted that even if the Hutchinsons were found the Danish government already has been fully justified in refusing permission for their landing in Greenland. The flight served no useful purpose, either scientific or practical, but was merely a sensational stunt, she editorial said.

It added that the government knew from previous experience what elaborate precautions are required for a flight over Greenland and also what it costs to send rescue expeditions when such flights fail.

"Flights across Greenland are work for men," said the newspaper, "not for women, and especially not for little girls."

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Sept 13 — (AP)—The Walker Steam Trawling Company, owners of the trawler Lord Talbot which has been searching for the missing "flying family of Hutchinsons", off the coast of Greenland since Sunday, received a message from Capt. Watson of the trawler this morning stating he had located the eight missing fliers.

The message was dated Seydisfjr, Iceland. It was sent at 1 a.m. and addressed to the manager of the Trawling Company here.

"We have located the Hutchinsons," it said. "Are coming south and will rescue them at daylight."

Copenhagen, Sept. 13 (AP)—All eight members of the party of the flying family Hutchinson were safe and well when they were found today by the trawler Lord Talbot, it was reported here. The Hutchinson plane, "City of Richmond" in which they set out from Montreal, Canada, for Europe was wrecked. The party and the rescuer were found on the land near Turesak, Greenland.

The Hutchinsons, the father, mother and two small daughters, with a crew of four, left New York August 28 on a flight by way of Labrador over the Northern Transatlantic route to Europe. They hoped to be the first family to cross the Atlantic in a plane.

Forced Down

Their flight culminated Sunday in frantic S.O.S. calls—and then silence. By radio Hutchinsonsent word of his plane had been forced down off Eastern Greenland on the way to Angmagalik, Danish settlement, and it was feared all eight perished in the icy waters.

Hutchinson's two little daughters, Catherine 8, and Janet Lee 6, who carried their dolls with them, were the first children to be passengers on a transoceanic flight.

London, Sept. 13 (AP).— A dispatch to Lloyd's News from Thorshavn, Norway, today said the flying Hutchinson family had been rescued and taken to the Norwegian wireless station at Finnhu, East Greenland.

RESOLUTIONS ACCEPTED

were cleared away before adjournment yesterday but the majority of the 126 before the convention will still to be discussed. Prominent among these is one sponsored by North Bay Lodge No. 611, Ontario, which urges the Federal government to break off relations with Soviet Russia.

Such resolutions were served some years ago, and according to the North Bay resolution, which is accompanied by a petition, "Communists are trying to create discord between the United States and Germany to deal with the Nazi regime before Russia can be able to do so. The resolution is designed to provoke public discussion and this may be lengthy.

The North Bay resolution which recommended the renewal of trade relations with Russia promptly ran into arguments when the convention opened.

President Tom Moore, speaking after the Resolutions Committee had recommended non-consideration, declared there was a great difference between trade and diplomatic relations. Russia had made overtures which would have been detrimental to the interests of Canada's workers.

"Let me say I am not concerned with the political aspect but deem it my duty at all times to do all in my power to protect the interests of those I have been elected to represent," he declared.

Paddy Draper, Ottawa, secretary of the executive, recommended that the resolution be discarded.

"Even though we had Labor power at Ottawa, we as representatives of organized labor should not be with any new proposals we might make."

It has been indicated at previous conventions what our policies are in this matter. I would consider it political suicide to press this question."

Made Definite Stand

Mr. Moore pointed out the Congress had taken a definite stand against Russia dumping commodities and taking work from Canadians, and asked the Congress to reaffirm this policy. This action was then carried out.

A resolution sponsored by the Calgary Trades and Labor Council asking the executive to co-ordinate and formulate a plan for the best method to pursue for the creation of a Dominion-wide workers' parliamentary unit also was into enactment. Marcel Montreal, pointed out most of the delegates still belonged to the old-line parties and were not entirely convinced of the merits of a distinct Labor party in politics. In a bye-election in Montreal, he said amid laughter, there had been five candidates, including Trades Unionist and Labor men. And what did they do? he asked. "We elected the Liberal of course."

The committee recommended non-concurrence, with a reaffirmation of the policy of carrying out irrespective of any political party.

Victor W. Halford, Toronto, defeated Labor candidate in the recent East York bye-election, spoke in favor of a form of Labor government.

NO COMMENT ON DECISION

New York, Sept. 13—Lord Wakefield's decision to withdraw from international motor boat competition racing today found the British Oil Company magnate's protege, Kaye Don, unperturbed.

"I presume that Lord Wakefield meant what he said when he made the matter," was Don's terse reply as to a reporter for his comment.

Lord Wakefield's announcement in London said simply that because of "circumstances beyond control" he was withdrawing from the sport.

The British peer has been known for years as a leading backer of British speed boats and racing car drivers and he has supported several long distance airplane flights as well.

It was with Lord Wakefield's help that Sir Malcolm and Lt. Kaye Don set up a new record of 119.81 miles per hour for the Harmsworth Trophy with which Don failed in his effort to win the Harmsworth Trophy at Port Wood, on Lake St. Clair recently.

As is customary with the Catholic Women's League at the first session, the first meeting of the organization after the summer recess was last evening devoted to the entertainment and presentation of prizes to the clever students in St. Michael's Academy, who passed their June examinations with the highest standing in their respective classes. A large number of members, parents and children were present in the St. Michael's Academy auditorium for the event and the efforts of the students were warmly commended as the awards were distributed.

Mrs. Frank Fitzpatrick, president, was chairman for the programme which opened the meeting. The various numbers were greatly enjoyed and included a piano duet by Phyllis Dubee and Julia McNab, a reading by Patricia Meagher, a piano solo by Bernadette Black and a reading by Catherine Harris.

Prizes Awarded

The awards, cash prizes donated by the C.W.L. were then presented by Mrs. J. F. Nicholson, C.W.L. prize winners were as follows: Second class, Elizabeth Kerr; junior third, Aileen McGowan; senior third, Anita O'Connor; senior third A. CANADIAN PARLIMENT TO OPEN OCTOBER 6TH suggested would be devoted almost entirely to consideration and codification of trade agreements entered into by the Dominion in the imperial conference. Trade pacts were made by this country with the United Kingdom, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and the Irish Free State. All these agreements are certain to be placed before parliament at the coming session.

Expect Report

While the fall sitting will probably be taken up practically with intra-Empire trade, the report of the Transportation Commission, headed by Mr. Justice Lyman P. Duff, is expected to be laid on the table of the House of Commons shortly after the opening. The document had not reached the hands of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today.

The Canada-United States St. Lawrence seaway agreement will be tabled as soon as parliament assembles, it is hoped coincident with the tabling of this treaty, the government will place before the House the agreement between the Dominion and Ontario Government on the power question by the League Hydro Commission of 1,000,000 horsepower in the international reach of the St. Lawrence. Such documents have been made public.

Introduction of legislation carrying out the recommendations of the report of the Commission on Transportation is certain to not come until January, it is intimated in high quarters. The voluminous and this document will require the most careful study before any measures are brought down; although it is known the report does not suggest any drastic action.

No Action on Pact

Approval of the Canada-United States St. Lawrence treaty will not be asked this fall. The intention of the government is understood is to await approval by the United States Senate, which does not meet until November.

Two other important pieces of legislation will be the first before parliament. The Redistribution Bill is due this session. Amendments, too, will be made to the Finance Act. Both measures will likely be referred to special committees of the House before going through the Commons.

CANADA NEEDS MORE PEOPLE TO BE GREAT

More Money Also For Country to Reach Zenith

OPENS FAIR

High Commissioner Gives Principal Address at Opening

Oshawa, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP) — Hon. G. Howard Ferguson today told the opening day crowd at the South Ontario Agricultural Society, Canada needed more people and more money to "reach its zenith."

The Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain also is a former Premier of Ontario said Canada could never reach its rightful place in the world with only 10,000,000 people, with present population.

Nevertheless, he said he foresaw improvements in the economic situation of the country.

Now opportunities are coming to Canada," he declared, "and particularly to agriculture." Farmers, he said, were on the threshold of prosperity such as they had not seen for a long time.

"If we dislodged the crop, with Russia "definitely out of the market" and Australia's wheat surplus down to 50,000,000 bushels, would bring the country between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

This added wealth, he said, would set the whole country on the moving again and aid in restoring prosperity to Canada's citizens.

"If we display to the world the same fortitude and unity as we have done in our difficulties, we shall reap the reward," Mr. Ferguson declared. "Let us not be discouraged."

Mr. Ferguson, who was introduced by his former political adversary, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Ontario Liberal leader, then declared the fair open.

NEW CHAPLAIN IS WELCOMED

Major A. Beauchamp Payne Recalls Incidents of Army Life

Monday evening the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry met for their first mess meeting of the 1932-1933 season with only a few absences of the active officers. Lt.-Col. Keeler, M.C., had the pleasure of welcoming to the mess their new chaplain, Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne. The major in a suitably worded speech acknowledged the welcome extended to him and recorded him and spoke of some of his experiences in the Great War and in his chaplaincy with the Imperial Forces in the Great War.

Col. Keeler briefly outlined the work to be carried out in the approaching year and regretted having had to be delayed till the end of September. A vote of thanks had been made available for the Hussars Carnival during the month. Uniforms for the members of the band will be issued and the last week of the present month is already he informed his officers many of the battalion's duties for the year before the committee.

EIGHT STATES READY TO VOTE

Little Campaigning Has Been Done in Primaries

(By the Associated Press)

Eight States held State-wide primaries today and nominations were noted in all of them. In some States especially Senate and New Hampshire, there has been little campaigning. The candidates holding their fire for the finals of November 8. In others interest has been brief, but the affairs were drawing large numbers to the polls today.

States holding State-wide primaries today were Delaware, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont, Washington and South Carolina. In addition there were run-off primaries in several districts in Michigan.

Michigan, with a long record for Republicanism, has a Democratic Governor and Democrats showed a strength in yesterday's election that exceeded even the estimates of national leaders of their own party.was concerned chiefly with State affairs and local interest. But political observers in Michigan will look closely to see what it might portend in November.

Georgia's primary is tomorrow.

GOV'T BREACH IS WIDENED

Von Papen Declined to Answer a Summons

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—(AP)— The breach between the Von Papen government and the hostile Reichstag was widened today when the chancellor and Baron Von Gayl, Minister of the Interior, declined to answer a summons before the Reichstag Committee for safeguarding the rights of the Parliament.

The committee, however, even after the Reichstag is dissolved, has the right to summon. If the committee has jurisdiction over the dispute which arose yesterday when the Chancellor promulgated a decree of dissolution after the Reichstag had passed a votes of non-confidence by an overwhelming majority.

The two cabinet members said they would appear before the session if Herman Goering, the National Socialist President of the Reichstag would withdraw the letter he sent the committee saying nothing with him the Reichstag, having voted non-confidence, would not recognize the decree of dissolution.

The committee asserted the cabinet had already been given authorization and decided to ask President Von Hindenburg to compel the Chancellor and his cabinet to appear before the committee.

Would Not Be Party to Reduction of Teachers' Salaries

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 13 — (By the Canadian Press) — Two members of the Board of Education who verbally tendered their resignations last night and walked out of a meeting today were asked to reconsider their action.

The members W. G. Sealy and R. J. Easson, declared they would not be party to a reduction of the teachers' salaries after the board had secured from the teachers a gentlemen's agreement that they would turn over five per cent. of their salaries to the Civic Relief Fund.

The Board today expressed itself as unwilling to lose the services of the two men.

The attitude of the two members could not be learned.

TOLEDO YOUTH IS ALLOWED FREEDOM

London, Ont., Sept 13 (CP) — A charge of criminal negligence against 18-year-old Kenneth Harrington, of Toledo, Ohio, in connection with the death of Mrs. Ida Mae Hutchinson, 36, of Toledo, in a traffic accident, was dropped when Harrington reappeared in police court today. A coroner's jury last night had attached no blame to Harrington, who was struck Blake while the latter was riding a bicycle.

BICYCLES COLLIDE NEAR INTERSECTION

A serious accident might have happened about noon Tuesday, when two bicycles collided at the corner of Cedar and Catherine Streets. Constable William Fraser was proceeding along Cedar street on his wheel, when suddenly, without warning, another bicycle shot out from a nearby driveway. The two bicycles met in the middle of the street and were hurled to the ground. Neither rider was seriously injured and no damage was reported to have befallen the bicycles.

Canadian War Veterans Continues Long Trek Homeward

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 13 — Jack Foster, who is on a trek with his wife and two children from Miami, Fla., to Hamilton, Ont., his native city, will leave here late today or tomorrow to continue his long march.

Foster who says he was formerly a sergeant of the Black Watch Canadian Regiment of Montreal, today declared he can do the 230 miles in 30 days. He said that he and his family had been on the road over 100 days, pushing and pulling the luggage-filled trailer.

The trekker is headed for Canada in the hope of getting compensation as a Canadian World War veteran, not available while he resides in the United States. He passed through Albany Friday, and said he left Florida because he lost all of his possessions by fire and flood. In 1925, he said, his home was destroyed by flood, and his daughter and five daughters drowned.

HOW ANIMALS IMPROVE THEMSELVES

It is an old saying that the way to a man's heart lies through his stomach. Apparently, however, the cliche has some scientific foundation. At least, an eminent member of the British Society for the Advancement of Science, Dr. C. M. Yonge, told his fellow-members today that man marched to his present heights upon his stomach, other words efficient digestion aids evolution.

The idea is a novel one. According to Dr. Yonge, good digestion among the higher animals has enabled them to spend less time in absorbing food and more time in improving themselves. If this be combined with the Darwinian theory that man has ascended from the ape, we have the impressive spectacle conjured up of our simian ancestors seated high in the forks of forest giants, chattering among themselves after the evening meal, discussing methods by which they could improve themselves.

It is a cheerful vision. It serves to explain many things that animals do and that have seemed inexplicable to mere humanbeings up to now. The contemplative cow; the grunting pig; the mettlesome horse; the frisky dog—all are, of course, trying to improve themselves, in what direction and by what method, Dr. Yonge does not explain. But doubtless he knows, or at least has a theory. The man in the street must be content with the fact that improvement is their aim.

If a horse with good digestion can improve his breed, or a pig with good digestion bring forth a larger litter, or a cow provide a higher quality of beef or a dog perform any of his multifarious duties the better because his gastric juices operate swiftly and efficiently, then that is a very good thing both for the animal kingdom and the world at large.

We had a hazy idea, before reading Dr. Yonge on the subject, that man himself had something to do with these improvements. But it is most heartening to learn that the animals do it all by themselves.—Montreal Star.

TOPICS FOR SCHOOLBOYS

An English schoolmaster chaffs his brethren on their practice of requiring pupils to write essays on such subjects as "Describe how you spent your Christmas or your Easter or midsummer holiday" as the case may be, "Contrast a holiday in summer with one in winter," and so on. No teacher would like or expect to perform such a task himself. At the same time one hears complaints that history is not well taught, and most of the "howlers" of which lists are published from time to time are absurd mistakes in history reminding one of that very funny book, "1066 And All That." Here is a case where one difficulty ight solve another. History furnishes abundant material for essays, and there could be no better way of fixing the facts in the minds of pupils and encouraging them to describe events in an intelligent way in their own language. A Canadian author once made the confession that he knew very little about Canadian history until he undertook to write a couple of books about it.

Literature is another field for essay writing. It also is a difficult subject for teacher and student. Examinations in young people sometimes amount to questions which the authors of the English Men of Letters would find some difficulty in answering. But intelligent boy or girl might be asked to tell the story of an author's life, the conditions of the age in which he lived, to turn a play or a novel into his own language with quotations perhaps with the text before him. Subtle interpretations of on author's language could be left to the critics. In this way the study of literature would be encouraged and the difficulty of finding subjects lessened.

LEAVING HOME

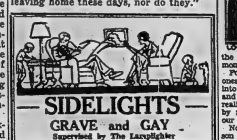
It was the big bulbs on all the Broadways of the cities that had them that lured the girls from the feeble lamps of home, they used to say.

The chance, as they thought, to get pretty dresses, bright baubles, and a round of galeties was too much for the girls as they toiled at the kitchen sink, minded the baby, or washed the stains from Willie's face.

If that were ever true of most girls who packed a telescope suit-case and left at night, it would not seem to be so now, to judge by a recent study made by the Big Sisters of St. Louis to find why girls leave home. Only a small proportion of them, according to these findings, are moved to the step by vain or foolish motives. As the Knoxville Journal tells us:

"Of 121 cases studied in this instance, twenty-nine left their poverty-stricken and well-nigh hopeless homes in order to earn money to help support their families.

"Fourteen left because of the ill treatment given them by stepmothers or stepfathers.



"Eighteen left home because of the unremitting sternness of home discipline, with its lack of thought or imagination when it came to the happiness of its young people, or because their foreign-born parents could not adjust their customs to American ways. Only nine of the more than sixscore left home to seek light and foolish adventure.

"The story bears the marks of a modern day.

"In earlier times there was almost nothing a girl could do to help either herself or others outside of her home. Girls in oldtime days rarely left home except for questionable careers.

"Nowadays there is opportunity for ambitious effort and an outcome for talent or for any sort of faithful and efficent work on a girl's part.

"Girls need make no apology for leaving home these days, nor do they."

LAUGHTER
By Aline Michaelis

Cares may crush and loss may grieve us,
Joys may wish each day grow less,
Still, life can not quite bereave us
While this blessing we possess.

Fearless of what may come after
As down unknown ways we grope,
While we have the gift of laughter
We are not devoid of hope.

Laughter's echoes, gaily ringing,
Banish futile doubt and gloom,
Set a thousand hopes to singing,
Bring a thousand dreams to bloom.

Laughter gives us golden dowers
Rare as jade and chrysoprase,
Laughter's notes are budding flowers
In the garden of our days.

HORATIO GILBERT PARKER was the name under which the late Sir Gilbert Parker taught. Marsh Hill was the twelve miles north of Belleville a number of years ago. Rev. W. S. MacTavish, B.D., Ph.D. has in his possession a photograph of the late author, taken at the time mentioned above. The wife of Rev. MacTavish was a pupil of school teacher Horatio Gilbert Parker in Marsh Hill School, and received one of the photos as did the other pupils on the occasion of the departure of the teacher for other fields of endeavor. Each town pupil received a copy of a poem believed to be one of the earliest of Sir Gilbert Parker's literary efforts. The poem is follows:

Labor—so to do is noble:

Wait—for just reward is sure:
Watch—and yield not to temptation:
Seek to do the Master's will.

Yours to tread the path of Virtue,
Yours to battle for the Right,
Yours to do your every Duty,
And to do it with your Might.

Seek the good, abhor the evil:
Faint not in the path Christ trod:
Manfully do earnest battle
For True Freedom and your God—

Freedom from the faults and follies
Of a life of vice and shame,
Freedom in the Red Cross Banner,
Freedom in His Holy Name.

The holiday-tide, now at the flood, brings to the schoolboy a welcome release from those "impious attempts to plumb the depth of human ignorance" by means of examination papers headed "Time allowed for this paper—2½ hours. All candidates must answer questions 1 to 5 but no more than three be attempted."

There is a pleasant story told of a don much addicted to the setting of these question papers, who once permitted himself an injudicious supper of lobster mayonaise and other rebellious delicacies. Thereafter he slept fitfully and dreamt that he saw on a gigantic hoarding in plain block letters the Ten Commandments Underneath, in italics, was the instruction "You must not attempt more than 7 of these."

GRATIFY ALL SENSES AIM IN CONTACTS

Balanced Expression and Impressions Are Necessary

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

All school books stated to the fact that we have five senses —sight, hearing, touch and smell. That we possess at least one other sense that is deserving of the designation, namely a muscle sense that is largely operative inside the body, so to speak, all the time at the moment here.

For the five listed above are the ones by means of which we come into contact with the outside world and experience its presence— the reality of things, as it were. It is by means of these that we make our environment our own.

Now then, we know that if a person loses one of these senses—sight let us say—he is handicapped by just that much in enjoying all that goes on about him. And, of course, the other senses become acute when such a handicap is present. The blind, for instance, are proverbially keen where hearing is concerned.

Nevertheless, if we are to profit to the fullest possible degree—if we are to appreciate our environment to the maximum, it stands to reason that the more contacts we have with the outside world the better. Gratifying all the senses would necessarily mean greater and deeper living. And that is exactly what most people deprive themselves in.

The majority depend almost entirely for knowledge upon sight and hearing especially upon sight. Seeing therefore becomes easy and, in a way, a line of least resistance. No small part of the popularity of the movies is due to that fact. It's no effort to see a picture. To many it requires less effort to see a movie in a cinema production than to listen to a band or to an orchestra.

But not only do we tend to depend too much upon sight and hearing, thereby more or less neglecting the other three senses, but we do not even get the maximum enjoyment out of these. We do not look enough for the beautiful. We do not, for example, surround ourselves with beautiful pictures or statuary or make use of colors and harmonious and pleasing to the eye as we should.

In addition to gratifying the eyes and ears consider the contributing results of a meal well-cooked, and properly seasoned. Or the texture of silks and garments that are soft, smooth and pleasing. That, at least, is found to be after the matter of taste and touch.

Women appreciate the importance of the olfactory sense more than men do. We all know how they go in for perfumes and delicate scents. There are odors more natural than these, of course, which are vastly gratifying. The odor of the sea—ocean or lake—for instance, then that leafy, refreshing odor one gets in the woods after a rain, the odor, or the perception of the lack of it, in pure, wind-blown, fresh air!

Indeed, it would be well if every home was made over to suit the individual tendencies regarding his own appeal to the senses. Not merely whether visual impressions or hearing ones, or taste ones or whatever it may be, give him the most satisfaction but also in what respects each one should be stimulated and enhanced to the greatest possible degree.

Those who like the syncopated rhythms should not, of course, neglect the more subtle and involved melodies of Beethoven, Wagner and Chopin. In short, the hearing sense can be stimulated deeply and afford a profound joy.

As an experiment and as an illustration of my theory, the next time you eat a meal, see how satisfied with just one look. Make it a point to look at it carefully, the way the leaves and the veins and ribs of the leaves and bark. Then feel the tree—touch it. Next listen for the sound as the wind blows through it. Smell the leaves as well and don't hesitate to chew them—often note what a different odor a tree now emits.

EXCITING DAYS

Legality of Moves Made to be Fought Out in Courts

Berlin, Sept. 13 (AP)—Chancellor Franz Von Papen and the German Junker Cabinet sat tight today, backed by the army and the police, though the Reichstag overwhelmingly voted no confidence in them yesterday while the Chancellor was in the act of dissolving the Parliament.

Announcing that democracy had broken down in Germany, the Chancellor gave every indication that he intended to continue to hold the reins under the slogan with Von Hindenburg for Germany."

In the meantime plans proceeded for taking to the Supreme Court the issue of the legality of the Chancellor's decree of dissolution, which the Opposition contended was presented out of order while a vote was being taken.

"The Government of the Reich," the Chancellor said, "is of the opinion that the system of formal democracy has broken down and is incapable of resurrection". He earnestly begged private employers to heed the signs of the times aright', declaring if they did not they would find themselves "ruthlessly swallowed" by those whom aim was state Socialism.

In an address to the people last night the Chancellor said the French reply to Germany's request for equality is armaments 'is not calculated to bring nearer the solution of this serious problem". The address was one which he was prevented from delivering in the Reichstag yesterday by the developments there. The French reply was delivered to the government yesterday.

"NO GREATER LOVE" WITH BERYL MERCER

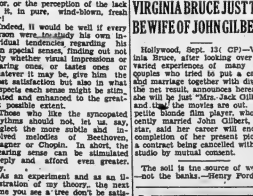
Directing children in talking pictures is not the simple task it was in the silent days. A child director could keep up a running fire of talk outside the actors lines and play upon the child's emotions. But now the child has to be rehearsed until there is danger of conscious acting replacing spontaneous, natural expression.

Lewis Seiler, who directed Dickie Moore and Billy Kane Graham, the two children in Columbia's production, "No Greater Love", showing Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre, believes that, of first importance in getting natural acting out of a child is a very careful and wise selection of the child cast.

The best child actor will show signs of stage consciousness if he has to do a scene with some one he instinctively dislikes or fears. Children react to people they don't like in either of two ways—they become rude, or else shy.

"Imagine," Mr. Seiler asks you, "Betty Jane Graham, who plays the crippled orphan in 'No Greater Love', doing that marvelous scene where her Uncle Sidney tells her that he is never coming to the orphanage again to see her because he doesn't love her, if she hadn't had a real, childish crush on Alexander Carr, who plays Uncle Sidney.

"Little Betty Jane is an excellent actress, but I doubt if her baby voice would have had that terrifically poignant, heart-breaking quality in it when she uttered only Uncle Sidney not to leave her, that Alexander Carr, who is dear and really been so fond of Carr that she couldn't bear the thought of having displeased him and been abandoned by him.



Dickie Moore, too, found a warm spot in his heart for Alexander Carr, and for Beryl Mercer, who played his grandmother, and while Betty Jane was inclined to exert her seniority rights over young Dickie, they managed to have no more than one stiff scene, than any two children anywhere else in the world will.

Others in the cast of "No Greater Love" who appear with the approval of the children were Richard Tucker, Robert Seaver, Alan Francis, Mischa Auer and Tom McGuire.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Good Grooming a Beauty Asset

"It's not good business," said the beauty shop boss, as she sank into the desk chair for a moment of leisure, "but I like to tell a lot of women that they've got to back up professional treatments with steady home efforts. They come in here every few weeks for facials and manicures and think that's enough. In between times they go to seed. They look elegant for two days and like wrecks the rest of the time. They're wasting their money. They might just as well settle down, get old and ugly, hide their cash in the teapot bank on the pantry shelf."

Conservation of youthful appearance shouldn't be a spasmodic recreation. It is something that should go on all the time. There's no stopping place. No need of making it a distasteful duty; it can be a form of relaxation. The daily bath is a restful, genital pleasure. Care of the hair calls for no lamentations; to arrange the hair beautifully is fun. Cultivating finger nail charm is pottery, but a woman takes a certain pride in it.

Money flingers who call on Estelle or Genevieve, make an appointment to rush through the beauty hopper, spending hours getting complexions and nails strimmered, hair waved, might as well make up their minds to the fact that they must contribute toward the beauty upkeep, not alone in money but in daily attentions. There are plenty of women who never step into a beauty shop, who know what must be done, who have look and span, as if they'd just stepped out of a bandbox.

What's the good of a new-laid finger wave if the owner thereof plunks along the street on high heels that need new tapes, the calves of her legs showing up twisted hosiery seams, shoes in need of a shine? It is the complete picture of perfection that makes good, goes down the boulevard with that ring well-groomed.

Beauty is a composition of many elements. No good depending upon one good point or two or three.

After the perfectly patterned water wave is brought home, it must be petted with care of. Some women have the knack. If a curl goes limp, they know a way to twist it round the iron, or do it into a circular bundle, fasten with a pin, make it fresh and crisp again. Yet there are others among them—I'm not mutin't get ill-natured, bawl out the sisterhood, give secrets away!

Doyle, sister of the bride, looked very lovely in pale pink crepe with lingerie touches, shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The groom was supported by Mr. Eugene Gerrard of Niagara Falls, New York.

At the offertory a very pretty solo "Rosewign" Ave Maria" was rendered by Miss Genevieve Mechanic, while during the signing of the register Mr. Harold Auger sang "On this Day, O Beautiful Mother".

After a very sumptuous wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride to the immediate friends and relatives, the happy couple left on a motor trip to North Bay, through the State to Ottawa and other eastern points. On their return they will reside in Marmora.

Better the $1.95 frock that is fresh and crisp than the expensive model that shows powder marks about the neck or carries those dreadful perspiration stains that darken silk robes at the back and shoulders. It's not ecomdimy to hold money from Peter the dry cleaner, to fling it to Paul the cosmetic chemist.

Good grooming is a fastidious regard for every detail of dress-freshness of gloves, repair of shoes, stockings well harnessed, finger nails in order, coiffure neat, complexion laid on with the expert hand under the guidance of the seeing eye. Line carrying the uneven color smear impart an appearance of untidiness. You see them too often.

It is the girl with a highly developed sense of order who puts up the sleek, well-groomed appearance. No slighting of beauty chores. No let up in the daily routine. Have a long-headed and wide-minded and she'll beat Popper Time at his own game. Every time!

Correct Manners

THE USHERS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Do the ushers leave my home or the groom's to go to the church? Do they sit in the same car with the bridesmaids?

S.

The ushers go directly from their homes to the church. They do not leave the grooms house, since the groom and his best man go together from the groom's house. Only the bride's attendants leave from the bride's house. The duties of the ushers make it necessary for them to arrive at the church about an hour before the time set for the ceremony, so that they may avoid anything ready for the receiving of the guests. It is logical that they will have no time to accompany any of the bridesmaids to the church.

Also it is not necessary for the bridesmaids to arrive at the church until the time for the processional. Therefore, they start from the bride's home just before she starts.

..... THEATRE PORM .....

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

If two couples go to a moving picture theatre, should the two girls go in the row first? How should they sit—together, or should they have a seat between them for one of the boys?

At they leave the row, should the boys go first or the girls? Or do they leave just as they are sitting?

D.

It is easier and simpler if one girl goes in the row first and a boy goes next; then the second girl, and last the second boy. The first boy before he enters the row; should ask permission of the second girl, "Shall I go in here?"

At they leave the row they proceed as they were sitting. In the aisle the two boys stand back a bit and let the girls precede them up the aisle.

ADDRESSING ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

One day your column you said that it would be better if the writer of the question did not abbreviate words on the envelope. Does this apply to all kinds of letters, even when we send so many at Christmas time?

Constant Reader

Yes, indeed it does—perhaps even more at Christmas-time! when we want our letters to look especially "very best 'appearance, as they convey our greetings to our relatives and friends.

The envelope that we address represent the initial "grooming" of our letters, and naturally we wish them to appear at their very best. Abbreviations indicate haste, and haste does not signify careful penmanship.

The envelope is the frame around the card, and a correct frame is half the beauty of the picture is it not?

So using the frame, the envelope gives that "first impression' just as the wrapping of a Christmas present does.

Do not abbreviate any word on the envelope that you wish to point out, Mr. and Mrs. are, of course, always abbreviated, but there are few other words that should be.

Write out the words "Street", "Avenue", "Square", "Park", "East", "West", "North", "South",

Also write out the name of the city and the name of the State. "Md." can easily be written to look like "Mo." and "N.Y." like "N.J.", "Ont." like "Col.".

It is not necessary to put any marks of punctuation at the ends of the line of the address on an envelope. This is called 'open punctuation', and is the general usage nowadays.

Generally speaking, make your address four lines long, like this:

Miss Elizabeth Jones
50 Wynans Street
"Ont." like "Col.",
New Haven

Parents—and School Children

(By Constance Cabeyne)

The fall term is imminent and distasteful. School isn't what it used to be. Children don't sit and pore over facts, learn columns of figures and know the exact book page where each history date can be found when time comes to review for examinations. There's no system to it, say more, objects the father.

The father has a right to his opinion, of course, but I feel that he is in error when he says there is no system. The system is there but it is different, and like so many people in so many varied situations, the father reacts with the sensation that anything new is necessarily wrong.

Method and Result

No, children can't put their finger on a given page as well as mere and know what to find, but in the new educational methods they are learning to think, and in the face of possible criticism, I propose to state that this, I feel, is something the old systems did not teach.

Children used to memorize, used to drill like mad; and parrot-like, what it "said in the book." But now, with their projects to plan-ed, with their individual work in finding facts at home, in the library, in newspapers, and combining them into assignments, I think they are making gigantic strides toward knowledge of how to get knowledge that will stay with them through their entire lives. If this method creates interest in a subject it is the best method. And I, for one, feel that it does. For interest is the basis of all education, all knowledge, and the parents who thinks that writing historical plays, of going in groups to study the stars at night, the visiting of a power plant and like projects, are a waste of time, let him stop and ask himself if he or not they enjoyed such just one purpose, that of arousing the interest. If they do they are exceedingly worth while.

Let's not knock the method unless we first look for the result, for results are what we work and pray for in our children.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

The world over it's velvet for the winter, velvet in soft frocks and coats, but accessories are all of this fabric, the various bow weaves and piles. A new evening bag is of white velvet and has a border decoration of twisted emerald green and white to tone with the gown, with an emerald or stone set with brilliants.

Why worry about going home to dress for the evening now that gowns are more dinner costumes than ever. A charming one consists of black velvet, and velvet, the bodice of the frock of heavy Venise lace with long sleeves, heavily trimmed with bands of kolinsky.

A careful blend of the old and new is to be found in the latest fashions. On an ultra-modern model of plain black crepe with a gaily molded bustline and a capelet that fastens at the center back is a collar of white pleated black silk fringe, place on the cape.

Go away and wear smart new tweed clothes. A three piece wool frock to wear en route is of red and white sheer woolen mixture with a white collar. It fastens all the way down with buttons and there is a narrow waist-length belt which fastens high about the neck.

Right now is the time for smart new frocks that are not of heavy weight. A charming model is done in green and white plaided wool crepe. It has a draped capelet collar of white silk organdie. The belt is of organdie green and white and the long sleeves are full below the elbow.

Gray moments are with us again as gray climbs to a new place on the color card. With a light gray coat is worn a detachable cape and muff of gray persian. The cape has a convertible neckline that goes through different manipulation of a metal ring fastening that holds the tie in place.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S. MEETING

Rawdon—The September meeting of Mount Pleasant W.M.S. was held on Thursday, the 8th, at the church. Mrs. A. H. Bailey, second vice-president presided, using as an opening "Jesus Shall Reign" and prayer. The Bible lesson was found in Psalm 11: 1-13. The programme centred around the "Missionary Monthly," the official magazine and each one offered prayer for the editor, assistants and all who contribute articles, especially the missionaries who write letters from the field. Each one was answered with the keyword "Thanks." Mrs. Ross Rideout was appointed delegate to attend the sectional rally at Stone Church, Bridge, on October 5th. Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a resume of the September issue of the "Monthly" and pages of the Missionary Monthly, and Mrs. Louis Jacks sang a lovely solo, "The Rosary." MAN WITH SLASHED THROAT FOUND ON C.N.R.

Hamilton, Sept. 13.—The body of a man with a slashed throat was picked up today on the Canadian National Railways right of way by Canadian Steel Company employes.

Police described the man as about eight inches in height. The body was clothed in blue trousers, blue and white striped shirt, grey vest, green checked sweater and a green fedora hat.

WHY DID A BABY STARVE ON THIS?

WHY DID THE SAME BABY THRIVE ON THIS?

CHEMICALLY, two baby foods can be exactly alike. The same percentage of carbohydrate, fat, proteins, mineral salts. The same vitamins.

Yet on one, a baby may lose weight, grow thin and weak. And on the other, that same baby can flourish and gain and take on new life. What's the reason? . . .

Digestibility.

Digestibility all-important

Doctors know that a baby can starve on what is apparently the finest baby food, if the baby cannot digest it. Or that baby food elements it contains. Only a food which is easily and completely digested can give your baby all the building materials his little body needs.

Countless doctors and mothers have found this out through actual experience. And that's why Eagle Brand, over a period of 75 years, has won a marvelous reputation as an infant food. The Eagle Brand secret of mother's milk, is the nature of the milk in all the world to digest. In baby's stomach, Eagle Brand forms soft, fine curds, like those formed by mother's milk. Every drop is quickly assimilated, goes quickly into the making of bones and teeth, muscle and sinew, energy and strength. But now you ask—does this wonderfully digestible milk, properly sterilized, nourish all that baby needs for health and growth?

50 babies proved this

You'll find the answer in a scientific test which two specialists in baby diet recently made with 50 average babies in a famous clinic. For months, Eagle Brand was the only milk fed these babies. Except for the supplementary foods* now given with all milk—including breast milk—it was their entire diet. For months, these babies were studied, X-ray pictures of bones taken, mouth development watched, weight and height scored, blood tests made.

After months, came the verdict. In every phase of baby health and growth, these babies had proved themselves splendidly nourished.

*This simple diet—*Eagle Brand, with the usual supplementary foods—had proved equal to the building of a 100% baby.

What overwhelming proof that the mother whose own milk fails can put her baby on Eagle Brand with perfect confidence!

Try Eagle Brand. See simple instructions on label. And send for new booklet "Baby's Welfare." Gives feeding schedules and full directions for baby's care, also pictures, life stories of Eagle Brand babies. Let us send your doctor a report of the scientific tests.

*The usual supplementary foods, of course, are orange or tomato juice, and cod liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic vitamin D.

McDOUGALL, BERGER MEET

Main Bout on Wrestling Card is Perfect Natural

When the Masked Marvel's manager refused to allow Rod La Rocque the privilege of coaching Scotty McDougall from his corner on Wednesday night at the Arena the fat was in the fire. The Marvel's manager, Jack Babbitt, announced that McDougall would take him from his corner. In fact the argument got so hot that Matchmaker Jack Corcoran had to substitute Casey Berger, the ex-California football star, for the Marvel against McDougall on Wednesday night.

Casey Berger gave "Nasty" Poulsi the rough house Italian, during a wrestling bout with Berger, who played tackle on the California football team some two season ago "rassles" on the same style as Gene Tunney or College Joe Gousenberg. Gousenberg Berger uses those rough tough football tactics which only go to wear down his opponent, as well as to bring the wrath of the fans on his head. Following his recent slam-bang match against the Masked Marvel at the Belleville Fair Grounds Scotty McDougall will take on Casey Berger and throw his way and then perhaps give the American football star a few tricks in return.

The added preliminary of Joe Massarino and Rod La Rogue is something of an unknown quantity as Massarino has never been seen in this section of the country before. La Rocque has adopted Belleville as his future home and has made a host of friends in the city. The Frenchman is a very quiet, easy going nature, and adds daily to his ever-growing list of friends in Belleville.

The third bout on the card of Jack Kogut and Frankie Hart brings together a heavy man and a much lighter one. Kogut must out-weigh Hart at least ten pounds but the agile Dutchman is about twice as fast as the ex-Canadian light heavyweight champ and the match will certainly be a fast, clean speed contest but brute strength.

In the boxing bout between Scotty Elliot, of the Mimico Hills of Peterboro, the fans are assured of seeing a fast scrap as the ten rounds against George Semark last week and Hamilton will have the upper edge to trim the Belleville lightweight. The Elliot-Mimicella bout is a natural as both lads are quite willing to mix it, while in the ring. When talking to Matchmaker Corcoran yesterday, he would not commit himself in regards to sending Lionel Conacher to Belleville to referee as "Conacher has waltz on the knee at present and it might cause permanent injury by too much jumping about.

MARITIME TENNIS STAR NOT IN 1932 FINALS

The Maritime tennis fans were disappointed when John D. Bell, English rugby, the leading football game of the Maritimes and basketball, he took a leading part in all three during his years at Fredericton High School and the University of New Brunswick. Mis-fortune came his way in the shape of wrenched knee. He kept on playing. In his Sophomore year at the University he was carried off the field during an exhibition game of rugger, and was out of sports for the season. Next year he was on the playing field again, a steel brace supporting one knee, a tight bandage the other. Appearing only in the important games, he climaxed the year by winning the final game for the McTire Trophy at Montreal in 1927, against the Vickers XV with a fierce drop kick in the closing minutes of play. Still sup-ported by bandages and braces, he henceforth concentrated on the sports of rugger and tennis, although he did take time off at Oxford to figure prominently as a forward on the hockey team.

His Oxford Blue, won in rugger, was awarded for one form of athletics. The Maritimer was graduated in 1930 with first class honours in Physics from Oxford University, which he attended as Rhodes Scholar for New Brunswick for 1929 and announced he would not be in the tennis finals this year. Babbitt is the only one of the Maritime Tennis stars by winning the men's singles' title of the three Provinces the past year, in 1930, at Sydney, N.S., when he defeated LeRoi Kenzie, of Toronto, who had just won the Nova Scotia title by the scores of 6—3, 6—3 and 6—4. At that time the Fredericton man was home after completing his first year at Oxford and since he was not present to defend his title at the Provincial Meet in Moncton last year, may be regarded as an undefeated champion. Although a winning high scholastic honors at Oxford, he has kept his hand in during the past two years by playing considerable tennis both in England and on Continental court.

CURRENT SPORT
Knocks and Boosts

Since winning the Bay of Quinte league the Belleville Victorias have been up a very creditable record. They have won five of the six games played in the O.B.A.A. intermediate series, play-downs. They have also scored 61 runs in the six games so far played.

It has to be admitted that the Victorias have played much better ball than they were given credit for during their early trip upwards. On the other hand they have had a few days when they were "just another team." Such was the case against two of some of the Vics were pretty cheesy. This apathetic attitude took root and was blossoming freely during the game at Newcastle with Orono. The Vics committed rather too many errors at second and consolidated during the nine innings at Newcastle. The Vics should take Orono Gamsby's Orono pitching into camp quite easily but if they keep on assuming their present lofty and haughty attitude they may get a severe jolt pretty soon.

Just why a team will kick, boot and throw a ball around the way the Vics did while they was in the box at Saturday is a question. When Campbell assumed the pitching duties the Vics looked like an altogether different team, however. The Vics lacked can secure the average amount of ground while their outfield are all that could be asked for defensively. Art Kenney has been looking after the receiving duties of late and upon the records shown plenty of credit can be given to him. Archie Campbell has been the team's iron man on the hillop, while Ted Hurley and Art have done their share to assure the club success. The players should remember, however, "in union there is strength."

Should the Vics are in the third round of the intermediate O.B.A.A. play-downs they should receive a little more than moral support at the hands of the fans. Having a team within striking distance of the provincial champion-ship should have the effect of filling the local grandstand on Wednesday when Orono Gamsby brings-

It looks as though the fans will benefit by the switch from the Masked Marvel to Casey Berger, the ex-California football star. Although the fans will get Berger the proverbial "Bronx cheer" they will like the ex-footballer as he asks no quarter nor does he give any. Scotty McDougall, on the other hand, is a great favorite and when Scotty pierced to the fans that he was going to and take penalty when he wrestled the Masked Marvel to a draw recently, Wednesday night's bouts are stirring considerable interest and many will be expected to see the largest crowd ever to witness a "grunt and groan" affair seen in the Quinte district this way into the local Arena. Reserve seats for the preliminaries at Scotty Kline and Ned Minicella are on sale at the first regular boxing bout. If Minicella beats Kline we wonder who they will trot in against the classy Petersboro lightweight next?

The football season was initially ushered in yesterday afternoon when the Belleville Collegiate "grid-ders" answered the first call of the season. Coach Les Shiels had plenty of material out but a number of the veteran boys were minus at the first workout of the season. Dick Filip and Jack Graves the two "galloping ghosts" of last year's R.C.I. team were not in evidence yesterday. Other star linemen were also conspicuous by their absence. Coach Shiels will have to build an entire new line of offence this year as none of the veteran boys graduated while others are over age. However there are several little cooler the older members of the squad to replace the call of the "pig-skin" no doubt.

Today's question: L. H. wants the solution to the following question: Bases full, one out, infield drawn in, batter hits a ground ball that goes through second baseman's legs and strikes runner going from first to second. Is the runner out or is the ball in play?

Ans.—The ball is in play and the runner is not out.

WINDFALL FOR AN UNEMPLOYED MACHINIST

Toronto, Sept. 13.—John Wild, unemployed machinist and tool maker, has solved the problem of keeping the wolf from the door for next winter. He has picked the only ticket on Entrap and Grand Duchess for the daily double in the seventh race at Thorncliffe yesterday. The ticket was worth $1,100.75. Wild took the winnings in cash, beating newspaper men and photographers to the cash wicket and promptly disappeared.

TENNIS

A very successful afternoon was spent by the members of Cash's Sports Club when they held an inter-tournament last Saturday. This tournament marked the end of a very successful season. More interest has been shown this year by the players and a marked improvement in the play was noted. Only the first round were played Saturday, the preliminaries having been played off previously.

At the end of the afternoon a rainy supper was served by the committees to the members and their friends. At the end of supper Miss L. Wirth presented the prizes to the various winners, each of whom were called upon to make a speech.

Some of the members brought forward the idea of forming a league among the tennis clubs in the city. Inter play of the different clubs would be interesting and also a mutual benefit to all concerned. Cash's Sports Club would like to hear from their fellow clubs in connection with the proposed league for next year.

Following are the winners of the tournament:

Ladies' singles—Miss V. Hobson 6—7, 6—2 7—5.

Men's doubles—Miss V. Hobson and Miss O. McEwan 6—3, 6—2.

Men's singles—Mr. A. Wesley — 6—1, 6—2.

Hole in One

Tom Lester, local golfer, entered the golfer's hall of fame of golfing history, when he made a hole in one, on the 5th hole at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club on Sunday afternoon.

Tom teed off on a par three hole shot and after driving the ball to the bunker rolling on the green and into the hole for a hole in one. The fourth hole at the Bay of Quinte County Club is 140 yards and reputed to be a par three shot. This is the first hole in one to be made on this particular tee since the Bay of Quinte Club was inaugurated.

Mr. Lester is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Lester 219 Ann St. At the time of striking the drive Tom was playing a match with Teddy Doyle of this city Mr. Lester has many friends congratulates him upon entering the golfers' paradise.

REJECTS PLEA OF SLAYER FOR LIFE SENTENCE

Paris, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Paris Midi said today it learned from authoritative sources that President Albert Lebrun rejected the plea of Dr. Paul Gorguiloff, slayer of former President Paul Doumer, for a commutation of the death sentence imposed upon him.

There was no official announcement but the prefecture of police said its usual preparations also was issuing passes for the execution.

Father Gillet, a priest of the Greek church, arrived here to administer the last rites to Gorguiloff.

The execution probably will take place at dawn tomorrow or Thursday.

CAR FORCED AGAINST RAIL

Owned By Mr. Francis of Napanee, and is Badly Damaged

Quick action on the part of Mr. A. J. Francis, Napanee, prevented what might have been a serious motor car accident about 2 a.m. Tuesday morning. Mr. Francis was driving westward about one-half mile west of Napanee when he was forced over into the guard rail by an approaching motorist who was also well on the wrong side of the road.

Mr. Francis could not ascertain the license number of the passing car as his attention struck the guard rail as he tried to avoid a head-on collision with the approaching car.

The entire right side of the Francis sedan was damaged by the impact. The right front and rear fenders were damaged, the right running board completely smashed while both right doors were considerably damaged.

The accident was reported to the traffic police.

CARROT GROWS ROUND A ONE INCH WASHER

The strangest specimen yet to be listed among the exhibits of vegetable freaks which have been picked up in this district during the past season has been found in the garden of Mr. J. A. Rapsey, prominent Toronto gardener of the Forest Hill. The exhibit is a carrot, about six inches long, which has grown right from the washer with a one inch hole through the centre. The vegetable is perfectly formed except for the spot where the iron washer encircles it. The carrot is where here half inch of carrot supports the rest of the growth. The carrot is as sound as any yet seen.

BULL MOOSE NOT AFRAID OF FREIGHT TRAIN

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP) —The crew of the Haliburton train of the Canadian National Railways today reported having driven an enraged bull moose feeding on the tracks.

The moose, said the animal weighed at least half a ton, had a spread of antlers wider than the tracks and higher than the level of the small engine headlight.

At the approach of the train the moose jumped to the side along the right-of-way, they said, and continued to feed without paying further attention to it.

Moose are rarely found so far north.

MOST DRASTIC BREAK OF 1932

Selling Subsided After Noonday and Some Shares Recovered

New York, Sept. 13—The stock market was washed down a steep incline by a torrent of selling in the earlier hours of trading today. But it showed some inclination to climb back, as the selling subsided after midday.

Losses of 1 to more than 19 points were about half recovered in numerous instances by the close. But the recovery was not well maintained, and the market remained highly unsettled. Selling was general throughout the markets, with bonds, commodities and other commodities under pressure, although the most severe recession was in shares, where the break was the most drastic of 1932.
